BRITISH READY TO FLEE SOFIA

OUT OF THE PAST LINCOLN WARNS OF WILFUL MEN

1837 Speech Predicts the Coming of One.

BY PERCY WOOD.

In a speech delivered 103 years ago, Abraham Lincoln, with amazing foresight, discussed two vital questions which now absorb the minds of Americans.

Pondering dangers which time might bring to the country, he envisioned the possibility of invasion by a foreign force. At this he scoffed.

In the same speech he forecast the coming of a man of strong will, overweening ambition, and towering genius, who would attempt to pull down the national "edifice of liberty and equal rights"—pull it down, said Lincoln, even at the cost of "enslaving free men."

Called an Instance of Prescience.

The speech was called to THE TRIBUNE's attention by a Lincoln authority who regards it, because of its astounding aptness, as "one of the most startling instances of prescience in history."

At the time he delivered it, Lincoln was 28 years old—at the halfway point in his life. He was a member of the Illinois house of representatives and was a newcomer in Springfield. The Young Men's Lyceum, a Springfield club, wanted to "look him over," as an authority puts it, and invited him to address them. He spoke on Jan. 27, 1837.

Why Lincoln chose to gaze soberly far into the future on that January evening is not known. However, his deep love of country already had manifested itself. He was concerned then, as later, with the great problem of the preservation of the Union, and the depth of his concern is made apparent by the searching character of his speech.

Pays a Tribute to America.

On that winter evening of 1837 Lincoln gave to his "remarks of the evening," as he called them, the title: "The Perpetuation of our Political Institutions." He opened his address with a stirring tribute to the richness of America and the freedom it offered.

He declared Americans to be in "the peaceful possession of the fairest portion of the earth" and described "these fundamental blessings" as a "legacy bequeathed us by a once hardy, brave, and patriotic, but now lamented and departed, race of ancestors."

Liberty and equal rights had been guaranteed by the founding fathers, he said, and the task of transmitting these rights had been forever left to those who should follow.

The speaker then turned to the main subject of his discourse.

Poses Some Questions.

"How then shall we perform it?" Lincoln asked, referring to the task so dear to his heart—the preservation of the republic and its institutions. "At what point shall we expect the approach of danger? By what means shall we fortify against it? Shall we expect some trans-Atlantic military giant to step the ocean and crush us at a blow?

"Never! All the armies of Europe, Asia, and Africa combined, with all the treasures of the earth [our own excepted] in their military chest, with a Bonaparte for a commander, could not by force take a drink from the Ohio or make a track on the Blue Ridge in the trial of a thousand years.

"At what point, then, is the approach of danger to be expected? I answer, if it ever reach us, it must spring up amongst us; it cannot come from abroad. If destruction be our lot, we must ourselves be its author and finisher. As a nation of freemen we must live thru all time, or die by suicide.

Foresees "Men of Ambition."

"It is to deny what the history of the world tells us is true, to suppose that men of ambition and talents will not continue to spring up amongst us. And when they do, they will as naturally seek the gratification of their ruling passion as others have done before them.

"The question then is, can that

ENVOY'S PAPERS BURNED AS AXIS PUSHES DRIVE

Way Sought to Halt Nazis in Balkans.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 19.—The British legation was reported today to have burned its confidential documents in case it is forced to withdraw hastily from this Balkan kingdom, and the controled press predicted failure for a last minute British diplomatic offensive intended to halt axis penetration of southeastern Europe.

Sir Hughe Knatchbull-Hugessen.
[Acme photo.]

While George Rendel, British minister to Bulgaria, and Sir Hughe Knatchbull-Hugessen, British ambassador to Turkey, conferred at Istanbul, Turkey, the newspaper Slovo said the measures decided upon there were bound to be fruitless.

See Move for Delay.

Observers believed the conference was bent upon checkmating the axis' expansion in the Balkans as long as possible, possibly trying to persuade Bulgaria to defer territorial claims in Thrace against Greece, and to reject any Rome-Berlin invitation to join in a military adventure against Greece and Turkey.

While there was no confirmation in dispatches from Berlin, Rome or Athens of Cairo reports that a series of axis demands already has been made on Greece, various Balkan reports indicated such demands may be under consideration.

Turks Push Defenses.

Continuing Turkish defense measures on the European side of the Dardanelles was indicated.

[In Istanbul, the newspaper Yeni Sabah called for a "united front" in southeast Europe to face the axis, and said the "entire Balkans are now in danger from Germany." The Turkish radio denounced as an axis lie a report that Anthony Eden, British war secretary, would soon visit Istanbul.]

Sources close to King Boris of Bulgaria denied that the British recently urged that he protest against the presence of German troops in Rumania and that he act to prevent a similar Nazi penetration of Bulgaria. The denials were occasioned by reports in the German newspaper, Tageblatt, in Bucharest. King Boris recently received a personal letter from King George VI. of England, however, seeking in general terms to promote the friendship of the two realms, it was admitted. Authoritative sources said the British king expressed the hope Bulgaria would continue neutral.

Italians Hint New Demand.

A rising press tirade against Greece and Turkey took on a more serious complexion with the intimation by the authoritative Fascist weekly, Relazioni Internazionali, that the two friends of Britain soon would be called upon to line up with the axis.

Usually reliable circles said that negotiations between the axis and Russia for an understanding on policies probably would be launched soon.

Greece and Turkey Warned.

BERLIN, Oct. 19 (AP).—An authorized Nazi commentator declared today that if Greece and Turkey don't see that their bread is buttered on the side of the axis, it is just too bad for them.

In the Wilhelmstrasse reports that Germany and Italy had made territorial and other demands upon Greece were denied categorically. Officials insisted "much larger issues are at stake somewhere else."

Hear New British Bloc Forms.

CAIRO, Egypt, Oct. 19 (AP).—Britain methodically prepared her defenses tonight as rumors were spread of impending deeper axis penetration in the Balkans.

One rumor was that a near eastern defense bloc including Egypt, Turkey, Iraq, and other countries was being formed to join Britain. There was no official announcement, however.

Report British and Nazis Both Seeking Peace

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Oct. 19.—Peace overtures are reported again to have been made by both the British and German governments during the last week and in British opinion Germany's latest suggestions for ending the war are "quite discussible."

The Tribune correspondent's informant declares that in recent months England and Germany have been maintaining contact thru a number of channels, including the principal one in Sweden. In fact, the two governments have never been out of touch, he said. Prime Minister Winston Churchill thus far has steadfastly refused to consider opening negotiations with Adolf Hitler, but Foreign Minister Lord Halifax has kept the way open, the informant said.

Use Stratosphere Planes.

Wireless and telephone communications between Sweden and London are being maintained and stratosphere airplanes are being used by diplomatic couriers. These land secretly on neutral airfields and the courier has sometimes arrived with personages who are continuing talks which might some day suddenly end with the declaration of an armistice.

Both sides are said to have agreed on one point—that the longer the war continues the more advantageous it is for bolshevism.

While peace negotiations are being held in Stockholm, Sweden, other equally important negotiations are now being conducted in Moscow where other diplomats are making efforts to prolong and enlarge the war. Today the Moscow foreign commissariat is the busiest foreign office in Europe. American and Japanese diplomats are discussing with Russia far eastern developments, while German and British diplomats are equally interested in negotiating about Europe.

Believe Reds to Stay Out.

Neutral diplomats observing the frequent visits of their colleagues at the commissariat also are making inquiries and report there is little likelihood of the soviet government making commitments which would involve her in the war of the great powers. They believe that should Russia enter a conflict and be victorious, her generals would replace the dictatorship of the proletariat with a military dictatorship.

Young Old Men of 1918 Speak

BY MARCIA WINN.

All days are quiet, quiet and slow, at Hines hospital in Maywood, but the quiet now is the disquieting one of suspended animation. The 1,800 disabled war veterans there are quietly waiting for war.

Wander at random thru the rooms with spreading red brick windows, down the long corridors into the wide wards. Talk to the men in wheel chairs, the young men old at 42. Talk to the white faced men propped in white beds, men for whom life hinges on the flicker of a hard pressed heart. Talk to the men in striped toweling bathrobes who are back, for the third or sixth time, that a piece of shrapnel 22 years old may be probed for.

What They Think of War.

Ask them how they feel about war now. They think you mean the current European war. "We're almost in it," one will tell you. "I can't think about it," another will say. "We're in it now, except for man power," says a third.

Listen to Harry M. Meenan of Springboro, Pa., who sits in a hall, his crutches beside him, and is shriveled at 52. When he was 29, and a roofer, he enlisted in the world war. He left his left leg at Chateau Thierry, and part of the bones of his left arm somewhere else. His trachea is blocked up by a tumor now, necessitating the imbedding of an artificial silver opening in his neck. His words come in a shrill whisper:

"I don't want us to get in this war, but we will. I believe in defending this country if we're invaded, but I don't believe in going to Europe to defend anything. War," and he smiles grimly, "didn't do anything for me. I was going to save democracy." Again he smiles. "That was my idea at that time. . . ."

Feels 3d Term Means War.

Listen to Richard J. [Red] Murphy of 2538 Jackson boulevard. He was with the 13th engineers at St. Mihiel and the Meuse-Argonne. Once he was captured, by mistake, by the French and identified himself by the American flag tied around his stomach for warmth. He had 26 pieces of shrapnel removed from his head. Now he has heart trouble.

"If we have a third term, we're going in this war as sure as God made little apples," he says. "It's just the same as the Wilson slogan. Remember? 'He kept us out of war.'

"I got a boy going on 21 now. I don't want him in this war. We got a hospital full here now and a waiting list of 1,500. How'd it be? My boy and me in the same hospital, huh?"

Ask Roy Malmgren of Rockford, who was gassed in the Argonne and now lies propped in bed with acute cardiac asthma. He is 43, a big man who once was a machinist. Now his movements are as labored as his breath and words.

Opposes a Fight "Over There."

"I don't think much of war," he says slowly. "I just hope we don't have to get in it again. It looks like we're going to, but I hope not. We have no business in Europe at all . . . what did we gain in 1918? It's all right to fight if attacked, but not over there. . . ."

Listen to Charles M. Gianniny, who was blinded for 21 days in 1918 when a machine gun jammed and blew up, killing his companion. He is 42 now and is back at Hines for another operation on his eyes.

"When I was a kid," he muses, "I thought there was glory in war. I still think it's wonderful to represent your country as a soldier if your country is involved. I have a son who is 18, and if we go to war, I'll persuade him to go to defend his country.

"I'm 100 per cent for England," he continues. "We've got only two English speaking races left . . . but I don't think we should go over there. Help any way we can, but not with men. But we're bound to get in it. I think we're in it now except for the men. When Roosevelt made that speech at Charlottesville, that was our entrance."

He Won't Speak of War at All.

Ask Carl Wenchekauskas, who is 48 and is receiving treatment for high blood pressure, what he thinks. He was wounded in the Argonne. Now he doggedly refuses to discuss war.

"I don't want to think of it," he says. "I don't want to think of any war. One war is enough for me. We should stay out now; defend here, but not over there. We gained nothing before. I know I didn't."

Occasionally you will find a veteran who not only thinks the United States is on the threshold of war, but should enter the war at once. Such a one is Horace L. Hofman of Lakeview, O. He was wounded four times.

"If I had my way," he says, "all war would be abolished. We certainly didn't save democracy before, but I think absolutely we should help England now because there will be a whole change of civilization if we don't. . . . I think we should enter with machinery, tho. Not man power."

3d Term, War Issues Indicate Close Election

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—With the war and the third term providing the paramount issues the nation's 39th Presidential election will take place two weeks from next Tuesday.

Whether to commission Mr. Roosevelt to continue a foreign policy that may involve the country in war in Europe or Asia or both, whether to depart from the tradition limiting the Presidential tenure of eight years, whether to perpetuate New Deal collectivism at the expense of private enterprise, whether to intrust the mass production of arms to Mr. Roosevelt, the politician, or Mr. Willkie, the industrialist—these questions and many more are entering into this momentous plebiscite which will determine the destiny of the republic.

So deeply are the people stirred by the crucial decision they face that a total vote far exceeding the population increase in the electorate is in prospect. Registration of voters in New York, Illinois, Pennsylvania, and other large states has broken all records. Particularly notable is the unusually large registration of women, supposedly concerned by the danger of involvement of the country in war.

Close in Dozen Large States.

A fortnight before the balloting the result is in doubt. In a dozen or more large states the contest appears to be close. The winner—whether Willkie or Roosevelt—may have a large majority of the electoral vote, but only a comparatively small plurality of the popular vote. Such pluralities for either contender as Mr. Roosevelt's 7 million in 1932 and 11 million in 1936 do not seem to be in the cards this time.

To win, Willkie certainly must carry both New York and Pennsylvania and probably Ohio and Illinois in addition. The indications are that he has a fair chance to carry all four. The election will find the spotlight on New York for the candidate who carries New York probably will be the winner. Only once in the last two generations has a Presidential nominee who carried New York failed to be elected. That once was in 1916 when Hughes got the electoral vote of the Empire state, but Wilson was elected.

"Without New York," said Kenneth F. Simpson, Republican chairman of New York county, "it is doubtful if Willkie can win. With it I don't see how he can lose."

Lean Toward Willkie.

There are 531 votes in the electoral college, of which a majority requisite to election is 266. There are 22 states with a total of 266 votes which Willkie appears to have all the way from a certain to a fair chance of carrying. With the electoral votes of each, these states follow:

Colorado	6	New York	47
Delaware	3	North Dakota	4
Idaho	4	Ohio	26
Illinois	29	Oregon	5
Indiana	14	Pennsylvania	36
Iowa	11	Rhode Island	4
Kansas	9	South Dakota	4
Maine	5	Vermont	3
Michigan	19	Wisconsin	12
Minnesota	11	Wyoming	3
Nebraska	7
New Hampshire	4	Total	266

Here's Roosevelt Back Log.

There are 22 other states with a total of 216 electoral votes that constitute the Roosevelt backlog. They are:

Alabama	11	New Mexico	3
Arizona	3	North Carolina	13
Arkansas	9	Oklahoma	11
California	22	South Carolina	8
Florida	7	Tennessee	11
Georgia	12	Texas	23
Kentucky	11	Utah	4
Louisiana	10	Virginia	11
Mississippi	9	Washington	8
Missouri	15	West Virginia	8
Montana	4
Nevada	3	Total	216

The four remaining states with 49 electoral votes are regarded as doubt-

WILLKIE TELLS HOW HE'D FIGHT FARM PROBLEM

No Parlor Tricks, but Hard Work.

Wendell Willkie will be heard over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system and over CBS and NBC from 1 to 1:30 p. m. Chicago time today in behalf of the "Community Mobilization for Human Needs." Willkie will be introduced by Charles Francis Adams, chairman of the campaign.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 19.—Wendell Willkie attacked the New Deal farm policies in an address before 12,000 persons who jammed the Minneapolis auditorium tonight. He outlined the definite steps which he intends to take, if elected, to bring about a unified program for solution of this problem on a national scale.

Willkie called the New Deal crop control plan bad management in its "undue centralization of authority" and in its unbalanced restriction of crops. "Instead of crop control" he said, "it produced a crop merry-go-round."

The Republican Presidential nominee said he had not promised to "pull white rabbits out of tall silk hats," but that the program which he has in mind can only be accomplished by "hard work, faith in ourselves, and sound leadership in government."

Plans Big Conference.

Willkie proposed to convene immediately upon his election a conference of representatives of agriculture, labor, industry, and the consumer. He proposed also to establish a continual system of research in marketing and new uses for agricultural products.

He would also consult, he said, with the governors of the agricultural states to coördinate federal and state programs, and with the advice of Senator Charles L. McNary, he said, he would select "an outstanding, forward looking farm leader as his secretary of agriculture."

"The solution to the farm problem," Willkie declared, "does not lie in sudden decisions and trick schemes to win votes. It must be evolved step by step, wisely and deliberately making use of all the experience of the past."

Speaks in Wisconsin.

Willkie campaigned today in the section where the movement to nominate him took form last May. He spoke in Wisconsin and across Minnesota, addressed a great crowd from the steps of the state capitol in St. Paul, and led a parade for 20 miles thru the streets of the Twin Cities, which gave him a splendid reception.

He was accompanied during his Minnesota trip by Gov. Harold E. Stassen, Senator Henrik Shipstead, Congressman Melvin Maas, and other leaders of the Republican movement in this state. Both in Wisconsin and in Minnesota Willkie was hailed as the leader who would keep this nation out of war.

Willkie was in fine spirits as he rode thru the upper Mississippi valley in the bright autumn weather. The developments in the last few days have given him a new urge to work, a belief that his campaign has taken root and is to flower into victory.

Station Crowds Enthusiastic.

During the day, station crowds which greeted him at La Crosse, Wis., and Winona, Red Wing, and Hastings, Minn., testified to the intense interest in the Republican nominee.

At La Crosse, Willkie spoke of the statement made last night by Senator Hiram Johnson of California, who denounced the third term and urged that Willkie be elected. Of Johnson, Willkie said:

"Whether you agree or disagree with him, he has always been a man of complete integrity and the courage of his convictions.

"You may well know of my gratification at the support of such a man as Hiram Johnson. And may I say I should not be at all surprised if you read in a few days of other prominent, fine, outstanding, outspoken American citizens doing the same thing."

[A partial text of Willkie's Minneapolis speech will be found on page 17.]

JUGO-SLAVS HAIL PACT WITH NAZIS AS POLITICAL TIE

New 2 Year Commercial Treaty Signed.

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Oct. 19 (AP).—Declaring "our collaboration is not only economic but political," Foreign Minister Aleksander Cincar-Markovic tonight announced the signing of a new commercial pact for 1940-'41 with Germany, despite authoritative reports that Germany is unable to deliver certain manufactures because of bombing damage.

Aleksander Cincar-Markovic.

Hailing the pact as evidence of a "political collaboration" that has preserved peace for Jugo-Slavia, the foreign minister said, "this policy should be continued."

Barter Snag Admitted.

While Germany's latest economic fence mending in the Balkans came at a time when the capitals of Rumania, Bulgaria, Greece, and Turkey were active with reports of axis plans for further penetration of southeastern Europe, authoritative sources disclosed Berlin is meeting difficulties in keeping her barter engagements in the Balkans.

One source said that in the negotiations here the Germans admitted that because of labor and material shortages a strain is being placed on the barter system and that they are unable to deliver many of the manufactures much needed in the Balkans.

Several Lines Disturbed.

Among the manufactures that Germany was understood to be unable to deliver except in small quantities were chemicals, which are largely manufactured in Frankfort, Duesseldorf and other Rhineland cities where it is reported British bombing has been particularly heavy; electrical instruments, largely manufactured in Berlin, where it is reported British airmen have paid particular attention to electrical factories, and agricultural tools manufactured at Leipzig and Hamburg, which also have been listed frequently as British bomb targets.

The inability to deliver certain goods was unlikely to halt the flow of Balkan raw materials to Germany, commercial observers said. They declared the Germans were offering other goods in exchange, particularly paper articles, and were also offering credits for future deliveries, presumably after the war.

WOMAN JAILED AS GUN TOTER. Municipal Judge Harold P. O'Connell yesterday sentenced Mrs. Catherine Wilcox, 35 years old, of 2515 Congress street, to one day in the Bridewell for carrying a concealed weapon. She said a revolver found in her possession was given her earlier in the day by a man she met in a tavern.

BLUM CHARGED WITH BETRAYAL IN FRENCH QUIZ

Reynaud and Two Aids Accused of Fraud.

RIOM, France, Oct. 19.—Serious charges today were lodged against Leon Blum and Paul Reynaud, both former premiers, and Georges Mandel, former colonial minister, in the course of the Supreme court's investigation into the causes of the war and the defeat of France.

The public prosecutor asked the court to indict Blum, the creator of the Popular Front cabinets, for the "betrayal of the duties of his charge." He also asked for an open inquiry in the case of Mandel for "corruption and speculation on the value of national currency." An indictment was asked against Reynaud for "embezzlement of public funds."

In addition, two former members of Reynaud's personal staff, M. Leca and M. Devaux, were named as presumed accomplices.

Diversion of Funds.

Generally speaking, the charges against Blum are that he was prepared to engage France in war to defend his personal ideologies, that his social policies by placing emphasis on leisure rather than on labor restricted production of armaments to a dangerous point, and that as premier he must have known his minister of finance, Vincent Auriol, was diverting to other purposes the appropriations and loans earmarked for national defense.

Another aspect of the charges against Blum being ventilated in the press relates to his giving moral and material aid to the Spanish Republicans. It is alleged in this connection that he diverted for such use material belonging not only to the army but also to the Red Cross, so much so that French soldiers during the severe winter of 1939 to 1940 were left without blankets and warm garments.

Against Mandel, the only charge hitherto was plotting against the security of the state both at Bordeaux immediately prior to the armistice, and subsequently in Morocco. The general accusation is that he strove to establish a personal rule with British aid, and in collusion with the British.

Speculation Against Franc.

To that now are added allegations of corruption and speculation against the franc. In this connection his name has been associated in popular report with that of Baron Maurice de Rothschild. It is the general belief that the "Rothschilds fortune and Mandel's wiles were pooled for their joint benefit." It is assumed his alleged speculations were financed privately. Mandel is not notoriously wealthy.

The charges of financial wrongdoing against Reynaud came as a surprise. After his resignation as premier, which immediately preceded France's capitulation, Reynaud, according to accounts published in the censored press, intended to quit the country. Leca and Devaux of his personal staff preceded him, entering Spain. Reynaud, leaving Bordeaux by automobile, was injured in an accident in which Mme. Helene de Portes was reported killed. Reynaud was hospitalized and canceled plans to leave.

Leca and Devaux, questioned by Spanish authorities, were found to have in their possession 19 million francs' worth of valuables. They supposedly were not able to explain their mission.

U-BOATS SINK 26 SHIPS IN SINGLE CONVOY—BERLIN

Attack Called Greatest in Submarine Warfare.

BERLIN, Oct. 19 (AP). — In what Germans called the "greatest and most successful mass submarine attack yet accomplished," Nazi U-boats were reported today to have sunk 26 ships totaling 150,000 tons out of a single British convoy in one night.

These reported victims were among 31 ships, aggregating 173,650 tons, announced by the high command as sunk in recent days.

The official DNB news agency said the attacking submarines swarmed about the convoy, broke it up, then picked the vessels off one by one as they scattered.

Accounts of this exploit overshadowed the air siege of Britain, which Germans declared continued without letup after night attacks on London, Liverpool, Birmingham, and objectives in southern England.

Claim Heavy Damage.

German military sources said the Nazi air force had put out of commission more than 400 factories and 20 per cent of the electric and gas plants in southern and middle England since it began its heavy raids. In the air fighting since July, these sources said, Britain has lost at least 4,000 planes.

The high command said an "essential water works" in London was destroyed yesterday. It reported British speedboats attacking German supply ships were repulsed. Informed sources said German long range guns also forced British destroyers back into British coastal waters yesterday after they attempted to negotiate the channel.

MANY DIE IN LONDON

LONDON, Oct. 20, Sunday (AP).—High explosive bombs dropped by German raiders in the heaviest early evening assault since the battle of Britain began killed many Londoners last night and caused "severe" damage in the British capital. One bomb landing outside a hotel killed an unannounced number of people in the bar; two others were killed when a bomb hit a café, and a direct hit which demolished a London club caused an undetermined number of casualties.

The furious pace of the raid continued on after midnight before a lull brought the "all clear" signal at 2 a. m., but it did not last long. The raiders returned to the attack within a few minutes and another alarm was sounded.

Outer Defense Guns Heard.

The Germans apparently concentrated on distant outskirts of the city as they resumed the assault, however. Only the sound of the outer defense guns was heard. When the salvos of bombs first poured down, it appeared that the raid might prove the heaviest attack of the war, but for some reason the Germans did not continue the fast attack on the city itself in the early morning hours.

At the height of the attack on central London the German planes came over in the largest formations they have yet used. There were easily 15 to 20 in each wave and the waves were not more than five minutes apart. The bombs came down in clusters of no fewer than eight, and in one case 12 dropped in one bunch.

One of the first bombs in the London area demolished a public shelter. Persons crowded into the shelter were injured only slightly by the first hit, but other bombs came down on them as they struggled to get out.

Two Nazi bombers were reported officially shot down in Saturday's daylight action.

Before the night raid started more than 1,000 women and children had been evacuated to Yorkshire during Saturday.

Bomb Invasion Coast.

In their own aerial offensive, British bombers gave Germany's "invasion coast" a Saturday night plastering in an attack which shook houses along the Kent shore 22 miles on this side the channel.

This attack followed upon on delivered against the German port of Hamburg Friday night, in which the British said their bombers had dived thru thick clouds to attack heavily the Blohm and Voss shipyards "where German warships are known to be under construction."

Despite rain, fog and ice, it added, British airmen plastered heavy cargos of explosives also on the naval base of Kiel, commercial docks at Emden and Lubeck, and many other targets inside Germany, including a big aluminum mill at Lunen, near Dortmund, the river port of Duisberg in the Ruhr, railways near Schwerte, Dortmund, and Osnabruck, and an airdrome at Stade.

[A centuries old castle at Kiel housing a priceless German library was virtually destroyed in "senseless destruction" by British bombers early yesterday, the German wireless reported in a broadcast heard in New York.]

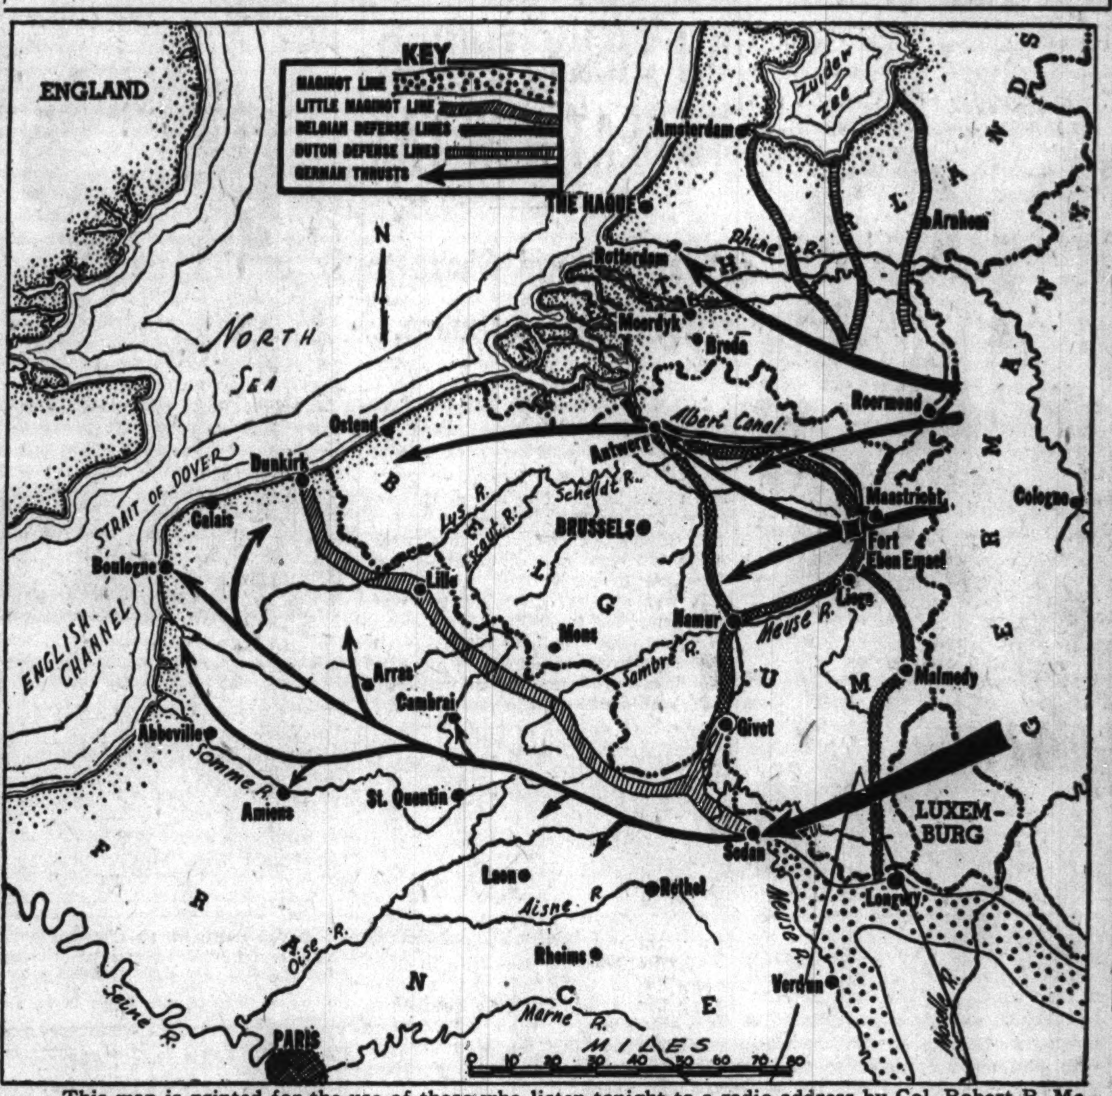
Col. McCormick to Describe Battle of Flanders



This map is printed for the use of those who listen tonight to a radio address by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of The Tribune. Col. McCormick, as he promised the radio audience last Sunday night, will describe the battle of Flanders in which the Germans defeated the British, French, and Belgians last spring. The talk will be broadcast by station W-G-N on the Chicago Tribune Symphonic hour, between 9 and 10 p. m. The map also will be of use to readers of the text of the talk, which is to be printed in full in Monday morning's Tribune.

TWO SIGNS INDICATE WAR MAY SHIFT ITS LINEUP, SAYS VICHY

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, Oct. 19.—Two important political developments foreshadowing imminent changes in the European political drama, affecting a possible new lineup of forces, were disclosed here today.

The first was the British government's decision to repatriate all British subjects now in France and on the continent, the second the decision of the Spanish government to set up practically an insuperable barrier against Americans desiring to return to the United States across Spain and Portugal.

Madrid now demands that any American, or any other national, must supply the names of two Spanish citizens to whom he is known before his application for a transit visa can be considered.

It is understood 6,000 to 7,000 British citizens are in unoccupied France, where they are dependent on funds supplied thru American consulates. British citizens in occupied France have been interned by the Germans.

The Egyptian consul general today warned all Egyptians in unoccupied France to return home at once on ships that will be provided.

BRITISHERS LACK EGGS TO GO WITH MORNING BACON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 19.—The Englishman's traditional bacon and egg breakfast is likely to become one of the minor casualties of the war. Tho a 4 ounce ration of bacon is usually sufficient for a week, how to get eggs to go with it is now among the major problems for housewives. The controled price of eggs rises to 4 pence each [about 6½ cents] next Monday.

A shortage of certain vegetables is felt, tho Britain's amateur gardeners have gone to work and in many cases surprised even themselves with the results achieved.

Onions, however, have become increasingly scarce in London, where they recently fetched a retail price of 24 cents a pound. Total home production of onions this year is no more than 6,000 or 7,000 tons, whereas in peacetime imports averaged 250,000 tons yearly.

NEEDY OF LONDON SCORE VICTORY IN SHELTER DISPUTE

Government to Pay for New Bomb Havens.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 19.—London's poorer classes scored another air raid shelter victory today when Minister of Home Security Herbert Morrison announced that in the future the government will reimburse local authorities for the entire cost of construction of necessary places of refuge.

His announcement follows a vigorous campaign for deep, safe public shelters.

Morrison described the new measure as relieving local authorities "from the financial burden arising from the work undertaken either at their own initiative or that of the ministry."

Cautious Against Waste.

Morrison cautioned local authorities to "resist the temptation for extravagance which the new procedure may offer."

The ministry has appointed a medical vigilance squad whose duties will be to tour large shelters day and night, inspecting the sanitary arrangements and studying the congestion problem.

These were the first of 1,000,000 bunks which the ministry of home security had promised.

LONDON SHOWS STRAIN

BY H. TAYLOR HENRY.

LONDON, Oct. 19 (AP).—In six weeks of constant air attack, day and night, with only a few, brief breathing spells, Adolf Hitler's air force already has chipped away at the stone and steel and people that make London.

Even its most patriotic inhabitants do not deny that London has been hit hard by the pounding it is trying to take with chin up. Parts of it lie in ruins. Half its population lives underground. The ordinary business of living grows ever more difficult. Ripped up streets, shattered buildings, and unexploded time bombs slow up transportation.

For the past four days I have had occasion to get out of the heart of London and into suburbs in all directions. It is not a pretty sight. Londoners are carrying on, but they are liking less and less the nightly pounding they take from the Nazi raiders. It is a hard existence, especially in the poorer districts where homes have been destroyed. The worker comes home, picks up his wife and children, stops in a neighborhood pub for tea—there is no gas at home—and then goes to a public shelter for the night.

Difficult to Get Sleep.

There he twists and tosses in an effort to get a little sleep on hard bunks, gets up in the morning, washes and has tea anywhere he can find water and gas and then goes back to work again.

Half of London goes to public shelters every night. The other half goes underground to private shelters none of which, incidentally, are as safe as the public ones.

That means the loss of virtually half of every day. Lines outside the deep subway shelters start forming about noon, for example, as one member of each family takes his place loaded down with quilts, blankets, and pillows for all the other members. At 4 p. m., when police open the underground shelters, the placeholders may enter and deposit their bed clothes. That reserves places for the family up to 7 p. m.

Most damage has been inflicted night after night in the same districts, which the Germans apparently have marked out as primary targets.

Removal of civilians from these districts has complicated the transportation problem because workers who used to live within walking distance of their jobs have long rides to work.

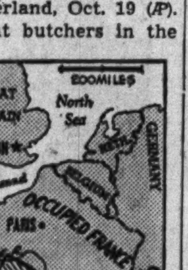
BUTCHERS REBEL AGAINST FRENCH TAX; GO TO JAIL

Incident Seen as Hint of Wide Unrest.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Oct. 19 (AP).—Thirty belligerent butchers in the little French mountain town of Belley went to jail today, giving the first definite hint of a civil disobedience campaign which for some time has been reported spreading thru France.



Arrow shows location of butchers' revolt.

Publication of the official version of the Belley battle in censored newspapers in France showed that authorities were acutely conscious of the implications. Belley is in unoccupied France near the Swiss border.

The butchers, it was reported, met Thursday night and decided the Vichy government's new meat tax was the last straw. The next day every butcher shop in Belley was closed.

They All Go to Jail.

When police ordered them to reopen, they refused. This morning the butchers all went to jail.

Citizens, already disgruntled at shortages of sugar, cheese, chocolate, eggs, and milk, appealed to the authorities, who said army butchers would take care of the trade twice a week. They said the butchers had meat on hand, but rebelled because they saw their profits vanishing in the new taxes.

A Counterstroke.

Friends of the butchers, however, were reported beginning a boycott of the army butchers.

Belley itself is not of great importance as a town in France. Its population is about 4,700. Its chief claim to fame is as the birthplace of the brilliant Savarin, famed gourmet who wrote volumes on the art of eating.

Similar examples of what the authorities in this case call "rebellion against the law," however, are reported in many regions of unoccupied and occupied France.

MADRID CONFIRMS EXECUTION OF CATALONIA CHIEF

MADRID, Spain, Oct. 20 [Sunday] (AP).—The execution of Luis Companys, former president of the autonomous government of Catalonia, after a court martial was confirmed here today. During the trial Companys was said to have blamed former Republican Premier Juan Negrin for prolongation of Spain's civil war.

Upon being sentenced to death Companys was allowed to receive his sister and a brother-in-law before being executed.

[Earlier reports said he was executed Friday.]

LONDON HAS RUN ON SILKY THINGS TO BEAT NEW TAX

Women Crowd Shops to Get Hose and Undies.

LONDON, Oct. 19 (AP).—The women's shops of London looked like the basements of New York department stores on a bargain sale morning today as the fair sex of this beleaguered capital swarmed in to buy silk stockings, lingerie, handbags, powder, rouge, and other articles of feminine beautification.

It was another phase of the war. The purchase tax which is expected to raise about $440,000,000 for Britain's war needs will become effective Monday and these things will bear a levy of one-third the price.

19 Shades of Slips.

Another point of the program is that, starting Monday, women will be able to buy only 19 shades of slips and panties. Lingerie dealers have adopted a shade card which is now standardized.

The shops did a big business, too, in slacks.

The women seem hard-hearted about this, apparently concluding it's better to hide their legs than to show them in anything but silk, because after Dec. 1 legs must be encased in something other than silk—unless you think stockings made out of wood shavings and other ersatz products are nice to look at.

Jewelry Taxes High.

More essential commodities than women's accessories, things like drugs and medicines, will carry a one-sixth of the purchase price tax. Children's clothing will be exempted.

There's still a lot of confusion about the tax in the minds of the people. Tailors are particularly bitter, complaining that a suit ordered some time ago but delivered after Monday must carry a tax—not on the cloth, but on the tailoring.

Jewelry also is to be taxed and taxed highly, but the only rings noticed hereabouts lately are those people wear under their eyes from lack of sleep.

REPORTS 200,000 NAZI CASUALTIES IN BRITISH RAIDS

LONDON, Oct. 19 (AP).—The Daily Sketch, quoting "well informed neutral sources," said today "it is now estimated that German troop casualties resulting from R. A. F. raids total 200,000 men."

The Sketch said its sources estimated that the recent bombardment of the German held French port of Cherbourg had cost the Nazis casualties of 40,000 men.

"It is known," the paper added, "that this bombardment, coming on top of fierce attacks by the R. A. F., struck a serious blow to the morale of German troops."

Reported Killed

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

MOVITA.

LONDON, Oct. 19 (AP).—The Daily Mail reported yesterday that Movita, Mexican actress wife of Jack Doyle, Irish boxer, was believed killed in an air raid. Doyle said she had gone to visit a friend Monday night and had not been seen since. The street where the friend lives was struck by a bomb.

WOMAN KILLED IN COLLISION.

Newton, Ia., Oct. 19 [Special]. — Mrs. Henry Douglas, 59, Wichita, Kas., wife of the chief of the tax division of internal revenue at Wichita, was killed in an auto collision here last night.

PURGE SCHOOL BOOKS, NAZIS WARN BELGIANS

BY E. R. NODERER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 19.—Belgian school officials have been warned by the chief of the German military mission to eliminate all school books which "impair German-Belgian relations, fail to depict the necessary historical truth, or reflect upon German honor."

The Belgian school commission in Antwerp has been ordered to submit a list of school books which fail to meet the German requirements.

The German administration chief has let it be known that he expects the task of expurgating school books to be done willingly and in the fullest spirit of coöperation.

Meanwhile, Dutch schools have been ordered to promote the study of German so that more Hollanders will be available for work in the reich. About 10,000 workers already have arrived in Germany, but authorities believe many more would come if the language difficulty were removed.

Sweden Reports 75 Ships, 157,000 Tons, Lost in War

SWITZERLAND, DAIRY LAND, TO RATION BUTTER

BERN, Switzerland, Oct. 19 (AP).—Switzerland, famed in peacetime for her milk products, was told tonight by the war economy office that butter will be rationed until the end of November and that cream will be withheld from sale until further notice. An increasing quantity of milk products has been exported to Germany.

Each Swiss family of three will get 750 grams [about 26.4 ounces] of butter for the 40 days beginning Monday.

Three days ago Switzerland was informed that firewood sales would be regulated. Coal already has tripled in price and is limited to about 40 per cent of normal consumption.

PICTURE OF A MAN ENJOYING AN OLD AMERICAN CUSTOM

FOR many years now it has been the custom of Accordionists — beginners and professionals alike—to make Lyon & Healy their headquarters for Accordions. The professionals do it because they know that here is a complete selection of the world's finest instruments—that here they'll get the full measure of satisfaction and value. Beginners do it because Lyon & Healy has made it easy for them to purchase their instrument and learn to play while they pay—because Lyon & Healy has the very instrument they want . . . to fit their budget as well as their needs! In fact, here you'll find your Accordion among models priced from $24.95 to $1000—among such names as

CLAIM JAPANESE FORCE AMERICANS TO LEAVE CHINA

Told to Quit Kaifeng, in Occupied Zone, Report.

CHUNGKING, China, Oct. 19 (AP).—Central News, an agency of the central Chinese government, reported today a renewal of anti-American outbursts at Kaifeng. Japanese-occupied capital of Honan province and said Japanese were forcing a withdrawal of Americans there.

The headlines of the Chinese press dwelt on Chinese and Washington, D. C., relations, reporting that a further United States loan to China was being considered.

Editorials said any new loan would be more significant than previous ones because the United States now is seeking materials to strengthen her defenses. The papers contended it would amount to practically American entrance into a defensive alliance with China.

Americans to Quit China.

SHANGHAI, China, Oct. 19 (AP).—American women and children living in the Yangtze river ports of Nanking, Chinkiang, and Wuhu are planning to heed the advice of the United States government to leave the orient and American men may follow if the situation grows worse, reports reaching here from Nanking said today.

Americans in Chinkiang total 30, in Wuhu 25, and in Nanking 30. Most of these are missionaries, but there are a few businessmen.

Japs To Leave Britain.

LISBON, Portugal, Oct. 19 (AP).—A Japanese legation spokesman said today the liner Husimi Maru would go to England soon to withdraw all Japanese residents of England and Ireland, approximately 335. About 45 Japanese also will be removed from neutral Portugal.

To Close U. S. Consulate.

TOKIO, Oct. 19 (AP).—An official source disclosed tonight that the United States consulate at Nagoya, an industrial city near Osaka, soon would be closed and that consulates in larger centers might follow suit. The official reason for the closure was the absence of Americans at Nagoya.

U. S. LINER SAILS FOR SHANGHAI TO GET YANKS HOME

New York, Oct. 19 [Special].—The United States liner Washington sailed today from the army base in Brooklyn on an emergency voyage to Shanghai to bring back Americans who are leaving the orient because of the troubled eastern situation. It has been reported that 15,000 United States citizens will heed the suggestion of the state department and return home.

The Washington will stop at Norfolk, the Panama Canal, San Pedro, and Honolulu. On board are 148 officers and men of the Second division, United States naval reserve, who have been called to duty in Panama. It is the first reserve unit called for active service.

The Washington carries 2,000 extra cots which will be set up in public rooms and the swimming pool, as well as in staterooms to accommodate passengers on the return trip.

Capt. Harry Manning is in command of the ship. Ten minutes before sailing time he learned he would have to leave without his chief officer, John Bevelander. Officials of the United States Lines sent word that Bevelander will be needed here as a witness in a law suit.

U. S. MISSIONARIES TO STAY IN ASIA DESPITE WARNING

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—Altho Americans already have begun an exodus from Japan and China—on the advice of their government—missionaries of the Catholic and Protestant churches will remain at their own risk.

Characterizing the "supposed tension" between America and Japan as nothing more than the "moral suasion of a diplomatic maneuver," Bishop James E. Walsh, superior general of Maryknoll, the Catholic Foreign Mission Society of America, said the 1,310 missioners of the church in the orient would continue their work "in spite of war."

Dr. A. L. Warnshuis, secretary of the international missionary council, said the Protestant organization contemplated no changes in policy except to send only men missionaries abroad and to remove mothers and children from isolated missions.

The majority of Catholic missioners in the orient are in China. There are 187 American workers in Japan, Korea and Manchukuo. The Protestant churches have 829 missionaries in Japan, including 600 United States citizens.

Strike by 50,000 Limits Hungarians' Coal Supplies

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Oct. 19 (AP).—With 50,000 miners on strike and thousands of troops guarding the coal fields, Hungarian householders today were limited to coal supplies 60 per cent of what they received in 1939. Army generals were negotiating with leaders of the strikers, who demand more money. Government leaders charge the strike was engineered by Hungarian Nazis to embarrass the administration, but the Nazis deny it.

LAST KNOX COUNTY VET DIES.

Galesburg, Ill., Oct. 19 [Special].—Dr. James R. Bedford, 94 years old, last civil war veteran in Knox county, died this morning of pneumonia in the home of his son, Dr. R. J. Bedford, Oneida. Funeral services will be conducted here Tuesday afternoon.

POPE ASKS AMERICAN CATHOLICS FOR GIFTS TO MISSIONARY FUND

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 18 (AP).—Pope Pius XII., in an appeal to American Catholics for generous contributions to wartime foreign missions, declared today, "the peace of the world also is a missionary aim of the church."

The pontiff spoke in English during a brief broadcast on the eve of the observance of Missionary Sunday by the Roman Catholic Society for the Propagation of the Faith.

He called upon Roman Catholics in the United States to open up their purses liberally to "help rebuild what has been damaged and to reassure those who are discouraged."

Regions involved in the European war, the pontiff added, would "await with confidence" the American response.

NAZIS SHOW WAR BOOTY TO SPUR GIFTS TO RELIEF

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 19.—Military booty from the conquered countries is being displayed in the principal squares of Berlin this week-end to spur interest in collections for the winter relief fund.

Parts of crashed British Spitfires, Hurricanes, Vickers-Wellington bombers, bombs, and machine guns are being shown by the German air force.

In Unter den Linden, Berlin's most fashionable boulevard, is a display of weapons and war equipment, including English and French tanks, Polish howitzers and mortars, Czech telescopes, Belgian and English radio instruments, and a complete French army telephone exchange.

WPA WORKER DIES AFTER FALL.

Racine avenue police yesterday were seeking the wife of Stanley Mrowczynski, 52 years old, a WPA worker, to notify her that he died Friday after falling two stories while washing a window of his room at 2102 Race avenue. Police learned the couple were separated.

SUEZ STILL OPEN IF AXIS' SHIPS 'DARE COME NEAR'

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Oct. 19 (AP).—War or no war, the Suez canal still is open to international shipping, including Germany's and Italy's, the French directors of operations said today. In effect, however, he added, "Just let the axis powers try to get their boats near it."

"We are acting with total independence of any suggestions emanating from Vichy," declared Baron Louis de Benoist, general representative of the canal company. "We will continue to afford all possible facilities to ships flying any flag."

British Guard Each End.

The baron was speaking in behalf of the French dominated operating company. He took into consideration, however, that it is the British fleet, standing guard at both ends, which is exercising real control over the 104.5 mile long "jugular vein" of the British empire.

His statement concerning the chances of axis shipping reaching the canal was emphasized by a British tabulation of 40 ships sunk by the British Mediterranean fleet in 23 weeks of smashing at Italy's sea power.

Twenty-one of Mussolini's reported fleet of 100 submarines, at least 10 of his destroyers, and the world's speediest cruiser, the 5,069 ton Bartolomeo Colleoni, have been sent to the bottom since June 11, the British reported. Moreover, they said, seven Italian supply ships and one depot vessel have been destroyed, along with 28 bombing planes.

Other Losses "Probable."

In addition, nine submarines were listed as probably sunk and three cruisers and one battleship as severely damaged.

The British declared the only reason heavier blows have not been delivered lies in the indisposition of the Italians to risk a battle.

CLOSE ELECTION SEEN; 3D TERM, WAR BIG ISSUES

ful by both the Republican and Democratic managers. They are:

Connecticut	8	New Jersey	16
Maryland	8
Massachusetts	17	Total	49

If Willkie should take all these 49 as well as the 266 listed above he would have 315 electoral votes and would win by a majority of 99. If Roosevelt should get all four of these states in addition to his backlog, Willkie still would win by a margin of one vote. But if Willkie were to fail to carry one or more of the 22 in which his chances are better than in the other 26, he would be defeated. If Willkie should carry all of the 22 except New York Mr. Roosevelt would win by 93.

Willkie Must Win These Two.

If Willkie were to take Massachusetts and New Jersey in addition to the 22 assigned him he could afford to lose Illinois and still win by 9 votes or lose Ohio and win by 15, but he could not afford to lose either New York or Pennsylvania.

The campaign is now going into a desperately fought finish, with Mr. Roosevelt forsaking his ivory tower and descending frequently to the arena of battle. At the outset of the campaign the President gave it out that he would not engage in political combat. He ignored Mr. Willkie's challenge to participate in a series of debates in the manner of Lincoln and Douglas and that was expected, for the President was aware of his sorry performance in speaking extemporaneously without benefit of ghost writer in ordinary public appearances, not to mention tangling with a rough and tumble debater of Willkie's prowess.

Mr. Roosevelt set out to conduct a campaign of subtly political nonpolitical speeches on a series of national defense inspection tours. He maintained a solemn mien in carrying out this fiction even when the national defense inspection was of a possible site of a hypothetical factory and when the amusement of the public at the performance was becoming palpable. Within the last fortnight, however, the Democratic managers convinced the President that he stood in grave danger of defeat by Mr. Willkie.

Must Stem Willkie Tide.

Thereupon, Mr. Roosevelt dropped all but the barest pretense of nonpolitical defense inspection and made a campaign trip thru Pennsylvania, and Ohio, which he was advised he would lose unless he could stem the tide of Willkie popularity in those states. He made political speeches, he exposed his magnetic personality to the populace, he indulged in a deal of handshaking and he collaborated on campaign plans with the local Democratic committeemen who flocked aboard his private train.

When he returned from this stump speaking tour the President was definitely on the defensive from the barrage of the Willkie attacks on his foreign and domestic policies. It was then announced that Mr. Roosevelt would make at least three more speeches before the election which would be frankly political.

A few days later the President was informed by the Democratic high command that Pennsylvania and Ohio still were far from safe for the ticket. His nonpolitical trip to those states had not accomplished the desired result. So Mr. Roosevelt decided to go back to Pennsylvania next week and to Ohio the week after to make avowedly political speeches. Altogether, Mr. Roosevelt now is booked for five more political speeches to help the electorate to perform the function he envisaged in his acceptance speech when he said that "only the people themselves can draft a President."

Viewing the Presidential contest as it appears a little more than two weeks before the election, Arthur Sears Henning has classified the 48 states into those which Wendell L. Willkie, Republican nominee, "has a certain to a fair chance of carrying"; "the Roosevelt backlog," and those "regarded as doubtful by both the Republican and Democratic managers."

NEW COLLEGE CHIEF SAYS CIVILIZATION'S OUTLOOK IS HORRIBLE

Haverford, Pa., Oct. 19 (AP).—On the campus where he was born and where he was an undergraduate student, Felix Morley was installed today as president of Haverford college.

More than 75 heads of colleges, or their representatives, heard Morley declare that he took office at "a moment when educational institutions face the prospect of having to give convincing reasons for the continuation of prerogatives too lightly regarded as inalienable."

"Indeed," he added, "the immediate prospects of our civilization seem horrible."

Dr. Morley, who resigned as editor of the Washington, D. C., Post to accept the Haverford presidency, said he entered his new task without a program—if by that is meant a five year plan or other blueprint of transformations to be adopted step by step.

"In Washington since 1933," he said, "I have gradually become more than a little suspicious of the merit of this type of planning."

HOLDS BELLICOSE NEW DEAL POLICY IMPERILS NATION

The existence of the United States is threatened because New Deal statesmanship has been "bellicose and improvident," it was asserted last night by William G. Stratton, Republican nominee for congressman at large, in a radio speech over station WBBM.

"Two roads—peace and war—are before us, and we must make our choice now," Stratton declared. "There can be no turning back; once we set our feet on the course we must follow it to the end. The New Deal has brought us to the brink of war in Europe and in Asia."

He said the administration had lagged in taking steps for defense even after the dangers of the world crisis became apparent and added: "I believe the United States must not be allowed to engage in a war for defense of certain nations in Europe and Asia, even tho we sympathize with their people."

FIND EXECUTIVE DEAD IN WOODS NEAR ELKHORN

Elkhorn, Wis., Oct. 19 (AP).—The body of a man identified as Bennett Barnes D'Aubrey, 35 years old, was found in a woods near here today.

Sheriff Joseph A. Dorr said he would order an inquest, altho circumstances indicated he had died of carbon monoxide poisoning from exhaust fumes of his automobile.

Cards identified the man as vice president of the National Florist Service, Inc., of New York; another as advertising manager of the Telegraph Delivery service of Los Angeles, and a third as president of the National Allied Service Clubs, Inc., of Los Angeles.

The sheriff said the man had a United Air Lines return ticket from Chicago to Salt Lake City, Utah, purchased at Salt Lake on October 16.

REDS, ALARMED BY NEW U. S. LAW, CALL CONVENTION

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—The national committee of the communist party today called a special national convention here of the party for Nov. 16 to meet "an emergency situation" created by the Voorhis foreign control law.

The committee's call declared that "the act of President Roosevelt in signing the so-called foreign control bill [Voorhis bill] which, in effect, outlaws organizational expressions of the principal of international working class solidarity, creates an emergency situation for our party, as it will for the trade unions."

The Voorhis bill, signed yesterday by the President, requires registration with the attorney general of organizations subject to "foreign control" or "advocating overthrow of the United States government."

The call was signed by William Z. Foster, chairman of the national committee, and Earl Browder, general secretary of the communist party and its Presidential candidate.

Despite constant pressure, Chicago Tribune correspondents in Washington and thruout the world refuse to accept official handouts. They do their own fact finding. People buy a newspaper to get the news; they get it in the Tribune.

CARSON'S MUSIC CENTER, SIXTH FLOOR

NOW . . .
A CONCERTONE SPINETTE
with all the full, rich tone power of a
GRAND PIANO

Wurlitzer has solved a problem that has baffled the industry for over a century—that of building a Spinette capable of producing full size piano tone. Within this new model is a scientifically constructed chamber that permits tone to swell forth with the clarity and power of a wide open grand. Also it has the new Pentagonal sounding board. Both of these exclusive Wurlitzer developments combine to give you performance unheard of in a Spinette.

Its styling is on a par with its musical brilliance, and, quality considered, it's remarkably low in price.

ROOSEVELT CUTS HOST ROLE SHORT TO PEN SPEECHES

Earl of Athlone Guest at Mother's Estate.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Oct. 19 [Special].—President Roosevelt today moved to cut short his rôle of host to a good neighbor, the earl of Athlone, governor general of Canada, so that he will be better able to play the rôle of Presidential candidate in the two weeks before election.

Under his original plans to entertain the nominal head of the Canadian government over the week-end, Mr. Roosevelt had determined to stay in his mother's home here from Saturday to Monday.

The earl was accompanied by his wife, Princess Alice, granddaughter of Queen Victoria, and their daughter, Lady Mae Able Smith. In the entourage were Ariel Baird, lady in waiting to the princess, and Sir Schuldham Redfern, secretary to the earl.

Makes Swing to Willkie.

The swing to Wendell Willkie, Republican candidate, which has forced Mr. Roosevelt to abandon his decision not to campaign openly and to schedule five admitted major political speeches before election day, also forced him to cut a day from the good will visit.

Shortly after Mr. Roosevelt arrived here it was announced that he will reboard his special train tomorrow night instead of Monday night for the return journey to the White House. The change in plans will give Mr. Roosevelt another day to work on the first of the five major speeches he will deliver in Philadelphia Wednesday night.

Forced to Abandon Silence Rôle.

He will also plot out what he expects to cover in the other four addresses which are to be delivered in Cleveland, New York, Hyde Park, and Washington or Baltimore.

Mr. Roosevelt has said that he has been forced to abandon his rôle of silence by the deliberate falsifications being spread by his opposition. Political observers, however, attribute the entrance of the President into the open political arena to the tremendous gains the tireless Willkie is making. These have been shown in polls, and private sources of the White House are reported to have given the President an even more gloomy picture of the election.

F. D. R. AND MOST INCUMBENTS GET O. K. FROM LABOR

The Joint Labor Legislative board of Illinois made public yesterday its recommendations in connection with the Nov. 5 election.

The list of those recommended was headed by the name of President Roosevelt and included nearly all of the candidates for reëlection to congress or the Illinois legislature. Congressman Frank Fries of the 21st district was omitted, and Stephen A. Day, Republican nominee for congressman-at-large, was included.

United States Senator James M. Slattery was recommended. Since both nominees for governor, Dwight H. Green, Republican, and Harry B. Hershey, Democrat, also are seeking state office for the first time, there was no recommendation for that office.

HAILS ROOSEVELT AS A PROPHET ON FOREIGN AFFAIRS

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman.

"I believe that both Wendell Willkie and President Roosevelt are sincere when they say that they hate war. Roosevelt, however, has repeatedly warned us that the European war is a tremendous threat to our security. For that he has been excoriated as a pessimist and a 'war monger,' but history will mark him as a prophet."

This was the substance of a talk by Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, United States minister to Norway, before more than 1,700 women at a luncheon meeting of the Federation of Illinois Woman's Democratic Clubs in the Palmer House yesterday. A spry, political minded woman of 70 years, Mrs. Harriman is stumping for Roosevelt thruout the central west.

Mrs. Harriman said the United States is threatened by "the same barbaric forces" which crushed Norway last spring. President Roosevelt's answer to these forces, she asserted, is not an entering wedge of a new dictatorship but an ever widening circle of more democracy.

She called Roosevelt "a professional with 30 years' experience in public life and no late comer to this most hideous of human experience, war."

WOMAN'S PARTY LEADER URGES EQUAL RIGHTS

A plea for enactment of an equal rights amendment of the United States constitution was made by Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, a leader of the National Woman's party, at a luncheon sponsored by the organization's Illinois division yesterday at the Congress hotel.

The Woman's party, a nonpartisan organization, last June was successful in having the amendment included in the Republican party platform. Several hundred women, including several eastern leaders of the organization, attended the meeting.

"We women don't want special privilege or protection," asserted Mrs. Miller, who is Democratic national committeewoman from Pennsylvania. "All we are demanding is the full protection of the constitution that men now enjoy."

Mrs. Miller discussed instances where so-called protective wage and hour legislation for women has led to their losing jobs. There is no longer need, she declared, for special women's laws, since women today have the same power as men to determine their conditions of employment by collective bargaining.

LOAD DECAYING FRUIT ON SITE OF WILLKIE TALK

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 19 (AP).—Rotten tomatoes, mushy apples, and decaying squashes were smeared over the steps of Minnesota's capitol during the night at the spot from which Wendell Willkie was scheduled to speak this afternoon.

Fred Denfield, capitol custodian, had a crew clean up the débris this morning. A small platform put up for Willkie was liberally covered with old vegetables.

PRESIDENT TURNS DOWN A DISTRESS CALL FROM LUCAS

Despite a midwestern boom for Wendell L. Willkie which New Dealers consider alarming, President Roosevelt yesterday declined the invitation of Senator Scott W. Lucas of Illinois to make at least three outright political speeches in the middle west.

The President told Senator Lucas in a telephone conversation that, in view of the rapidity with which foreign developments are materializing, he felt it inadvisable to leave Washington.

Senator Lucas, who is chairman of the midwestern region of the Democratic national committee, quoted Mr. Roosevelt as saying:

"I would give a great deal to accept your invitation and would do so were it not for the fact that something might occur overnight which would require my presence in Washington."

Latest polls show that Willkie has taken the lead over Roosevelt in nine pivotal midwestern states—Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan, Nebraska, Kansas, South Dakota, and North Dakota.

VICTIM OF SHOOTING FREED.

Judge J. M. Braude dismissed George Sykes, 2179 Lincoln avenue, on a charge of disorderly conduct yesterday. Sykes was slightly wounded Friday when Mrs. Lena Mandak, 2206 Lincoln avenue, fired at him thru the door of her home. He said he was only calling to see his girl friend. Judge Braude confiscated Mrs. Mandak's gun.

80,528,000 NOW OF ELIGIBLE AGE TO VOTE NOV. 5

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19 (AP).—The census bureau estimated today that the number of citizens of voting age in the 48 states is now 80,528,000, an increase of 5,391,000 since 1936, when 45,646,817 ballots were cast in the Presidential election.

The gross population, 21 years of age and over is 84,178,000, the bureau said. From this figure, it deducted 3,200,000 aliens and 450,000 District of Columbia residents to arrive at its total of potential voters. Aliens are not permitted to vote.

WILLKIE STRAWS GAIN A POINT IN CHICAGO RETURNS

Peoria Boosts Roosevelt Percentage Downstate.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Results of a batch of 12,583 new straws from Illinois are printed in today's tables of THE TRIBUNE straw vote in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, and Wisconsin. Of the day's instalment, 6,576 test the direction of the political winds in Chicago, and 6,007 do the same downstate.

Wendell L. Willkie is up one point and President Roosevelt down one point in the results of five days' polling in Chicago as compared with the percentages shown in four days' straws. Downstate, Willkie falls off a point and a half, chiefly because of a large vote for Roosevelt among Peoria industrial workers.

In the total straws to date from Illinois—54,456—Willkie has 50.5 per cent; Roosevelt, 49.5 per cent.

Indicated Plurality, 97,108.

When the straw percentages in the tables are applied to the vote cast in the Presidential election of 1936, last comparable election, they give a projected indicated vote for Willkie of 51.3 per cent and a plurality of 97,108 in the state.

An analysis of 26,327 straws tabulated in Chicago shows some interesting tendencies. On the south side in 18 wards, President Roosevelt's share of the straws is 56.5 per cent. In the 1936 election in the same wards he had 63 per cent.

On the west side in 22 wards, Roosevelt has 63.1 per cent of the straws where he had 74 per cent of the vote four years ago.

On the north side in 9 wards, Roosevelt's percentage of straws is 52.4 per cent. Four years ago he had a 60 per cent vote.

Sharp Drop Since 1936.

In the total 49 wards—the First ward being omitted at present because of difficulties in getting a cross-section poll—Roosevelt's 58.5 straw per cent compares with a 67 per cent election day vote in 1936.

By assembling the straws from these three main areas in Chicago, a more accurate line is obtained on the extent of the decline in the Roosevelt vote since 1936 than by comparing with ward figures.

To analyze the returns further: In today's tables 48 per cent of the straws are from Chicago; 12 per cent from the country towns; 40 per cent from downstate cities. In the actual voting in 1936, Chicago cast 42.6 per cent of the two-party votes; the towns 8.1 per cent; downstate, 49.3 per cent. These discrepancies are natural enough, for votes can be gathered faster and easier in Cook county than downstate.

It may be noted that the overproportion of straws from Chicago, where Roosevelt leads, raises the President's percentage of the total Illinois straws in the tables above the ratio given if the tables are weighted.

Projected Vote by Districts.

When the percentages the candidates have in the different areas are applied to the vote cast in 1936, they give the following projected vote—later straws and shiftings in the final days may effect changes one way or another, of course:

	1936 Vote. Rep. and Dem.	Roosevelt Projected Vote.	Willkie Projected Vote.
South side......	662,486	374,305	288,181
West side......	654,327	412,880	241,447
North side.....	326,086	170,869	155,217
Chicago total.	1,642,899	958,054	684,845
Cook co. towns	311,471	116,802	194,669
Downst. cities..	1,899,022	803,286	1,095,736
Illinois total.	3,853,392	1,878,142	1,975,250

Willkie's straw projected plurality thus is 97,108. Willkie has a projected vote of 51.3 per cent, Roosevelt has 48.7 per cent.

On the basis of the straws as applied to the 1936 figures, Roosevelt would carry Chicago by 273,209 plurality and Willkie would come up to the Chicago boundary with a plurality from outside Chicago of 370,317.

In today's totals of five days' Chicago street corner polls, Wayland Brooks, Republican for senator, has 48 per cent of the vote; Senator James M. Slattery has 52 per cent. Downstate in 53 cities, Brooks has 60.5 per cent; Slattery 39.5 per cent.

For governor, Dwight H. Green, Republican, has more Chicago votes [52 per cent] than Harry B. Hershey, Democrat. Green leads on the north and south sides, Hershey on the west, the Democratic stronghold. Downstate Green has 60.8 per cent of the straws; Hershey 39.2 per cent.

State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney, Democrat, leads Judge Oscar F. Nelson, Republican, on the north, south and west sides, and has 54.7 per cent of Chicago straws.

More Returns from Chicago and Downstate in Tribune Straw Poll

Below are the eighth day's tabulations of the straw vote being taken by THE TRIBUNE in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, and Wisconsin on the principal candidates in the election of Nov. 5. These returns from Chicago and downstate Illinois, include the candidates for President, United States senator, governor, and, in Cook county, for state's attorney. In the Presidential race the tabulation shows the number of straws cast for Willkie and for Roosevelt and the percentage for each. The table shows the percentages of the principal candidates in the elections of 1936 and 1938 in wards in which the straw votes now are being taken.

In Wisconsin 5,767 straws have given Willkie 53.1 per cent and Roosevelt 46.9 per cent. For governor, Gov. Julius P. Heil, Republican, has 53 per cent; Orland S. Loomis, Progressive, 16 per cent; Francis E. McGovern, Democrat, 31 per cent.

In Iowa, 5,989 straws gave Willkie 56.2 per cent; Roosevelt, 43.8 per cent. For governor, George A. Wilson, Republican, has 60.3 per cent of the straws; John K. Valentine, Democrat, 39.7 per cent.

In Indiana 7,203 straws have given Willkie 52.1 per cent; Roosevelt 47.9 per cent. For senator, Raymond E. Willis, Republican, has 53.9 per cent and Senator Sherman Minton, Democrat, has 46.1 per cent. For governor, Glen R. Hillis, Republican, 53.1 per cent, and 46.9 per cent for Henry F. Schricker, Democrat.

In all, results of 73,415 straw ballots have been tabulated and printed in the eight days of tables.

New York News Poll Shows Forward Surge for Willkie

New York, Oct. 19 [Special].—A surging tide of Republican ballots from upstate farms, Queens apartments and Long Island estates swept Wendell Willkie forward 2.2 points today in the New York News poll of New York state. The returns cut President Roosevelt's share in the statewide total from 54.4 to 52.2 per cent.

Mr. Roosevelt still could squeak thru a winner on the basis of the poll so far, but the canvassing is not quite one-fourth completed. Only 12,962 out of 53,000 ballots have been collected.

Willkie received 71.6 per cent of the upstate and 42.4 per cent of the New York City votes taken by five house to house canvass crews. This chopped exactly in half the previous 4.4 point margin of President Roosevelt over and above the 50 per cent line. The poll:

Upstate counties.	Roosevelt Straws.	1936.	1932.
Cayuga	37.5	37.6	42.9

City	4,350	68.4	2,010	31.6
Statewide totals..	6,762	52.2	6,200	47.8

The poll continued to spotlight two major points:

1. The comparative Republican strength upstate and Democratic strength in New York City, and [2], the slump in Roosevelt popularity since his landslide victory over Landon in 1936.

When canvassers went into Jackson Heights, Elmhurst and Corona, the eastern portion of the big 3d assembly district, these and nearby areas gave Willkie 54.8 per cent. He got 387 straws to 319 for Roosevelt.

CENSORED PART OF BARRETT TALK TO GO ON WBBM

Parts of his radio speech last Saturday which were censored by station WBBM will be included in a similar talk from the same station this evening by George F. Barrett, Republican nominee for attorney general.

"I have received word from the station management," said Barrett, "that it was a mistake to ask that those paragraph be deleted and that it was a bigger mistake to cut me off the air when I attempted to explain the situation to my listeners."

One paragraph stricken from the earlier speech concerned the appointment of Elliott Roosevelt as a captain.

ILLINOIS SURVEY SUSTAINS POLL'S SWING TO G. O. P.

Tribune Correspondents Report on Outlook.

BY PARKE BROWN.

A survey of the political situation in Illinois made by regular correspondents of THE TRIBUNE at information centers from the Wisconsin line to Cairo sustains almost without exception all of the indications of Republican victory in the state brought out by the straw vote now being taken by this paper.

The reports of the correspondents covering the local trends in their counties or legislative or congressional districts, depending on the area each man felt himself competent to describe, combined to produce these conclusions:

1. The downstate total vote will be much larger than ever cast before.
2. Willkie will carry downstate by a much larger figure than the 98,193 Republican victory in this area in 1938.
3. The Republican state ticket headed by Dwight L. Green, nominee for governor, and Wayland Brooks, nominee for United States senator, will carry downstate by even larger pluralities.
4. The Republicans will gain additional seats in congress and the state legislature.

Nothing but Cold Facts.

The reports were written by regular correspondents of THE TRIBUNE, men of long experience known to be reliable politically, who were given written instructions to "send nothing but cold facts and honest opinions."

Extracts from some of the correspondents' reports follow:

NORTHERN SECTION.

AURORA—Kane county will cast a vote of approximately 65,000, Willkie getting a plurality of 20,000, compared to the 5,000 margin given Landon in 1936. Brooks will get an even larger plurality.

ELGIN—Willkie's vote in this county may be 2 to 1.

WATSEKA—Iroquois county will go Republican by approximately 1,000. Roosevelt carried it in 1936 by 646.

GALESBURG—The Republicans will carry Knox county by probably 3,000 votes. In 1936 Landon carried it by 1,016.

DE KALB—Willkie will carry De Kalb county better than 2 to 1. In 1936 Landon polled 9,826; Roosevelt, 7,899.

STERLING—The Republican ticket will carry Whiteside county by 7,000 votes. Landon carried it by 4,684.

MOLINE—In 1936 Rock Island county gave Roosevelt a 12,885 majority. Democratic chieftains would be happy to settle for 7,000 this year.

BELVIDERE—Boone county will give Willkie a larger vote than Landon received in 1936.

MACOMB—Every indication is that the Republican margin in the 32d senatorial district will be greater than in any election since 1928.

PEORIA—Peoria county Republicans concede but one Democrat—President Roosevelt—a chance to carry here. They are extremely confident that the President's 23,000 majority four years ago will be greatly reduced and the more optimistic believe Willkie has a chance to carry the county.

ROCKFORD—Too early for definite indications because voters are still wavering.

KANKAKEE—After going to Roosevelt in 1936, Kankakee county will return pluralities for every G. O. P. candidate this year.

MOUNT CARROLL—Carroll county will cast pluralities for Willkie, Brooks, and Green.

FREEPORT—In Stephenson county Roosevelt will at least break even, with the Republican state candidates carrying the county.

PONTIAC—The Republican county ticket won by over 2,500 in 1938. There has been no apparent change in the situation.

CENTRAL SECTION.

DECATUR—Macon county and the 19th congressional district will swing heavily to the Republican ticket.

STREATOR—La Salle county may go for Roosevelt but not nearly so strong as four years ago.

CHAMPAIGN—Willkie is expected to carry Champaign county by approximately 5,000 votes. In 1936 Roosevelt carried it by 2,580.

SPRINGFIELD—In 1936 Roosevelt carried Sangamon county by 2,719. This year he probably will lose it by 2,000 or 3,000 votes and his 1936 pluralities in Christian, Macoupin, and Montgomery counties will suffer somewhat.

CARLINVILLE—Former Democratic majorities of 2,000 to 3,000 in Macoupin county will be cut down materially.

DANVILLE—It is conservative to guess that Vermilion county will go Republican by 2,000. In 1936 Roosevelt's plurality was 6,666.

SOUTHERN SECTION.

MARION—Williamson county gave Democratic state candidates small majorities two years ago but apparently is on the march toward complete Republicanism this fall.

CAIRO—Opinion among politicians of both parties is that the 25th congressional district is leaning Republican. The reports indicate that Alexander, Randolph, Pulaski, Williamson, and Jackson counties are safely Republican, while Union and Franklin and perhaps Perry will go Democratic.

EAST ST. LOUIS—Roosevelt will poll 2 to 1 against Willkie in East St. Louis, but Willkie and all Republican candidates are ahead in the farm areas.

HARRISBURG—Roosevelt will carry Saline county by 1,000. In 1936 he carried it by 1,198.

MATTOON—Coles county will go Democratic, the 19th congressional district Republican.

ALTON—The outcome may be determined by local issues.

The reports showed all shades of difference in opinion on the question whether Willkie, Green, or Brooks is the strongest Republican candidate on the Illinois ballot.

SMITH TO SPEAK FOR WILLKIE HERE NEXT SATURDAY

Plans were announced yesterday for the Chicago appearance of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, who will make five speeches in behalf of Wendell L. Willkie, Republican nominee for President.

Smith, who was the Democratic nominee for President in 1928, will address a massmeeting in the Chicago Civic Opera house next Saturday night. Details of his appearance were made public by Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, executive secretary of the No-Third Term organization of Democrats supporting Willkie. Smith's speech will be broadcast by W-G-N from 8:30 to 9 p. m.

Floyd E. Thompson, former chief justice of the Illinois Supreme court and once a Democratic candidate for governor of Illinois, will preside at the meeting. Smith will arrive in Chicago early Saturday afternoon, and plans are being made for a reception in his honor. He will make the first of his Willkie speeches Wednesday in Brooklyn. Other addresses are planned for Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 29 and Boston, Mass., Oct. 31.

Remember back in November 1920—that "wireless" you built yourself? A bulky storage battery and coils. No speaker; you just clamped earphones over your head and listened pop-eyed to the first broadcast—the Harding-Cox election returns. ... Now on the eve of another presidential race, RCA Victor introduces a "favorite son" among 1941 Phonograph-Radios. ... The last word in radio reception from everywhere ... superb recordings from every great opera house and symphony hall. Such radio and record reproduction were undreamed-of in 1920. Today at $124.50, it's a phenomenal value. Reserve your RCA Victrola V-205 (in a moderately modern console of walnut—or mahogany) tomorrow at Lyon & Healy's.

GREEN PROMISES TO END POLITICAL GRIP ON SCHOOLS

Raps Betrayal of Youth in City and State.

Dwight H. Green, Republican candidate for governor, charged yesterday that the public school systems in Chicago and in the state are shot thru with politics. He promised to end the abuse if he is elected.

Green addressed 70 educators under the auspices of the Howland club at 185 North Wabash avenue. The club is made up of men principals of Chicago public schools. E. E. Keener is president. Several downstate educators and University of Chicago professors attended the meeting.

"It has been charged," said Green, "that in Chicago Ed Kelly and Pat Nash and their hand-picked heads of our schools, McCahey and Johnson [James B. McCahey, president of the Chicago board of education, and William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools], have seized our splendid system and are turning it into a job factory.

State Invasion Charged.

"It has been charged that since Kelly and Nash took over Chicago, then Cook county, and finally the statehouse, there has been a systematic invasion of the state school system by machine politics. One of the greatest tragedies in the state's history is that such things can happen there."

Green charged that a $30,000 appropriation for the State Normal school at Carbondale was withheld because of political anger against its president. He asserted that politicians tried to fire the president of the Northern Illinois State Teachers' college at De Kalb in an effort to establish political patronage there.

Some schools in Illinois have only one pupil; 2,733 had less than 10 each in 1938, Green said. These schools are for the most part one teacher schools, and pay less than $800 a year. Many pay less than $600.

"We can't hope to provide an efficient system of free schools with salaries like these," he said.

Additional taxes are not necessary, he said, to improve the school situation. Efficiency can be effected, he asserted, with "the $35,000,000 that today is being wasted every year in graft, extravagance, and crooked contracts by the Kelly-Nash-statehouse machine."

WALLACE RAPS G. O. P. FARM PLAN ON STOP IN CITY

Henry A. Wallace, Democratic Vice Presidential candidate and former secretary of agriculture, predicted yesterday that any Republican farm program which depends on foreign markets to take care of surpluses is doomed to failure. Wallace, en route to Madison, Wis., spoke at a luncheon of the Agricultural Club of Chicago in the Morrison hotel.

"It is quite clear," he said, "that after this war in Europe is over, there will be a smaller market for our agricultural products than ever before. Any streamlined version of the McNary-Haugen bill advanced by the Republicans will fail because it depends on foreign markets to answer the surplus problem."

Wallace criticized the McNary-Haugen farm bill on the ground that, for only a slight return, it syphoned off our soil fertility to Europe.

COURTNEY CITES HIS 8 YEARS OF FIGHTING CRIME

Starts Active Campaign for Re-election.

BY GEORGE WRIGHT.

State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney has sent 10,864 men and women criminals to the penitentiary for crimes they committed in Cook county since he became state's attorney in December, 1932. During that period 31 murderers have paid for their crimes in the electric chair and 674 others are in the penitentiary for terms of not less than 14 years and up to 199 years.

These and other statistics were reported yesterday by Courtney as he made an accounting of the work done by his staff in the Criminal court. He made public his record of eight years in the prosecutor's office as he opened his active campaign for reëlection.

Set Record for Convictions.

The report shows Courtney and his staff set an all time record of 84 per cent convictions. No exactly comparable figures are available, but Clerk Thomas J. Bowler of the Criminal court said that prior to the Courtney administration the average of convictions was never higher than 70 per cent.

The conviction percentage has mounted steadily since Courtney took office. His first year in office it was 77 per cent, and for the first nine months of this year it reached 89 per cent, which means that nearly nine out of every 10 persons brought into the Criminal court for trial are being convicted. In 1938 the conviction rate was 90 per cent. Courtney says this record is the result of speedy justice administered without fear or favor, and without regard to political consequences.

When Courtney took office the Criminal court docket had 1,145 pending indictments. In recent years there are seldom more than 200 cases awaiting trial. On Sept. 1, the start of the new court year, 159 cases were awaiting trial.

Results of Speedy Justice.

"Speedy justice eliminates many evils," Courtney said. "It prevents intimidation of witnesses, prevents tiring them out and making them disgusted with continuances. If cases do not drag there is no opportunity to fix them. I am striving to have all cases brought to trial within 30 days of indictment."

The state's attorney submitted this table to show how speedy trials aid in raising the conviction rate:

Year.	Petg. of cases disposed of in 30 days.	Petg. of convict's.
1933	32	77
1935	61	83
1937	67	89
1939	68	89
1940 [nine months]	69	89

When Courtney first took office, he said, it was impossible to try cases speedily because of the crowded condition of the docket. In coöperation with various chief justices of the Criminal court the docket was gradually brought down to where speedy trials were possible. The conviction rate rose because witnesses were on hand to prosecute.

Habitual Criminal Law Used.

The prosecutor's report shows that he has used the habitual criminal law to send 334 repeaters to the penitentiary for life terms. The law was passed in 1883, but for the 37 years from 1883 to 1920 it was not used. From 1920 to 1932 it was used only 25 times. Courtney used it 334 times in eight years.

Courtney said he has carried out a policy of attempting to concentrate on convictions for major felonies during his two terms as state's attorney. The following table shows the results:

Armed robbery	4,736	535	89
Unarmed robbery	695	313	83
Burglary	2,039	977	90
Auto larceny	935	518	85
Sex crimes	647	283	76
Murder	674	...	69

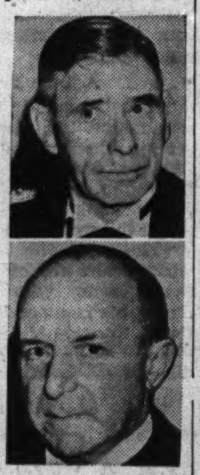
His campaign against major offenders resulted in reduction of all classes of crimes 57 per cent or from 100,887 in 1932 to 43,342 in 1939, the report asserts.

Robbery has been reduced 60 per cent from 15,933 cases in 1932 to 6,464 in 1939. Burglary was reduced 50 per cent from 22,714 cases in 1932 to 11,313 in 1939. The report also shows a reduction of automobile thefts with consequent insurance rate reductions. In 1932, before Courtney took office, 35,233 automobiles were stolen. In 1939 auto thefts totaled 2,891.

The report shows a perfect record for prosecution of kidnapers for ransom: 10 tried and 10 convicted. Among those convicted were the Touhy gangsters, who are serving 99 year prison terms, and the Klutas gang, who kidnaped James Hackett, Blue Island gambler.

Another accomplishment of his staff, Courtney says, was the ending of bail bond scandals, which often resulted in defendants evading trial by forfeiting worthless property to the state. In the 16 years before Courtney's term 5,483 bonds were forfeited as compared with 136 in his eight years. In the last five years there have been only 19 forfeitures.

SONS OF REVOLUTION HEAR ARMY AND NAVY CHIEFTAINS AT DINNER



Lieut. Gen. Lear [top] and Rear Admiral Downes.

Lieut. Gen. Ben Lear, commander of the 6th army corps area, and Rear Admiral John Downes, commandant of the 9th naval district, were speakers last night at the annual Yorktown day dinner given by the Illinois society of the Sons of the American Revolution in the Hamilton club. Both traced the development of their services since the revolution.

At the end of his talk Lieut. Gen. Lear emphasized the need for a vastly expanded and thoroly trained army. "Nothing can do more to promote peace than a formidable army," he said. "If we perfect it in time we may not have to use it."

Rear Admiral Downes said that when the present naval building program is finished the United States will have the best equipped and strongest navy in the world. He said it would repay its cost by strengthening the country's defenses and protecting vital trade routes.

OUT OF THE PAST LINCOLN WARNS OF WILFUL MEN

gratification be found in supporting and maintaining an edifice that has been erected by others? Most certainly it cannot. Many great and good men, sufficiently qualified for any task they should undertake, may ever be found whose ambition would aspire to nothing beyond a seat in congress, a gubernatorial, or a Presidential chair; but such belong not to the family of the lion, or the brood of the eagle.

"What! Think you these places would satisfy an Alexander, a Cæsar, or a Napoleon? Never!

Sketches the Characteristics.

"Towering genius disdains a beaten path. It seeks regions hitherto unexplored. It sees no distinction in adding story to story upon the monuments of fame erected to the memory of others.

"It denies that it is glory enough to serve under any chief. It scorns to tread in the footsteps of any predecessor, however illustrious. It thirsts and burns for distinction; and, if possible, it will have it, whether at the expense of emancipating slaves or enslaving freemen.

"Is it unreasonable, then, to expect that some man possessed of the loftiest genius, coupled with ambition sufficient to push it to the utmost stretch, will at some time spring up amongst us? And when such an one does it will require the people to be united with each other, attached to the government and the laws, and generally intelligent, to successfully frustrate his designs.

Sets Forth a Probable Case.

"Distinction will be his paramount object, and altho he would as willingly, perhaps more so, acquire it by doing good as harm, yet, that opportunity being past, and nothing left to be done in the way of building up, he would set boldly to the task of pulling down.

"Here, then, is a probable case, highly dangerous, and such an one as could not have well existed heretofore."

Lincoln's advice to the country, given in the same speech, was:

"Reason—cold, calculating, unimpassioned reason—must furnish all the materials for our future support and defense.

"Let those materials be molded into general intelligence, sound morality, and, in particular, a reverence for the constitution and laws.

"Upon these let the proud fabric of freedom rest, as the rock of its basis; and as truly as has been said of the only greater institution, 'the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.'"

Mr. and Mrs. Gregg Cummings after their marriage yesterday in the chapel of Holy Name cathedral.

Lace from her mother's wedding dress trimmed the ivory satin gown Miss Katherine Stenson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Stenson, wore for her marriage to Gregg Cummings yesterday afternoon. The ceremony, witnessed only by members of the immediate families, was performed in the chapel of the Holy Name cathedral and was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents in State parkway.

Miss Elizabeth Stenson, who was her sister's only attendant, wore a sheath gown in sleeping blue. Harger Rollo was best man for Mr. Cummings, son of Mrs. John Cummings. After a short wedding trip Mr. Cummings and his bride will be at home on the near north side.

DIRKSEN TELLS 5 YEAR NEGLECT OF ARMY HOUSING

Recalls General's Ouster for Rapping New Deal.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—The New Deal's army housing construction program now is even worse than the low state it was in five years ago when Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood was driven out of the army for criticizing refusal to use WPA "stage money" to remedy the situation, Representative Everett M. Dirksen [R., Ill.] declared today.

Gen. Johnson Hagood.

"Army housing has been lagging ever since the New Deal came into power," Dirksen said. "The story of Gen. Hagood should not be forgotten, particularly in view of the statement of Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson that only 100,000 men of the draft army can be housed by Jan. 1."

Gen. Hagood was persecuted by the New Deal and forced out of the service, the congressman recalled, because he had the courage in December, 1935, "to tell the house appropriations committee, of which I am a member, that some of the millions appropriated for relief ought to be spent on inadequate buildings for the army instead of on leaf raking."

Ousted by Roosevelt.

The general at the time had served 44 years in the army, was the third highest officer of the land forces, and had been a general officer for 18 years. After he dared criticize the WPA, President Roosevelt ordered him relieved of command of the 8th corps area and the 3d field army in February, 1936, and sent home to await orders.

After being kept waiting until May 2 of 1936, Gen. Hagood was assigned to command the 6th corps area in Chicago. Three days later he requested retirement a year ahead of his time and again was sent home to await final orders. Altho his retirement was granted, the Roosevelt administration has continued to hold a club over him because he still can be court martialed and deprived of his $6,000 yearly retirement pay.

"Gen. Hagood before the house subcommittee on military appropriations on Dec. 27, 1935," said Dirksen, "called WPA funds 'stage money, because you can pass it around, but you cannot get anything out of it.' He plead with the subcommittee to 'take the army and its supplies out of war time shacks and put it into permanent buildings.'

This Year or Next.

"'You have got to do it,' Gen. Hagood told the subcommittee. 'You have no choice. If you do not do it this year you have got to do it next year, or the year after that, or you have got to abolish the army.'

"'I am suggesting that you do it now when there is a lot of easy money floating around and not wait until you are skimming the budget to the bone in order to make up for past extravagance,' he continued, 'there is a vast amount of WPA money which is very easy to get for trifling projects, but almost impossible to get for anything worthwhile. . . . It will dry up soon without anything permanent to show for it. . . . I am asking you to put up useful buildings that will be occupied by your men in uniform for a hundred years to come.'"

A True Prophecy.

"How prophetic those criticisms sound now. Yet Harry Hopkins, who set up the third term machine in Chicago, demanded a public apology from Gen. Hagood, and the general was immediately relieved of his command by order of the President.

"That was the first indication of what awaits any officer in the United States army who happens to displease his commander-in-chief, Franklin D. Roosevelt."

GUARDSMEN WILL BEGIN TRAINING FROM JAN. 3-19

Camps Are Assigned to 130,000 Troops.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—Two announcements concerning the mobilization of Americans for army service were made today by officials in charge of the country's military affairs.

1. The war department called out approximately 130,000 National Guardsmen, the last of that force to be summoned for a year's active duty and training. Officials set mobilization dates for the period between Jan. 3 to 19 and about Feb. 3, and made camp assignments.

2. Selective service officials announced tentative quotas of selective service trainees which each state will be expected to contribute to the army between Nov. 18 and next July 1. The grand total of quotas is 800,000, of which Illinois' share is 62,223 men.

Await Proper Housing.

The National Guard call affects eight divisions, 84 regiments and other units. Approximately 126,000 men will be mobilized in the January period and the remaining 4,000 a month later. The war department said that no unit of the National Guard will be ordered into federal service until proper housing is ready and adequate hospital facilities are available.

The following Chicagoland units are among those to be called up between Jan. 3 and 19. The list shows the existing strength, home state, and post to which they will be assigned.

33d division, 9,177, Illinois, to Camp Peay, Tullahoma, Tenn.

800,000 Men Called.

The announced quotas of selective service trainees provides for the full 800,000 men the army plans to call to the colors by July 1 and includes the state allocation of the 400,000 white and Negro men to be mobilized by March 1.

Quotas for north central states, with the maximum number of white and Negro men to be called up by March 1 are as follows:

States.	Quotas.	Maximum white.	Maximum Negro.
Illinois	62,223	28,989	1,637
Michigan	47,282	22,110	1,116
Wisconsin	21,632	10,586	52
Iowa	11,738	5,832	32
Minnesota	18,652	9,301	25
Indiana	21,087	10,109	434
Ohio	52,497	24,765	1,484

The total figures for the 6th corps area, Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin, was a full quota of 131,137 men of which 61,685 and 2,849 are to be mobilized by March 1.

600 CARPENTERS STRIKE, TYING UP ARMY BASE JOB

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 19 [Special].—A general walkout of more than 600 carpenters today virtually paralyzed building operations at the $8,000,000 cantonment in process of development at Fort George G. Meade to house 25,000 troops of the 29th division. The men belong to an American Federation of Labor union.

The walkout, growing out of a dispute over working hours and overtime rates of pay, began Thursday when 75 carpenters refused to report for duty on the night shift, forcing suspension of all except preliminary construction operations on one of four main groups of buildings.

Several hundred fellow craftsmen who spent today idling about the army post declined to take up their tools. Today a mere handful of carpenters quit two hours after checking in saying they had been ordered off the job by union officials.

Carpenters' union officials turned a deaf ear to pleas of army officials at Meade to continue operations pending arbitration of the dispute.

EXPEDITION SHIP SINKS; 18 SAVED OFF AUSTRALIA

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 19 (AP).—The yacht Director II., carrying 18 members of the Fahnestock expedition to the South Seas, struck a reef about three miles off the beach at Gladstone, Australia, today, and sank, Bruce Fahnestock said tonight.

All those aboard escaped without injury.

Fahnestock, who returned home from the expedition a month ago, talked to his brother, Sheridan, and his mother, Mrs. Mary Sheridan Fahnestock, after the accident, reaching them by telephone at Gladstone. He quoted them as saying they believed the 137 foot Diesel equipped ship could be salvaged and repaired.

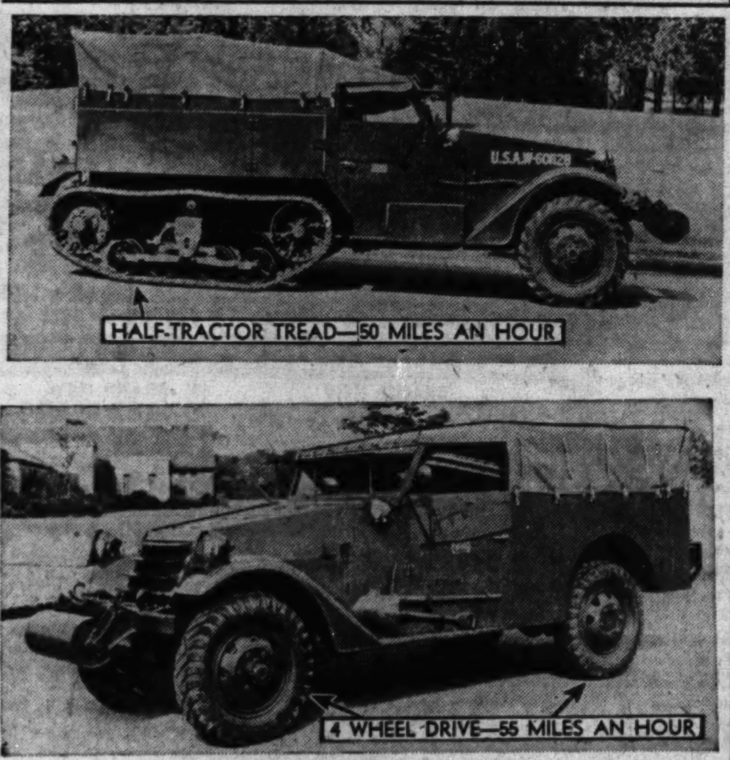
Build Fleet of Armored Cars



HALF-TRACTOR TREAD—50 MILES AN HOUR
4 WHEEL DRIVE—55 MILES AN HOUR

[Acme Photos.]

Two types of the armored scout cars which are being built for the army by Cleveland concern.

Carry Machine Guns

Cleveland, O., Oct. 19 [Special].—To transport reconnaissance parties of the American army, the White Motor company here is building a fleet of fast armored scout cars. Each carries two machine guns and eight men, and the bodies are built of quarter inch armor plate. One type has a four wheel drive and makes 55 miles an hour. The tires are self-sealing and bulletproof. The canvas top comes off to permit use of the machine guns. The other type has a half tractor tread in place of the rear wheels, and makes 50 miles an hour.

Extradition of Accused Fake Check Passer Asked

Gov. John Stelle issued a requisition yesterday asking authorities in Cleveland, O., to extradite John M. Holzworth, who is wanted here for allegedly passing a worthless check for $700 and for failure to pay office help. Holzworth, who says he is a former assistant district attorney of Westchester county, New York, has maintained that he is being persecuted because he is working in behalf of Wendell Willkie.

4,007 Reserve Nurses to Be Called by Army

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19 (AP).—The surgeon general's office of the army made plans today to call out 4,007 members of the army reserve nurse corps by next July 1. The nurses will serve in hospitals at all training camps and in the general hospitals to be constructed in or near larger cities. These hospitals will cost approximately $11,000,000, with the smaller ones having 100 beds or more and the larger units having thousands.

NEGROES CHARGE RACE OPPRESSION UNDER NEW DEAL

More than 60 prominent Negroes from 32 states, members of the national planning board of colored voters of the Republican national committee, yesterday assailed the Roosevelt administration's treatment of their race.

Meeting in Republican headquarters at 120 South La Salle street, the board called upon all colored citizens to vote for Wendell L. Willkie, the G. O. P. nominee for President, as a protest against racial intolerance and segregation which they charge has been fostered by the New Deal.

"We view with great alarm the pass to which the present leadership of our government has brought the American Negro," the board said in a resolution presented by Francis E. Rivers, an assistant district attorney under Thomas E. Dewey in New York City.

AAA Discrimination Charged.

The resolution charged that the New Deal discriminated against the Negro by:

1. Appointment of only four colored field agents out of 115,000 in the Agricultural Adjustment administration, altho 2 million Negroes are gainfully employed in agriculture.
2. Confinement of Negroes to unskilled labor in the Tennessee Valley authority.
3. Exclusion of Negroes from Greenbelt, Md., the government's 14 million dollar model community outside Washington, D. C.
4. Adoption of laws and policies "which enable prejudiced unions to exclude Negroes from employment in private enterprise and assign the colored applicant for work to inferior classes."
5. Promotion of residential segregation in the New Deal's handling of the Federal Housing administration, Home Owners' Loan corporation, and the United States Housing authority.
6. Discrimination and segregation in the administration of work relief.

Army Program Assailed.

"On Oct. 9, 1940," the resolution continued, "the New Deal showed its true colors when it brazenly stated the elaborate program of segregation for the Negro in our armed forces, the most vicious act of segregation ever perpetrated by the New Deal in that it recognizes and institutes a separte caste system."

The meeting was attended by Perry W. Howard, national Republican committeeman from Mississippi and the only Negro on the national committee; Sidney R. Redmond, director of the western colored division of the national committee, state and national Negro leaders, and other prominent colored citizens.

John D. M. Hamilton, executive secretary of the Republican national committee and Col. Theodore Roosevelt Jr. addressed the group. Hamilton said he had never been "more confident of victory in my 25 years in politics."

Wire from Willkie Read.

Rivers, who is director of the eastern colored division, read commendatory telegrams from Willkie, Joseph W. Martin Jr., chairman of the national committee and other Republican leaders.

Attorney Alex L. Jackson of the colored division of the Associated Willkie Clubs of Illinois yesterday countered Democratic claims that the Negro vote of Chicago's south side is "in the bag."

He said 145 local clubs have been formed in the colored sections of five wards and 43 per cent of the members voted for Roosevelt in 1936. Jackson asserted that Negroes are supporting Willkie in the hope he will keep the nation out of war and cause business prosperity to return.

DENTIST SHOT WHILE HUNTING. Coldwater, Mich., Oct. 19 [Special].—E. C. Gifford, a dentist, is in a hospital here, suffering from a gun shot wound in his cheek and head which required 14 stitches to close. The wound was incurred when the barrels of his shotgun exploded while he was hunting pheasants.

TALK BY WILLKIE TO START DRIVE FOR YOUTH VOTE

An intensified drive for the ballots of young voters by the Young Republican National Federation will get under way tomorrow night when Wendell L. Willkie speaks to the youth of voting age in a radio address from Milwaukee.

At the national headquarters of the federation at 120 South La Salle street and in the 41 state and 3,000 county organizations thruout the nation plans have been completed and workers are ready to redouble their efforts, C. Wallace Baer, assistant director, said yesterday.

Members of the federation are visiting nearly every home in their areas, Baer said. Circulars and placards, paid for with money raised by community activities, have been distributed and posted.

In addition to the regular federation branches, there is a college division which has chartered clubs in 224 of the nation's leading colleges and universities in 34 states.

American Girl to Drive British Army Ambulance

HULL, England, Oct. 19 (AP).—Martha Jane Mooney, 24 year old daughter of J. D. Mooney, vice president of General Motors corporation, was given one of three City of Hull ambulances today to drive for the British forces.

ILLINOIS NURSES NAME CHICAGOAN VICE PRESIDENT

A third Chicagoan was added to the list of officers of the Illinois State Nurses' association at its 39th annual convention in the Palmer House yesterday. She is Mrs. Ada R. Crocker, director of the Cook County School of Nursing, who was elected first vice president to serve two years.

Mrs. Louise A. Meyer of Peoria, nursing adviser to the Illinois department of public welfare, was elected secretary also for a two year term.

The terms of the president, Miss Lenore Tobin of Chicago; the second vice president, Mrs. Estelle W. Blatt of Chicago, and the treasurer, Miss Mabel Dunlap of Moline, do not expire until next fall.

THE CAMPAIGN
Both Sides of it

REPUBLICAN
Issue Is: Willkie or War!

BY CARLISLE BARGERON.

(Assigned by Republican National Committee.)

In a speech at Corona, Cal., on Sept. 18, Mr. Willkie made this statement: "I give you my pledge today in southern California that if you elect me President of the United States no American soldier will be sent to the shambles of any European trench."

Now, nothing can be clearer than that. It means very clearly that if war comes to this country it will have to be on this soil. And Mr. Willkie has repeatedly expressed the conviction of millions of other Americans that with a COUNTRY OF MEN AT WORK, WITH OUR FINANCIAL STRUCTURE STRAIGHTENED AND WITH A STRONG DEFENSE, WAR WILL NOT COME TO THIS SOIL!

Mr. Roosevelt's statements on the subject of war and peace are very cleverly worded. He keeps referring to peace "on this hemisphere." He leaves the door open every time to carry out what is clearly his determination: TO KEEP PEACE ON THIS HEMISPHERE BY OUR WAGING WAR OVER THERE!

Mr. Roosevelt will not say that he does not intend to actively enter the war abroad.

He will not say that he does not intend to send American pilots and American manned warships to Europe!

The Army and Navy Journal, the authoritative journal of our military services, says this is exactly what he intends to do. Every informed Washington newspaper man fully expects this.

We All "Love Peace."

We suppose everybody can qualify under the loose term "lover of peace," Mr. Roosevelt as well as the rest of us. But he is not headed for peace.

Gov. Lehman has made the issue very clear. After an exchange with Mr. Willkie he expressed the thought that Mr. Willkie, himself, might be persuaded to become war minded, but that those "damned isolationist Republicans," as they are called, would hold him back.

Mr. Willkie, having really served in a war, will not become war minded, in the first place. But if he should, the governor is quite justified in feeling that the "damned isolationist Republicans" will hold him back.

WPA to Remain.

Another little matter in regard to a whispering campaign: At Syracuse, N. Y., Tuesday, Mr. Willkie engaged in a radio question and answer program with Mr. Oren Root, chairman of the Associated Willkie clubs.

Mr. Root told Mr. Willkie that Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Hovey of River Forest, Ill., had written saying a gas station attendant had told them he would vote for Roosevelt, notwithstanding his opposition to a third term, because Willkie would cut off relief.

Mr. Willkie replied:

"As a matter of fact, if I were elected President of the United States, no person would be taken off relief until that person was provided with a job. The only thing I would do about relief would be to have it administered so that not so much of the total appropriation would be consumed in administration but that a larger percentage would go to those on relief."

DEMOCRATIC
Willkie Distorts Record.

(Provided by the Democratic National Committee.)

Keeping up with Candidate Willkie's home brew statistics is a man sized job. He uses figures with gay abandon and, quite often, the first figure which pops into his head.

The nominee says there are 9,600,000 unemployed workers.

The last report of the National Industrial Conference board said there were 7,657,000 jobless persons. Since then employment has shot up rapidly.

The nominee said Roosevelt in seven years could not provide one man a job in private industry.

The latest report shows that about 13,000,000 have found jobs in private employment under the Roosevelt administration. In fact, employment is now GREATER than it was in the boom year of 1928 when Mr. Hoover was about to abolish the poorhouse from the land.

Production Passes Boom.

United States business is now producing at a level 12 per cent above the boom year of 1929. Time magazine said recently that 1930 is "making 1929 look small."

The record shows that business has made its greatest gains in history under President Roosevelt.

Candidate Willkie told his New England audience that laboring men would wind up in "concentration camps" if the Democrats were returned to power.

Of course, labor has made tremendous gains under the Roosevelt administration without one minute's help from Wendell Willkie. When labor was making its great fight for the right of collective bargaining, he was praising labor-baiting Tom Girdler as one of the true heroes of America.

Statement Challenged.

Candidate Willkie professes heartfelt devotion to the wages and hours act which is designed to put an end to sweatshop conditions and starvation wages. He says BOTH major political parties helped to write this reform into law. Did they?

The record shows that THIRTEEN Republican senators voted against the act and TWO for the act. Among those voting against this bill to help the lowest paid workers in America was his running mate, Senator Charles L. McNary. So did Senators Vandenberg, Johnson, and Bridges.

Candidate Willkie is also an expert on national defense. He upbraids President Roosevelt for being slow to arm America altho when the chief executive tried to prepare in time he was denounced as a "war monger."

Navy Is Built Up.

The record shows that President Roosevelt built up the greatest navy in the world, a fact recently confirmed by Secretary of the Navy Knox, a Republican.

When the administration sponsored a bill in 1939 providing for the manufacture of 6,000 airplanes, 12 senate Republicans voted against the bill and 8 for it. When the government tried to lay up surplus stores of tin and rubber, senate Republicans voted three to one against it.

Last spring Senator Taft of Ohio, now campaigning for Willkie by criticizing the administration's defense program, tried to slash military and naval expenditures by 25 per cent. Had this proposal been adopted, the army and navy would have been hopelessly crippled.

STATE ST. BODY TO HEAR DE MILLE ON WEDNESDAY

Cecil B. De Mille, movie producer, will speak Wednesday evening at the senior dinner of the State Street council, to be held in the Palmer house. De Mille, in Chicago to attend the world première Thursday of his "Northwest Mounted Police," will talk on "The World in Which We Live."

Among the stars planning to attend the première Thursday at the Chicago and State-Lake theaters are Gary Cooper, Madeleine Carroll, Paulette Goddard, Preston Foster, Robert Preston, and Lynne Overman. The State Street council is sponsoring the premiere.

OFFICIALS PLACE SPANISH FLOOD DEATHS AT 250

BARCELONA, Spain, Oct. 19 (AP).—Flood waters in the eastern Pyrenees smashed homes and factories, disrupted telephone and road communications, and took an estimated toll of 250 lives, relief officials said tonight.

Barcelona and Gerona provinces were affected and 108 dead and missing was reported from the town of Torello alone.

Property damage was heavy and Spain's best textile factory at Manlleu was a total loss.

THIS LAMP $79.50

SCIENCE has proved that during the cold, raw winter months, the sun gives only 1/12 as much health-giving ultraviolet rays as in midsummer. Regular indoor sunbaths, not only help make up this natural loss, but, promote the development of firm bones, good teeth and build up resistance against common winter ailments.

So, to safeguard your family's health, give your precious little ones the pure protective sunshine they need! Hanovia's new Alpine Sun Lamp—which gives 3 times more ultraviolet than any other lamp—makes this sunshine available for all the family at the snap of a switch.

Prices from $59.50

SIDELINES
The Extraordinary Story of Dillinger.

BY OBSERVER.

John Dillinger was the contribution of Gov. Paul V. McNutt's Indiana Democratic administration to the troubles of the middle west. Little of McNutt's administration is still remembered—just the infamous "2 Per Cent club" and Dillinger, who, in a way, was a development of 2 per cent politics.

John Dillinger.

McNutt's Indiana turned Dillinger loose on society twice. McNutt paroled the outlaw in 1933. The records on which clemency was based were either erroneous or doctored. They indicated that Dillinger had entered prison six years later than he had. That was termed a clerical error. They also indicated that the committing judge had recommended clemency. He hadn't.

Starts Rampage of Crime.

Within a month after he was freed Dillinger had recruited a following and begun robbing banks. Four months later he smuggled guns into Michigan City prison and 10 hardened convicts shot their way out. The Dillinger gang was growing.

Dillinger himself, on a bank robbing expedition into Ohio, was captured and jailed at Lima. Three of the escaped convicts he had aided returned the favor. They walked into the Lima jail, killed Sheriff Jess Sarber, and freed Dillinger.

By this time Indiana was aroused to the menace of Dillinger. Former Gov. Harry G. Leslie, a Republican, told why it was so easy for dangerous felons to get out of the penitentiary. The reason was that McNutt, given dictatorial powers by a subservient legislature, had turned it into a province of his spoils system. He had dismissed an expert warden for an inexperienced man. He had removed 69 of the 120 experienced guards and given their jobs to political appointees. Every McNutt jobholder was good for 2 per cent.

Gang Kills 20 Persons.

Dillinger went ahead, piling up a record of robbery and murder. From banks alone his gang took $300,000. They killed at least 20 persons. Dillinger, after the Lima jailbreak, was listed by G-men as Public Enemy No. 1.

But Indiana was to have one more chance at him. Dillinger was captured in January, 1934, in Tucson, Ariz., and returned to Crown Point's "escape proof" jail. There Sheriff Carroll Holley beamed on him as he posed for a photograph with her and Prosecutor Robert G. Estill. Estill's arm was around Dillinger's neck. Dillinger rested a friendly hand on Estill's shoulder.

Hardly a month later Dillinger escaped again. Whether he used a wooden gun or a real one; whether $10,000 in bribes greased the way for his flight; whether there was complicity by jail attachés—these are still mysteries.

A bank robbery and the murder of two policemen followed. Dillinger went to cover in Chicago. Two women sold him into the hands of G-men and policemen from East Chicago, Ind., on July 22, 1934. Chicago detectives wanted to take him and make him talk. They were warned away from the scene. The East Chicago policemen and the federal men made no attempt to capture Dillinger. Instead, they shot him dead.

So Dillinger never told of the alliances he bought in Indiana. McNutt at last could forget him.

HERSHEY DRIVE FOR DOWNSTATE VOTES FINISHED

Predicts Victory Before East St. Louis Crowd.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

East St. Louis, Ill., Oct. 19 [Special].—Harry B. Hershey, Democratic candidate for governor, closed his downstate campaign here tonight in a blaze of applause and song with the prediction that his party's ticket would carry Illinois by a substantial margin.

Hershey spoke before an audience of more than 5,000 in the Shriners' Temple. He shared the platform with Gov. John Stelle; Paul V. McNutt, Federal Social Security administrator; Congressman John C. Martin, candidate for state auditor, and Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes, nominated to succeed himself. The talks were interrupted several times by roars of approval and much singing of "God Bless America" and "Happy Days Are Here Again."

Before his address, Hershey's hopes were fortified by the promises of two local Democratic leaders, Eugene Hayes and Al Fields, that this county—St. Clair—would go Democratic hevier than in 1936 when it gave President Roosevelt a plurality of 28,000.

Scorns G. O. P. Charges.

Hershey, in his speech, gave no specific estimate of his party's vote on Nov. 5, but declared that Republican hopes had been dashed "by the absurdities of their candidates twisted charges."

"No two Republican nominees are in agreement on plan or policy," he said. "They are bilked by their chicanery."

Gov. Stelle reiterated the remarks he had made earlier in the day at a homecoming celebration for him in McLeansboro.

"Regardless of whether Wendell Willkie is elected or President Roosevelt is reëlected, I believe that we are going to war unless we are to become a secondary power. Republican administrations over a period of 105 years got us into a jam in the Pacific ocean, in the Philippines, and in the near east."

"The Indispensable Man."

"Japan's aggression is growing now and, if it continues, we must go to war. There is only one man prepared to keep the conflict out of our continent, and that is President Roosevelt."

McNutt echoed this sentiment, saying, in a reference to Willkie, that "we can't frighten dictators if the man in the White House can only muss his hair and make wisecracks."

"Willkie is a lone wolf," McNutt said. "He can get along with other men best when he is the boss. President Hoover was like that. But when it came to facing problems that baffled the wisest heads, he engineered the most perfect example of total failure in the history of democracy.

"I cannot believe the American people will repudiate the political vehicle thru which they have attained the crowning success of their history. They will look again to the Democratic party in November."

WILLKIE TELLS HOW HE'D FIGHT FARM PROBLEM

"We are gathered here tonight in the course of a political campaign which will determine the future of our country. All thru America there is an ever rising tide of opinion that the great hope of our nation depends on a change in Washington next month.

"There is a growing determination upon the part of the men and women of America, regardless of party affiliations, that there shall be an end to the unsound conduct of the affairs of their national government. The people know that a free and spontaneous unity behind a new and effective leadership will take them up the road to progress. They are determined to set out together upon the American road behind our leadership.

"Crusade to Save America."

"This historic campaign of ours will move to a conclusion within the next three weeks. I shall continue ever more intensively to discuss and rediscuss with the people all the vital issues of the campaign. There can and there shall be no relaxation of our efforts, for we regard this campaign as a crusade to save America.

"Tonight we are together here in the heart of the great agricultural section of America. The valley of the upper Mississippi and its tributaries has long been the source of a large portion of the food supplies of the whole nation.

"Here to these vast productive lands, your fathers and mothers brought from the old world the best traditions of thrift and industry and a burning passion for freedom. Here they came to escape from the oppressions of another day and to build a new nation and a new way of life for themselves and their children.

"It is this spirit that has developed this great region.

"It is this spirit that has built all of America.

"It is this spirit that we seek to preserve today.

Way to Solve Problems.

"We know that you people of this vast farm region—realistic Americans that you are—believe that most of the solutions to your problems will emerge from your own free and independent efforts and thru your own voluntary organizations, and not from any academic political theorists in government.

"I know you also recognize that all the groups of our American people have a common stake in the progress and welfare of the people in agriculture, industry, and commerce.

"You also know that each of these groups, and particularly agriculture, needs to feel that government is ever their servant in solving the important problems in which the assistance of government is necessary.

"As to such problems, we pledge to you the full assistance of the power of our administration in their constructive solution.

First: A Conference.

"If I am elected, I shall immediately convene a conference composed of representatives of agriculture, labor, industry, and the consumer. The task of the conference will be to bring America together in a unified program for further progress.

"I propose also that we establish a system of continual research to improve the methods of marketing, to increase the scope of your markets, and to uncover new uses for agricultural products. This research should be geared into the recommendations of the national conference and it should make use of the experience of genuine farmers.

"Furthermore, in seeking for improvements and better solutions, it will be my policy to consult with my colleague, the friend of the farmers, the honorable Charles L. McNary. With his advice there will be selected an outstanding forward looking farm leader as our secretary of agriculture.

"I shall also consult with the governors of the agricultural states to check our program with the needs of their particular regions.

"The American farmer has suffered terribly from the loss of markets, both foreign and domestic. The quarrel I have with the present admintration is that the New Deal does not believe those markets can be restored, whereas I do.

I have not promised to pull white rabbits out of a tall silk hat. We can accomplish the miracle of a safe, strong, and prosperous America, within the power of the American people—hard work, faith in ourselves, and sound leadership in government.

"The executive branch of our vast federal government must be well managed.

"A sure sign of bad management is an unnecessary increase in personnel. The New Deal has added to the government pay roll on a scale unprecedented in history. It now has more than a million employés on the pay roll—which is more than Woodrow Wilson needed to fight the world war.

"Another sign of bad management is undue centralization of authority. The New Deal has concentrated authority in every branch of the government. It has not trusted the people.

"The floundering and aimless management of the New Deal has doubled the national debt in less than eight years.

"Failed to Build Defense."

"The floundering management of the New Deal has also failed to build us a defense system.

"On top of that record of mismanagement, the New Deal is asking you to violate one of the most necessary traditions of our democracy. It wants you to elect it for a third term.

"My fellow citizens, rally to this cause of ours.

"Let us join together here in a deep resolve to save our country. Let us join together to make it strong. Let us start the wheels of industry going; let us put the people back to work; let us open up new markets for the farmer; let us have the courage that we once had, that we have always had, to make our American dream come true.

"Truly, truly a new America awaits us. It lies just ahead of us. It calls to us to have the courage to build it and to make it live."

WOMAN DIES AT 81.

Grand Haven, Mich., Oct. 19 [Special].—Mrs. James E. Wilkinson, 81 years old, wife of a retired Episcopal minister, died yesterday at her home here. She had taught 12 years in Akeley Hall, an Episcopal church school. She had lived in western Michigan 52 years.

G. O. P. PLEDGES CONTINUED AID TO THE NEEDY

Illinois Republican state headquarters released a statement yesterday signed by Wendell L. Willkie and all of the nominees on the Republican state ticket. It was called a "message to all persons on relief, old age assistance, or employed by the WPA and the PWA." The text follows:

"The Republican candidates for national and state offices firmly believe that relief should be continued until the need for it no longer exists. But in order to help those on relief to better their situations, they pledge themselves to the following: [a] Cut down the authority of the 'case worker' so that there is an appeal to a higher authority; [b] reduce the cost of administering relief so that those on relief will receive a greater percentage of the funds available; [c] make it easier for those on relief to accept jobs by assuring them if they lose the jobs they will be returned to relief immediately.

"WPA and PWA also will be continued as long as the need exists. But neither relief nor WPA nor PWA is good enough for the American citizen. Every one in this country is entitled to look forward to more than a bare starvation wage for himself and his family. His birthright should be a good job in private industry that he may support himself and family in decent style and give to his children an adequate education that they may better themselves still more.

"The Third Term Party holds out no hope except continuing on an income on which no American can live according to American standards. The Republican party proposes to restore private American enterprise so that it will again provide the highest wages in the world.

"The Republican party of Illinois has long favored old age assistance. In its platform of 1924 that party advocated old age pensions. At the last session of the legislature, with a house in control of the Republican party, old age assistance was raised from $30 to $40 a month, but on the advice and insistence of New Deal United States senators, the increase was vetoed by the governor.

"This statement and communication is issued so that those on relief, WPA, PWA, or receiving old age assistance may not be misled by falsehoods which are circulated by New Dealers who hope to control the votes of those persons and thus deprive them of their freedom as American citizens after having already deprived them of the chance to a decent livelihood.

"Do you want four more years of joblessness or do you want jobs?"

THE SLAVERY OF JOBLESSNESS.

Mr. Willkie in his Cincinnati speech on Wednesday took up one of the sorest of the country's domestic problems. It is the slavery of joblessness. It was number one problem when Mr. Roosevelt was elected for the first term and then he thought he had the cure for it. The cause, he said, was to be found in the spending of the federal government. It was to be found in the United States. It was to be found in the debt.

Mr. Hoover, in handling his end of the depression, had run up a deficit of about 4 billion dollars. Mr. Roosevelt put his finger on that. There was ruin, he said. A nation which persisted in that was headed over the hill to the poorhouse. The national debt, if increased, would put jobless men on the streets. It would close the industries of the country. It would bring destitution to all, and he proposed to stop it before the country met its final catastrophe.

For Mr. Roosevelt's debts the sky is the limit. For his deficits the floor is out. As he closes his second term he had to have the debt limitation raised. What changed his mind about the jobless men walking the streets hopelessly? Certainly not what he could see about him. The jobless are still here. The slavery of joblessness has become a social condition. Mr. Willkie says there can be an emancipation. The New Dealers are not talking about it any more.

Joblessness and destitution were said to be the crimes of our economic system. That was eight years ago and Mr. Roosevelt was doing the talking. He had the cure in his pocket. It is still there. The jobless are on his doorstep. They haven't diminished. Some of them have died, but youngsters have taken their places. Young people who were in families without employment when Mr. Roosevelt was elected have grown out of teen age and have become voters without finding work. Some of them have families of their own but no work.

Mr. Roosevelt took a three year depression and ran it into its eleventh year. Now he has a Hitler cure. He'll put the young men in the army. The new New Deal slogan is guns instead of butter. The New Deal cannot do anything for the unemployed. It is too busy spending other people's money and going to war.

This country never before had to confess that destitution on a nation-wide scale was a social and political necessity.

DIPLOMATS IN POLITICS.

Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, Philadelphia social leader, and John Cudahy, Milwaukee meat packer, New Deal ambassadors to European countries, out of their diplomatic jobs because of the war, have been out campaigning to reëlect Mr. Roosevelt and perpetuate his administration. William Bullitt, ambassador to France, is also out on the stump. It is one way of trying to keep themselves on the pay roll and a way that reflects little enough credit either on themselves or the administration.

Biddle was ambassador to Poland until the German invasion forced him to withdraw. Cudahy, former ambassador to Poland, then minister to the Irish Free State, was ambassador in Belgium when Hitler ordered the diplomats out of that country. Bullitt returned to this country soon after the Germans overran France.

Both Biddle and Cudahy have been in Wisconsin talking to American voters from the countries to which the ambassadors had been assigned. The object of the speeches was to spread the sentiment that the interests of the homelands would best be served by reëlecting Mr. Roosevelt.

It would be interesting to know who pays the expenses of these political minded diplomats, the national Democratic committee or the state department. It would hardly be less shocking for the ambassadors to be on the pay roll of the political committee than it would be for the department of state to stand the expenses incurred on the political journeyings of its idle ambassadors. Of course their salaries continue to be paid out of the federal treasury.

While Mr. Roosevelt at times professes that his own appearances are patriotic rather than political, no uncertainty exists that his ambassadors are working openly for the continuation of his administration. The Milwaukee politician who introduced the tennis playing Mr. Biddle to an audience of Milwaukee Poles last week bluntly explained that he was present to promote the reelection of Mr. Roosevelt and the election of other Democratic candidates.

The Hatch law prohibiting government employés from participating in party politics exempts diplomats, possibly on the assumption that no ambassador would be permitted, much less called upon, to make a campaign speech for his boss. It is, nevertheless, a sad breach of ambassadorial dignity. The spectacle of a diplomat exhorting voters to reëlect Roosevelt and perpetuate his own job violates the spirit if not the letter of the Hatch act.

The position of an ambassador to a foreign court, in theory at least, is an exalted one. He represents the person of highest authority in his own land. He is the President's personal contact with the ruler of the nation to which he is assigned. The office should command dignity and respect.

The descent of the ambassadors into ward politics is a symptom of the low estate to which government has fallen under the New Deal.

REQUIREMENTS OF AMERICAN FOREIGN POLICY.

American foreign policy is, or should be, primarily to protect the security of the country; that is, to defend it from invasion, first of all, and then to safeguard essential communications. As defense from invasion, which is the paramount requirement, we should acquire such harbors and islands as we can control readily. Commanding positions thus are kept from other hands and with them in our possession an enemy can be held off.

Possessions beyond the zone of defense are liabilities. They can be taken by an enemy and dangerous expeditions would be required to regain them. In the Pacific we regard Hawaii as a post in the defense zone and the Philippines as a dangerous liability.

A nation's economic history may dominate and dictate its foreign policy. The British empire began as a commercial enterprise. It was the work of the directors and shareholders of the joint stock companies, in America, in India and the far east. The adventurous business man had to give way, quickly or slowly, to the political ruler, but the business man laid down the foreign policy which Great Britain now must sustain in battle.

The United States has some of that problem but with fewer necessities and a much greater range of free selection. Our life lines do not circle the earth. We should have special relations with all other countries within our defensive zone so as to bind them to us by interest. Associations are maintained only by interest, which may be of several kinds, the common interest of security, of profit, or to a less extent of culture. With Canada we have all three.

To the south only one which may naturally exist. We may be important to the defense of the southern countries. We haven't a cultural bond and we have the problem of extending the commercial one. To create the profitable interest we should give preference to the countries with which we desire to associate in articles which they do or could produce and which we now get elsewhere. Rubber, tin, coffee, diamonds, iron, copper ore, and tea may be mentioned.

Competing goods cannot be made the factors of commercial association. We can produce the manufactured articles South America buys from Europe. South America must buy them with products which do not compete with our own. We can't exchange automobiles for Argentine corn. We can exchange for Brazilian rubber or diamonds. We can exchange typewriters for coffee. Argentina for economic reasons prefers European to American ties. As she is beyond our defense zone there is no reason for us to try to control her, certainly not to invade her.

Our principal customers are directly north and directly across the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. We already hold the important bases which we need in those oceans for the protection of our shores and commerce. Our foreign policy ought not and need not seek mastery of such other waters as the China sea, the Indian ocean, the Mediterranean, or the Baltic. If we attempt to dominate these highways we shall find ourselves at a serious disadvantage in the naval and military sense and we shall be taking great risks for small gains.

Our foreign policy must not be dictated by those who have the notion that it is the mission of the United States to right every wrong, everywhere. We once wisely refused a mandate for Armenia. Not so wisely we undertook political commitments in the far east, most of which should now be abandoned as too costly and too dangerous. Our withdrawal from the Philippines should not stand alone. As rapidly as possible our troops in China should be brought home, if only as a symbol of our intention not to meddle in the political organization of the far east.

That does not mean that the American government can avoid responsibility to American investors and traders in foreign lands. Our state department should make it its business to defend American investments made in good faith. We ought to have no great difficulty in obtaining respect for our rights in nearby countries to the south and in remoter ones overseas we ought to take as firm a line as our strength warrants.

America owes no political debt to any country, anywhere. We have or can have the strength to defend ourselves and our essential interests without the aid of offensive and defensive alliances. Those underlying facts should be foremost in the minds of the men who formulate our foreign policy and represent us in foreign capitals. For too long the state department has been guided by men who look abroad, rather than at home, for social and cultural leadership. The state department should be rebuilt. There is room in it for only those men who instinctively prefer their own country to any other and all others.

DANGEROUS AND UNJUSTIFIED.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer.]

Public interest in the strike at the Midland Steel Products plant in Cleveland centers largely in the bearing it may have on the nation's defense program. Here is a factory equipped for the production of material essential to American safety. The whole philosophy of rearmament argues against needless interruption of work in such plants.

This strike is called by the C. I. O. union primarily to enforce two points at issue. The union insists that one of its former officials be reinstated, in spite of the fact that the national labor board and the federal courts have said the company was justified in dismissing him.

The other point of insistence on the part of the union is that Midland be organized as a closed shop. A closed shop, as most people know, is one which compels every worker to be a union member whether he wants to join a union or not, or prefers some other union to the one in control of the plant.

No protest is made against collective bargaining. This right is set up by law and is not debatable.

Only the discharged employé and the issue of the closed shop remain to block the path to peace. Not being able to win on these points, as well as on other points conceded by the company, the union calls a strike. Federal mediators are trying to bring order out of a threatening situation.

Here is an important Cleveland industrial plant, furnishing employment to hundreds of men, which has met its employés more than half way in the effort to avert this walkout; a plant the like of which the nation must depend on for its program of rearmament; a plant which has endured much to avoid the misfortune of a strike.

We believe that such a walkout is certain to receive the public condemnation it deserves. When a radical labor body challenges industry on the basis of phony grievances, as in the present case, it challenges the government. It jeopardizes the national defense.

Another great trouble with this world is that there are so many problem children in it—most of them more than 21 years old.—Washington Post.

Ever since Chaplin did it in "City Lights" we have waited patiently for a busy football referee to swallow the whistle.—Detroit News.

MIDDLE WEST FACILITIES FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE

Proposed national defense zones in the interior of the country comprise most of the territory served by the Mississippi system of waterways, upon which so many millions have been spent for development by the federal government. An examination of the extent to which various sections of this great system are being utilized for transportation should furnish some indication as to whether an adequate return on the investment can be realized. This is not only important from the standpoint of normal peacetime operation, but, in view of the headlong rush into war brought about by the present administration's desperate effort to remain in power, these facilities may well be of vital importance as a measure of national defense. This is particularly true because of the fact that this midcontinent area produces 63⅓ per cent of the total agricultural products of the country, 63 per cent of the mineral products, and 40 per cent of the manufactures, and contains approximately one-half of the total population.

One of the newer sections of the system is the Illinois waterway. Its tonnage has steadily increased since 1935, when it handled 1½ million tons of freight. Last year 5½ million tons were transported and the estimate for 1940 is 8 million tons.

The main stem of the system, the Mississippi river from Minneapolis to the Gulf of Mexico, has a channel depth varying from seven feet in the upper stretches to thirty-five feet below Baton Rouge. The combined tonnage handled over this waterway increased from 28 million in 1935 to 33⅓ million in 1939.

The traffic on the Ohio and Monongahela rivers is principally coal and the amount of tonnage carried is dependent largely upon the activities of the steel industry.

The silt laden, sluggish Missouri has presented a tough problem to the engineers who have tried to make it navigable. From its mouth to Kansas City it has a dependable depth of not over six feet. Above Kansas City it is much less. The traffic shipped on this waterway has been negligible.

These figures seem to indicate that the decisive factor in the success of a waterway depends largely upon the depth of water which can be relied upon thruout the navigation season. The Illinois waterway rises in the limestone district which surrounds Chicago and follows the bed of a prehistoric river, which undoubtedly at one time carried the waters of Lake Michigan to the Mississippi. Its depth without doubt will be easily maintained and its success seems to be assured. The same is true, more or less, of the Ohio river, but the Missouri, meandering in an ever changing channel thru the long stretches of western alluvial plains, will present a cost in maintenance far more than it is worth to operate.

It takes years for industry to adjust itself to the advantages of new facilities. Heavy capital investments have to be made in loading and unloading equipment. The floating equipment of the transportation companies is improving so rapidly that depreciation and obsolescence are major items in their operating costs. On the Mississippi and Ohio rivers 12 thousand tons of mixed cargo in one tow of 6 barges or more is not uncommon. This is equivalent to 244 average freight cars loaded to capacity or to 15 average freight train loads. It is equal to the capacity of 24 of the old packet steamboats operating in the days when steamboating was at its zenith. Twenty-six thousand tons of coal have moved on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers in a single tow of barges drawing an average of 7 feet. Modern barges in use on the Mississippi and its tributaries range in cargo capacity from 100 to 3,000 tons and towboats range up to 2,200 horse power, the twin-propeller all-steel units costing as much as a half million dollars to build.

Final judgment should be reserved on the question of whether or not the millions spent in improving the waterways of the Mississippi system have been well invested. Waterway transportation, like a newly built warship, must undergo a shakedown in the initial period of its operation. Experience with equipment, rate construction, and character of freight transported will ultimately result in the water carriers performing the services for which they are best fitted—the service they can render at the most profit for the barge owner and the greatest saving to the shipper and consumer. Those operators who are really making money are confining their efforts to bulk commodities and passing up the package freight common carrier service.

Like many other things in this country, there is an oversupply of transportation services. In normal times for years to come there will be a constant fight among the barges, the railways, and the trucks for a "fair advantage." When it comes to a matter of war and national defense, with the tremendous increases in freight traffic occasioned thereby, the waterways will furnish a very desirable auxiliary to the railways and trucks, carrying the slow moving bulk commodities and leaving the higher grade, faster moving freight to the other carriers.

Editorials of the Day

DEFINING "OFFENSIVE" AND "DEFENSIVE."

[Baltimore Evening Sun.]

During the debate on repeal of the arms embargo last winter it was proposed by some eminent humanitarians, including Mr. Hoover, that the embargo on "offensive" weapons should be retained but that defensive weapons should be permitted to be exported to the belligerents. Thus the fighter or interceptor plane, being "defensive," would be legal for export; but the bombing plane, being an "offensive" weapon, would not.

It has taken the course of the battle of Britain to indicate the fallacy in this distinction and to vindicate the decision of congress not to attempt to make it. Every day bombing planes appear over England and drop bombs on all sorts of objectives. They are met by fighters and pursuit planes which attempt to destroy them or drive them off. But in the meantime British bombing planes are busy over Germany and Italy, trying to knock out airplane and military equipment factories, bombing airdromes when possible, and in general making it as difficult as possible for Nazi bombers to concentrate on their blitzkrieg effort to smash England and win the war.

Which is the defensive plane: The fighter or the bomber? Actually both are defensive if they are important in the defense of a country. If they are used to implement an aggressive foreign policy, the fighter plane is as "offensive" as the bomber.

THE NLRB VACANCY.

[New York Times.]

J. Warren Madden's five year term as chairman of the National Labor Relations board expired on Aug. 27. He has not been reappointed, no one has been named in his stead, and for 37 days the position has been vacant. The labor board handles a huge number of cases; there are chronically long delays in its decisions, and as a result of this vacancy it is reported in our Washington dispatches that the two other members of the board, Edwin S. Smith and William M. Leiserson, who have disagreed on a number of cases, have been obliged to put these and other problems "on ice" until the third member of the board, when appointed, can cast a deciding vote. This situation is obviously unfair both to the companies and to the unions and workers concerned in current disputes.

Why has the President failed thus far to fill the vacancy? It cannot be argued that he has been too busy in the last 37 days with other matters; for he knew not only weeks but many months ahead on just what day Mr. Madden's term would expire. He had plenty of time to make up his mind what he would do when that day arrived.

WHY WE FAINT.

SOME people faint easily while a substantial "shock" will be required to cause unconsciousness in others. We remain alert whenever the brain is adequately supplied with oxygen. Should anything happen to decrease the normal amount "everything will go black." There just isn't enough circulation to preserve the senses.

The nervous system exerts a profound influence over the distribution of blood. The face will blanch or blush, as the emotions dictate. Fear will drive the vital fluid out of the skin while embarrassment may dilate the capillaries and bring a ruddy glow to the cheeks. Bad news, foul air or odors, even indigestion may be responsible for reactions resulting in collapse.

Those who are prone to feel weak or faint because of protracted standing [for example, during the fitting of a dress] do so because the products of fatigue have upset the control over blood pressure. When we are in an upright position the heart has much more work to do than when we are lying down. In consequence, the force may not be sufficient to preserve the regular supply to the brain.

Lack of food is also a factor and one who is starved is likely to become "woozy." If the adrenal glands [which have much to do with maintaining the pressure within the vessels] are diseased we may encounter the tendency. Some of us exhibit the symptom naturally—altho we are perfectly well. Rising abruptly from a reclining to a sitting, or from a sitting to a standing posture may occasion dizziness or slight nausea.

Any one who is routinely subject to this annoyance should be gone over thoroly to make certain that there is no organic trouble. Even tho a below normal pressure is detected, a number of remedial measures may be applied. In the first place, more activity is advised—possibly more nourishment. Or, again, the administration of the outer portions of the adrenal gland may relieve the condition entirely.

Of course, there is such a thing as a circulatory collapse, but we must not confuse fainting with heart disease. The flow thru the arteries may fail temporarily in the presence of a normal "pump." Such episodes usually follow prolonged excitement or great exhaustion, wherein the reserves of the body have been drained to the last drop. In instances of this sort the pulse is increased, the patient is restless and anxious, the face ashen, and the skin covered with perspiration.

This is much the same situation that occurs in heat exhaustion. The victim for a time may respond to questions and be wholly conscious. Sooner or later, however, stupor comes on with subsequent delirium. But this is quite different from a short, momentary "passing out" from which recovery comes quickly.

A minor incident is not difficult to combat. Aware that something is wrong, if the patient can sit down and bend forward so that the thighs are pressed tightly against the abdomen, enough blood will be squeezed out of the tissues to ward off a seizure. Passing from a crowded room to fresh, cool air out of doors is also helpful. Lying down with a cold cloth to the forehead may banish the sensation within a few minutes. A generous number of these attacks can be traced to the digestive tract and the very act of ridding the stomach of its contents may restore the sympathetic nervous system to its aforetime balance. Care must be taken to provide regular meals and should that "all-gone" sensation appear at intervals, a lump of sugar will usually bring relief.

We may look upon these experiences, for the most part, as due to the fact that the blood is not evenly distributed thruout the body. As soon as the individual regains equilibrium all will be well. Nowadays our girls are not chronic fainters. They are too athletic, too well poised to devote much time to swooning.

LIVER SPOTS.

G. O. P. writes: Do liver spots or moth patches ever degenerate into cancer?

REPLY.

Rarely. They are usually level with the surface of the skin and are mere discolorations. Brownish warts [seborrheic], however, may need to be removed with an electric needle or cautery. If the areas start to thicken or scale, consult your physician.

Test Your Horse Sense

1. You would be most likely to find a barker at a Movie Public Dance Hall Circus Afternoon Tea
2. The Sooner state is Maine Oregon Oklahoma Pennsylvania
3. A fat hen dressed for the butcher's counter would weigh approximately 2 Pounds 5 Pounds 10 Pounds 12 Pounds
4. The 37th chapter of Isaiah is duplicated almost verbatim in a chapter in Exodus First Chronicles Second Kings Psalms.
5. A child should have how many teeth at the age of five years 12 16 20 24
6. Thanks to the newspapers with their educational columns on health, the average adult is better acquainted with physiology and medicine than in any previous generation. He knows that there are glands scattered around the body which serve as little chemical plants manufacturing vital juices. Some of these glands pour their products out by way of ducts or little tubes. Others simply exude them into the blood lymph, while some glands are mixed, and pour out one type of secretion thru a duct and another directly into the blood. How well can you classify the following? You deserve one point for each correct answer.

	Duct.	Ductless.	Mixed.
Thyroid Gland	....	....	....
Salivary Gland	....	....	....
Adrenal Gland	....	....	....
Pancreas Gland	....	....	....
Pituitary Gland	....	....	....

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

ILLINOIS TOWN'S DOWNFALL.

Robinson, Ill., Oct. 16.—A few years ago Partridge Point was a typical little town of a few hundred population in a midwest farming community. Recently a shoe salesman, who had not called there for a few years, returned on his rounds. He saw store buildings closed, the fronts plastered with posters of the circus that played the county seat in June. A goat was busy chewing a political candidate's picture from a telephone pole.

He asked the proprietor of the only store left what had happened, and was told that three general stores, a blacksmith shop, a shoe cobbler, and several other places of business had all folded up, receivers taking some. The sheriff sold the others. When a farmer came in the stove man called the salesman over and introduced him to Timothy Hay.

Timothy soon unrolled the community picture, relating that in former years everybody was getting along all right till the AAA came along. He explained that the nearby lands were of a pretty good quality; most farms fairly large, and in the olden days a lot of families share cropped the lands and did well, and their trade sustained a number of business places in Partridge Point.

With the coming of the farm program the places were tractorized and the share cropper lost out. The landed men hired a few drivers to do the work that was done by many before. The landowners saw the short cut to some easy money. They didn't split the government melon but raked in all the benefits. Their former partners, the share croppers, are gone—— You know where. Observer.

YOUTH WORK FOR F. D. R.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—Because of Mr. Willkie's recent allegation that Roosevelt is supported only by pay rollers, politicians, and "little Hitlers" I want to call the attention of your readers to the work of Youth for Democracy, a group of independent young people who have volunteered to organize Roosevelt for President clubs in many of the colleges, labor, and nationality groups in this area.

College men and women at Northwestern in Evanston, the Northwestern downtown school, the University of Chicago, Loyola, De Paul, Central Y college, and Wisconsin are working hard, without expectation of material reward, for the candidacy of the man who they believe, more than any other, will keep the doors of opportunity open to America's youth.

'WAY BACK WHEN.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—Who remembers 'way back when mother crushed some corn starch in the toe of a cotton sock and then used the pouch to dust baby after his bath in the washtub? Gran'pappy was a carpenter and he didn't ride to work in a klunk that wasn't paid for, he walked.

George Curtis bought five acres of timber, cleared enough for a homesite, built a log house and then married my Aunt Mary in the spring. Then he made a living by hewing out white oak cross-ties to sell to the railroad which was reaching out over America.

Us kids walked to and from the little red schoolhouse about three miles away. All the families butchered a couple of hogs in the fall, buried enough vegetables and fruit to carry them thru the winter, and traded eggs and chickens to the merchants in town for sugar, coffee, and material for clothing.

Yes, we were a simple lot, we were just a cross-section of that element who were building the foundation for America. Those were horse and buggy days to the affluent. Those were the days when people lived within their means. Those were the rugged individualists whose blood still flows thru the veins of enough people to reclaim this country from a man who does not know how to keep America within its means. Willkie's record is one of construction, he can make jobs, he is sincere. He wouldn't stoop to the duplicity of telling us what is on order.

LOOKING FOR THAT GUN.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—Many people like myself understood that President Roosevelt's visits to munition factories and arsenals were for the purpose of inspection.

A friend who is in the manufacturing business tells me that when executives make inspection trips it takes from a week to 10 days to go thru the plant, and that it cannot be done by sitting in an automobile looking at the outside walls.

My informant said the real purpose of the visits, at a great personal sacrifice to our dear President, was to try and locate and see with his own eyes the one 105 mm. antiaircraft gun the United States owns. Will you please advise if this is true?

Ethel Bass.

PLANNING FOR VOTE THEFTS.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—How can we be assured an honest vote in Chicago? Thousands of people are told how to vote and countless others are stealing votes. Here's one example of what's going on: A friend of mine received a registration card bearing a strange name. She returned it, thinking it was a mistake. When the postman brought it again she told him that no one by that name had ever lived at that address. The postman pointed to the mailbox. There, underneath the families' names, some one had written the name appearing on the registration card.

Are there enough decent people left in the United States to beat the gangsters now in control of our government?

THIS IS A REPUBLIC.

Park Ridge, Ill., Oct. 15.—President Roosevelt in his splendid Community Chest drive talk over the radio, referred to our "democratic ideals" and "democratic form of government."

These errors should be corrected. Back in 1787 the constitutional convention considered the question of republic or democracy, and the word democracy was killed in convention and the word republic stood.

Not until Woodrow Wilson's time did that dead word come to life again, and since the New Deal came in they have sought to build up a democracy pushing out the old tradition of republic.

There is the old song entitled "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and other proofs in favor of a republic, and not a single line of a democracy.

Why change those old ideals when we all love a republic?

WANTS THE TOWER LIGHTED.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—Last week I was at Tribune Tower, inspired by its great beauty as a skyscraper. The view of Chicago's skyline in daylight is breathtaking but at night you cannot find the city! The only building really lit up is the Wrigley building, your next door neighbor. How grand it would be if the powerful amber lights once more played upon the great Tribune Tower. I saw, on my visit to the Tower, that the lights are all still in place around the Tower. Chicago is proud of its Tribune Tower and I think I speak as the "voice of the people" when I ask you again to light up the Tower at night. The flag by day, the lighting by night! EASEMENT.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am writing to you for legal advice about a sewer drain. It is in a passage that belongs to two owners, myself and the other party. All their roof water and stones from two of their buildings drain into our sewer because they do not have a sewer of their own and do not want to know anything about keeping it clean, and we get the odor in our basement and building. We have owned the building for 13 years and they do not want to share the work or expense.

A. P.

The rule is stated as follows in 67 C. J. 886: "Where an easement has not been acquired by grant or prescription, the owner of a building is required to take care of rainwater falling on the roof by providing and keeping in serviceable condition gutters and spouts sufficient to carry off such precipitation as may reasonably be expected, and if by reason of his neglect water is shed from his roof on to or against the wall or building of another he is liable for any injury caused thereby": [Citing Meister v. Lang, 28 Ill. App. 624].

HERMAN WILLKIE: HE FOUGHT FOR HUMAN FREEDOM

Old Paper Tells His Stand Against Oppression.

Huntington, Ind., Oct. 19 [Special]. —A yellowed copy of The Huntington Herald was displayed here today, showing the strong stand taken by the father of Wendell Willkie in 1917 for national defense and against the kaiser's bid for world power.

The old newspaper, taken from the files of Attorney Lawrence E. Carlson, contains an account of an address delivered on Sunday, Oct. 21, 1917, by Herman Willkie at a theater here. It was a return engagement for Willkie, who had spoken in this county a few weeks previously while touring the state in the interest of national defense.

"If Germany is right, then Valley Forge is a myth," he told the crowded auditorium. "If Germany is right, then Gettysburg was fought in vain. If Germany is right, then Christ was wrong."

The Herald's account of the address continues:

"With these forceful statements, Herman Willkie, prominent lawyer of Elwood who was born in Germany and spent part of his childhood there, arraigned the teachings of German philosophers and the propaganda that Germany has spread thruout the world that might is right, that necessity knows no law, and that when Germany wants war, then war is moral.

Tells of Childhood.

"His audience sat for more than two hours while he brought indictments against the kaiser and proved every case. He told of his childhood experiences in Prussia, where his mother knitted in the dark for eight small children and for a soldier who was billeted in their one room house and who was the autocrat of the household.

"Judge Willkie declared that the American people must organize in the same way that political campaigns are organized if they hope to win the war. Judge Willkie is a Democrat and he told of experiences in the last campaign in which his party had been defeated [1908]. He said that defeat was due to better organization by the Republicans.

Figurative Court Case.

"In discussing the war he went back to the beginning, and using a figurative court case in which the principal witness is not introduced, he asked why the telegrams and telephone messages exchanged by Germany and Austria after the Austrian ultimatum to Serbia was sent have not been placed before the world. He declared that the omission of three messages proved better than anything else that Germany started the war and did so deliberately. . . .

"The invasion of Belgium and of France thru that invasion was a foul, Mr. Willkie declared. And he laid particular stress on the articles written by Theodore Roosevelt at that time, urging that the United States enter the conflict."

Discusses Lusitania Sinking.

In his Huntington speech of 23 years ago, the senior Willkie reviewed the Lusitania sinking and Germany's violated promises to observe international law. Other naval atrocities and the German propaganda mill in this country were given attention. The Herald's story continues:

"The reason the German people stand for the rule of the kaiser is that they were educated to it, Mr. Willkie explained. He recounted that the teachers and the preached all are paid by the government and that they taught that the kaiser was appointed by God and all the German culture of might is right. . . .

Denounces Textbook Propaganda.

"German textbooks in Indiana high schools, Mr. Willkie said, were part of the propaganda upon which Germany pinned its faith that the United States would sympathize with Germany. He told of various untruthful things in these books, or rather half truthful things, and mentioned that the authors in each case were Germans, now in Germany.

In closing, Mr. Willkie told of an effort made by German friends to persuade the family to move back to the old country. His mother, however, had but one reply to all their urging:

"Aber wir in freiheit leben!" [But we live in freedom!]

He's for Willkie

Robert Phillips with his collection of Wendell Willkie campaign buttons.

Republican workers encountered one of their most ardent supporters yesterday when Robert Phillips wandered into headquarters at 120 South La Salle street. Robert, who is 13 years old and lives at 1673 Pratt boulevard, had dozens of novelty campaign buttons attached to his coat. The G. O. P. workers filled out his collection with their own new models.

Among Robert's buttons were some which read, "We Don't Want Eleanor Either," "Give Ma Perkins the Gate," "60 Billion Bucks—Whee!" and "Mah Friends, Good Bye." Robert, an eighth grade pupil at Kilmer school, started his collection a month ago, and now has about 150 buttons.

"I went into Democratic headquarters at the Morrison hotel, too," he related. "They just laughed and said I was for the wrong man."

BOYS! GIRLS!

SEE TODAY'S 24-PAGE COMIC BOOK FOR THE SECOND GREAT INSTALMENT!

THE ADVENTURES OF LEW LOYAL

$10,000 IN CASH PRIZES!

Send in YOUR PHOTOGRAPH!

IT MAY BE USED AS A MODEL FOR LEW LOYAL OR BETSY TRUE. YOU MAY WIN $2,500.00!

★ ★ ★ ALTHOUGH he is the newest comic feature character in America, Lew Loyal already is known to millions of boys and girls!

Why? Because every boy in America wants to be like Lew—intelligent, brave, patriotic! And every girl admires Lew—as Betsy True does.

But, you say, what about the prizes? . . . Here are the details: The Chicago Tribune wants photographs of boys and girls under 15 years of age. The grand prize winning photos will be used as models for the Lew Loyal and Betsy True characters. $10,000.00 in cash will be paid for photographs. No work to do. Just send in your photo. Any snapshot will do.

Every boy and girl who sends in a photograph will be made a member of the Lew Loyal Patriots and will receive a handsome badge FREE. 20 Cash Prizes of $25.00 each will be paid weekly for 10 weeks (Total $5,000) to boys and girls whose photos are published in the Sunday Tribune. Grand Prizes of $2,500.00 each will be paid to the boy and the girl whose photographs are chosen to be the models for Lew Loyal and Betsy True. Think of the thrill of seeing your face in this popular feature! And these grand prize winners will be tried out for radio broadcasting on W-G-N.

There are 202 prizes in all. Every boy and every girl has an equal chance. It costs you nothing. It does not matter where you live. Why not try? Send in YOUR photograph! Paste the entry coupon at the right on the back of it.

DIES DENOUNCES NEW DEAL SHIELD FOR 5TH COLUMN

Charges Fear of Losing Votes of Radicals.

BY FRANK CIPRIANI.

Charges that the Roosevelt administration has failed to take the necessary steps to stamp out fifth column activities in the United States for fear of offending racial and organization blocs and losing votes in the November election were made in Chicago last night by Congressman Martin Dies [D., Tex.].

He said foreign governments—especially the totalitarian governments of Germany, Italy, and Russia—have established political organizations in the United States for spying, sabotage, and undermining the American form of government. He said they have placed members in key positions in the government and in national defense industries.

Fear of Vote Loss Charged.

"There is no question," said Dies, "that if the President would come out fearlessly and frankly with a declaration that the United States will not tolerate fifth column activities, the evil would be reduced and our country would be greatly strengthened.

"But while such a declaration would be in the interest of our country, it might cost some votes in key cities. In view of the grave emergency, this is no time to play politics. I have written and wired the President about the situation, but have received only what I consider evasive answers. I had hoped there would be a house cleaning. To date there has been no effective or adequate handling of the problem."

Dies said the "so-called liberal politicians in Washington" do not want to face the issue or to antagonize certain organizations controling votes. He named those organizations as the Congress of Industrial Organizations, the Civil Liberties union, the Committee for the Protection of the Foreign Born, the Committee on Intellectual Freedom and Democracy, the International Worker's order, and the International Labor defense.

5th Column Strong, Says Dies.

Dies said the fifth column is organized more strongly in America that it was in France before the latter's collapse. He said he has the names of 300,000 persons particularly active in the work. Many of them, he asserted, work in government positions.

The consular services of some foreign governments also are active in subversive matters, Dies said. In some instances, he said, they have collaborated with their nationals in the United States to build up Trojan horse movements.

"The question now," said Dies, "is whether the administration will enforce measures to outlaw these Trojan horse organizations—the same kind that thrived in Holland, Belgium, and France before their downfall—and whether the administration will adopt a uniform policy requiring all consular officials to refrain from political activity.

"What we want is a declaration from President Roosevelt—and also from Wendell L. Willkie—that Europe cannot transfer its feuds and troubles to the United States."

Dies said many politicians in Washington resent his investigation and revelations because he dares to tell the truth. Moreover, he added, he has evidence showing that men at least indirectly associated with suspected fifth column groups are in government offices.

"There are people in the government—a minority to be sure—who cannot be trusted," he said. "They have so compromised themselves by their friendship with Trojan horse and communist organizations that they cannot vigorously enforce the law with respect to these groups."

Born at Sea

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Mr. and Mrs. Shlomo Gerstein of Chicago with son born on Egyptian ship that reached New Jersey yesterday. The orange crate was the baby's cradle.

New York, Oct. 19 [Special].—The liner El Nil, first Egyptian passenger boat ever to enter New York harbor, docked today in Jersey City after a 68 day voyage from Port said.

Capt. E. G. Walton is an Englishman. The four mates are a Yugoslavian, a Greek, a Norwegian, and an Egyptian. The seamen, clad in white trousers, red jackets and fezzes, are Egyptians. The 145 passengers represented 20 nationalities.

The youngest passenger was Akiva El Nil Gerstein, born at sea 15 days ago. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Shlomo Gerstein, of 1612 South Lawndale avenue, Chicago, returned from Palestine, where they grew oranges for two years, then abandoned the project because in the domestic markets 100 oranges sold for five cents.

MRS. ROOSEVELT PAYS CITY TWO VISITS IN ONE DAY

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, one of the airlines, best customers, made two stop-offs at Chicago airport yesterday. Arriving at 8:05 a. m. by United Air Lines from Seattle, Wash., where she visited her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Boettiger, Mrs. Roosevelt left 40 minutes later for St. Louis on the American Air Lines.

She dropped back here at 4:37 p. m. via the Chicago and Southern Air Lines for a 23 minute visit and then took off on an American Air Lines plane for New York to join President Roosevelt at Hyde Park. During one of her brief visits she telephoned her son, Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., at the Stevens hotel. Another son, James Roosevelt, also stopped off here for a few hours yesterday morning on his way east. He arrived on a TWA stratoliner.

2,000 AIR PILOTS CAMPAIGN FOR WILLKIE TODAY

Encouraged by Wendell Willkie's pledge to promote the development of commercial and military aviation if he is elected President, from 2,000 to 5,000 civilian pilots will stage a nation-wide demonstration today in honor of "Willkie Wings for America Day." The demonstration was announced by Republican headquarters.

In Illinois 80 planes will fly to Curtiss-Reynolds field, Glenview, and 35 others to the municipal airport in Springfield, where they will load their planes with Willkie literature and return to their home towns to distribute the material.

Four United Air Lines hostesses will register the arrivals at Curtiss-Reynolds field, where a meeting will be presided over by Lyman W. Sherwood, Chicago attorney, and Larry Lawver of the Aircraft Owners' and Pilots' association.

Roses Bloom Second Time in Downstate Garden

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 19 [Special].—Mrs. Jennie Selby of Waynesville said today she had picked two bouquets of roses from bushes on her lawn. The roses are the midnight variety and are blooming for the second time this year.

GETTING UP NIGHTS
Nervousness and Kidney Strain

If you're feeling out o'sorts, Get Up Nights or suffer from Burning Passages, Backache, Swollen Ankles, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains, Dizziness, Circles Under Eyes and feel worn-out, the cause may be non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles. Worry, Colds, working too hard, or overeating or drinking may create an excess of Acids and overload your Kidneys so that they need help to flush out poisonous wastes that might otherwise undermine your health.

Help Kidneys Remove Acids

Nature provides the Kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess Acids. The Kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters through which the heart pumps blood about 200 times an hour, night and day, so it's easy to see that they may get tired and slow down when overloaded.

Fourteen years ago a practicing physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles in these three simple ways: 1. Help the Kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisoning and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3. Help the Kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, which may easily make you feel years younger.

Money Back Guarantee

Usually, in non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder disorders the very first dose of Cystex goes right to work helping the Kidneys flush out excess Acids, poisons and wastes. And this cleansing, purifying Kidney action, in just a day or so, may easily make you feel younger, stronger and better than in years. A printed guarantee with each package of Cystex insures an immediate refund of all your money unless you are completely satisfied. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose, under this positive money back guarantee. Don't take chances on any Kidney medicine that isn't guaranteed. Get Cystex from your druggist today for only 35c. The guarantee protects you.

JONES MEMORIAL CLINIC TO OPEN IN LATE NOVEMBER

Children's Hospital Unit Will Cost $750,000.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

[Eugene Hutchinson Photo.]

The $750,000 Thomas D. Jones Memorial clinic building of the Children's Memorial hospital, now nearing completion at 2342 Orchard street, will be formally opened during the third week in November, Miss Mabel W. Binner, superintendent, announced. The new hospital unit is the gift of Miss Gwethalyn Jones, niece of Thomas D. Jones, attorney, who died in 1930, leaving a 10 million dollar estate. Miss Jones was one of the beneficiaries of his will.

The new building was designed by Puckey & Jenkins, Chicago architectural firm which drew the plans for several of the Children's Memorial hospital group of buildings on Fullerton avenue, Orchard street, and Lincoln avenue.

Solves Traffic Problem.

It will have 80 general examining rooms where an average of over 200 children daily will be given attention by 90 physicians. No child will remain in the clinic overnight. If they need hospital treatment they will be taken into the main hospital buildings adjoining. There will be a complete pharmacy.

The hospital is planned, according to Miss Binner, to handle a complicated traffic problem—that of keeping a steady influx of patients moving in one direction, with no bottlenecks. Patients will not come in contact with others or with those in the main hospital. The entrances and exits are far apart.

In addition to the general examining rooms, there is an elaborate X-ray department, an eye, ear, nose, and throat department, and an orthopedic department. There also is a photographic department.

Wells Donates Unit.

All but one department were given by Miss Jones. That is the bronchoscopic department unit donated by Mr. and Mrs. Preston A. Wells in memory of their son, Edward Shedd Wells. Only two other hospitals in Chicago have such a unit.

Another feature is a lecture auditorium or theater which will seat 72 physicians.

At one end of the new building will be a baby carriage shelter for mothers who wheeled their babies to the clinic.

Interior walls are made of pebble glazed light weight hollow tile blocks, which is expected to save considerably in cleaning bills. The cream colored glazing has little or no glare. The ceilings are painted.

A number of Mrs. James Ward Thorne's juvenile miniature rooms, showing Snow White, Peter Rabbit and other story book characters, are to be placed in the new clinic building.

Most Treatments Free.

According to the last annual report of the hospital 88 per cent of all medical and surgical care and of all cost of hospitalization is given patients free of any expense to them.

Thomas D. Jones was chairman of the board of directors of the Children's Memorial hospital for several years. The hospital was founded in 1884 by Mrs. Julia F. Porter in memory of her son, Maurice Porter, and was known for many years as the Maurice Porter Memorial Hospital for Children. In 1903, with the assent of Mrs. Porter, the name was changed to the Children's Memorial hospital.

Several important gifts of land and money for new units have been received in recent years. John P. Wilson is now president of the hospital. Stanley Field, Albert H. Wetten, and A. A. Sprague are vice presidents. Frederick S. Booth is secretary and N. M. Symonds, treasurer.

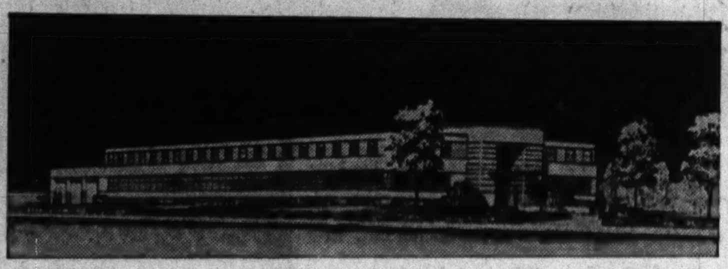
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

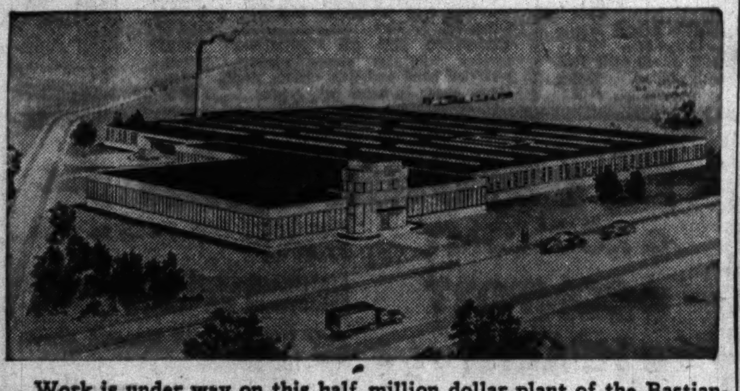
The Thomas D. Jones Memorial clinic building of the Children's Memorial hospital will cost approximately $700,000, and equipment about $50,000 additional. It has foundations for an additional story when needed. One of the main hospital units with which it is connected is shown on the right. The H. B. Barnard company is the contractor.

Will Double Company's Capacity



Increased army and navy activity is indirectly responsible for the decision of the Charles Bruning company, Inc., makers of drafting and engineering supplies and equipment, to build this $278,000 plant at 4700 West Montrose avenue. Victor L. Charn is architect. The B-W Construction company has the general contract. Completion is expected in five months. The new plant will double the company's Chicago capacity. Details of this project were published last week.

New Plant for Northwest Side



Work is under way on this half million dollar plant of the Bastian-Blessing company, designed by Fox & Fox, at the southwest corner of Rogers and Peterson avenues. It will occupy 7 acres in a 13 acre tract.

Spend $200,000 for Equipment in New Plant

Lewis G. Blessing.
[Kaiden Studios.]

Lewis G. Blessing, president of the Bastian-Blessing company, yesterday said that, in addition to spending half a million dollars on a new plant on the far northwest side, $200,000 already has been spent on new equipment. Designed by Fox & Fox, Chicago architects, the new factory and office building is being built on a 13 acre tract at the southwest corner of Rogers and Peterson avenues. About seven acres will be utilized for the new structure, giving it 172,000 square feet of floor space.

The office section of the plant will be completely air conditioned and will have acoustically treated ceilings. A cafeteria will be provided for the 462 employés. There will be parking space for about 400 cars.

Will Be Landscaped.

"There will be lawns, trees, and shrubbery on three sides of the new plant," said Blessing. "We expect to make it so pleasant for employés that they'll never want to leave us.

"The business was started in June, 1908, with a capital of $45,000 and not one penny has been added to this capital since that date except from earnings. During that time we've paid out $4,533,208 in cash dividends, 1,500 per cent in stock dividends, and our net worth as of Aug. 31, 1940, was $3,309,365."

Plant to Be Leased.

The Bastian-Blessing company is one of the world's largest manufacturers of soda fountains and equipment, oxygen and acetylene cutting and welding equipment, ice cream freezers, ice cream cabinets and frosted food cabinets, and liquefied petroleum gas [butane and propane] equipment.

The present Chicago plant, a four story building at the northwest corner of Fairbank court and Ontario street, containing 85,000 square feet of floor space, will be leased to other companies when the company moves to the new plant early next year.

THE BOOK THAT EVERY AMERICAN WANTS TO READ

"COUNTRY SQUIRE in the WHITE HOUSE"

NOW—see for yourself why this book of facts about Roosevelt became the year's surprise best seller now sweeping the country!

WHO is Franklin D. Roosevelt? How did he get his start in politics? What was his world war record? What stock schemes did he promote? How much has his family earned in 8 years? Who writes his speeches? Is he an able man or a political accident? What are his qualifications for the Presidency? Is he likely to get us into war? If so, is he the man to lead us?

"Country Squire in the White House," to be presented serially in the Daily Tribune starting tomorrow, looks into these questions. The author, John T. Flynn, noted writer on economic subjects and a lifelong Democrat who voted for Bryan, Wilson, and Roosevelt in 1932, does not alone supply the answers. His conclusions are based on what the Chief Executive himself has said and done.

Written in advance of the Democratic Convention, this fact-packed work is not a campaign book. Set forth in plain language and understandable to all, it simply analyzes the character, moods and major actions of Roosevelt from boyhood to the White House. Find out for yourself why it is the surprise best-seller of the year—

CHICAGO TRIBUNE

STELLE THROWS JOB HUNTERS INTO FIGHT ON G. O. P.

Help Those They Hope to Oust from Pay Rolls.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 19.—The statehouse machine, overhauled by Gov. John Stelle during his 13 days in office, is drafting job hunters to help the army of pay rollers for a final two weeks' desperate battle to stem the advance of Republicanism in Illinois.

Pete Rossiter.

The change in command, due to the death of Gov. Henry Horner on Oct. 6, has resulted in a patronage confusion which the Democrats are trying to manipulate to their advantage. The battalions of job applicants are the reserves being thrown into this political mêlée.

Few if any of the many asking for a place on the state pay roll are told they can't have it. They are being told there will be a big turnover after the Nov. 5 election and that if they work hard in their precincts, they can be hopeful of reward.

Hershey and Stelle Join Hands.

"I won't keep any one who is not loyal," Gov. Stelle told a pay rollers' rally in the state armory here this week.

"Every loyal Democrat will receive recognition," the gubernatorial candidate, Harry B. Hershey, added.

No figures are available on the number doomed to disappointment, regardless of the election outcome. At the time of the last change in administration, in 1933, 210,000 applications for jobs were filed thu the downstate patronage office. In seven years, with more applications coming in every month, this office placed 11,500 on pay rolls.

The state-wide Stelle organization, dormant since its primary defeat by the boss picked ticket, has been revived. In most counties Stelle's men have displaced regular party chairmen in enrolling the job hunters with vague promises.

New Patronage Boss.

The new downstate patronage boss is Pete Rossiter, head of a Springfield faction that sided with Stelle in the losing primary fight against the Nash-Kelly and the statehouse machines. On the state pay roll he is the new administrative auditor. Like Stelle, he is manipulating the state machine in coördination with the Nash-Kelly organization in an effort to elect the ticket headed by Hershey.

In the two weeks since Gov. Horner died, the Democrats believe they have bettered their organization for the final two weeks of the campaign.

Under Charles Bliss, Hershey's manager and his Taylorville law partner, things were not going so well. There were complaints of weak leadership. Stelle now is the real leader, and any complaints against him don't include lack of forcefulness.

This afternoon the executive offices announced the resignation of Max Bibo, ill for a year, and the appointment of George Eddy Day, a Springfield paint merchant, to succeed him as state purchasing agent.

Dean Wight of Dubuque University Resigns Post

Dubuque, Ia., Oct. 19 [Special].—Dr. Ed. A. Wight, dean of the college of liberal arts and professor of education at the University of Dubuque since 1936, resigned today to enter the school of library service of Columbia university. Dr. Wight also served as tennis coach at the university. His teams won the Iowa conference championship four consecutive years.

PEDESTRIAN HIT BY AUTO DIES OF HIS INJURIES

Paul Horvath, 60 years old, a laborer living at 26th street and the Illinois Central railroad tracks, was killed last night by an automobile as he crossed Cottage Grove avenue at 27th street. The driver was Lyle Heitz, 23, of 1706 Jackson boulevard.

James Pike, 42, of 7743 Ridgeland avenue, an investigator for the Chicago Surface Lines, died in Jackson Park hospital of injuries incurred Friday night when his automobile struck a railroad viaduct pillar at 76th street near Greenwood avenue.

Mrs. Jadwiga Czajka, 85, of 1809 Cullerton street, died in County hospital of injuries suffered Sept. 2 when she was struck by an automobile at Wood and Cullerton streets.

James Johnson, 35, colored, of 4738 Calumet avenue, was injured fatally when he was struck by a truck driven by George Craig, 5250 Calumet avenue, also colored, at Roosevelt road and California avenue.

Bernard R. Cottrell, 40, of 5318 Maryland avenue, died in Evangelical hospital of injuries incurred Thursday when his automobile struck the rear of a truck making a left turn at 47th and Halsted streets. The truck driver was Gilbert Thalman, 25, of Oneida, Ill. Cottrell was a bus driver for the Chicago Motor Coach company.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 699 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 510 were killed in Chicago, where 18,860 were injured in the same period.

COL. ROOSEVELT FEARS NATION IS BEING LED TO WAR

Only Hope: Replace F. D. R. with Willkie.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt declared in a Chicago speech last night that he is "desperately afraid the President is edging us into the European conflict." He was heard by an audience of 2,500 at a dinner and mass meeting given in Medinah temple by the Distinguished Service Cross association and affiliated Republican veterans' associations.

If President Roosevelt is determined to keep peace, how can his actions be explained, the colonel asked.

"He said America would join with other nations to quarantine dictators," Col. Roosevelt recalled. "Either these were empty words or they imply a threat of war. He told the senate military affairs committee American frontiers are in France. A man who believes our frontiers are in France must believe we should be in the war.

Assails Secret Actions.

"You and I do not know what international engagements the President has made for the United States. He has negotiated behind closed doors with the chancellories of Europe. Juggling with our destinies, he has kept us in the dark. We do not know what promises he has made and yet our lives and our sons' lives are what he has played with. He acts in secret as do the dictators."

The son of former President Roosevelt declared the man in the White House would, if reëlected, destroy American unity, a prime necessity for successful defense.

"He has gone far toward this already," he said. "Our American doctrine was that there were no such things as classes in America. President Roosevelt, for his own personal ends, has endeavored to split Americans one from another; has divided us into warring groups. He has preached that the natural enemies of Americans were other Americans, and has sown dragons' teeth in the United States. He has become the emblem of disunion.

Cites Coddling of Reds.

"His administration has coddled communists and is shot thru with communists and fellow travelers. The Dies committee listed more than 500 occupying federal posts. As far as I know nothing has been done about these; as far as I know they are still living on us while endeavoring to destroy us."

The colonel expressed the belief that the republic could be saved only if Wendell Willkie, whom he described as "a clear thinking, liberal, practical, and honorable executive," were elected.

Dwight H. Green, candidate for governor, and Wayland Brooks, nominee for the senate, who, like Col. Roosevelt, are world war veterans, were present. Both spoke briefly. Green accepted a portrait of himself, by John Doctoroff, which was presented by the ex-service men.

Flies Plane Upside Down; Falls Out; Lands Unhurt

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 19 (AP).—It was lucky for Capt. Lester G. Orcutt of Des Moines, Ia., that he was wearing a parachute today. Capt. Orcutt, army reserve officer, was flying upside down during a maneuver and his safety belt came unfastened. The plane crashed in a field, while the astounded officer floated earthward.

"YOU BET I PAINT WITH BARRELED SUNLIGHT"

I know from experience that the best paint actually costs less!

No one knows paint like a painter. You can't fool him with so-called "bargain" paints. He knows that better-looking, longer-lasting jobs are done faster, with less paint, when they're done with the best possible material.

That's why better painters everywhere standardize on Barreled Sunlight for all of their inside and outside work. For maximum economy, Barreled Sunlight's the buy.

FUNERAL RITES TOMORROW FOR JUDGE COLLINS

Judge Collins.

Funeral services for Judge Lorin Cone Collins, a former Chicago lawyer and speaker of the Illinois house of representatives, will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow in the Rosehill cemetery chapel. Judge Collins died Friday night in Sawyer, Mich., where for the last five years he had been living with a son, George Robb Collins. He was 92 years old. Judge Collins was born in Wapping, Conn. He studied at Ohio Wesleyan university, Delaware, O., and received his B. A. degree from Northwestern university in 1872 and his M. A. degree in 1874. He was admitted to the Illinois bar in 1874.

House Speaker in 1883.

He was a member of the Illinois house from 1879 to 1884, and was speaker in 1883. He was appointed judge of the Circuit court of Cook county in 1884, and was elected to that office in 1885 and was reëlected in 1891. He resigned in 1893, and in 1905 was appointed associate justice of the Supreme court of the Panama Canal Zone by President Theodore Roosevelt. He served for six years.

Prior to his appointment to the court Judge Collins was a member of the law firm of Collins, Goodrich, Darrow & Vincent in Chicago. After leaving the Canal Zone he practiced law in New Mexico, living there until 1922, when he returned to Chicago and practiced in special cases.

N. U. Trustee for 20 Years.

Judge Collins was a member of the board of trustees of Northwestern university for 20 years. He was a member of the American Bar association, Masonic orders, the Chicago club, the Strangers club of Colon, Canal Zone, and the Santa Fe club. He was the only surviving founder of the Northwestern chapter of Sigma Chi fraternity.

In addition to George Collins, he leaves another son, Dr. Lorin Collins; a daughter, Mrs. Grace C. McGill, and his widow, Mrs. Nellie Robb Collins.

B. B. Loring, Valparaiso Bank President, Dies

Valparaiso, Ind., Oct. 19 [Special].—Bruce B. Loring, 43 years old, president of the First State bank and Porter county manager for Wendell L. Willkie's nomination campaign, died last night following an appendectomy. He was a graduate of the University of Michigan law school and a world war veteran and had practiced law here since 1921. Surviving are his widow and a daughter Nancy.

FEUDING SENATE PROBERS GO TO IT AT VOTE INQUIRY

Reed, Hill Then Make Up in Soundproof Room.

Feuding between a pair of United States senators, sitting here since last Wednesday as a subcommittee listening to tales of Chicago election frauds, flared again yesterday during a session in the United States courthouse and for a few moments threatened to disrupt the entire proceedings.

Rep. Woodward, vote fraud witness.

The handful of spectators, more used to aldermanic wranglings in the city hall, looked on in amazement as the senators, Lister D. Hill [D., Ala.], and Clyde M. Reed [R., Kas.], brawled verbally over each other's rights and privileges as chairman and member of the two man body, respectively.

They Reach a Truce.

The two finally removed themselves to an anteroom which those on the outside found to be practically soundproof. There they reached some sort of settlement. Emerging half an hour later, they indicated they also had agreed on at least one detail of their investigation—that they ought to begin looking for higher ups responsible for the city's voting irregularities.

The senators said they would issue subpenas for the records of three bonding companies which were said to have posted a total of $177,000 in bail bonds for persons seized for alleged violation of the election laws.

These records, according to witnesses, will reveal the organizations and individuals whose interest in bailing out prisoners indicates their complicity in the frauds.

Clash During Testimony.

The clash between the subcommittee members occurred as they were discussing the issuance of the subpenas with State Representative Robert M. Woodward, who had been a witness, and E. C. Arthur of the Better Government association, both of whom were ranged before the committee bench. Following are a few of the exchanges in which the senators engaged:

HILL [to Arthur]—What organization did you say you are with?

ARTHUR—The Better Government association.

HILL—The organization that refused to coöperate with this subcommittee by supplying a list of your contributors. [Then to Woodward]—And you're with that organization too?

REED—Now, wait a minute. . . .

HILL—Keep quiet, senator, I'm running this committee.

REED—Mr. Arthur wants to say something. Give him a chance.

HILL [flushing]—I'm running this committee.

REED [voice rising]—Say, you may be chairman but I've got equal rights with you.

HILL—Why, I've shown you every possible courtesy.

REED—Not since these hearings began, you haven't. I'm not satisfied to leave Chicago with this chicken feed stuff we've been getting. We should get at the big fellows. That's why I want to see the subpenas issued.

The senators also decided yesterday to extend their inquiry to alleged violations of the Hatch act and indicated they will call for witnesses on this phase later in the week.

Woman's Testimony Jolts Quiz.

Earlier the subcommittee got a jolt when Mrs. Marion E. Force of the Women's Civic council testified that last Jan. 19 she saw Attorney Sidney Korshak, 100 North La Salle street, walk into the courtroom of County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki carrying a black satchel out of which he took $127,000 cash to bail out a large number of vote fraud defendants en masse.

"Do a lot of lawyers in Chicago go around with $127,000 in little black bags?" Senator Reed wondered aloud.

This testimony was denied last evening by Attorney Korshak, who said he merely had accompanied the bondsman, who was carrying the cash, into the courtroom.

Another witness was Robert F. Roberts, colored, 5758 South Wabash avenue. When he stood before Senator Hill to be sworn, the Alabama senator recited the oath, looking steadfastly at the ceiling. Roberts then told of seeing election workers pass money to voters near the 81st precinct polling place of the fifth ward during the mayoralty election last year.

Kills Playmate

Robert Dancey, 11, after he had slain friend accidentally.

Jack Fagan, 12 years old, was wounded fatally yesterday when a playmate's .22 caliber rifle accidentally discharged in the basement of the Fagan home at 7243 Harvard avenue and he was shot in the heart. Robert Dancey, 11, of 6952 Princeton avenue, who held the gun, fled in fright after the shooting, but was found later and turned over to juvenile authorities.

Jack Fagan.

John Holman, 13, of 7139 Eggleston avenue, who was also present, told Sergt. John O'Halloran of the Englewood station that Dancey, who had bought the gun Friday for 30 cents, aimed thru a window at a light bulb in the alley. He pulled the trigger twice and the gun failed to go off. Then, the Holman boy said, he turned toward young Fagan, remarking, "Wouldn't it be funny if it went off now?"

As he spoke the gun fired.

POLISH BALLET PERFORMANCE IS JOLLY, ZESTFUL

Audience Thrilled by 'Country Wedding.'

BY EDWARD BARRY.

One of the brightest episodes of this young music and dance season of 1940-'41 came last evening when the Polish ballet, Felix Sadowski, artistic director and ballet master, gave its first full length Chicago performance at the Civic Opera house.

The jolly, infectious quality which the work of this youthful troupe possesses was nowhere more delightfully in evidence than in the piece called "Country Wedding." The various Polish dances of which "Country Wedding" is composed were performed with a zest and gayety that suggested not so much a careful execution of carefully rehearsed steps and routines as a great upswelling joy of living on the part of the dancers themselves.

Audience Is Thrilled.

The performers were obviously intoxicated by the strong, beating meters with which they were dealing, and they had no trouble in intoxicating their audience as well. Indeed, if a person such as the writer of this review, who cannot boast a single drop of Polish blood, was so easily able to feel vividly what the dancers were doing, imagination falters at the thought of what power the performance must have had for the thousands of Polish-Americans in the house.

The particular shining stars of the performance were, besides Mr. Sadowski himself, Tosia Nowicka and Janina Frostowna. Alexander Aster and Edwin Karhu played two piano accompaniments.

Costuming Is Dazzling.

The costuming was as dazzling as the dancing. Every color of the rainbow, plus ten or a dozen others, was represented in the dress of men and women alike.

The performance was given under the auspices of the consul general of Poland, Dr. Karol Ripa. The Filharmonia chorus and the Sarmatia male chorus assisted the ballet.

Couple Mistake Gunmen's Command and Are Slugged

Because they mistook a command to "stick 'em up!" for a greeting, Herman Lindstrom, 52 years old, and his wife, Frieda, 53, were beaten yesterday by two robbers in their bakery shop at 1007 West 59th street. The bandits struck them on the heads with revolvers and fled empty handed.

SUPERB 'TOSCA' PRESENTED BY SAN CARLO CO.

Norina Greco Exciting in Title Role.

BY CECIL SMITH.

The San Carlo Opera company presented Puccini's "Tosca" in the Auditorium theater last evening, with singing worthy of any of the world's finest opera houses. Norina Greco sang the title rôle for the first time with the San Carlo Opera company—indeed, for only the third or fourth time in her entire youthful career. Carlo Peroni conducted superbly.

Miss Greco's performance, despite certain apparent deficiencies of acting, was a crescendo of excitement and vocal beauty. Her achievements in the last act were so extraordinary that I almost hesitate to record them, for fear of being accused of the use of easy superlatives.

Recalls Claudia Muzio.

The timbre of her voice, and the dynamic impulse of onward movement with which she produced her tone, called inescapably to mind the late Claudia Muzio. In fact, since Muzio's last performances here, I have not heard singing to compare with Miss Greco's from any other Italian soprano. The great climax, sweeping up to high C and down two full octaves [as she describes her stabbing of Scarpia], was arrestingly powerful.

Mario Valle's Scarpia is the only really good one I have seen in the last few years. He commands the audience every moment of the time, and he sings and acts with full command both of the character and of the requisite musical style. Even without an adequate chorus and orchestra, the Te Deum at the close of the first act possessed genuine impact.

Everybody at His Best.

Sydney Rayner, as Cavaradossi, was likewise excellent. He sang with his old vocal freedom, and stopped the show after "E lucevan le stelle," as Miss Greco had also stopped it after "Vissi d'arte." It was one of those electric evenings when everybody, including the secondary artists, was at his best. If all operatic performances were like this one, there would never be any difficulty about selling tickets.

A CHEERFUL 'MARTHA'

In the afternoon a cheerful, well paced performance of Flotow's "Martha" engaged the talents of Lucille Meusel, Charlotte Bruno, Rolf Gerard, Stefan Kozakevich, and Richard Wentworth. Carlo Peroni conducted.

Miss Meusel, an exceptionally winsome Martha, sang the soprano embroideries fluently and with impeccable taste. Miss Bruno tossed off some of the deftiest singing she has done here in her first act ensembles with Miss Meusel.

The performance was given fairly intelligibly in English. The translation, however, was not without unintended moments of merriment, as when Miss Meusel was described as "poorly built for farming."

LIFE TERM AIM OF ROOSEVELT TOLD BY LANDON

Quincy, Ill., Oct. 19 [Special].—Former Gov. Alfred M. Landon of Kansas, Republican nominee for President in 1936, declared in a speech here tonight that the one great issue in the present campaign is "whether we should elect a President for a life term."

"A vote for a life term now," he said, "is a vote for the principles of dictatorship. That is where the real tragedy lies. A life term in America would mean Nazilism, with all its racial hatred.

"Once we break the third term tradition, we start a precedent which not only endangers the present, but which—and this is far worse—imperils the whole future of free institutions in America. A life term for Mr. Roosevelt means the possibility of a life term for any President who may follow him.

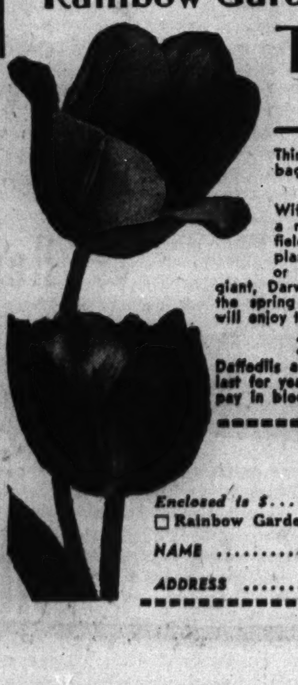
"It is futile to think of continuing the republic on the basis of life terms for our Presidents. The third term tradition is like a dike against the flood of successive terms."

One Killed, Six Are Hurt by Refinery Blast, Fire

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 19 (AP).—One man was burned fatally, two others were injured seriously, and four received minor burns by an explosion and fire in the gasoline refinery of the General Petroleum corporation in nearby Torrance today. Company officials said the explosion resulted from a broken oil connection and spilled oil. They estimated damage at $20,000.

Vaughan's Famous

Rainbow Garden of Giant TULIPS $2



Prepaid 600 miles

Thirty bulbs, six each of five named varieties separately bagged and labeled, embracing these colors:

RED, PINK, ORANGE, YELLOW, LAVENDER

With war shutting out bulbs from Holland, tulips are a rarity this fall. These bulbs were grown in our own fields in Oregon, where we have the largest American plantings. In several years of tests they proved equal or superior to imported Dutch bulbs. They are tall, giant, Darwin, Cottage and Breeder varieties, without rivals in the spring garden. With tulip bulbs so scarce few gardens will enjoy their beauty next spring. Make yours one of these few!

25 Daffodils, prepaid, $1.50

Daffodils are the first major flowers to bloom in spring. They last for years and usually multiply. A purchase of bulbs should pay in bloom for a lifetime. All types are in this mixture.

LAKE SAILOR HELD AS A SUSPECT IN ROBBERY OF BANK

Federal agents in Cleveland held for questioning yesterday a Great Lakes sailor arrested as a suspect in the $10,000 robbery Friday of the South Chicago Savings bank, 2959 East 92d street. Pictures of the suspect were being transmitted to Chicago to be viewed by Harold Broberg, teller in the bank, who gave up $10,000 when the robber threatened to drop a bottle which, he said, contained nitroglycerin.

The suspect was seized at the request of Chicago authorities because of his suspicious movements in the vicinity of the bank shortly before the robbery. A few minutes after the robbery he checked out of his south side hotel and took a train for Cleveland. He told Cleveland authorities he had just resigned his job with a Great Lakes shipping company and intended to visit an aunt in Lakewood, near Cleveland.

LOUIS CHARON DIES AT 68.

Fort Dodge, Ia., Oct. 19 [Special].—Louis Charon, 68, Iowa merchant for more than 40 years, died late yesterday. He was president of the Tuerke Mercantile company, operators of Fort Dodge's largest department store. His widow and three children survive.

During the next four or five months individuals, old and young alike, will encounter greater hazards to health than at any other season. January, February and March are the danger months . . . when colds, influenza and pneumonia hold sway. Healthy persons, close to par physically, are less likely to be affected . . . but persons whose body resistance has been lowered by some condition which they do or do not know exists, confront grave possibilities. Thanks to the great advances in medical science it is no longer necessary to face these dangers unprepared. It is now well within the scope of modern medicine to provide adequate protection, not only against these diseases, but against all other diseases which menace health. As a result it is far easier, simpler and less expensive to keep well than to get well. The annual or semi-annual physical check-up is the most valuable service medicine can render, providing it is thorough and complete . . . not merely an examination of urine, blood pressure or tapping and listening to the chest. To be worth while it must include the services of physicians with experience and knowledge in the different departments of medicine supported by X-ray studies and pictures of the heart, lungs and other important organs, electrocardiograms of the heart and special laboratory examinations and tests. The insidious approach of heart disease, cancer, tuberculosis, diabetes, Bright's disease and many other conditions makes these procedures necessary if serious damage to health is to be prevented. Every year thousands of persons come to a United Medical Service for these complete protective medical services . . . where the fees are within the reach of the most limited incomes . . . and the same to all. Here you can obtain at low cost through competent experienced physicians, supported by extensive X-ray and laboratory equipment and other facilities . . . under one roof . . . all the preventive and curative services that new discoveries in medicine are making possible today. A United Medical Service is America's first fixed fee, low cost, responsible medical service. Visitors invited.

Ear, Nose and Throat

AVOID starting the long winter months with an ear, nose or throat disorder. Have them examined for inflammation or infection of delicate membranes, diseased tonsils, adenoids, growths or foreign bodies which may be followed by pain, impaired hearing, discharge from ears, sore throat, etc. Such symptoms should be thoroughly investigated by our Ear, Nose and Throat physician, for unless properly treated they may cause severe colds and lead to deafness or other serious disabilities. The examination with tests for hearing, urinalysis, and complete blood tests is..... $3.50

Prevent colds . . . Immunizing injections..........$1.50

Tonsils and Adenoids Removed by Experienced Surgeon for $15

Have Your Teeth X-rayed

A DISEASED tooth can lower body resistance to the danger point. An X-ray of all the teeth before winter comes will help you to avoid arthritis, heart trouble, kidney disorders, indigestion, and other serious ailments. A full mouth X-ray, 14 films, is available here for $1.50

Skin Disorders

A HEALTHY skin plays an important part in maintaining body resistance. If you have a skin disorder it should be accurately diagnosed and competently treated before the winter arrives. For skin lesions not only are a source of great annoyance but frequently indicate a serious disease condition. Competent skin therapy is available in our complete dermatological department. Diagnosis and treatment of all types of skin and scalp diseases are made by our expert dermatologist which will include urinalysis, blood and serological tests. The fee is........... $3.50

Medical Protection at Low Cost

HERE is a group of medical procedures that will disclose hidden infection or beginning disease which proper treatment can repair before the strain of winter causes serious trouble. A complete physical check-up by the physician, an X-ray of the chest showing condition of heart and lungs, an electrocardiogram of heart, blood pressure, a basal metabolism test, a urological or gynecological examination, and laboratory tests of the blood, urine and other secretions. These combined services.................... $10.00

Heart and Lungs Winter throws an extra burden upon the heart and lungs that may cause serious trouble if some undisclosed weakness exists. Although heart disease is the leading cause of death and tuberculosis still a menace to health, protection is available through early medical care. To detect the presence of heart trouble or tuberculosis and determine its extent there must be a careful clinical examination by a competent physician, blood pressure, urinalysis, microscopic examination of sputum, blood and serological tests, an electrocardiogram, a full size X-ray film of the chest, showing the size of the heart, large blood vessels and condition of the lungs . . . and, when indicated, a fluoroscope of the chest. The fee for these services is only..... $7.00

Women's Complaints The strain of winter will disclose the presence of many hidden ailments among women that medicine is fully prepared to discover now, when proper treatment could eliminate or control them. Women who seek prompt medical protection at the first sign of pain or functional disorder have greater chances for complete recovery. A gynecological examination by a trained physician, including a regional and colposcopic examination and Schiller's test to detect diseased tissue that may cause cancer of the cervix, microscopic examinations of all secretions and discharges, urinalysis, complete blood and serological tests, is.............. $3.50

Complete obstetrical care, including delivery by physician and all hospital services, is available at fixed low cost.

Stomach Trouble The stomach has more work to do when the weather gets cold. Make sure it is functioning properly now. Never neglect a persistent stomach complaint . . . particularly if you are past 40 years of age when the possibilities of cancer are greatest. An accurate diagnosis should be made before any medication is attempted. A special gastro-intestinal examination, including a physical check-up by trained physicians, blood pressure, urinalysis, a complete blood examination, and serological tests, is.................. $3.50

A fluoroscopic examination following a barium meal, repeated at intervals necessary to watch the barium pass through the stomach and small bowel, including necessary X-ray film, is...... $5.50

In addition, if necessary, there is a laboratory examination of the gastric contents and of the stool for mucus, blood, and parasites, for.......................... $3.50

Kidneys, Bladder, Prostate These important organs can cause serious damage to health before any warning signs appear. Heart trouble, hardening of the arteries, high blood pressure are frequently due to chronic conditions in the kidneys, bladder or prostate. Acute or latent gonorrhea is often a contributing factor. They should be examined at regular intervals. A urological examination must include a regional and clinical examination by the physician, microscopic examinations of all secretions and discharges, urinalysis, complete blood and serological tests; the fee is.... $3.50

Treatments for gonorrhea are available for..................$1.00

Piles, Hemorrhoids Aside from being a most painful and debilitating condition, rectal disorders are very dangerous. Over 5,000 persons die yearly from cancer of the rectum. Many could be saved by timely medical care. Don't delay. Seek competent medical attention before the condition has progressed beyond repair. Let our specially trained proctologist give you a complete rectal examination, including the use of the proctoscope, urinalysis, complete blood and serological tests, and microscopic examination of the stool for blood, mucus, and amoebae. The fee for this service is only..... $3.50

X-ray examination of the gall bladder.... $4.50

X-ray pictures of the sinuses (3 views) ...$2.50

An X-ray of the chest showing the heart and lungs $3.00

X-ray of the kidneys, pelvis and bladder ..$3.00

An X-ray picture of ankle (2 views), $2.50

A complete basal metabolism test is $2.50

Serological Kahn test of the blood is....75c

Electrocardiogram of the heart $2.00

Medical and surgical care is also available to families on a yearly basis through our Budget Plan for less than 10c a Day. Write or call for particulars.

Eyesight and Health

WINTER puts an extra strain upon the eyes which may cause headaches, car sickness, nervousness, inflammation of the eyelids, pain in the eyeballs, floating objects before the eyes, impairment of vision, blind spots when driving. These should receive the immediate attention of an oculist. Sight is too precious to neglect and only an oculist, a physician specializing in diseases which affect the eyes, can detect their most serious defects. Such conditions may arise from iritis, retinitis, conjunctivitis, glaucoma, cataract, and cause serious damage to sight. A complete examination of the eyes by our Oculist, including refraction, special tests for vision, urinalysis, and blood tests, is only..... $3.50

Competent medical and surgical care is available for all diseases of the eyes . . . and crossed eyes.

U-M-S Optical Service

WHEN glasses are prescribed by our oculist the prescription is carefully filled under his personal supervision by our own optical department. This assures the finest quality, value and service. The style illustrated here, is perhaps the best optical value in Chicago. It has engraved, gold-filled mounting, in Ful-Vue style from our own optical shops, including best quality single vision lenses, for....... $6.95

Bifocals are slightly higher. Other styles as low as.......... $4.50

INDIANA, MINNESOTA WIN; NOTRE DAME PILES UP 61-0 SCORE

DE CORREVONT PASSES 33 YDS. TO FIRST SCORE, RUNS 50 FOR 2D

Wisconsin Connects on 4th Period Aerial.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Oct. 19.—Northwestern's Wildcats, on the scent of a Big Nine title since they smothered Ohio State, frolicked up and down historic Camp Randall today, dazzling 25,000 spectators as well as Wisconsin's Badgers. Helped some by enemy blunders but nevertheless a powerful, versatile combination, the Wildcats won, 27 to 7.

The only charge that can be laid at the Wildcats' door is that they were slightly slow about getting under way. They didn't score in the first period, altho they did provide an ominous threat. In the second quarter they burst forth with fourteen points and their actions in the next period indicated they were satisfied. But the Badgers, aided by a spectacular pass, zoomed to seven points in the final quarter. That was too close for comfort, so the victors let fly in earnest and quickly compiled their thirteen other points.

De Correvont Takes Charge.

Northwestern's first drive over the goal was a thirty-three yard maneuver in which the dashing Bill De Correvont threw a long pass to Floyd Chambers after Joe Lokanc had stolen a Badger aerial. The next touchdown was all De Correvont. He aimed to pass to Hasse but couldn't, so he just ran. When the Badgers found him he was fifty yards away, behind their goal. The third resulted from a seventy-three yard advance, thirty-four of the yards having been contributed in one sprint to the 7 yard line by Red Hahenstein. And the last blossomed after the Badgers had fumbled on their own 32 yard line. It was one of six Wisconsin fumbles, five of which the Wildcats recovered.

Altho whipped decisively, the Badgers furnished one bit of spectacular offense, a play that showed them the road to their seven points in the fourth period. Taking off from their 20 yard line, and paced by the bone crushing George Paskvan, they reached Northwestern's 10 yard line as the third quarter ended. The charge slowed down here, so Mark Hoskins dropped back to pass. The Wildcats cornered him, but he kept drifting from their reach and finally, when back to the 31 yard line and almost out of bounds, he shot a high long pass directly toward a swarm of mates on the goal line. James McFadzean had the better reach and he stepped over the goal from the 3 yard mark.

De Correvont's Ankle Injured.

De Correvont wasn't present for the entire battle, but while he was there the Badgers learned, as did Ohio last week, that the young man has come into his own. An ankle injury forced him out when Northwestern was making a futile thrust at the Badger goal in the third period. And while he could have returned, he wasn't needed. His job was in the capable hands of Hahnenstein. Don Clawson also went on the cripple list. Before the game was five minutes old he was removed because of a back injury, but it was announced that he probably would be available for next week's chore against Indiana.

Northwestern's first real drive, set up by a fumble, began on Wisconsin's 41 yard line. Philip bobbled on an end around play and Butherus recovered for Northwestern. Soper moved the ball to the 16 yard line in five plays. De Correvont lost five yards and Chambers made two as the quarter ended.

Chambers Goes Over.

On the second play of the second period, Smith attempted a place kick from the 25 yard line, but a whistle

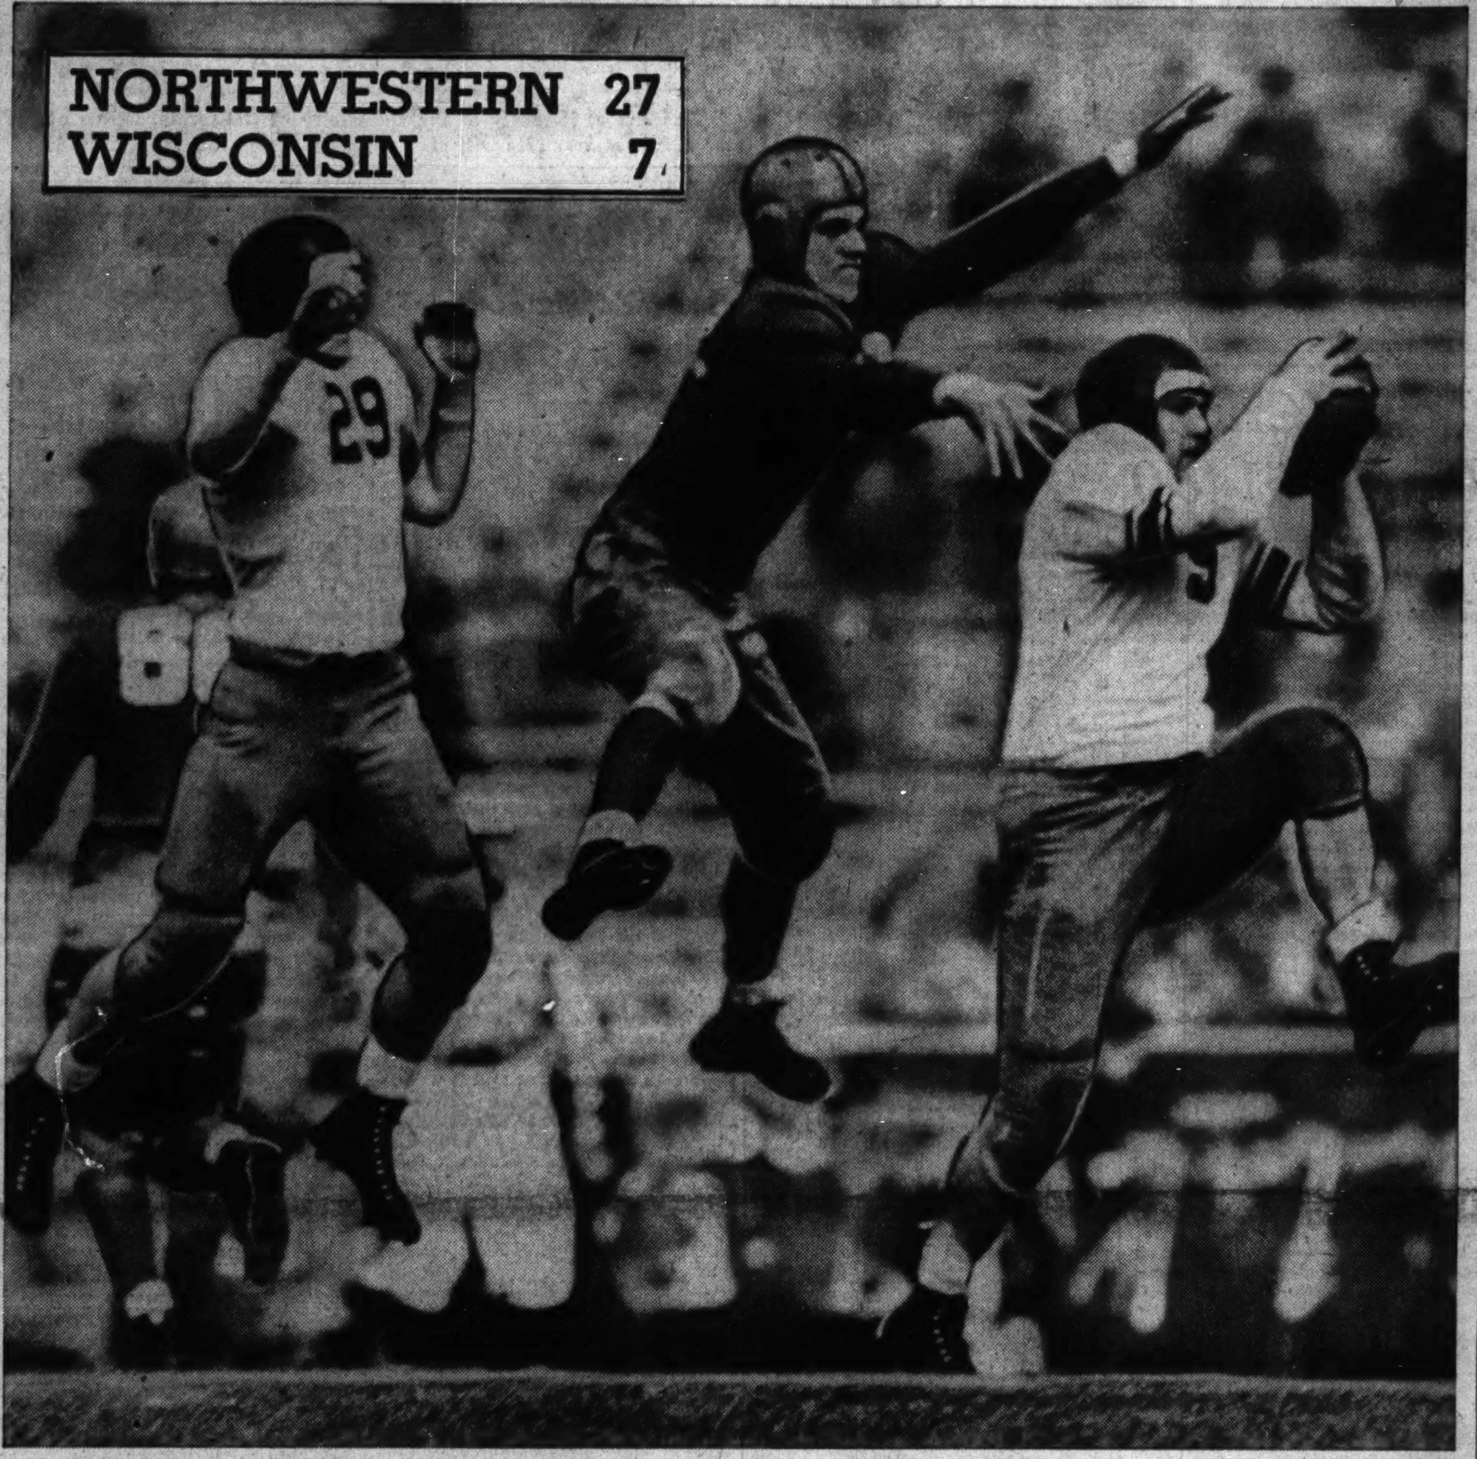
Draft Catches Up with a Star Prep Full Back

Austin, Minn., Oct. 19 (AP).—Austin High school lost its star full back as a result of the draft registration. Superintendent S. T. Neveln disclosed today a youth who played as Dee Morgan had admitted his name was Bruce Houcke and that he was 23 years old after Neveln learned that he had registered for the draft at a nearby town. The superintendent said the youth, who said he was from Bend, Ore., had left town after he was ordered suspended from the team.

TWO SIDES IN A FOOTBALL AFTERNOON



A pass by Mark Hoskins, Wisconsin half back, to End Cliff Philip is intercepted by Joe Lokanc, Northwestern guard, in the second quarter of the game in Madison, Wis., yesterday, while Al Lorenz (No. 66) in background executes his role of decoy and Paul Hiemenz (No. 29) attempts to get in on the play. On the next play Bill De Correvont, Purple half back, passed to Floyd Chambers on the 12 yard line. Chambers crossed the Wisconsin goal line untouched to start the 27 to 7 rout of the Badgers. ANGRY HOOSIERS SCORE EARLY TO WHIP IOWA, 10-6

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 19.—Indiana's Hoosiers, recently traduced by poison pen undergrads and alumni, identified and unidentified, this afternoon made Iowa's erstwhile miracle footballers innocent targets of their undisguised fury. Beside themselves with wrath as they took the field before a near capacity homecoming crowd, the Hoosiers registered 10 points in the first period as their part of the tabulation which vanquished Iowa, 10 to 6.

The victors made their points on a field goal by Gene White and a fifty-six yard touchdown run by 155 pound Red Zimmer, to which White added the final Hoosier point from placement.

Indiana completely outplayed Iowa in the first half, but seemed to sag considerably late in the third period, during which span Iowa, taking the ball on its 20 yard line on an out of bounds punt, then effected a touchdown march which terminated with Burdell Gilleard, junior back, going over on a twenty-six yard dash for Iowa's only points.

Couppee Fools 'Em.

In this eighty yard march Ray Murphy smashed the line for a six yard gain and Gilleard stacked on eight more with another ram. Murphy followed up with another jolting nine yards, then Al Couppee sneaked thru a startled Hoosier ensemble, going twenty-two yards before the Indiana boys discovered who had the ball. Murphy functioned for nine yards on two plays then Gilleard skirted his right end to catch the end of the goal line. Tom Farmer failed to drop kick the extra point.

After the Iowa scoring foray the Hoosiers resumed supremacy, tho they did not get a scoring threat really rolling in the final quarter until they pushed to the 12 yard line shortly before the game ended.

The game, played in a bright warm sunshine, a perfect southern Indiana autumn day, brought the all time standing between Indiana and Iowa to five victories each, with three ties. It was the second defeat for the

Gopher Running Attack Beats Ohio State, 13-7, Before 63,199

BY ARCH WARD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., Oct. 19.—Out of the rain, the chill, and the damp that pervaded Ohio State stadium today, came a great Minnesota football team.

Victorious over Washington and Nebraska in their preliminary games, the Gophers gave a ringing salute to Michigan, Northwestern, and all other Big Nine title contenders, by whipping the Buckeyes, 1939 conference champions, 13 to 7.

Minnesota had only two real scoring opportunities, but it converted both into touchdowns. Ohio State had several chances but clicked only once. Two minutes before the final gun, the Buckeyes, on second down, were only a yard from the Gophers' goal, but they didn't have what it takes in the pinch.

Gophers Stay on Ground.

Minnesota won the game without throwing a forward pass. Possessed of a powerhouse running attack, with George Franck and Bruce Smith freighting the leather, the Gophers struck with devastating force when they got near pay dirt. Minnesota's plays formed more quickly, moved faster, and hit more sharply. While its tackling in midfield frequently was ineffective, Minnesota's defense was adequate when the pressure was on.

A crowd of 63,199 huddled under umbrellas, raincoats, and oil skins, sat thru a drizzling rain to watch the thrill studded contest.

Fumbles Halt Marches.

Aside from its two scoring opportunities, Minnesota never got closer than Ohio State's 25 yard line. Fumbles braked down its attack both times at that point, Ohio State making the recovery on each occasion. In addition to its touchdown, Ohio State was inside Minnesota's 11 yard line four times. It advanced to the 1 foot line in the first quarter and to the 11 yard line and again to the 4 yard mark in the third period. It came within a yard of a touchdown just before the end of the game when Bob Paffrath, the Gophers' quarter back, knocked Ohio's Don Scott out of bounds. A missed signal on the next down cost the Buckeyes twelve yards and a fourth down forward pass was grounded by the same Mr. Paffrath.

The crowd had hardly settled in its seats before Minnesota gave evidence of its scoring punch. Gordon Paschka kicked off to Ohio State's Dick Fisher on the 11 yard line and on the first play Scott quickkicked to Franck on Minnesota's 42. Franck ran back to Ohio's 38.

Mr. Smith Goes to Town.

Franck got three thru his right tackle and Paffrath made it a first down on Ohio's 25, where he was brought down by Scott. Bob Sweiger went over center for four, and Franck, with Paffrath clearing the way, gained a first down on the 11 yard line. Sweiger got a yard at center and on the next play Smith, who was Minnesota's best running back today, faked a pass and ran off his right tackle for a touchdown. Smith's dropkick on the try for point was wide.

PIEPUL AND 66 OTHERS CRUSH CARNEGIE TECH

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 19.—The 1940 model of Notre Dame's touchdown machine propelled by the irresistible Milt Piepul and his two full back understudies was unveiled in all its power, precision and speed before an awed audience of 35,000 this afternoon as the Irish rolled over a hapless Carnegie Tech eleven by a score of 61 to 0. The victory, most decisive in the 18 year series between the two schools, was Notre Dame's third of the season and its 14th in the rivalry with Tech.

The suspicion, engendered by the workmanship of the Irish in their games against College of the Pacific and Georgia Tech, that they comprise the best balanced squad seen here since 1930, became a fact this afternoon as they rolled up nine touchdowns, two each in the first, third and fourth periods and three in the second, sending them to the half time intermission with a 34 to 0 advantage.

Irish Use 67 Men.

Before this scoring parade had stopped, 67 kids wearing Notre Dame uniforms had enjoyed exercise, the first team spending the third quarter on the bench and then adjourning to the showers early in the final period. They were presently followed by the second and third team details. This plethora of talent was called upon because of the obvious inadequacy of the Tartans, who, in addition to absorbing a numerical licking, sustained several setbacks in the form of injuries to valuable hands.

Half Back Joe Pash was removed from the field in an ambulance with chest injuries; George Muha, another back, suffered a bruised shoulder and Left End Joe Betz, acting captain for the day, went out with an ailing knee.

Of course, these be early days in the season for Notre Dame's large constituency to become exuberant about their heroes' ultimate record for the campaign, and the fact can't be overlooked that Carnegie would not have been a match for any one of a score of teams this afternoon. The action today was a matter of con-

TERRIFIC ATTACK NETS 28 TO 0 VICTORY AND REVENGE FOR 1939

Harmon Held to Ten Points; Westfall Sparks Drive.

One year ago the Illini astounded the football world by trouncing the Wolverines and sidetracking them in the Western conference race. Today, Michigan's mighty men smashed Illinois' line for three touchdowns, scored another by passing, and with benefit of a field goal celebrated homecoming with a satisfying 28 to 0 conquest.

Michigan pounded out its revenge the more difficult way. Almost entirely by straight football, the Wolverines hammered to victory. To a great degree the chill drizzle which followed the morning's gale and snow dictated this attack. But to the Michigan partisans in this throng of 39,114 the steady scoring marches based on superior charges were tonic joyously accepted.

It's Michigan All the Way.

At no time could Illinois question Michigan's superiority. The Wolverines took the opening kickoff and smashed seventy yards to the goal in 12 plays. Illinois merely had possession of the ball after the subsequent kickoff for three plays. Then, Michigan drove sixty-nine yards to a second touchdown. This required 9 minutes and 13 plays. Illinois again received Michigan's kickoff. Eight plays later in the second quarter, Michigan had covered sixty-two yards to a third touchdown.

Michigan was elementary in proving its superiority over the Illini. There was, of course, an occasional sweeping run by Tom Harmon or Dave Nelson, each of whom crossed the Illinois goal line once. But, in the main, Michigan crushed the Illinois line from tackle to tackle with superior power, greater ability. Behind the surging wave of Wolverine linemen came Capt. Forest Evashevski to widen the initial gap. Behind him came either Bob Westfall, battering full back, or Harmon.

Westfall and Harmon, in their concealing movements, worked as accurately as the parts of a watch. Harmon either took the ball from Westfall for wider slants or Westfall spun back into the line. Westfall was the

GAMES TODAY.

Washington at Philadelphia.
Brooklyn at Chicago Bears.
Detroit at Green Bay.
Pittsburgh at New York.
Chicago Cardinals at Cleveland.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

The Chicago Bears learn today just how much headway they have made in the last week toward becoming a great football team. They also learn how much of the collegiate magic of Dr. John Bain [Jock] Sutherland has been imparted to the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Beginning at 2:15 o'clock, the Bears meet the Dodgers in a National league game in Wrigley field. It will be the first time a Sutherland coached team, either collegiate or professional, has played in Chicago. The game will share the day's headline honors with the Detroit-Packer contest in Green Bay on a full schedule of five league engagements.

Cardinals at Cleveland.

Other contests bring together unbeaten Washington and the Eagles in Philadelphia, the Pittsburgh Steelers and Giants in New York, and the crippled Chicago Cardinals and the Rams in Cleveland. The Cardinal-Ram game will be a fight for escape from the western division cellar. Cleveland and the Cardinals are tied with one victory and three defeats apiece.

Brooklyn, with only one defeat against it, arrived in Chicago yesterday primed for the big test. The Bears are the first western division opponent to catch up with the Dodgers since Sutherland succeeded Potsy Clark as their coach. Sutherland has aroused pennant hopes in Flatbush as they have never been aroused among Dodger football loyalists.

Brooklyn, and the Dodgers themselves, feel if Sutherland's magic can prevail against the power of the mighty Bears, a berth in the league playoff will merely involve the formality of playing off the remainder of the schedule. The Dodgers long since have quit worrying about Washington, the only team to conquer them so far. They expect to give the Redskins a thoro lacing in Brooklyn on Nov. 10.

A Chance to Take Lead.

The Bears, hoping to get a helping hand from Detroit, see in today's schedule an opportunity to take over first place in the Western division. They enter the day's activity tied with Green Bay. Victory over the Dodgers and a Packer defeat will leave them on top alone.

Coach George Halas decided last night to start Jack Manders at right half back for the first time this season and return Sid Luckman to a starting assignment at quarter back. Joe Maniaci, the old Fordham star who once served a hitch with Brooklyn, also gets his first starting assignment of the year. In the line, George Wilson will replace Hampton Pool at right end, and Bulldog Turner is restored to a starting job after watching Pete Bausch open the Detroit game at center last week. No reason was given for their last minute switches, but it is not likely that they were made to lighten the pressure on Sutherland and his cohorts.

Sutherland can send two excellent back fields into the game, but the one which has been most effective has Ace Packer at tailback; Banks McFadden, the Clemson All-Star half back, at the wing back, and Pug Manders, brother of Chicago's Jack, at full back, with Rhoten Shetley handling the blocking assignment.

Dodgers Are a Good Team.

This unit can pass, run, or hammer away effectively. It has excellent kicking, sufficient size to hold up against a burly opponent like the Bears, and in recent games it has become tricky. It is a good back field, and the Dodgers are a good team, much better than the 3 to 1 odds on the Bears would indicate.

Green Bay, playing its last home game of the season, catches the Lions after a hard game against the Bears and at a time when the Packers themselves appear to be regaining some of the finesse and eagerness that lifted them to a one sided triumph over the All-Stars. Joe Laws will be missing from the Packer lineup, but the Packers do not expect to have him again this season. They do have their two passers, Cecil Isbell and Arnie Herber, tho, and they also have their pass receivers, Carl Mulleneaux and Don Hutson. This quartet, plus a line that can stop Lloyd Cardwell's reverses if it will, makes the Packers the favorites.

The Cardinals, of course, are crippled from their riotous invasion of Washington last week, but then this is not their week to cause any consternation anyway. Coach Jimmy Conzelman's personnel is so inexperienced and small that it takes him two weeks to get it in condition, mentally and physically, for those story book efforts, such as the Washington and Bear games.

Cleveland, beaten by Green Bay and the Bears in its last two starts, has an edge in this game, but unless it is better organized today than it has been, the Cardinals may cause considerable trouble. The Cardinals at least will be trying to play good football and will be trying for all they are worth.

Lee Artoe, formerly of the University of California, is one of the star Bear rookies. He will play at tackle against the Dodgers today.

trast. Notre Dame had everything. Carnegie Tech had only spirit, which hardly sufficed against the relentless surge of the Irish offense, and certainly made no divots in a defense that permitted them to go into Notre Dame territory only once, and that after the first two teams had retired.

Irish Look Powerful.

Forgetting the result, Notre Dame today appeared to be a team well fitted to cope with any other in the land. Certainly, if they pursue their behavior of this afternoon, they should be up to their ensuing assignments against Illinois, Army, Navy, Iowa, Northwestern, and Southern California. There was an elan, an awareness of their ability, that seldom has distinguished Irish teams in recent years. Their tackling has improved immeasurably over the opener against College of the Pacific. The forwards blocked perfectly for the ball carriers, especially on the numerous reverses they used.

It was a field day for full backs. Capt. Piepul, who will never have to take a back seat for such rivals as John Kimborough, Don Clawson or Jim Langhurst, again proved his versatility in his time of duty. The "Moose" scored two touchdowns and converted three extra point efforts. The second team full back, Bernie Crimmins, also had a scoring holiday, making three touchdowns. Al Lee of the third string cast made it seven out of nine trips across the goal for the full back department with two scores, and also added two points after same.

Johnny O'Brien, senior right end, touched off the scoring by blocking a Carnegie punt and continuing therefrom for the first touchdown. The ninth touchdown was arranged by the first team half backs, Steve Juzwik and Bob Saggau, the former fielding Saggau's first quarter pass to make the second touchdown of the day.

Score on Blocked Punt.

It was fourth down and six to go for Carnegie Tech in the fifth minute of the game, when O'Brien charged thru to block Jordano's punt. Johnny scooped it up on the Tartans' 26 yard line and scored with little interruption. The second back field had started the game with the first string line, but with about six minutes of the period remaining, the varsity foursome of Piepul, Saggau, Juzwik, and Bob Hargrave appeared. They promptly introduced themselves on the first play with the Saggau-Juzwik pass, the shifty Chicagoan making a neat running catch of the thirty-three yard pitch on the Tech 5 yard line and then twisting his way across.

But before the quarter was over, the Piepul public began its now familiar chant of "Moose! Moose! Moose!" and the Irish captain responded. After Hargrave had returned a Carnegie punt fourteen yards to the Tartan 44 yard line, Milt clipped off thirteen yards, then five. Saggau delivered a first down on the Tech 20 yard mark.

Saggau, who played a right neat game, but thrice betrayed his old inability to cut in, was stopped at his right end, and a pass from him to Juzwik went for no gain. The ubiquitous Piepul then contributed his bit, this time fifteen yards. He teamed with Saggau to bring it to the 1 yard stripe, and here again Piepul delivered. The pass from center was low, no more than a foot above the ground, but Milt made a shoestring catch and hammered over for the touchdown.

Piepul Scores Again.

In the second quarter, Juzwik recovered a Tech fumble on the Carnegie 18 yard line. Piepul, on a neat reverse from Saggau, picked up nine yards and Saggau made it a first down on the 7 yard mark. Piepul then drove over his left tackle for the touchdown. Thru all of this progress, the Notre Dame line functioned superbly, particularly tackles Tom Gallagher and Paul Lillis and Guard Bob Maddock, who replaced Pete Kelly when the latter was injured.

At this point, the first team was excused and Crimminns and company appeared. In the final minute of the half, Crimmins dashed up to intercept Tartan Bill Johnson's pass and kept on going for the first of his three touchdowns. In the third quarter John McHale, Detroit sophomore center, detained another Tech pass and proceeded to the Carnegie 13 yard line before he was downed.

Crimmins then fired a pass to Right End John Kovatch, good for nine yards. Dippy Evans, the sophomore half back whose fleetness has made him a first team contender, got a yard and then Crimmins scored again.

Evans Runs 21 Yards.

Evans and Crimmins collaborated shortly after, Dippy coming thru with a nimble twenty-one yards at his own left end and tossing a fourteen yard pass to Phil Sheridan. On a first down reverse from Evans, Crimmins dashed ten yards for his third touchdown, and the second team vanished, Lee signalizing the entrance of the third eleven by kicking the extra point to make the score 48 to 0.

Lee, who hails from Carlinville, Ill., and hense will be in home country next week at the Illinois game, made the two final touchdowns. Two half backs named William Earley and Bill McGannon contributed able assistance to the full back in these performances. It was a reverse from McGannon that sent Al bouncing twenty-six yards to the Tech goal line. Earley romped for twenty-two and eight yards in the course of the construction of the second Lee score, the latter finally going over from the 1 yard line.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 19 (AP).—Boston college trampled Idaho, 60 to 0, today, puzzling the invaders with a smooth mixture of power and deception before a crowd of 10,000. The Eagles piled up their points in the first three periods and kept Idaho thoroly bottled up until the closing minutes when the Vandals penetrated to the Eagle 13 as the game ended.

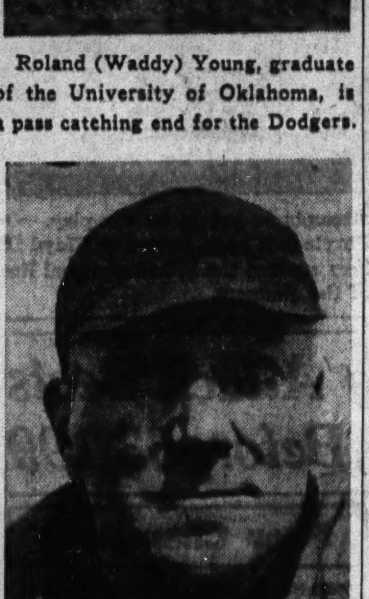
Joe Engel May Return to Senators as Scout

Chattanooga, Tenn., Oct. 19 (AP).—Joe Engel, president of the Chattanooga baseball club, hinted today he was considering an offer to return to the Washington Senators as a scout. "There might be something to it," asserted Engel, "but I can't say anything—yet."

Ripon and Beloit Tie in Midwest Conference, 0-0

Ripon, Wis., Oct. 10 [Special].—Ripon and Beloit fought to a scoreless tie in a Midwest conference game here today. Neither team could penetrate its opponent's 20 yard line. Ripon gained three first downs; Beloit seven.

Roland (Waddy) Young, graduate of the University of Oklahoma, is a pass catching end for the Dodgers.



Jock Sutherland, who gained fame as a college coach in the golden era of Pittsburgh's Panthers, is learning things, and also teaching a few, in his first season in the pro ranks.

MIDGET RACING ENDS TODAY WITH TITLE AT STAKE

Final competition for the 1940 midget auto racing title will feature the closing program of the season this afternoon at Raceway Park, 129th street and Ashland avenue. Wally Zale leads Ted Duncan by two points in the standings. Third on the list is Tony Bettenhausen, 12 points behind Zale.

In addition to the final for the class A title, the deciding contest for the class B championship is also on the card. Leading in points for second division honors are Lou Scally, Ed Slamp, Bernie Schechter, Milt Coyer, Tom Allen, Tony Bruzas, and Red Kimble.

Gehringer, Tebbetts Sail on Cruise to West Indies

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—Charlie Gehringer, second baseman, and George [Birdie] Tebbetts, catcher on the Detroit Tigers baseball team, sailed today on the liner America for a 12 day cruise to the West Indies.

Creighton Ties Marquette on Pass, 27 to 27

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 19 [Special].—Marquette university and Creighton university, rivals for 30 years, fought to a 27 to 27 standstill before 9,000 fans at the Creighton homecoming today. Marquette once had a 27 to 13 lead, but Creighton battled back to score two late touchdowns and earn a tie, the third in 23 games in this series.

After missing one scoring opportunity after a blocked punt early in the game, Marquette tallied as the gun went off to mark the end of the first half. Jimmy Richardson returned a Creighton punt twenty-four yards to the Bluejays' 25 yard line and, after a thirteen yard loss, passed to Dick Roche for a first down on the 15. With eight seconds left, Richardson tossed a pass to Game Capt. Bob Sleske who took it on the 2 and stepped into the end zone. Bob Kemnitz added the extra point.

Rank Intercepts Pass.

Two long passes from Johnny Knolla to Don Fleming carried Creighton to a touchdown early in the third quarter and Tackle John Krejci's conversion tied it up. The Bluejays shortly thereafter tried a pass from their own 21 yard line, and it was intercepted by Bob Rank, Marquette full back, who went to the Creighton 11 yard line. Richardson scored on two running plays and Kemnitz added the kick.

Before the end of the quarter, Richardson tossed a twenty-eight yard pass to End Don Vosberg, who took it in the end zone and scored. Kemnitz missed on his attempted conversion, and the score stood 20 to 7 in Marquette's favor.

A bad Marquette punt put Creighton in position as the fourth quarter opened, and Knolla soon scored from the 8 yard line, but Krejci's attempted conversion missed. The Hilltoppers immediately added another touchdown, as Richardson passed forty-four yards to Vosberg who went the remaining twenty-five yards to score. Kemnitz converted.

Tied in Last 2 Minutes.

Gene Ziesel of Creighton returned the ensuing kickoff to Marquette's 17, and a pass from Knolla to Ziesel made a first down on the 1, from where Full Back Al Truscott crashed over. Krejci added the extra point to narrow the score to 27 to 20.

Two minutes before the end of the game, Knolla passed from his own 35 yard line to Ziesel, who took the ball on Marquette's 34 yard line and went the rest of the way. Krejci's added point made it a tie game.

On the final play Richardson of Marquette passed to Vosberg in the end zone, but Knolla intercepted it and ran to midfield before being downed. Lineups:

DUQUESNE LOSES TO MISSISSIPPI'S H-BOYS, 14 TO 6

Oxford, Miss., Oct. 19 (AP).—Mississippi's H-boys, Hovious and Hapes, turned back Duquesne, 14 to 6, before a homecoming crowd of 10,000 today. It was Duquesne's first defeat in 14 games.

In the third quarter Junie Hovious passed from his own 40 yard line to Eubanks, who tore to the left and went out of bounds on Duquesne's 17. It was Merle Hapes on the next play, around right end for the touchdown. Hovious kicked the extra point.

Dukes Come Back.

Duquesne took only three plays to come back, Gonda running the kickoff from his own 10 yard line to the Rebel 46, a line drive picking up two yards, and Chadonic swinging wide on a fake reverse to cross the goal line standing up. Rokisky's kick failed.

Hovious' touchdown came late in the final period when he grabbed a forty-five yard pass from Hapes, right under the noses of two Duquesne backs who had stepped over the goal with him. Hovious' kick was again good. Lineup:

THRICE BEATEN TULANE UPSETS RICE OWLS, 15-6

New Orleans, La., Oct. 19 (AP).—Thrice beaten Tulane finally found the combination today in a ragged but thrilling exhibition of power, fumbles, and penalties to defeat the hitherto unscored-on Rice Owls, 15 to 6, before 34,000 spectators.

James Thibaut put the green wave into the lead, 9 to 6, in the final seconds of the second quarter with a slanting twenty-seven yard field goal from placement. Cheered by being ahead for the first time since the Sugar Bowl game last season, Tulane went to pick up another touchdown in the third period.

A Tulane fumble gave Rice its only touchdown. Lou Thomas dropped the ball and Marvin Dewoody scooped it up on Tulane's 24, from where Joe Price reeled off fourteen, and Bob Brumley lugged it on across in three tries.

Tulane's first score came after Thibaut's twenty yard pass to Albert Bodney to Rice's 30. Power drives took it to Rice's 9. A new Rice team took over, but fleet Harry Hays of San Angelo, Tex., skirted right end for the touchdown.

CORNELL HANDS COE A SURPRISE DEFEAT, 19 TO 7

Coe's single score came in the second quarter on a seventy yard sustained drive, but Cornell retaliated when Tornquist, midget back, broke thru for a touchdown from the 30 yard line. The point try was wide.

Cornell marched ninety yards for its second touchdown in the third quarter, but again the try for point failed. In the final period, Roberts intercepted a pass and two plays later ran thirty years for a touchdown, then place kicked the extra point.

ST. LOUIS LOSES TO OKLAHOMA AGGIES, 53-12

Stillwater, Okla., Oct. 19 (AP).—The Oklahoma Aggies, playing an inspired offensive game, defeated Washington university of St. Louis, 53 to 12 in a Missouri valley conference football game before 7,000 sweltering fans today.

It was the first Aggie victory over the Bears since 1930 and was accomplished with most of the Cowboy first string on the sidelines most of the game.

Huskers Start Title Bid; Rout Jayhawks, 53-2

Lawrence, Kas., Oct. 19 (AP).—Nebraska crushed Kansas today, 53 to 2, and maintained a record of not having lost on the Jayhawks' football field in 44 years.

Altho Nebraska's best back, Herman Rohrig, was on the bench with an arm injury, all doubt as to the ultimate victor faded after the first eight minutes. Kansas invaded Nebraska territory only once under its own power, and that late in the final period after the Nebraska bench had been swept of substitutes.

Only once did a pass aid the Husker ground machine in the manufacture of a touchdown. Wayne Blue, a substitute full back, battered his way to a trio of touchdowns in the rout that signalized the Nebraskan's opening bid for the Big 6 conference title. Line-ups:

NEBRASKA [52].		KANSAS [2].
Preston	L. E.	Ulrich
Muskin	L. T.	Holloway
Schwartzkopf	L. G.	Massare
Meier	C	Pierce
Alfson	R. G.	J. Kern

OKLAHOMA WINS, 14-0.

Norman, Okla., Oct. 19 (AP).—Striking once by land and once by air, Oklahoma defeated Kansas State today, 14 to 0, to open their bid for the Big Six conference title before 18,000.

Jack Jacobs led both the Sooners' scoring drives, heaving a 20 yard touchdown pass in the second period and running forty yards at the start of an eighty-three yard march in the final quarter.

After a see-saw first period, in which the Wildcats played the Sooners on even terms, the Kansans never had a chance, seldom getting close to enemy territory.

Shifting into high after getting the wind to their backs in the second quarter, the Sooners drove sixty-two yards, most of the way by air, and tallied when Louis Sharpe snared a fifteen yard pass from Jacobs and trotted the remaining five yards.

MISSOURI, 30; IOWA STATE, 14.

Columbia, Mo., Oct. 19 (AP).—Harry Ice, 165 pound Missouri sophomore, belied his surname today and melted Iowa State's Cyclones by burning a beaten path to the goal line. He scored three touchdowns, one on a fifty-one yard run, leading Missouri to a 30 to 14 victory before 12,000.

Ice started at quarter back in place of Paul Christman, but when the latter finally did appear in the line-up, the Tigers surpressed their famed passing attack except for a brief period when Christman passed to Ice for a touchdown.

Altho Ice was the day's star—he averaged 12 yards every time he carried the ball—it remained for Don Greenwood, a substitute end, to make the longest run. He intercepted a lateral pass and scampered seventy-three yards for a touchdown.

The Tigers made only nine first downs to Iowa State's 15, but gained 201 yards to the Cyclones' 115 from rushing.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 19 (AP).—Playing in the first snowstorm of the season before a shivering crowd of 40,000, Fordham's unbeaten Rams converted blocked kicks and a fumble into touchdowns today to defeat Pitt, 24 to 12, for their third consecutive triumph.

Held to a 6 to 6 deadlock in the opening period, Fordham capitalized on breaks in the second to count three times.

Fordham completely dominated the game, gaining nine first downs to Pitt's five, and amassing 245 yards on running plays while holding Pitt to 119.

Pitt jumped into the lead with a 65 yard touchdown drive after the opening kickoff, Edgar Jones galloping over from the 34 yard line. Jim Blumenstock tied the score a few minutes later with the longest run of the game, a 49 yard dash down the sidelines.

Back on his 30 to punt on fourth down early in the second, Pitt's Bobby Thurbon saw the ball sail over his head to the 4, where recovered it. But Fordham took the ball on downs and Len Eshmont went over on the first play.

Less than two minutes later Thurbon's punt was blocked by John Kuzman, Fordham tackle, on the Pitt 9, and Alexander Santilli recovered for Fordham on the 3. Sophomore Steve Filipowicz plunged over for a touchdown. Kuzman set up the third Ram marker of the period by recovering George Kracum's fumble on the Pitt 33. Eshmont lugged the ball the last fourteen yards.

Ernest Bonelli's twenty-six yard sprint put Pitt in position for its final counter, and Jones skirted end for eighteen and the touchdown.

JUNIOR TENNIS CHAMPION DIES IN CAR MISHAP

San Diego, Cal., Oct. 19 (AP).—Robert Carrothers, 18 years old, winner of the national junior tennis title for 1940, is dead of injuries suffered in an automobile accident. A blowout overturned the car in which he was riding last night. Warren Beman, riding in the rumble seat with Carrothers, suffered a fractured leg and internal injuries. John Ross, 18 years old, Los Angeles, driver, and Dever Dutton, 19, Riverside, riding in the front seat, were injured slightly.

CORNELL SWEEPS ONWARD; WHIPS SYRACUSE, 33-6

It's Dress Rehearsal for Ohio State Game.

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 19 (AP).—Cornell, growing more powerful and deceptive each week, rolled over Syracuse today, 33 to 6, despite everything Coach Carl Snavely could do toward holding the score in bounds.

As a full dress rehearsal for Cornell's tussle here with Ohio State next Saturday, it was an impressive show for 18,000 shivering fans. Four of Cornell's touchdowns were scored on passes, three of them from long range. Bill Murphy ran forty-four yards for the other, in the first three minutes of play.

Schmidt's Leg Broken.

Hal McCullough's passing, the deft ball handling of his receivers, and the running of Mort Landsberg, 170 pound full back, all combined to synchronize the winner's attack.

Eugene Schmidt, substitute Syracuse center, suffered a broken leg in a pileup during the final period.

Cornell, using a great deal of razzle-dazzle, piled up two hundred and twenty-six yards by rushing, with about a dozen backs contributing. The Big Red completed 15 out of 24 passes attempted for another three hundred and ten yards. Cornell made 17 first downs to nine for Syracuse.

Syracuse Marched Sixty-eight Yards.

Syracuse marched sixty-eight yards for its touchdown early in the second quarter. Dick Banger passed eleven yards to Les Dye for the score. Landsberg then ran fifty-three yards down the sideline after taking a shovel pass from McCullough, giving Cornell a 13 to 6 half time lead.

Two more touchdowns in the third period settled the issue. McCullough passed thirty-nine yards to Jim Schmuck, left end, who caught the ball on the goal line for the third score. The fourth was a short toss over the scrimmage line to Lou Bufalino, ending a fifty yard drive.

Scholl passed thirty yards to Ruddy for the final score early in the closing period. Lineups:

SYRACUSE [6].		CORNELL [33].
McPhail	L. E.	Schmuck
Kinney	L. T.	Blasko
Fellows	L. G.	Dunbar
Beehner	C	Finneran
Weber	R. G.	Conti

Hunters Find Game Birds in Places Galore

BY BOB BECKER.

It wouldn't be surprising if hunters in the middlewest were a little confused about where to go hunting this week-end. The trouble is there are so many kinds of hunting available, and so many places to go, that sportsmen may not find it easy to make a selection.

Probably No. 1 choice on the list for fun with a shotgun is duck hunting. Thousands of Illinois hunters will be in the Illinois valley this week-end, the first of the 1940 season. Our survey of Illinois places, where day shooters may obtain hunting privileges, decoys, and a blind for a fee, shows that there are many spots of this type along the Illinois. On our list are locations near the upper river towns of Hennepin, Putnam, Henry, Sparland and Lacon. The dams are maintaining a good level of water in this part of the Illinois river, which is an asset to duck hunting.

Goose Blinds Farther South.

Farther down the river we have found day shooting places [most of them charging about $10 per day for everything] near Sheldons Grove, Beardstown, Rushville, and Bath. It's a little early for goose hunting, but our survey shows that the hunting lodges which have been operating on a daily fee basis for years around Miller City, Olive Branch and Cairo, again are doing business and taking reservations. These lodges charge $10 per day for a goose pit blind and room and board.

But duck hunting at this season of the year is by no means the only sport which may be enjoyed by the boys who like to shoot shotguns at game birds. The big crop of pheasants in South Dakota offers a swell chance for a short hunting trip on upland game before the duck and goose hunting gets into high gear in the middle west.

We have hunted around Huron, S. D., and can recommend that town as a base for some of the best ringneck hunting to be found anywhere in the northwest. There are countless flocks of pheasants around Huron that will give any one an unforgettable whirl at the smart ringnecks. And there also is a chance to pick up some ducks on the trip.

Weather Is a Factor.

The boys out there told us that the last two weeks of October bring a flight into South Dakota, altho, naturally, excellence of duck shooting out there or anywhere depends on the weather. If a hunter is lucky enough to pick a period when it storms and blows, the birds move to the small ponds and sloughs and the sport is top notch.

This week-end marks the opening of the partridge [ruffed grouse] season in Wisconsin, so here is another possibility for a trip to get an entirely different type of upland game shooting. The season opened yesterday and will continue for several weeks in Wisconsin. And the pheasant preserves in Wisconsin also swung open their gates and welcomed shooters yesterday afternoon. On these preserves [the two best known to midwest sportsmen are located near Evansville and Janesville], hunters may shoot pheasants over dogs by paying for each bird shot.

Tech Converts 2 Breaks, Scores on Interception.

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 19 [Special].—Bradley capitalized on superior punting and a pass interception to defeat the Mt. Pleasant Teachers of Michigan, 19 to 0, before a large homecoming gathering today.

The Braves counted in the first and third periods after Bearcat punts had skidded out of bounds on the Mt. Pleasant 32, and Acting Capt. Marion Asa streaked fifty yards with a pass interception for a second period tally. Bradley was outgained ,11 to 5, in first downs and 229 to 94 in total yards from scrimmage. The Bearcats were weak after they reached the Tech 20 yard line. Lineup:

NORMAL, 30; CHARLESTON, 12.

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 19 [Special].—Illinois State Normal scored a 30 to 12 conquest over Charleston Teachers today in a Little Nineteen conference homecoming battle.

Normal was bothered thruout by the passing of Bill Glenn, who accounted for 158 yards by completing 11 of 14 attempts. Charleston, however, couldn't stop the Redbird running attack which functioned for touchdowns in each quarter. Normal led, 12 to 6, at the half. Lineup:

CARBONDALE, MACOMB TIE.

Macomb, Ill., Oct. 19 [Special].—Macomb Teachers and Carbondale Teachers opened their Little Nineteen conference campaign by battling to a 6 to 6 tie at Macomb's homecoming today.

Macomb started the scoring with a short pass over the line from Lewis to Robinson, who carried the ball over. In the second quarter Crawshaw of Southern tossed a fifteen yard pass to English, who ran fifty yards for a touchdown.

With but thirty seconds remaining, English of Carbondale intercepted a pass on Macomb's 7 yard line. The game ended with the ball on Macomb's 3 yard line in Carbondale's possession.

MILLIKIN BEATS KNOX, 14-6; ENDS VICTORY FAMINE

Decatur, Ill., Oct. 19 [Special].—Millikin university ended its long Illinois college conference victory famine today by defeating Knox college, 14 to 6, before a homecoming crowd of 3,000. Millikin's last conference triumph came late in the 1936 season.

Ed Dahm's forty-three yard pass to Roger Merker in the third quarter, which took the ball to Knox's 4 yard line, set the stage for Millikin's first touchdown. Virgil Wagner then went off tackle for the score.

Later in the quarter, Dahm passed to Jack Hagarty and a few plays later Wagner again plunged over. Roberts scored for Knox in the fourth quarter from the 4 yard line. Lineups:

MILLIKIN [14].		KNOX [6].

DUBUQUE BEATS UPPER IOWA, 20-6, RETAINS LEAD

Dubuque, Ia., Oct. 19 [Special].—The University of Dubuque scored three touchdowns in the first quarter and defeated Upper Iowa, 20 to 6, to continue as undefeated leader of the Iowa conference today.

Before a large homecoming crowd, the Spartans scored their first touchdown on the first play of the game started when Rickerts fell on a loose ball behind the visitors' goal.

Bob Sellergreen of Oak Park, Ill., who scored two touchdowns, suffered a dislocated shoulder in the third quarter.

Carry Tackle Off Field; It's Just Acute Appendicitis

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 19 (AP).—Dan Snyder, 195 pound tackle of the George Washington university football team ,collapsed in the game with Kentucky today and was taken to a hospital, where attaches said he apparently had suffered an acute attack of appendicitis. Snyder was carried from the gridiron two minutes before the end of the game, which Kentucky won, 24 to 0.

IOWA 6
ANDERSON
HAWKINS

Joe Tofil, Indiana back, is about to be brought downb y Max Hawkins, Iowa guard, in second quarter of yesterday's battle in Bloomington, Ind. Red Zimmer made the deciding touchdown on a 56 yard run in the first period. The Hoosiers, twice beaten in pre-conference games, scored an amazing upset in their 10 to 6 triumph.

Hoosiers Score Twice in First Period; Upset Hawkeyes ,10-6

Hawkeyes under the present coaching régime, last year's miracle iron men having also lost their third match, to Michigan, 27 to 7, after having grabbed a 32 to 29 victory from Indiana—despite the fact the Hoosiers had led, 29 to 20, late in the final period.

They Do Some Passing.

The aerial circus promises were kept to a considerable extent by Indiana but not by Iowa. The Hoosiers tried 12 forward passes and completed seven. Iowa tried nine and completed seven. The Indiana tosses netted ninety-seven yards and the first pass tried and completed by Indiana, Hal Hursh to Archie Harris for twenty-one yards, set up the first scoring of the game, that field goal. Indiana intercepted two passes, Iowa none.

Indiana topped the Hawks in first downs, 12 to 7, but the teams tied in first downs from rushing with seven each. Yards from rushing were pretty much of a standoff, with the Iowa boys accounting for 162 yards to 152 for Indiana, tho Indiana in the first half outrushed the Iowans, 134 yards to 57.

Leading ground gainers from scrimmage for the Hoosiers were Zimmer with 60 yards and Dale Swihart with 52 yards. Full Back Murphy was the workhorse of the afternoon and made 73 yards on 19 tries. Runnerup to Murphy was Gilleard, with 38 yards.

White Boots One.

The first scoring of the game was accomplished in the ninth minute of the first period when Gene White booted over that field goal from the 18 yard line. The points came shortly after Hursh had fumbled and Mike Enich had recovered on Iowa's 10 yard line. Iowa punted on first down to its own 41, then Hursh broke thru for a first down on Iowa's 28. Indiana again fumbled but recovered with a loss of thirteen yards to Iowa's 41. Then a pass, Hursh to Harris was good for twenty-one yards and first down on Iowa's 10. Ray Dumke failed in two cracks at the line and a pass was incomplete, whereupon Gene White kicked the field goal.

The Hoosiers added their touchdown and conversion with 1 minute and 42 seconds to go in the first period. After Iowa had punted out of bounds on Indiana's 44 yard line, Zimmer replaced Swihart at quarter for Indiana and on the first play the tiny redhead wiggled thru the mass of Hawkeyes without bothering to straight arm or bump an adversary. He ran the last thirty-five yards of his fifty-six yard touchdown sprint strictly solo. Gene White added the point from placement.

Hoosiers Pile 'em Up.

The second period was scoreless but accorded the Hoosiers a chance show some emergency defensive strength. Farmer punted to Swihart who received on his 5 yard line but fumbled when hit and Hawkins recovered for Iowa on Indiana's 18. Indiana then refused to yield more than six yards on four downs and took the ball on its 12 whence Tofil made twelve yards on a fake punt formation to safety. A punt on fourth down pushed the Hawkeyes back out of sight of the Hoosier goal. The half ended seconds after McGuire punted to Green who fumbled, Rucinski recovering for Indiana.

Then came the 80 yard flight of the Hawks late in the third period to round out the scoring.

TENNESSEE WINS, DEALS ALABAMA FIRST LOSS, 27-12

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 19 (AP).—Little Johnny Butler sparked Tennessee to a 27 to 12 victory over fighting Alabama today. The 160 pound mite slashed off right tackle early in the second period and raced sixty-eight yards up the sideline to Alabama's 11 yard mark. Then he shot a flat pass to End Al Hust for the tally. Fred Newman, substitute wing back, kicked the point.

Barely a dozen plays later, Butler snatched an Alabama punt on 'Bama's 49 and raced under convoy to score standing up. Newman again converted. Butler's play erased a six point advantage earned earlier in the period by the Crimson tide when Quarter Back Jimmy Nelson tore thru the Tennesse line on a spinner for fourteen yards and a touchdown.

A crowd of 24,531 saw Alabama suffer its first defeat of the year, and Tennesse yield its first touchdowns against a Southeastern conference foe since L. S. U. punched over a lone tally in 1938.

Alabama, led by Nelson and two sophomores, Dave Brown and Russ Craft, refused to concede Tennessee a yard unearned. Early in the second half, Brown scooped up a punt by Butler on his own 43 and roared up the sideline for a second 'Bama touchdown.

In the closing periods, the Volunteer's blocking and protection of kickers led to their scoring twice. Little Buist Warren twice whipped passes to Mike Balitsaris for touchdowns, the first time at the conclusion of a sixty yard march, and again to wind up a twenty-six yard drive that was made possible by a weak Alabama punt.

HIGH SCHOOLS FORM BOWLING CLUB COUNCIL

Organization of the Chicago High School Bowling Club council, an organization made up of representatives, mostly secretaries, of the 85 leagues in high schools, took place yesterday at the Stevens hotel. The council will discuss and clear all business arising in the operation. It will work under the direction of Milton S. Raymer, executive secretary of the Chicago High School Bowling club.

Charles Ephriam of Harper High, was elected president; Dorothy Kovick of Von Steuben, vice president; Audrey Olson, Amundsen, secretary, and William Townsley, South Shore, treasurer. Committees were appointed which will report back at the next meeting, Nov. 2.

NAVY WINS 4TH IN ROW; PASSES BEAT DRAKE, 19-0

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 19 (AP).—Navy's air-minded football team defeated Drake university in the rain today, 19 to 0, to register its fourth consecutive triumph before 22,000.

Bill Busik, altho he didn't score a point, led a first period offensive deep into Drake territory and the reserves quickly shoved across a touchdown when they took over for the second period. Howie Clark tossed a short pass to Bud Boyer in the end zone. Hurt replaced Boyer and kicked for seventh point.

The reserves scored again before the largest crowd of the year hardly had sat down. Gene Flathmann dove over the goal to cover a fumble by Walter O'Connor, Drake half back, and score his first points as a varsity tackle.

The final touchdown, also scored by the reserves, came in the opening minutes of the fourth quarter with Sammy Boothe, southpaw passer, dropping back to toss sixteen yards into the hands of Clark on the goal line. Lineups:

HARVARD, 6; ARMY, 6

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 19 (AP).—An aroused Harvard football team, inspired to great deeds just a few seconds too late, wound up on Army's 6 yard line at the final whistle here today, but had to be satisfied with a 6 to 6 tie before 30,000.

Harvard faltered and frittered away all of its early opportunities, but after Henry Mazur, Lowell, Mass., sophomore, raced forty yards for Army's touchdown in the third period, the Crimson sprang to action.

Mazur, back to pass and apparently trapped, escaped his pursuers and reversed the field to give the Cadets a 6 to 0 lead.

In the fourth period Harvard was stopped on downs at the 24 yard line. Then Burgy Ayres, substitute Harvard center, intercepted a lateral pass Thereupon Spreyer resumed his passing and his third consecutive completion, from the 8 yard line, set up MacKinney's tying touchdown. Spreyer's place kicking effort for the seventh point was wide.

Less than a minute remained when Spreyer moved Harvard from its 35 to Army's 1 yard line by contacting Koufman and MacKinney with forty-five and eighteen yard heaves. The Crimson tried to beat the clock by drawing a penalty for an extra time out, but alert Cadets batted down his final pass.

COLUMBIA USES PASSES TO BEAT GEORGIA, 19 to 13

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—Columbia defeated the University of Georgia with passes today, 19 to 13, before 23,000. The winning touchdown was scored in the final period on a forty yard forward-lateral pass from Paul Governali to Len Will to Phil Bayer.

Texas A. and M. Swamps Texas Christian, 21 to 7

College Station, Tex., Oct. 19 (AP).—Unbeaten Texas A. & M. swamped Texas Christian, 21 to 7, today with a forgotten man who rumbled in from an inglorious blocking back position to ground gaining genius. Quiet Jim Thomason, little publicized but perhaps the finest blocker and line backer in Southwest conference history, shocked the Christians with long runs and scored twice.

ity with a fifty-five yard sprint that culminated on Minnesota's 22 yard line, where Charles Ringer, Gopher end, caught him from behind. Scott, whose kicking, passing, and running gave Buckeye partisans something to cheer about, took out two Minnesota tacklers on Fisher's run.

Winners Stand Firm.

Langhurst cracked thru his left tackle for eleven yards. Fisher gained a first down on the 9 yard line. Here it was that Minnesota made its first great defensive stand. Langhurst slipped off his left tackle for four yards and hit the same spot for one more. Fisher got two off his right tackle, making it fourth down and a yard to go. Scott rammed thru the middle of the line, but when the pile of tacklers was unscrambled the ball was about a foot from the goal. Franck punted out of bounds on Minnesota's 31 yard line.

The Buckeyes could make no headway but got another chance to cash in when Claude White recovered Joe Mernik's fumble on Minnesota's 19 yard line. It looked as if they again would toss away the break after two plunges and an incomplete pass netted exactly nothing. On fourth down, Scott whipped a pass to Charley Anderson, Ohio's colored end, who caught the ball on the 10 yard line and raced the remaining distance to the goal. Scott's placekick, with Langhurst holding the ball, was good and Ohio State led, 7 to 6.

Ohio's lead lasted only a couple of minutes. Franck carried back Maag's kickoff thirty yards to his 32 yard line. Smith broke thru the Buckeye line, dodged the secondary, and raced to the Buckeye's 47 before Scott overhauled him. Franck, deploying behind a line that was outcharging Ohio's decisively at this stage, picked up nine yards off his right tackle. Smith got a first down on Ohio's 33 yard line. The irrepressible Mr. Smith then hiked to Ohio's 13 before Scott and Stephenson brought him down. Smith shot straight thru center for eight and repeated for a first down on the 3 yard line. Scott again made the tackle. On the next play Smith, who, you must know by this time, is quite a ball carrier, went off his right tackle for his second touchdown. Paschka's place kick, with Franck holding the ball, was good and Minnesota had regained the lead, 13 to 7.

Take Lead in Series.

Today's victory gave Minnesota a lead in the series. Ohio State previously had won twice, Minnesota twice, and there was one tie. As additional evidence of the parity of football competition between these two great universities, Minnesota has scored a total of 64 points to Ohio State's 61. The statistics of today's game:

IOWA TEACHERS WIN, 20-19, FROM WESTERN STATE

Kalamazoo, Mich., Oct. 19 [Special].—Iowa Teachers defeated Western State Teachers today, 20 to 19. Long runs featured, with Claude Santee, Iowa's quarter back, speeding seventy-six yards from scrimmage and again forty-one yards on a lateral pass, both for touchdowns. The third one came when Cy Bellock blocked Bob Metzger's punt and fell on it behind the goal line.

A twenty-nine yard pass, Art Macioszczyzk to Jack Matheson, put the ball on the Iowans' 3 yard line in the second period and Macioszczyzk crashed over. In the third period a 55 yard pass, Macioszyczk to Matheson, was good for a score. In the last quarter Horace Coleman, sophomore half, raced eighty-four yards on a kickoff return for a touchdown.

IOWA CENTRAL IS 18 TO 13 WINNER OVER WHEATON

Pella, Ia., Oct. 19 [Special].—Iowa Central today defeated Wheaton, 18 to 13, on the strength of two touchdowns in the second quarter. Wheaton scored in the same half and trailed, 12 to 6, at the half. Lymes, right tackle, scored the decisive touchdown in the third quarter when he intercepted a Wheaton pass and raced seventy yards over the goal line.

Wheaton came back and scored again on a reverse from the Central 20 yard line and converted the extra point, but could not penetrate the winners' defense again.

Mrs. Didrickson Takes Texas Open Golf Title

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 19 (AP).—Mrs. Babe Didrikson Zaharias of Los Angeles defeated imperturbable Elizabeth Hicks of Pasadena, 1 up, today to win the Texas women's open golf championship. Babe made a half dozen brilliant rallies in the gruelling 36 hole match.

SCRANTON SNAPS TOLEDO WINNING STREAK, 6 TO 0

Toledo, O., Oct. 19 (AP).—The University of Toledo's winning streak was snapped in the chill and rain before 2,000 fans today by a Scranton college touchdown in the second period for a 6 to 0 victory. The Scranton drive was aided by a Toledo penalty for interference with a passer. With the Miners in possession of the ball on their own 33, Mike Shonesky and Bob Bohnscheur had added two first downs to the Toledo 44.

There the interference took place and the Rockets were penalized to their own 28. Bohnscheur skirted right end to the 14. Then on a fake reverse he raced to the 2. Two plunges later Shonesky went over. He failed to kick the extra point.

Frank Baciewicz, Scranton end, fractured his leg during the game. He was taken to Toledo hospital and will return by train with his team.

S. M. U. DEFEATS AUBURN, 20-13, TO STAY UNBEATEN

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 19 (AP).—Preston Johnston kept Southern Methodist university in the ranks of unbeaten college teams today as he ran and punted S. M. U. to a 20 to 13 conquest of Auburn before 10,000.

Johnston scored two touchdowns, one on a ninety-two yard run. In the fading minutes, he batted a pass out of Teedie Faulk's hands in the end zone to avert a possible tie.

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 19 [Special].—Illinois Wesleyan defeated the United States Naval Flyers from Pensacola, Fla., 33 to 6 this afternoon in its homecoming game. Capt. Bob Morrow, Chet Wetterlund, Dick Alkire, Melvin Morehause, and Jack Hoswell scored touchdowns for Wesleyan.

Stanford Rolls On; Wins Over Cougars, 26-14

Pullman, Wash., Oct. 19 (AP).—Four men in white carried the Rose Bowl hopes of Stanford one notch nearer realization today with a 26 to 14 victory over the Washington State college Cougars.

The quartet — Southpaw Quarter Back Frank Albert, Half Back Pete Kmetovic, Full Back Norm Standlee, and substitute Half Back Alfred Cole—ran wild around the wings of State's line, in many cases picking up many yards almost without help from their blockers.

The Stanford passing attack, stopped in midfield by the Cougar line, tightened up when the chips were down and brought the high riding Indians of Stanford two of the four touchdowns which spelled defeat for the Cougars for the first time in Pacific Coast conference play this year. Lineup:

U. S. C., 13; OREGON, 0.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 19 (AP).—Southern California's Trojans, registering their first Pacific Coast conference victory, outlasted the University of Oregon eleven and a heat wave that had the mercury over the 100 degree mark to ride on to a 13 to 0 victory before 40,000 in Memorial coliseum today.

The Trojans scored first in the third quarter when a dash thru the line by Quarter Back Bobby Peoples turned into a lateral to big Ben Sohn, 226 pound guard, who charged forty-two yards to set up the touchdown on the Webfoot 2 yard line. Peoples then shot a pass over the line to Right End Joe Davis for the tally. Tackle Bob de Lauer added the extra point. In the fourth period Peoples, Full Back Jack Banta, and Right Half Back Bob Robertson began a fifty-seven yard march into scoring territory, ending when Peoples passed to Al Krueger, left end, for the touchdown.

HUSKIES WIN, 19 TO 0.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 19 (AP).—Capping their 19 to 0 victory with a sixty-one yard touchdown run on the final play of the game, the University of Washington Huskies trounced Oregon State before 36,000 rain soaked fans today. Gaining almost at will, but held scoreless in the first half, the Huskies scored a touchdown in the third period and two in the fourth.

Gene Walters of Tacoma, a substitute half back, turned in a beautiful piece of broken field running by skipping down the sidelines, eluding swarms of tacklers, and crossing the goal line after a sixty-one yard run punctuated by the final gun.

CALIFORNIA WINS, 9-7.

Berkeley, Cal., Oct. 19 (AP).—Another favorite was knocked out of the running today when University of California's Bears defeated the University of California at Los Angeles Bruins, 9 to 7 before more than 40,000 fans who sweltered in sultry weather.

Henry Zacharias, a substitute half back won the game in the fourth quatrer with a field goal from the 23 yard line. California then held for downs in the last few seconds and took possession of the ball on their own 1 yard line.

NORTH CENTRAL IS WINNER OVER CONCORDIA, 33-13

North Central college ran over a lighter Concordia Teacher college eleven, 33 to 13, in River Forest yesterday. Bill Shatzer scored the first 21 points for North Central to spoil the Teachers' college homecoming. Lloyd Houden and Ray Ferrington scored a touchdown apiece to complete the North Central scoring. Soch of Concordia passed to Lange for the first touchdown and charged over center in the last quarter for the last score. lineup:

Hanson and Al Gritsonis, quarter back, carried the ball across for the next two touchdowns. Truck Tellatin, center, converted on the last play of the game.

Indiana Cross Country Team Beats Iowa, 10-26

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 19 [Special].—Compiling a perfect score by winning the first four places, Indiana university's cross country team defeated Iowa, 10 to 26, in a two mile race on the stadium track this morning. The Hoosier runners who counted in the scoring finished as follows: Wayne Tolliver, Campbell Kane, Ed Hedges, and Vern Broertjes. Tolliver's time was 9:39.8. Glen Sparks was the first Hawkeye to finish.

Michigan's Next Rival Whips Princeton.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 19 (AP).—In a warm-up for next Saturday's personal meeting with Michigan's Tom Harman, Francis Reagan today scored five touchdowns for Pennsylvania, the major contributing factors to his team's smashing 46 to 28 victory over Princeton before 58,000 in Franklin field.

In all, Reagan made 31 points, equaling Walter Scull's all-time Penn record. Reagan also threw a touchdown pass on a play that covered sixty-two yards. He carried the ball two hundred yards in 18 tries.

Penn, which next plays undefeated Michigan in Ann Arbor, has scored 147 points in three games. It opened the season with a 51 to 0 triumph over Maryland, and last week defeated Yale, 50 to 7.

Allerdice Princeton Star.

Penn was held to a 7 to 7 tie in the first quarter, drew ahead, 20 to 14, at the half, then scored 19 points in the third quarter, and 7 more in the fourth. David Allerdice, Princeton star from Indianapolis, threw 21 of his team's 41 passes and completed 23. Three of his pitches went for touchdowns. The Tigers completed 25 in all.

Penn's running plays, featuring spinners and reverses, rolled for three hundred and ninety yards. Princeton's running plays were thrown for a net loss of sixteen yards—but the Tigers got their first touchdown on a ninety-eight yard dash by Bob Jackson.

Penn stuck to its system of defending against passes by trying for interceptions, and made good seven times. But on one of those seven the Penn man, catching the ball on the goal line, was tossed back into the end zone for a safety and 2 Princeton points.

Penn Goes on a Rampage.

In the third quarter Penn went sixty-nine, eighty-one, and sixty-eight yards to its scores in a total of 19 plays. The Princeton touchdown in this period required only one play. Allerdice passed seven yards to Bob Peters and he ran seventy-six yards. Line-ups:

Safety—Davis [tackled by Schmon] [substitute for Stanley].

SECONDS TO GO—YALE WINS.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 19 (AP).—Ted Harrison, Yale's brilliant baseball pitcher, never threw a more perfect strike on the diamond than the one he sent to John Reid, substitute end, today. It came with a half minute left to play, and gave the Yale eleven a 13 to 7 triumph over Dartmouth, before 35,000.

Harrison had replaced the injured Ray Anderson only seconds before the climax play. It was a six yard pass down the middle and a two yard dash, simple as all that, but none the less exciting.

Yale scored late in the first period with a seventy-one yard parade which culminated with Anderson going over from the 2 yard line. Hovey Seymour added the extra point from placement. Dartmouth, halted on the 1 yard line after a sixty yard drive in the second, rallied to tie the score in the third. The scoring play was a twenty-one yard pass by Ed Kast, a substitute, to Sophomore Ray Wolfe, who caught the ball on the 20 and streaked along the sidelines. Captain Lou Young place kicked the extra point.

3 TOUCHDOWNS IN SIX MINUTES WIN FOR ST. NORBERT

Waukesha, Wis., Oct. 19.—St. Norbert's college of De Pere, Wis., rallied in the final quarter to defeat Carroll college today, 26 to 10, after trailing 7 to 0, at the half. The De Pere Knights have scored all their touchdowns this season in the second half to win three out of four games.

LeRoy Floriano, St. Norbert half back, scored the first three touchdowns on runs of twenty-two, fifty-four, and forty-two yards. Ed Feser, substitute back, plunged two yards for the Knights' last score.

Lavier Staven plunged over from the 1 foot line for Carroll's touchdown in the first quarter. Steve Reega added the extra point and early in the fourth quarter kicked an eight yard field goal to give Waukesha team a temporary 10 to 7 lead. Three St. Norbert touchdowns came in the last six minutes of play.

MICHIGAN ROUTS ILLINOIS, 28 TO 0; HARMON GETS 10

dynamo of the Michigan attack. In 68 plays from scrimmage, exclusive of kicks, he carried the ball 37 times. His net gain was 160 yards, more than three times the total gained by all Illini backs. Harmon scored 10 points in all, boosting his season's total to 79.

Total statistics also revealed the impotence of Illinois' attack. Illinois lost one yard more by rushing than it gained. Only four passes in 16 were completed for a gain of forty-eight yards, a figure that does not include twelve yards Michigan was penalized for holding an eligible pass receiver in the second period when the Illini reached the Wolverines' 13 yard line for their only threat of the game.

Michigan Starts Rolling.

From Michigan's 30 yard line, Westfall opened with a five yard smash at the center of Illinois' six man line. He followed with two yards on a spin play at the same spot. Then came Harmon to the line for four yards. Westfall cracked inside Illinois' left tackle for six yards and then hit outside the defensive right tackle for a nineteen-yard run to the Illini 34. Westfall lunged twice more for nine yards and Harmon made it first down on the Illini 23 yard line.

For the next two plays, Michigan struck in close. Then, for a third time on third down, Harmon gained the required distance. He swept around Jim Phillips, Illinois' left end, and finally went out of bounds on Illinois' 12 yard stripe. Westfall, first faked to Harmon and then handed the ball to Dave Nelson, right half, who scored. Harmon missed the kick.

This was the pattern Michigan followed for its second touchdown. Harmon returned Ralph Ehni's punt five yards and the Wolverines began operations from their own 31. Westfall plunged four consecutive times, made two first downs, and the second was marked on the Illini 46 yard line. On the fourth play Westfall lunged thru the Illini wall for six yards and a first down in the Illinois 35, with the aid of no more deception than a kick formation with Harmon back.

Westfall followed with a gain of eleven yards. This sent Illinois into a seven man defensive line, whereupon Harmon sped ahead, took a lateral from Nelson, and ran twenty-one yards around Elmer Engel, Illinois right end, before being bumped out of bounds on Illinois' 3 yard line. On the third down Harmon cut inside the defensive left end for the touchdown. He missed the point.

Harmon Thrown for Loss.

Michigan marched on the first play of the second quarter. On this drive, however, Engel stopped the ground plays when he rushed thru Michigan blockers to bring down Harmon for an eight yard loss.

After Harmon had gained three of the lost yards and placed the ball on Illinois' 42 yard line, Michigan called for its first pass. On this third down play, Harmon dropped back and drifted to his left. Then he passed accurately to Ed Frutig, his right end, who cut across thru the Illini secondary, caught the ball on Illinois' 30, and skipped down the east sideline with the other Michigan end cutting down the Illinois safety. For a third time Harmon failed to place kick the point.

Harmon got all of these points back, however, just before the end of the half. On second down, Johnny Worban's forward pass from behind his own goal line was intercepted by Westfall, who returned fourteen yards to the Illini 17 yard line. Two line plays netted four yards, and then Harmon's second pass of the day was incomplete. So, on fourth down, with only 20 seconds to play, Harmon placekicked a field goal.

Westfall Goes Over.

Michigan's final score came midway in the third quarter and the drive started from the Illinois 36 yard line.

Seven plays were needed. Harmon hit left tackle for four yards and Westfall got away for thirteen. On the familiar lateral, Harmon got six yards. Westfall plunged twice and it was first down on the Illini 7 yard line. Lockhard got five yards and then Westfall plunged over. Harmon placekicked the point. Statistics:

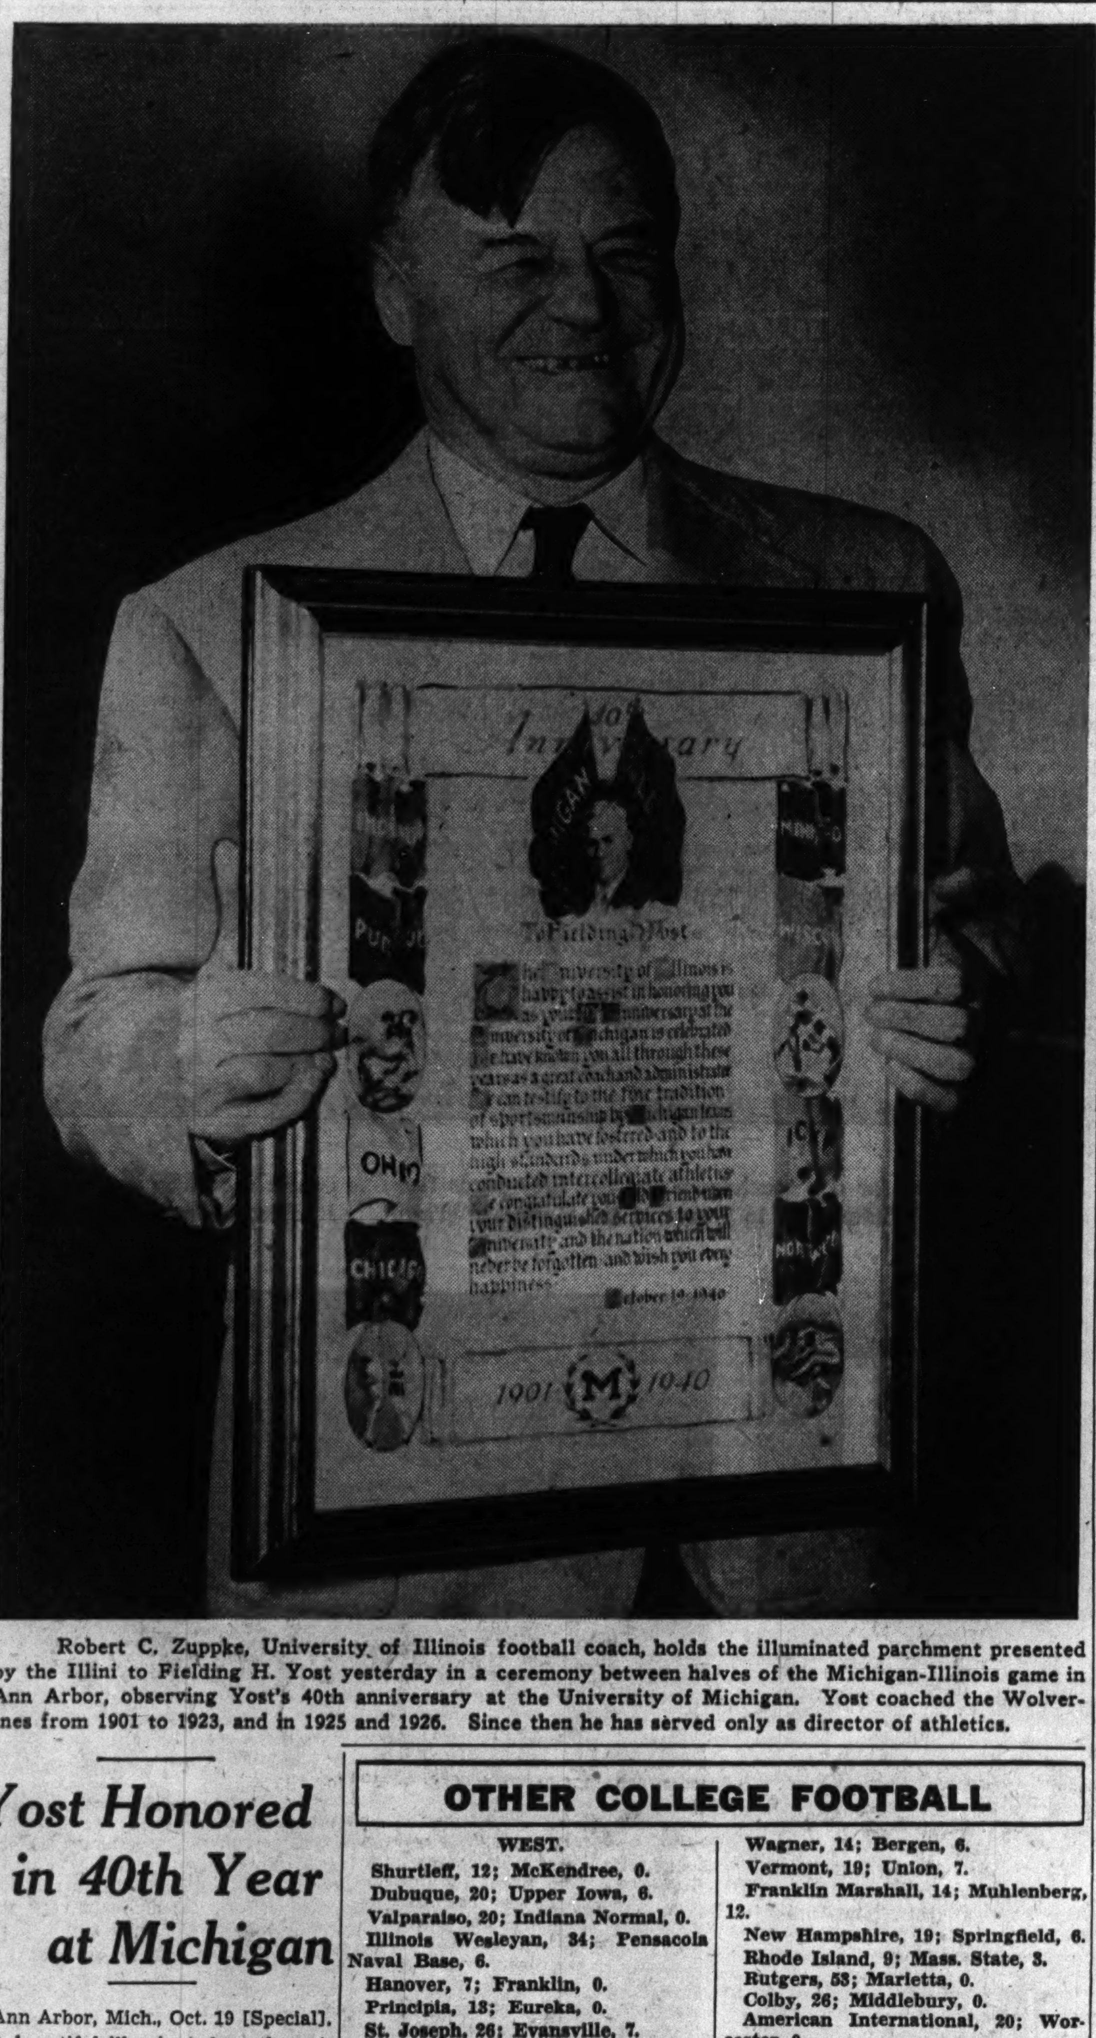
BUTLER WHIPS WABASH, 19-12, IN HOMECOMING

Crawfordsville, Ind., Oct. 19.—Before a large homecoming crowd Wabash's final score came a moment a spectacular game to Butler university, 19 to 12, at Ingalls field today in the 46th game between the two schools. The first half ended, 6 to 6, but Butler forged ahead in the third quarter and scored another touchdown early in the fourth quarter. Wabash's final score came a momen later when Lookabill took a long pass from Leach and ran fifty yards to the Butler goal. James H. Martin of Chicago was chairman of the alumni committee for the homecoming celebration.

PENN STATE WINS.

Bethlehem, Pa., Oct. 19 (AP).—Lehigh battled Penn State on even terms for three periods today, then collapsed, and the Nittany Lions marched to their third straight victory, 34 to 0.

HAILS OLD MICHIGAN FRIEND



Robert C. Zuppke, University of Illinois football coach, holds the illuminated parchment presented by the Illini to Fielding H. Yost yesterday in a ceremony between halves of the Michigan-Illinois game in Ann Arbor, observing Yost's 40th anniversary at the University of Michigan. Yost coached the Wolverines from 1901 to 1923, and in 1925 and 1926. Since then he has served only as director of athletics.

Yost Honored in 40th Year at Michigan

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 19 [Special]. —A beautiful illuminated parchment, bearing a tribute to Fielding H. Yost in observance of his 40 years of service to University of Michigan athletics, was presented to the Wolverine director between halves of the Michigan-Illinois football game here this afternoon.

The tribute, which hailed Yost as "Old Friend," was designed by Prof. Charles E. Bradbury of the University of Illinois art department, and written by L. M. Tobin, director of the Illinois athletic publicity department. Robert C. Zuppke, serving his 28th season as Illini coach, made the presentation.

Ten Flags Surround Portrait.

A small portrait of Yost, framed by Michigan and Illinois flags, surmounts the parchment on which side borders are formed by flags of the other eight Western conference universities and four scenes of Michigan and Illinois athletes meeting in football, baseball, track and basketball.

It's a Colorful Scroll.

The tribute, resplendent in gold and other colors, is as follows:

"To Fielding H. Yost:

"The University of Illinois is happy to assist in honoring you as your 40th anniversary at the University of Michigan is celebrated.

"We have known you all thru these years as a great coach and administrator.

"We can testify to the fine tradition of sportsmanship by Michigan teams which you have fostered, and to the high standards under which you have conducted intercollegiate athletics.

"We congratulate you, Old Friend, upon your distinguished services to your university and nation, which will never be forgotten, and wish you every happiness."

2,000 Attend Banquet.

Two thousand Michigan alumni and friends acclaimed Yost at a dinner tonight in pennant-bedecked Waterman gymnasium.

Yost, elated by Michigan's 28 to 0 victory over Illinois this afternoon, chuckled when he was greeted by Zuppke.

Seated near Yost were the legendary Willie Heston, high scoring star of Yost's point a minute teams, and Adolph [Germany] Schulz, regarded by many as all-time All-America center.

Among notables present were United States Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg; Charles A. Baird, former athletic director who hired Yost away from Stanford in 1900; Maj. John L. Griffith, Western conference commissioner, and Branch Rickey, general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals and one-time Michigan baseball coach.

Oklahoma Two Mile Team Beats Kansas State, 20-16

Norman, Okla., Oct. 19 (AP).—The University of Oklahoma two mile team outran the Big Six champion Kansas State quartet today, winning the dual meet, 20 to 16.

SALAMINIA WINS AT JAMAICA TO UPSET THE DOPE

Gallant Fox Handicap Is Taken by Filly.

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—Hal Price Headley's Salaminia, perhaps the best 3 year old filly of the season, stepped out of her class today to give the Jamaica fans one of their worst shocks when she won the $15,000 added Gallant Fox handicap, feature of the closing day program.

Salaminia finished a length and a half in front of Mrs. Payne Whitney's Hash, a 3 to 4 favorite to win the mile and five furlongs test. Another filly, Equitable, coupled with the winner, took third money while J. B. Partridge's Devil's Crag was fourth and last.

Favorite Loses Again.

Hash was the 65th beaten favorite in 82 races at Jamaica and his defeat was a bigger surprise than usual to the crowd of 17,201. Carrying 123 pounds, he was kept close to the pace all the way but he never could gain on Salamina, even when she went a bit wide in the stretch run. Don Meade took the filly to the front early and did a fine job of maintaining a lead of a length or so. Equitable, never a threat, was eight lengths behind Hash.

Salaminia ran the mile and five furlongs in 2:45:3/5 and won a purse of $11,150. The entry paid only $4.60 for $2 as betting was on first place only.

Little Risk Wins.

Two other features went to well backed racers, Warren Wright's Little Risk, held at 4 to 1, outsprinted Raise Up and H. P. Headley's Pelisse, the favorite, to win the first running of the Correction handicap and $4,650. Herbert M. Woolf's Robert L., a $3.30 for $2 favorite, easily took the $3,055 first money in the Long Island claiming stakes, finishing three lengths ahead of Harry T. Johnson's Gen'l Manager, who nosed out H. R. Bain's Stoney Brush.

Little Risk ran the six furlongs of the Correction in 1:10:4/5, only two fifths of a second slower than the track record, to win by six lengths.

BRADLEY HORSE WINS

Laurel, Md., Oct. 19 (AP).—E. R. Bradley, who sent Bimelech out to the racing wars, served notice today that he has another youngster on the way up. Bryan Station, from the Kentucky Sportsman's Idle Hour farm, won the $5,000 added Spalding Lowe Jenkins handicap in impressive style at Laurel.

Piloted by Jockey F. A. Smith, who rode Bimelech to the juvenile championship in 1939, Bryan Station got home a length and a half ahead of H. Wells' Happy Pilot to take down top money of $6,075.

Favorite Is Ninth.

Mrs. E. Graham Lewis' Magnificent was third and Cleveland Putnam's Swain was fourth. The Wheatley stable's Bold Irishman, favorite in the field of 11 2 year olds, finished ninth.

Altho he had won a race at a mile and 70 yards here on Oct. 15, Bryan Station was given little consideration in the betting by the crowd of 15,000. He closed at 11 to 1 and returned $24.80 for $2. His time for the mile and a sixteenth was 1:45 1-5.

Bryan Station, taking the lead at the three-quarter mile mark, bounded home effortlessly.

There was no such walkaway in the other feature of the day, the $7,500 added Maryland handicap at a mile and a quarter. Mrs. D. K. Kerr's True Call won, but the 3 year old filly had to fight for the victory, worth $6,975.

Wins by Whisker.

Usually a front runner, True Call went right to the fore of the nine other 3 year olds in the field, and hung on under Jockey Henri Mora's urging to score by a whisker over T. B. Martin's Bolingbroke.

Gustave Ring's Ringie was third, a length and a half back, and three lengths ahead of A. C. C. stable's Son Altesse. True Call, closing at 16 to 1, returned $35.60 for $2. She ran the mile and a quarter in 2:03 2-5.

The track was fast when the two features were run, but shortly after the Maryland handicap was over a mixture of snow and rain began falling.

WHIRLAWAY WINS

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 19 (AP).—Warren Wright's Whirlaway won the Breeders' Futurity at Keeneland today by a length over Blue Pair and Our Boots, slight favorite in the betting. Only a length and a nose separated the trio at the finish of six furlongs in which the winner's time was 1:11 1-5.

It was Whirlaway's first victory over Royce Martin's Our Boots in three meetings. Whirlaway got off last in the five horse field, but by the time the stretch was reached he was only a head behind the leading Blue Pair and a head in front of Mettlesome. Blue Pair then tired and the Calumet star won going away, with Our Boots getting in for the show by a head over Mettlesome.

The victory was worth $7,835 to Wright. Whirlaway paid $5, $3.20, and $2.40 in the $2 mutuels. Blue Pair returned $4.20 and $2.80, and Our Boots paid $2.40. Keeneland ended its fall meeting today.

Lake Forest Victorious Over Augustana, 13 to 0

Lake Forest defeated Augustana college, 13 to 0, yesterday in Lake Forest. Becker scored in the first quarter by plunging from the 4 yard line. In the final quarter Becker shot a short pass to Metz who ran forty yards to a touchdown. F. Gates added the point.

Holy Cross Beats N. Y. U. on Two Passes, 13 to 7

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—Tom Sullivan passed for two touchdowns today to give the Holy Cross football team a 13 to 7 victory over New York university before 12,000 in Yankee stadium.

TONY WEAVER WINS HANDICAP AT SPORTSMAN'S

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Tony Weaver, smartly ridden by Paul Keiper, won the Autumn handicap yesterday at Sportsman's Park before 10,000 spectators who taxed the capacity of the popular half mile course. After sprinting to the front soon after the break, Tony Weaver held command thruout this six and a half furlong dash, getting home two and a half lengths in advance of Illinois Tom. Little Abner overcame the handicap of a sluggish start to finish third.

Tony Weaver, a 3 year old gelding owned by N. J. Mitchell, had been a consistent performer thruout the season, but he was held to odds of more than 6 to 1 yesterday while the Hilltop Stock farm's Winkle was being established as the 2 to 1 favorite. Winkle finished seventh in the field of eight, never being able to reach a contending position.

By his victory, Tony Weaver ran his record for the season to eight first places, four seconds and four thirds out of 21 starts. Those who backed him yesterday collected $14.80, $5.80 and $4.40 across the board.

Winner Gets a Clever Ride.

Keiper, who had ridden three winners on Friday, showed nice udgment of pace in keeping Tony Weaver in front all the way. Sassy Mate undertook to challenge in the first half mile, but Tony Weaver gradually drew away from her. Then Illinois Tom launched a bid as they approached the far turn, but Tony Weaver, running freely, protected his safe margin to the end.

The distance runners were out for a gallop of a mile and five-eighths in the sixth race on the program. This carried them past the stands four times from a start at the head of the stretch. Tacheone scored by five lengths after Steve Brooks, riding his second winner of the day, had sent him up to catch the leaders in the last quarter mile. Mary Cardinal, which had forced English Harry's early pace, had enough left to save second place from a 75 to 1 shot, Ajaygee, by the margin of a head. Tacheone was the 4 to 1 second choice, paying $10.20, $6.40, and $5.60.

Daily Double Pays $40.60.

A pair of popular choices, Wicked Time and Pretty Rose, scored in the first two events for a $40.60 daily double. Both won with plenty to spare in these five furlong sprints.

Wicked Time, which shared public favor with Orchard Run at odds of 5 to 2, followed the pace set by Pop's Rival during the early stages. Going down the back stretch, Jockey Roy Hightshoe let Wicked Time out to top speed. Overhauling the leader at the turn out of the back stretch, Wicked Time went on powerfully to finish three lengths ahead of Viragin, which closed well to take second place from the tiring Pop's Rival by the margin of a nose. The winner paid $7.40, $4.80, and $3.40 across the board.

Pretty Rose Scores.

Leon Haskell, who had accounted for the daily double on Friday, rode Pretty Rose yesterday. He sent her up to pass the pacemaker, Guy B., on the last turn and kept her running thru the stretch to win by a length and a half. Guy B. saved second money from Little Rhody by a neck. Pretty Rose was at 7 to 2 in the betting, paying $9 to win, $4.20 to place, and $3 to show.

Garrett Watts' 3 year old filly, Winlette, charged up along the rail to take the lead away from Lady Thirteen in the last few yards of the third race. Lady Thirteen had set a fast pace as far as the stretch in this dash of six and a half furlongs, but she began drifting out in the last furlong and lacked sufficient stamina to withstand Winlette's closing rush. The latter's margin of victory was a neck.

Imperial Jones Third.

Imperial Jones took third money, while the 8 to 5 favorite, Foxy Maude, was getting home in sixth place after being squeezed back in the early stages. The prices on Winlette were $13.40, $8.60, and $5.40.

An odds on favorite, Happy Khayyam, scored in the fourth race, a six and a half furlong dash for 2 year olds, Jockey Steve Brooks was forced to handle him carefully to get him thru crowded quarters after he had been shuffled back in the first quarter mile. During the run down the back stretch, he worked his way up gradually, went between horses on the turn, and took command approaching the stretch. Then he drew out easily to win by three lengths, Judy Jones taking second place from Doublerab by a head. Happy Khayyam's backers collected $3.80, $3.60, and $3.20 across the board.

CLUB CHAMPIONS ARE INVITED TO FRENCH LICK GOLF

French Lick Springs, Ind., Oct. 19 [Special].—The second annual Central States golf tournament for champions and runners-up of clubs in the Great Lakes and Ohio valley regions will be held on the French Lick Springs course Nov. 9 and 10. One thousand players have been invited.

Jim Frisina of Taylorville, Ill., beat Russell Martin of Chicago in a playoff for the 1939 title. They had tied at 146 for 36 holes.

Mrs. Ruth Staley Hunt of Highland Park, Ill., won the women's meet last year.

If Bluegrass Horse Doesn't Win, the Newspaper Is Free

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 19 (AP).—The Lexington Herald, published in the center of Kentucky's famous horse breeding region, today announced that it would give away its entire edition every day a bluegrass bred horse does not win a race on a major track in the United States. The offer is good every day except Sunday and on the few other days in the year when there is no racing on major tracks.

Tech Converts 2 Breaks, Scores on Interception.

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 19 [Special].—Bradley capitalized on superior punting and a pass interception to defeat the Mt. Pleasant Teachers of Michigan, 19 to 0, before a large homecoming gathering today.

The Braves counted in the first and third periods after Bearcat punts had skidded out of bounds on the Mt. Pleasant 32, and Acting Capt. Marion Asa streaked fifty yards with a pass interception for a second period tally. Bradley was outgained ,11 to 5, in first downs and 229 to 94 in total yards from scrimmage. The Bearcats were weak after they reached the Tech 20 yard line. Lineup:

CARBONDALE, MACOMB TIE.

Macomb, Ill., Oct. 19 [Special].—Macomb Teachers and Carbondale Teachers opened their Little Nineteen conference campaign by battling to a 6 to 6 tie at Macomb's homecoming today.

Macomb started the scoring with a short pass over the line from Lewis to Robinson, who carried the ball over. In the second quarter Crawshaw of Southern tossed a fifteen yard pass to English, who ran fifty yards for a touchdown.

With but thirty seconds remaining, English of Carbondale intercepted a pass on Macomb's 7 yard line. The game ended with the ball on Macomb's 3 yard line in Carbondale's possession.

MILLIKIN BEATS KNOX, 14-6; ENDS VICTORY FAMINE

Decatur, Ill., Oct. 19 [Special].—Millikin university ended its long Illinois college conference victory famine today by defeating Knox college, 14 to 6, before a homecoming crowd of 3,000. Millikin's last conference triumph came late in the 1936 season.

Ed Dahm's forty-three yard pass to Roger Merker in the third quarter, which took the ball to Knox's 4 yard line, set the stage for Millikin's first touchdown. Virgil Wagner then went off tackle for the score.

Later in the quarter, Dahm passed to Jack Hagarty and a few plays later Wagner again plunged over. Roberts scored for Knox in the fourth quarter from the 4 yard line. Lineups:

DUBUQUE BEATS UPPER IOWA, 20-6, RETAINS LEAD

Dubuque, Ia., Oct. 19 [Special].—The University of Dubuque scored three touchdowns in the first quarter and defeated Upper Iowa, 20 to 6, to continue as undefeated leader of the Iowa conference today.

Before a large homecoming crowd, the Spartans scored their first touchdown on the first play of the game started when Rickerts fell on a loose ball behind the visitors' goal.

Bob Sellergreen of Oak Park, Ill., who scored two touchdowns, suffered a dislocated shoulder in the third quarter.

Carry Tackle Off Field; It's Just Acute Appendicitis

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 19 (AP).—Dan Snyder, 195 pound tackle of the George Washington university football team, collapsed in the game with Kentucky today and was taken to a hospital, where attaches said he apparently had suffered an acute attack of appendicitis. Snyder was carried from the gridiron two minutes before the end of the game, which Kentucky won, 24 to 0.

IOWA 6
TOFIL
HAWKINS

Joe Tofil, Indiana back, is about to be brought downb y Max Hawkins, Iowa guard, in second quarter of yesterday's battle in Bloomington, Ind. Red Zimmer made the deciding touchdown on a 56 yard run in the first period. The Hoosiers, twice beaten in pre-conference games, scored an amazing upset in their 10 to 6 triumph.

Hoosiers Score Twice in First Period; Upset Hawkeyes, 10-6

Hawkeyes under the present coaching régime, last year's miracle iron men having also lost their third match, to Michigan, 27 to 7, after having grabbed a 32 to 29 victory from Indiana—despite the fact the Hoosiers had led, 29 to 20, late in the final period.

They Do Some Passing.

The aerial circus promises were kept to a considerable extent by Indiana but not by Iowa. The Hoosiers tried 12 forward passes and completed seven. Iowa tried nine and completed seven. The Indiana tosses netted ninety-seven yards and the first pass tried and completed by Indiana, Hal Hursh to Archie Harris for twenty-one yards, set up the first scoring of the game, that field goal. Indiana intercepted two passes, Iowa none.

Indiana topped the Hawks in first downs, 12 to 7, but the teams tied in first downs from rushing with seven each. Yards from rushing were pretty much of a standoff, with the Iowa boys accounting for 162 yards to 152 for Indiana, tho Indiana in the first half outrushed the Iowans, 134 yards to 57.

Leading ground gainers from scrimmage for the Hoosiers were Zimmer with 60 yards and Dale Swihart with 52 yards. Full Back Murphy was the workhorse of the afternoon and made 73 yards on 19 tries. Runnerup to Murphy was Gilleard, with 38 yards.

White Boots One.

The first scoring of the game was accomplished in the ninth minute of the first period when Gene White booted over that field goal from the 18 yard line. The points came shortly after Hursh had fumbled and Mike Enich had recovered on Iowa's 10 yard line. Iowa punted on first down to its own 41, then Hursh broke thru for a first down on Iowa's 28. Indiana again fumbled but recovered with a loss of thirteen yards to Iowa's 41. Then a pass, Hursh to Harris was good for twenty-one yards and first down on Iowa's 10. Ray Dumke failed in two cracks at the line and a pass was incomplete, whereupon Gene White kicked the field goal.

The Hoosiers added their touchdown and conversion with 1 minute and 42 seconds to go in the first period. After Iowa had punted out of bounds on Indiana's 44 yard line, Zimmer replaced Swihart at quarter for Indiana and on the first play the tiny redhead wiggled thru the mass of Hawkeyes without bothering to straight arm or bump an adversary. He ran the last thirty-five yards of his fifty-six yard touchdown sprint strictly solo. Gene White added the point from placement.

Hoosiers Pile 'em Up.

The second period was scoreless but accorded the Hoosiers a chance show some emergency defensive strength. Farmer punted to Swihart who received on his 5 yard line but fumbled when hit and Hawkins recovered for Iowa on Indiana's 18. Indiana then refused to yield more than six yards on four downs and took the ball on its 12 whence Tofil made twelve yards on a fake punt formation to safety. A punt on fourth down pushed the Hawkeyes back out of sight of the Hoosier goal. The half ended seconds after McGuire punted to Green who fumbled, Rucinski recovering for Indiana.

Then came the 80 yard flight of the Hawks late in the third period to round out the scoring.

TENNESSEE WINS, DEALS ALABAMA FIRST LOSS, 27-12

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 19 (AP).—Little Johnny Butler sparked Tennessee to a 27 to 12 victory over fighting Alabama today. The 160 pound mite slashed off right tackle early in the second period and raced sixty-eight yards up the sideline to Alabama's 11 yard mark. Then he shot a flat pass to End Al Hust for the tally. Fred Newman, substitute wing back, kicked the point.

Barely a dozen plays later, Butler snatched an Alabama punt on 'Bama's 49 and raced under convoy to score standing up. Newman again converted. Butler's play erased a six point advantage earned earlier in the period by the Crimson tide when Quarter Back Jimmy Nelson tore thru the Tennesse line on a spinner for fourteen yards and a touchdown.

A crowd of 24,531 saw Alabama suffer its first defeat of the year, and Tennesse yield its first touchdowns against a Southeastern conference foe since L. S. U. punched over a lone tally in 1938.

Alabama, led by Nelson and two sophomores, Dave Brown and Russ Craft, refused to concede Tennessee a yard unearned. Early in the second half, Brown scooped up a punt by Butler on his own 43 and roared up the sideline for a second 'Bama touchdown.

In the closing periods, the Volunteer's blocking and protection of kickers led to their scoring twice. Little Buist Warren twice whipped passes to Mike Balitsaris for touchdowns, the first time at the conclusion of a sixty yard march, and again to wind up a twenty-six yard drive that was made possible by a weak Alabama punt.

HIGH SCHOOLS FORM BOWLING CLUB COUNCIL

Organization of the Chicago High School Bowling Club council, an organization made up of representatives, mostly secretaries, of the 85 leagues in high schools, took place yesterday at the Stevens hotel. The council will discuss and clear all business arising in the operation. It will work under the direction of Milton S. Raymer, executive secretary of the Chicago High School Bowling club.

Charles Ephriam of Harper High, was elected president; Dorothy Kovick of Von Steuben, vice president; Audrey Olson, Amundsen, secretary, and William Townsley, South Shore, treasurer. Committees were appointed which will report back at the next meeting, Nov. 2.

NAVY WINS 4TH IN ROW; PASSES BEAT DRAKE, 19-0

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 19 (AP).—Navy's air-minded football team defeated Drake university in the rain today, 19 to 0, to register its fourth consecutive triumph before 22,000.

Bill Busik, altho he didn't score a point, led a first period offensive deep into Drake territory and the reserves quickly shoved across a touchdown when they took over for the second period. Howie Clark tossed a short pass to Bud Boyer in the end zone. Hurt replaced Boyer and kicked for seventh point.

The reserves scored again before the largest crowd of the year hardly had sat down. Gene Flathmann dove over the goal to cover a fumble by Walter O'Connor, Drake half back, and score his first points as a varsity tackle.

The final touchdown, also scored by the reserves, came in the opening minutes of the fourth quarter with Sammy Boothe, southpaw passer, dropping back to toss sixteen yards into the hands of Clark on the goal line. Lineups:

HARVARD, 6; ARMY, 6

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 19 (AP).—An aroused Harvard football team, inspired to great deeds just a few seconds too late, wound up on Army's 6 yard line at the final whistle here today, but had to be satisfied with a 6 to 6 tie before 30,000.

Harvard faltered and frittered away all of its early opportunities, but after Henry Mazur, Lowell, Mass., sophomore, raced forty yards for Army's touchdown in the third period, the Crimson sprang to action.

Mazur, back to pass and apparently trapped, escaped his pursuers and reversed the field to give the Cadets a 6 to 0 lead.

In the fourth period Harvard was stopped on downs at the 24 yard line. Then Burgy Ayres, substitute Harvard center, intercepted a lateral pass Thereupon Spreyer resumed his passing and his third consecutive completion, from the 8 yard line, set up MacKinney's tying touchdown. Spreyer's place kicking effort for the seventh point was wide.

Less than a minute remained when Spreyer moved Harvard from its 35 to Army's 1 yard line by contacting Koufman and MacKinney with forty-five and eighteen yard heaves. The Crimson tried to beat the clock by drawing a penalty for an extra time out, but alert Cadets batted down his final pass.

COLUMBIA USES PASSES TO BEAT GEORGIA, 19 to 13

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—Columbia defeated the University of Georgia with passes today, 19 to 13, before 23,000. The winning touchdown was scored in the final period on a forty yard forward-lateral pass from Paul Governali to Len Will to Phil Bayer.

Texas A. and M. Swamps Texas Christian, 21 to 7

College Station, Tex., Oct. 19 (AP).—Unbeaten Texas A. & M. swamped Texas Christian, 21 to 7, today with a forgotten man who rumbled in from an inglorious blocking back position to ground gaining genius. Quiet Jim Thomason, little publicized but perhaps the finest blocker and line backer in Southwest conference history, shocked the Christians with long runs and scored twice.

ity with a fifty-five yard sprint that culminated on Minnesota's 22 yard line, where Charles Ringer, Gopher end, caught him from behind. Scott, whose kicking, passing, and running gave Buckeye partisans something to cheer about, took out two Minnesota tacklers on Fisher's run.

Winners Stand Firm.

Langhurst cracked thru his left tackle for eleven yards. Fisher gained a first down on the 9 yard line. Here it was that Minnesota made its first great defensive stand. Langhurst slipped off his left tackle for four yards and hit the same spot for one more. Fisher got two off his right tackle, making it fourth down and a yard to go. Scott rammed thru the middle of the line, but when the pile of tacklers was unscrambled the ball was about a foot from the goal. Franck punted out of bounds on Minnesota's 31 yard line.

The Buckeyes could make no headway but got another chance to cash in when Claude White recovered Joe Mernik's fumble on Minnesota's 19 yard line. It looked as if they again would toss away the break after two plunges and an incomplete pass netted exactly nothing. On fourth down, Scott whipped a pass to Charley Anderson, Ohio's colored end, who caught the ball on the 10 yard line and raced the remaining distance to the goal. Scott's placekick, with Langhurst holding the ball, was good and Ohio State led, 7 to 6.

Ohio's lead lasted only a couple of minutes. Franck carried back Maag's kickoff thirty yards to his 32 yard line. Smith broke thru the Buckeye line, dodged the secondary, and raced to the Buckeye's 47 before Scott overhauled him. Franck, deploying behind a line that was outcharging Ohio's decisively at this stage, picked up nine yards off his right tackle. Smith got a first down on Ohio's 33 yard line. The irrepressible Mr. Smith then hiked to Ohio's 13 before Scott and Stephenson brought him down. Smith shot straight thru center for eight and repeated for a first down on the 3 yard line. Scott again made the tackle. On the next play Smith, who, you must know by this time, is quite a ball carrier, went off his right tackle for his second touchdown. Paschka's place kick, with Franck holding the ball, was good and Minnesota had regained the lead, 13 to 7.

Take Lead in Series.

Today's victory gave Minnesota a lead in the series. Ohio State previously had won twice, Minnesota twice, and there was one tie. As additional evidence of the parity of football competition between these two great universities, Minnesota has scored a total of 64 points to Ohio State's 61. The statistics of today's game:

IOWA TEACHERS WIN, 20-19, FROM WESTERN STATE

Kalamazoo, Mich., Oct. 19 [Special].—Iowa Teachers defeated Western State Teachers today, 20 to 19. Long runs featured, with Claude Santee, Iowa's quarter back, speeding seventy-six yards from scrimmage and again forty-one yards on a lateral pass, both for touchdowns. The third one came when Cy Bellock blocked Bob Metzger's punt and fell on it behind the goal line.

A twenty-nine yard pass, Art Macioszcyzk to Jack Matheson, put the ball on the Iowans' 3 yard line in the second period and Macioszcyzk crashed over. In the third period a 55 yard pass, Macioszyczk to Matheson, was good for a score. In the last quarter Horace Coleman, sophomore half, raced eighty-four yards on a kickoff return for a touchdown.

IOWA CENTRAL IS 18 TO 13 WINNER OVER WHEATON

Pella, Ia., Oct. 19 [Special].—Iowa Central today defeated Wheaton, 18 to 13, on the strength of two touchdowns in the second quarter. Wheaton scored in the same half and trailed, 12 to 6, at the half. Lymes, right tackle, scored the decisive touchdown in the third quarter when he intercepted a Wheaton pass and raced seventy yards over the goal line.

Wheaton came back and scored again on a reverse from the Central 20 yard line and converted the extra point, but could not penetrate the winners' defense again.

Mrs. Didrickson Takes Texas Open Golf Title

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 19 (AP).—Mrs. Babe Didrikson Zaharias of Los Angeles defeated imperturbable Elizabeth Hicks of Pasadena, 1 up, today to win the Texas women's open golf championship. Babe made a half dozen brilliant rallies in the gruelling 36 hole match.

SCRANTON SNAPS TOLEDO WINNING STREAK, 6 TO 0

Toledo, O., Oct. 19 (AP).—The University of Toledo's winning streak was snapped in the chill and rain before 2,000 fans today by a Scranton college touchdown in the second period for a 6 to 0 victory. The Scranton drive was aided by a Toledo penalty for interference with a passer. With the Miners in possession of the ball on their own 33, Mike Shonesky and Bob Bohnscheur had added two first downs to the Toledo 44.

There the interference took place and the Rockets were penalized to their own 28. Bohnscheur skirted right end to the 14. Then on a fake reverse he raced to the 2. Two plunges later Shonesky went over. He failed to kick the extra point.

Frank Baclewicz, Scranton end, fractured his leg during the game. He was taken to Toledo hospital and will return by train with his team.

S. M. U. DEFEATS AUBURN, 20-13, TO STAY UNBEATEN

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 19 (AP).—Preston Johnston kept Southern Methodist university in the ranks of unbeaten college teams today as he ran and punted S. M. U. to a 20 to 13 conquest of Auburn before 10,000.

Johnston scored two touchdowns, one on a ninety-two yard run. In the fading minutes, he batted a pass out of Teedie Faulk's hands in the end zone to avert a possible tie.

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 19 [Special].—Illinois Wesleyan defeated the United States Naval Flyers from Pensacola, Fla., 33 to 6 this afternoon in its homecoming game. Capt. Bob Morrow, Chet Wetterlund, Dick Alkire, Melvin Morehause, and Jack Hoswell scored touchdowns for Wesleyan.

Stanford Rolls On; Wins Over Cougars, 26-14

Pullman, Wash., Oct. 19 (AP).—Four men in white carried the Rose Bowl hopes of Stanford one notch nearer realization today with a 26 to 14 victory over the Washington State college Cougars.

The quartet — Southpaw Quarter Back Frank Albert, Half Back Pete Kmetovic, Full Back Norm Standlee, and substitute Half Back Alfred Cole —ran wild around the wings of State's line, in many cases picking up many yards almost without help from their blockers.

The Stanford passing attack, stopped in midfield by the Cougar line, tightened up when the chips were down and brought the high riding Indians of Stanford two of the four touchdowns which spelled defeat for the Cougars for the first time in Pacific Coast conference play this year. Lineup:

U. S. C., 13; OREGON, 0.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 19 (AP).—Southern California's Trojans, registering their first Pacific Coast conference victory, outlasted the University of Oregon eleven and a heat wave that had the mercury over the 100 degree mark to ride on to a 13 to 0 victory before 40,000 in Memorial coliseum today.

The Trojans scored first in the third quarter when a dash thru the line by Quarter Back Bobby Peoples turned into a lateral to big Ben Sohn, 226 pound guard, who charged forty-two yards to set up the touchdown on the Webfoot 2 yard line. Peoples then shot a pass over the line to Right End Joe Davis for the tally. Tackle Bob de Lauer added the extra point. In the fourth period Peoples, Full Back Jack Banta, and Right Half Back Bob Robertson began a fifty-seven yard march into scoring territory, ending when Peoples passed to Al Krueger, left end, for the touchdown.

HUSKIES WIN, 19 TO 0.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 19 (AP).—Capping their 19 to 0 victory with a sixty-one yard touchdown run on the final play of the game, the University of Washington Huskies trounced Oregon State before 36,000 rain soaked fans today. Gaining almost at will, but held scoreless in the first half, the Huskies scored a touchdown in the third period and two in the fourth.

Gene Walters of Tacoma, a substitute half back, turned in a beautiful piece of broken field running by skipping down the sidelines, eluding swarms of tacklers, and crossing the goal line after a sixty-one yard run punctuated by the final gun.

CALIFORNIA WINS, 9-7.

Berkeley, Cal., Oct. 19 (AP).—Another favorite was knocked out of the running today when University of California's Bears defeated the University of California at Los Angeles Bruins, 9 to 7 before more than 40,000 fans who sweltered in sultry weather.

Henry Zacharias, a substitute half back won the game in the fourth quatrer with a field goal from the 23 yard line. California then held for downs in the last few seconds and took possession of the ball on their own 1 yard line.

NORTH CENTRAL IS WINNER OVER CONCORDIA, 33-13

North Central college ran over a lighter Concordia Teacher college eleven, 33 to 13, in River Forest yesterday. Bill Shatzer scored the first 21 points for North Central to spoil the Teachers' college homecoming. Lloyd Houden and Ray Ferrington scored a touchdown apiece to complete the North Central scoring. Soch of Concordia passed to Lange for the first touchdown and charged over center in the last quarter for the last score. lineup:

The unscored upon Wright City college team defeated St. Procopius yesterday at Lisle, 19 to 0, before a homecoming crowd of 3,000. Right Half Bob Portman received a forty yard pass from Left Half Bob Hanson in the third quarter for the first score.

Hanson and Al Gritsonis, quarter back, carried the ball across for the next two touchdowns. Truck Tellatin, center, converted on the last play of the game.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 19 [Special].—Compiling a perfect score by winning the first four places, Indiana university's cross country team defeated Iowa, 10 to 26, in a two mile race on the stadium track this morning. The Hoosier runners who counted in the scoring finished as follows: Wayne Tolliver, Campbell Kane, Ed Hedges, and Vern Broertjes. Tolliver's time was 9:39.8. Glen Sparks was the first Hawkeye to finish.

Michigan's Next Rival Whips Princeton.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 19 (AP).—In a warm-up for next Saturday's personal meeting with Michigan's Tom Harman, Francis Reagan today scored five touchdowns for Pennsylvania, the major contributing factors to his team's smashing 46 to 28 victory over Princeton before 58,000 in Franklin field.

In all, Reagan made 31 points, equaling Walter Scull's all-time Penn record. Reagan also threw a touchdown pass on a play that covered sixty-two yards. He carried the ball two hundred yards in 18 tries.

Penn, which next plays undefeated Michigan in Ann Arbor, has scored 147 points in three games. It opened the season with a 51 to 0 triumph over Maryland, and last week defeated Yale, 50 to 7.

Allerdice Princeton Star.

Penn was held to a 7 to 7 tie in the first quarter, drew ahead, 20 to 14, at the half, then scored 19 points in the third quarter, and 7 more in the fourth. David Allerdice, Princeton star from Indianapolis, threw 21 of his team's 41 passes and completed 23. Three of his pitches went for touchdowns. The Tigers completed 25 in all.

Penn's running plays, featuring spinners and reverses, rolled for three hundred and ninety yards. Princeton's running plays were thrown for a net loss of sixteen yards —but the Tigers got their first touchdown on a ninety-eight yard dash by Bob Jackson.

Penn stuck to its system of defending against passes by trying for interceptions, and made good seven times. But on one of those seven the Penn man, catching the ball on the goal line, was tossed back into the end zone for a safety and 2 Princeton points.

Penn Goes on a Rampage.

In the third quarter Penn went sixty-nine, eighty-one, and sixty-eight yards to its scores in a total of 19 plays. The Princeton touchdown in this period required only one play. Allerdice passed seven yards to Bob Peters and he ran seventy-six yards. Line-ups:

Touchdowns—Reagan [5], Allen, Davis, Peters [2], Jackson, Aubrey.

Points after touchdowns—Davis [3], Reagan, Aubrey, Sanbach [substitute for Stanley].

SECONDS TO GO—YALE WINS.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 19 (AP).—Ted Harrison, Yale's brilliant baseball pitcher, never threw a more perfect strike on the diamond than the one he sent to John Reid, substitute end, today. It came with a half minute left to play, and gave the Yale eleven a 13 to 7 triumph over Dartmouth, before 35,000.

Harrison had replaced the injured Ray Anderson only seconds before the climax play. It was a six yard pass down the middle and a two yard dash, simple as all that, but none the less exciting.

Yale scored late in the first period with a seventy-one yard parade which culminated with Anderson going over from the 2 yard line. Hovey Seymour added the extra point from placement. Dartmouth, halted on the 1 yard line after a sixty yard drive in the second, rallied to tie the score in the third. The scoring play was a twenty-one yard pass by Ed Kast, a substitute, to Sophomore Ray Wolfe, who caught the ball on the 20 and streaked along the sidelines. Captain Lou Young place kicked the extra point.

3 TOUCHDOWNS IN SIX MINUTES WIN FOR ST. NORBERT.

Waukesha, Wis., Oct. 19.—St. Norbert's college of De Pere, Wis., rallied in the final quarter to defeat Carroll college today, 26 to 10, after trailing 7 to 0, at the half. The De Pere Knights have scored all their touchdowns this season in the second half to win three out of four games.

LeRoy Floriano, St. Norbert half back, scored the first three touchdowns on runs of twenty-two, fifty-four, and forty-two yards. Ed Feser, substitute back, plunged two yards for the Knights' last score.

Lavier Staven plunged over from the 1 foot line for Carroll's touchdown in the first quarter. Steve Reega added the extra point and early in the fourth quarter kicked an eight yard field goal to give Waukesha team a temporary 10 to 7 lead. Three St. Norbert touchdowns came in the last six minutes of play.

EVANSTON SNAPS OAK PARK STRING BY WINNING, 13-7

Champions Lose 1st Game in Three Years.

Oak Park High school's long string of football victories finally was broken yesterday. The Suburban league champions, who had gone thru 37 games without defeat, lost to Evanston, 13 to 7, on a blocked punt in the third quarter on Evanston's field.

Tied only twice in the victory campaign which started three years ago, Oak Park fumbled on its own 21 yard line in the final minutes of the first quarter to pave the way for Evanston's first touchdown. Evanston capitalized on the opportunity, marching to the 2 yard line, whence Eugene Quasniewski, who replaced John Winter at left half back, plunged over on the first play of the second period.

Oak Park Ties Score.

Late in the same quarter, Oak Park tied the score. John Zielinski, who went in for John Wayne at right half back, fumbled on Evanston's 10 yard line. The ball rolled across the goal line, and Richard Jelinek, Oak Park left guard, fell on it for the tying touchdown.

Jim Dewar, Oak Park's star left half back, attempted to punt in the third period. The kick was blocked by Dick Hebson, Evanston left guard, and recovered over the goal line for a touchdown by Fred Lange, Evanston right end. The triumph was Evanston's third straight in Suburban league competition. Lineups:

OAK PARK [7].		EVANSTON [13].

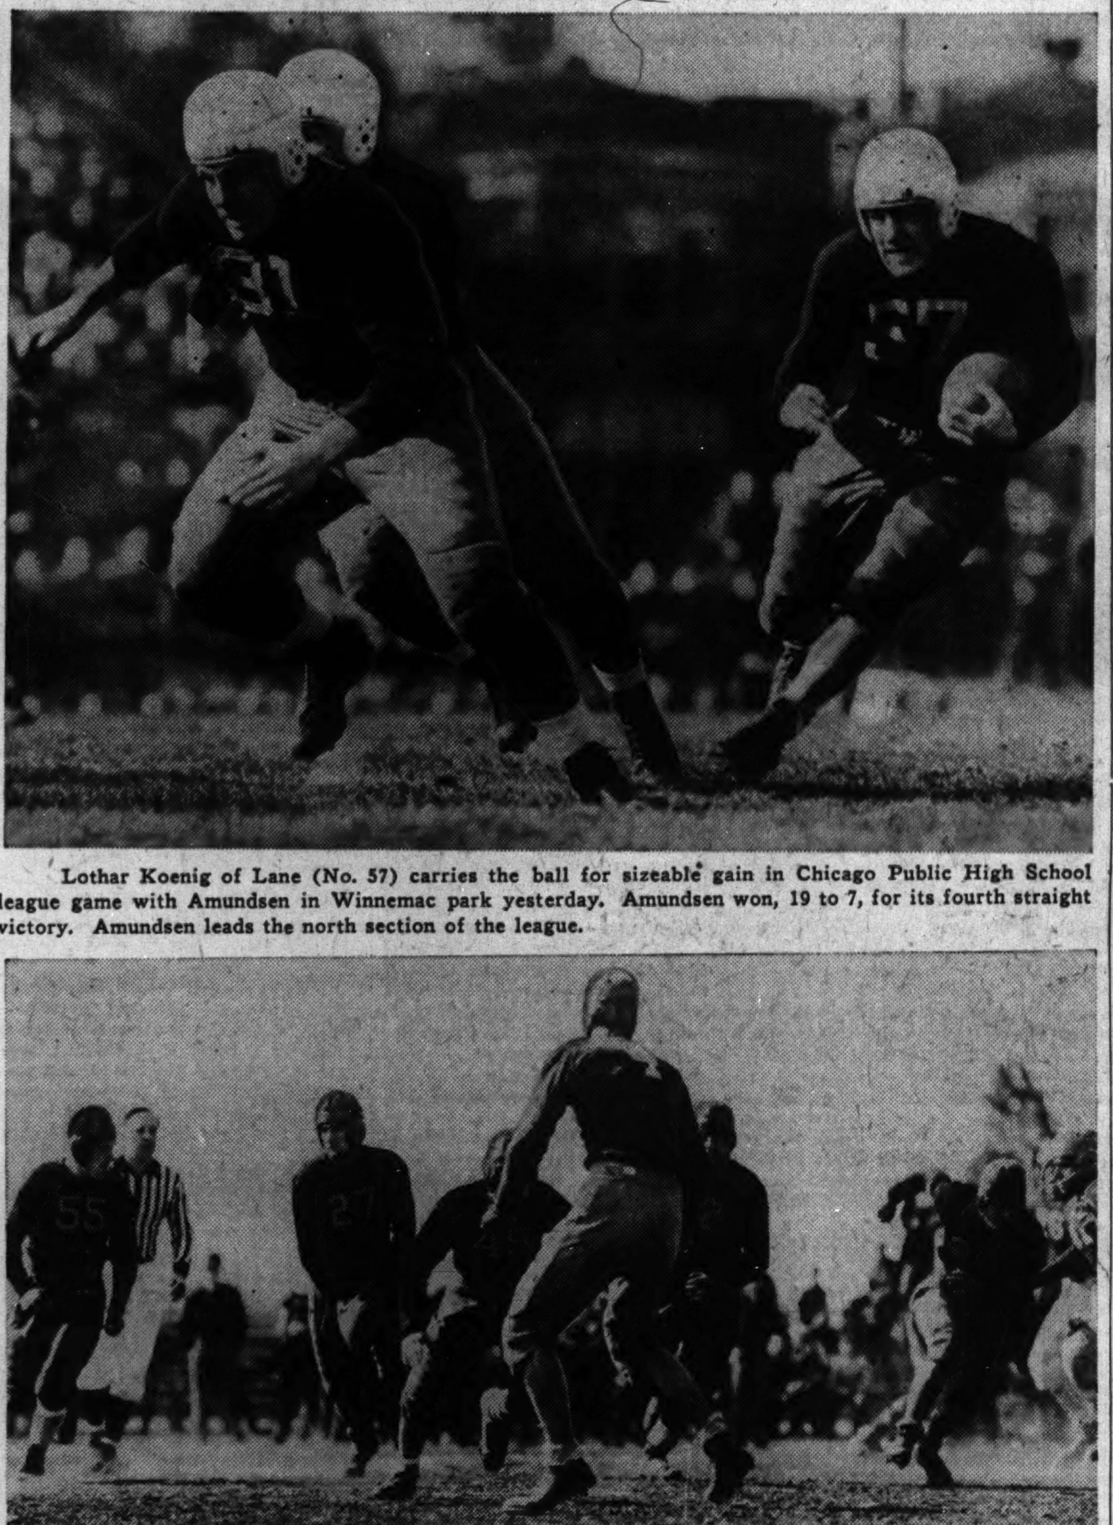
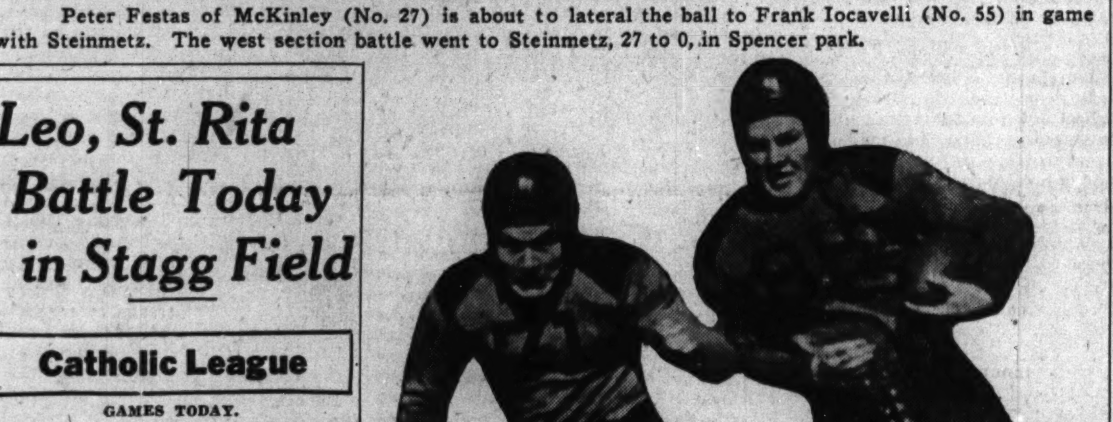
There's Thrill in Football in Prep League, Too



Lothar Koenig of Lane (No. 57) carries the ball for sizeable gain in Chicago Public High School league game with Amundsen in Winnemac park yesterday. Amundsen won, 19 to 7, for its fourth straight victory. Amundsen leads the north section of the league.



Peter Festas of McKinley (No. 27) is about to lateral the ball to Frank Iocavelli (No. 55) in game with Steinmetz. The west section battle went to Steinmetz, 27 to 0, in Spencer park.

Leo, St. Rita Battle Today in Stagg Field

Catholic League

GAMES TODAY.

Leo vs. St. Rita, Stagg field, 1:30 p. m.
Loyola vs. Catholic High, Joliet, 2 p. m.
Fenwick vs. De La Salle, St. Rita field, 2 p. m.
St. Philip vs. St. Ignatius, St. Philip field, 2 p. m.
De Paul vs. Weber, Winnemac park, 2 p. m.
St. Mel vs. St. George, Evanston, 2 p. m.

Leo and St. Rita, two south side elevens with notions of taking Mount Carmel's place as football champion of the Chicago Catholic High School league, will come together this afternoon in Stagg field, 57th street and University avenue, in the 15th annual Sisters of Mercy benefit game. Thirty thousand will watch the contest, which will start at 1:30 o'clock.

Leo will be making its fifth appearance in the charity series, which has brought together professional, collegiate, and prep elevens since 1926, when the Kansas City Cowboys defeated the Chicago Cardinals, 7 to 2. With the exception of 1936, when Marquette university won from St. Louis university, 32 to 6, members of the Catholic league have played the principal rôles since 1930.

Unbeaten Teams Clash.

Leo, coached by A. L. [Whitey] Cronin, has triumphed in three of its four games in the series, being held to a 6 to 6 tie by St. Rita in the other contest last year. Both teams this season have revealed considerable strength, St. Rita being unbeaten and untied in five games, while Leo has won four and played a 6 to 6 tie with De La Salle.

Supporters of both elevens are counting upon two speedy ball carriers. Leo will present Henry [Babe] Baronowski, quarter back, who scored two touchdowns against Fenwick last week, and St. Rita hopes to see Bill Ruby, junior left half back, go streaking down the field as he has done in five other games this season.

Five Other League Games.

Five other league contests are scheduled this afternoon. Loyola will travel to Joliet to meet Catholic High; Fenwick will oppose De La Salle in St. Rita field; St. Philip will oppose St. Ignatius in St. Philip field; De Paul faces Weber in Winnemac park, and St. Mel will play St. George in Evanston.

The Leo-St. Rita probable starting lineups follow:

LEO.		ST. RITA.
Naugzemis	L.E.	Ambrose
Madigan	L.T.	Hafner
Lauro	L.G.	O'Shaughnessy
O'Shea	C.	Rees
Trant	R.G.	Cross
Carroll [Capt.]	R.T.	Frenette
Kunka	R.E.	Fitzgerald
Barnowski	Q.B.	[Capt.] Liebner
Hanlon	L.H.	Ruby
Richter	R.H.	Ivers
Kelly	F.B.	Sims

Referee—Frank McCarthy [Marquette]. Umpire—John Cella [De Paul]. Head linesman—Abe Glick [Chicago].

Fort Wayne North Beats Culver in Cross-Country

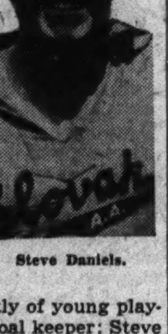
Culver, Ind., Oct. 19 [Special].—North Side High of Fort Wayne defeated Culver Military academy in a cross country meet here this afternoon, 15 to 40.

Bob Richter (left), senior right half back, and Bob Kelly, sophomore full back, members of Leo High school's football team, give an exhibition of their running ability which they hope to repeat this afternoon when the south siders meet St. Rita in Stagg field in the 15th annual Sisters of Mercy charity game. The teams tied, 7 to 7, in last year's contest.

Challenge Cup Soccer Series Opens Today

BY OFFSIDE.

The opening game of the 1940 National Open Challenge Cup soccer series takes place this afternoon in Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue, when the Slovaks meet the Olympias in a first round match.



Steve Daniels.

The Slovaks, since gaining promotion to the major division of the International league, are still undefeated. Their best performance was to hold the champion Swedes to a tie. Outstanding in their team, composed mostly of young players, is Joseph Dick, goal keeper; Steve Daniels, left full back, and Fred Vagovsky, center forward.

The Olympias, one of the oldest teams in the west, will have Joe Weirer and A. Padalik back in the lineup today, along with the veteran G. Kratochvil in goal. They should give the Slovaks, who are favored to reach the second round, a hard 90 minutes.

The International league offers a full schedule of games. The champion Swedish Americans face a hard test when they meet the American Nickeloids. The Vikings, who have signed Alex Robb of the Manhattans, will oppose Hansa.

Austin High, which this season is presenting a new touchdown specialist in Capt. Pete Maggos, full back, and Amundsen, surprise eleven in the north division, continued toward sectional titles in the Public School league yesterday. Austin, with Maggos scoring three touchdowns, routed Foreman, 33 to 6, at Roosevelt road and Central avenue, while Amundsen won its fourth consecutive game, defeating Lane Tech, 19 to 7, in Winnemac park.

The Austin victory over Foreman while Crane Tech was being held to a 7 to 7 tie by Schurz gave Austin undisputed possession of first place in the west section. Austin now has won three contests but was tied by Crane last week. Maggos scored the three touchdowns against Foreman on runs of thirty, seventy, and fifteen yards. Amundsen lead Lane Tech, 6 to 0, at the half and added two more touchdowns in the last quarter, one by Bill Johnson, left half back, on a seventy yard run.

Roosevelt, which was deadlocked with Amundsen in the north zone, suffered its first defeat, losing to Senn, 13 to 0, in Loyola stadium. Morgan Park of the south section and Lindblom of the central remained undefeated in four games, the former whipping Bowen, 14 to 6, at 83d street and Yates avenue, and Lindblom crushing Farragut, 44 to 0, in Normal stadium. LAWRENCE WINS 1ST CONFERENCE VICTORY, 19 TO 6

Appleton, Wis., Oct. 19 [Special].—Clyde Rhodes, 147 pound sophomore half back from Mooseheart, Ill., sparked Lawrence college to a 19 to 6 victory over Monmouth on Whiting field this afternoon. It was Lawrence's first midwest conference triumph.

Rhodes punted, passed, and ran the Vikings into position time and again, scoring the final touchdown from the 10 yard line during the last minute.

After Bloomer of Monmouth ran thirty yards on the opening play of the game, Nencki of Lawrence intercepted a pass and ran it from the Lawrence 10 to the Monmouth 45. A pass, Rhodes to Stuart, took it to the 15. On the fifth play, Co-Captain Kaemmer plunged over. Nencki kicked for the point.

The second Lawrence touchdown came on a twenty yard pass into the end zone, Nencki to Stuart, just before the half ended. Monmouth made it a game by coming from behind in the third quarter and going the length of the field to score on a short pass and run of twenty yards, Adams to Kauzlarich.

Pullman Eleven Beats Marmion Academy, 25-7

Pullman Technical High school's football team yesterday defeated Marmion Military academy of Aurora, 25 to 7, on the Pullman Tech field. Pullman Tech led at the end of the half, 7 to 0. Lineups:

SPOTTING THE PINS

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

Roy Kulow, out of competition until two weeks ago because of an injured wrist, set two new individual records in the North West Traveling league, with a 289 game and 711 series. His team, the Keeley Beers, scored a triple over Faetz & Son and went into the league lead. North Center also set two records, hitting 1,108 in the middle game of a 3,198 series, good for a full set victory over Litzinger Motors. North Town, with 3,059, won two from West Ridge.

Kruse Service stations were victims of the Budweisers' [Gold Coast] hottest night of the season Thursday, losing three games when the Buds rolled 3,245 on games of 1,064, 1,065, 1,116 in the Playdium Major. George Calder set a Playdium record with 266, 236, 235—737. Sam Paulson got 610, Paul Marian, 619; Art Temple, 626, and Lucky Ploch, 654. Other than the Buds' total [also a Pladium record], the Kruses' 2,955 was the top score bowled in the ten-team league.

Challenger, Streamliner, and Northwestern Limited scored shutouts in North Western railway league competition, Challenger keeping the lead with ten won and two lost. Streamliner climbed into a second place tie with The Forty-Niner, which dropped two to Portland Rose.

Sunday division of the Classic league bowls at Clark-Wilson recreation, 4533 North Clark street, at 8 o'clock tonight. Schedule and standings:

Blatz Beers vs. Pabst Blue Ribbons; Koenig Brau vs. Schlitz; Monarch Beers vs. Ambrosia; Ruppert Knickerbockers vs. Michelobs.

	W.	L.	Ave.		W.	L.	Ave.
Pabst	13	5	1,009	Michelob	8	10	980
KoenigB.	11	7	1,001	Ruppert	7	11	975
Monarch	11	7	990	Schlitz	6	12	943
Blatz	11	7	984	Ambrosia	5	13	940

The Maxwells scored a triple over the Watts quintet to take the lead by one game in the Chicago Tribune Nite-Hawk league on a record of 12 games won out of 18 rolled. Emil Koop, leadoff, paced the Maxwells with the highest score of his career, 651, accumulated on games of 216, 223, 212. . . . Hyde Park holds its individual handicap sweeper next Saturday. First of 20 prizes is $50. . . . American Glass won three from Millers Nationals in the Insurance league, but could hardly help it. The Glass team's siege gun, Jules Sowa, piled in 224, 244, 247—715. George Hoffman's 603 led Loyalty Group to a three way triumph over Continental Casualty, Western Adjustment took a full set from Aetna, despite Leo Garbarek's 617, and Pacific National, London and Lancashire, and America Fore won two each from Zurich, H. H. Herbst, and Youngberg-Carlson, respectively.

Leo's Average Moves Up and Up.

Leo Faetz has served almost entirely as nonplaying captain of the Monarch Beers, but possibly it would be as well for the Monarchs if he had kept right on shooting. In the North End Traveling league, Leo has run his average to 222, having added five points to it last week on a 733 series while his team, the Chapin & Gores, were winning a full set from De Luxe Recreation. Koenig Brau hit high series, 3,143, for two out of three over the Shambergers despite the latters' 3,112. Pepsi-Cola, Trophy Beers, and Budweiser swept their series with the Jolly Jacks, Fox De Luxe, and Samuelson's Kids, respectively. Tomorrow night's schedule:

Pepsi-Colas vs. Chapin & Gore at Faetz & Son, 7 p. m.; Koenigs vs. Samuelson's Kids at Samuelson's Arcade, 7 p. m.; De Luxe Recreation vs. Trophy Beers at Willow, 7 p. m.; Schambergers vs. Fox De Luxe at Kaadland, 7 p. m.; Budweisers vs. Jolly Jacks at Monte Cristo, 7:30 p. m.

The Carltons, an unsponsored team, won a set from the Dr. Kroms to take the lead in the Beverly Major, passing the Edens who dropped two to the Strachan Coals. The Dannes won three from Phil Smidt & Son to gain a second place tie with the Edens. Summers Florists, Hart Undertakers, and Ivanhoe also swept their series. Carl Moore had high series, 689, including a 267 game. Other 600 series:

William Kotil, 657; Frank Mansfield, 646; Harry Bland, 637; Marion Kruzich, 635; Frank Nemecek, 635; Rudy Konar, 634; Kimmy Kintz, 633; Ed Scesny, 620; Alex Arvia, 615; Ed Pollack and Joe Fliger, 614; Roy Wagner and Harry Heermans, 605; Fred Mathis, 603, and Jim Keating, George Strachan, and Elmer Broderdorf, 602.

House league, together with a mixed league and two other circuits have made the first week of activity at Bowling Lanes, 5221 Broadway, a success. Laura Stellmacher is instructor at the new establishment. Young Jack Samuelson is manager. Tomorrow's schedule in the Windy City Major:

Burlington Zephyrs vs. Vogel Bros.; Gills vs. Nemecek Tailors; Houcek Senators vs. J. M. Kralovec & Sons; Reichman Jewelers vs. Betinis Boosters; O'Keefe Coals vs. Furman Funerals; None Betters vs. Budweisers; Blue Rock Beverages vs. Quality Laundries; Mineralites vs. Bireley's Beverages.

Ray Hulquist continued to batter the pins at Hyde Park by pounding out a 666 series Wednesday. He now averages 215. Ed Wietecki with a 625 series and Warf Brewer, 621, trailed him last week.

Notes About Women's Scores.

The Chicago Women's Bowling association will hold its first executive board meeting of the season in Mario's restaurant Wednesday, at 5:30 p. m. Plans will be made for the city tournament, to be held in January. . . . More than 2,000 women are bowling each week, of whom 500 are members of leagues, the report of the Lawrence Bowl's first six weeks of activity shows.

Rovick Bowling shoes, Congress league defending champions, scored a triple over a men's team, the Blake Monuments of the South Shore Major league, in an exhibition. Given a 75 pin handicap, the Rovicks rolled 990, 1,007, 954—2,951 to 978, 851, 934—2,763. . . . Logan Square Buicks, W. I. B. C. champions, piled up a 2,935 count in a match with Almaria Walters' team at Playdium. Catherine Fellmeth rolled 553; Tess Morris, 599; Mae Ebert, 537; Nina Van Camp, 641, and Dot Miller, 605, for the Buicks. Their team average is 871.

Johnny Magdus, a first year man and new addition to the Birk Trophy Beers' lineup in the North End Traveling league, has averaged 231 in his last two series to run his average from 185 to 199. . . . White's Streamliners cooled off Clifford's Hot Shots by winning three games and going into a first place tie with Miller's Tax Agents at 11 won and 4 lost in the North Western's "400" league. Gould's Time Freights again entered the picture in a big way, winning two from the Tax Agents and going into a second place tie with the Fitzpatrick's Trafficeers at 10 won and 5 lost. . . . A solo effort, the league's best of the year, wasn't quite sufficient to offset balanced shooting as the leading Samuelson's Kids won two games from the Michelobs in Samuelson's leagues. Fred Wermich hit 717, the circuit's top individual total of the year, and his 278 opening game [the league's second best this season] paced his team to a single victory, but the Kids won the other two. Jack Scott and Ray Janowiak shot 602, Joe Gruenes, 601, Ray Blanck, 600, and Bob Berlinger, 570 for the Kids. Wallace Coals won two from Budweiser, Mee & Ramme two from Fritzi Scheffs, and Butler Papers two from Vogue Tap Rooms. The Kids' 17 won and 4 lost record placed them five games ahead of the runner-up Butlers. . . .

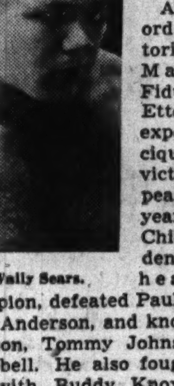
Rheingold Beers moved into the South End Traveling league lead by scoring a triple over the previous leaders, the Bruck-Strachan Coals on the strength of a 3,174 series. E. Plewa, with 247-248-223—718 topped the Rheingolds and his teammate, S. Saric submitted a 289 game and 675 total.

Five Top 600 at Merchandise Mart.

Five major bowlers in The Merchandise Mart league topped 600 during their series Thursday evening. Arnold Rasmussen, Merchandise National Bank, shared high honors with John Dusek, Mart Tower, at 619. James McElligott, Luster's Express, followed with 618; Wendell McClure, Johns-Manville, rolled 613, and Leslie Marsh, Frigidairs, 606. Merchandise Mart Majors held their league lead with a 3 game victory over Frigidaire. They have won 16, lost two.

Sears Ready for 1st Bout in Chicago Ring

Wally Sears, stocky Minersville, Pa., heavyweight, will end training today for his Chicago debut in a 10 round bout against Carl Vinciquerra in Marigold Gardens tomorrow.



Wally Sears.

Altho his record includes victories over Max Marek, Freddy Fiducia, and Al Ettore, Sears is expeted to be Vinciquerra's sixth victim in nine appearances this year. Carl, 1936 Chicagoland Golden Gloves light heavyweight champion, defeated Paul Hartnek and Arne Anderson, and knocked out Jarl Johnson, Tommy Johnson, and Lou Campbell. He also fought draw battles with Buddy Knox and Chuck Crowell.

Mickey Hayes, Milwaukee heavyweight, and Frank Green are opponents in a six round semi-final. Hayes has knocked out Ed Stanley, Bill Peterson, and Flash Roulette in recent weeks. Peterson will return to action in a four round perliminary against Lou Campbell. Additional matches at this distance involve Connie Branski, light heavyweight, also of Milwaukee, and Kelly Kohn and Andy Canal, hard fighting featherweights.

There also will be a professional wrestling show in White City and an amateur athletic card in Illinois Athletic club tomorrow. Ralph Garibaldi is paired with Oki Shikina in the White City headliner. The I. A. C. program will be comprised of six fights and two mat matches.

Ralph [Ruffy] Silverstein, heavyweight wrestler of the west side, has been matched with John Swenski in Rainbo Fronton Wednesday. . . . The first of a series of amateur boxing shows will be presented in White City Wednesday. . . . San Francisco promoters are dickering for a 10 round nontitle contest between Tony Zale, middleweight champion, and Fred Apostoli. . . . A 10 round overweight encounter involving Billy Conn, light heavyweight title holder, and Buddy Knox, scheduled in Cleveland Nov. 11, may be postponed until December.

De Kalb Passes Defeat Oshkosh Eleven, 21 to 7

Oshkosh, Wis., Oct. 19 [Special].—De Kalb [Ill.] Teachers scored a 21 to 7 victory over Oshkosh Teachers today when Toimi Jarvi and Bob Price formed a pass combination which produced three touchdowns. The first De Kalb scores came on forty-seven and sixty yard passes from Jarvi to Price in the opening period.

blew while the ball was in the air. Northwestern had taken too much time for the job. Smith tried again, but this attempt was blocked by Lorenz and it was the Badgers' ball on their 25 yard line. The Badgers, with Paskvan, Hoskins and Miller in action, charged to midfield only to have the tide suddenly change on the pass interception that led to Northwestern's first touchdown.

The ill-fated pass zoomed from the hands of Hoskins into the grasp of Lokanc, who tore up to the Badgers' 33 yard line behind expert blockers. The Badgers apparently weren't expecting Northwestern's next maneuver. The ball was placed in the care of DeCorrevont and in the twinkling of an eye he had launched a long diagonal pass. Chambers was waiting for it on the 12 yard line. There was no one around to disturb him, so he just pranced over the goal and Smith kicked the extra point that made the score 7 to 0.

Big Bill Goes Galloping.

With less than three minutes of the second quarter remaining, Northwestern struck with lightning speed for its next seven points. After working up toward midfield with a Purple punt, the Badgers had to punt. Benson ran the ball back thirteen yards to the Purple's 43. Then he smashed thru for five yards. Gage held De Correvont to two yards and on the next play De Correvont dropped back to pass. No receivers were available, so he tucked the ball under his arm, swung to his right and galloped down the sidelines. He was in the clear after Hasse had blocked out a pair of Badgers on the 25 yard line. Benson's foot provided the extra point.

The Badgers experienced a few happy moments early in the third quarter when they put together their most impressive thrust of the battle. From the 20 yard line, Paskvan hurled himself along twelve yards. McFadzean sprinted for eighteen yards. Paskvan came back to make it first down on Northwestern's 22 in two plays. Paskvan, Hoskins, and McFadzean moved up to the 10 yard line as the period closed. Three plays netted the Badgers only five yards, whereupon Hoskins, trying to pass, was chased back to his 31 yard line before he started the toss that McFadzean snatched out of the air for Wisconsin's touchdown.

Red Breaks Loose.

The Wildcats' third touchdown came in a hurry. It started from Northwestern's 27 yard line where Richards was stopped with Gage's kickoff. Three plays put the Wildcats on their 41 yard line. Hahnenstein slipped around right end and raced fifty-two yards down the field to the 7 yard line where he lost his footing. Benson was stopped, but Hahnenstein followed with six more yards thru right tackle. In the second of two plunges Benson went over. He also kicked the extra point, making the score 21 to 7.

With six minutes of play remaining, Hasse recovered Hoskins' fumble on the Badgers' 32 yard line to set up the fourth touchdown. Benson was the big man in this parade. He smashed for eight, then for four. Five more were added on a Badger penalty. Benson scooted around his right end to the 1 yard line. Hahnenstein shot over the goal, but was recalled, Northwestern having been off side. Hahnenstein tried again and failed, but on a reverse, Chambers galloped wide around left end for the final score. Benson missed the attempt for the extra point.

INDUSTRY GEARS SELF TO FASTER OUTPUT TEMPO

Working Man Gets Share in Upturn.

BY CHARLES GOTTHART.

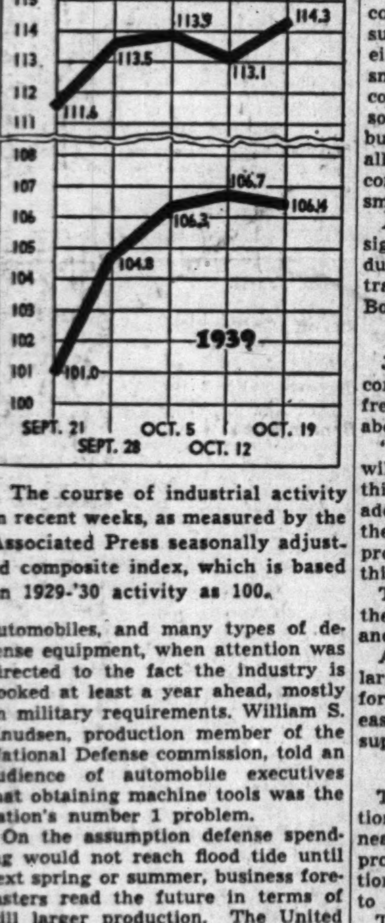
Industry climbed another notch in its race to keep abreast of national defense preparations and normal commercial demands last week, reaching the highest level attained in its almost unbroken rise since last May. Scarcely a branch of business failed to participate in the upswing, and the working man shared in the advance thru increased employment and larger pay rolls, particularly in the big industrial centers.

Heavy engineering construction awards for government and privately owned plants, principally those to turn out defense equipment, were the largest for any week in the history of the nation. Automobiles rolled off assembly lines at the fastest clip of the year, and steel mills stepped up production to virtually equal the record level of last November, when the industry was given its first war inspired stimulus.

Activity Index at Peak.

These and other factors combined to lift the Associated Press index of industrial activity to 114.3 per cent of the 1929-'30 average, returning this barometer to its highest level since September, 1929, when many branches of industry were at historic peaks. The index was at 113.1 in the preceding 1940 week, 111.6 a month ago, and 106.4 a year ago.

Interest of industrial executives was again centered in machine tools, vital in the production of airplanes, automobiles, and many types of defense equipment, when attention was directed to the fact the industry is booked at least a year ahead, mostly on military requirements. William S. Knudsen, production member of the National Defense commission, told an audience of automobile executives that obtaining machine tools was the nation's number 1 problem.



The course of industrial activity in recent weeks, as measured by the Associated Press seasonally adjusted composite index, which is based on 1929-'30 activity as 100.

On the assumption defense spending would not reach flood tide until next spring or summer, business forecasters read the future in terms of still larger production. The United States bureau of agricultural economics in its annual outlook report predicted employment would increase by at least two million persons next year.

Building Contracts Climb.

Engineering News-Record, trade paper of the construction industry, reported the volume of engineering contract awards at $238,793,000, far above the comparable week of 1939 and 31 per cent ahead of the former peak of March, 1930.

The week's automobile assemblies reached nearly 115,000, compared with 108,457 in the preceding period and 70,114 a year earlier. The boost in steel production carried the national average rate to 94.4 per cent of capacity, with a number of individual mills exceeding the average.

Indian summer discouraged buying of winter clothing and retail activities, as a result, tapered off. Wholesale markets, in contrast, were busy taking orders for government and commercial requirements.

Railroad Traffic Lags.

Railroads still had a long way to go to catch up with 1929 freight figures. Total car loadings increased slightly more than is normal for the week, but continued to fall behind a year ago. Stocking up of coal in advance of the Oct. 1 effective date of government price fixing was termed responsible for a lag in coal shipments.

The Associated Press industrial index, which is adjusted for seasonal variations and based on 1929-'30 levels as 100, showed the following comparison:

United States to Smelt Own Supply of Tin

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19 (AP).—Plans for establishment of a tin smelter in this country to produce 18,000 tons of tin a year from Bolivian concentrates were announced tonight by Jesse Jones, federal loan administrator and secretary of commerce.

Jesse Jones.

Jones said the Metals Reserve company, an RFC subsidiary, would either build a smelter itself or contract with some company to build and operate a plant. Virtually all the tin, a vital war metal, that is consumed in the United States is now smelted in England.

A five year contract has been signed, Jones said, with Bolivian producers to provide the tin concentrates. It is guaranteed by the Bolivian government.

Price 48½ Cents a Pound.

Jones said the price for the tin concentrates, after allowing for freight and normal charges, would be about 48½ cents a pound of fine tin.

"It is expected," he said, "that it will cost more to smelt the tin in this country than in England, which added cost, together with refining the tin to a premium standard, will probably bring the price to something over 50 cents per pound."

Tin has been selling currently on the spot metal market at between 51 and 52 cents a pound.

At present, the United States is largely dependent on the East Indies for tin, and developments in the far east have aroused concern that these supplies may be cut off.

Demand Will Increase.

The normal American consumption is about 75,000 tons annually, or nearly four times the amount to be produced by the smelter. In addition, the defense program is expected to increase consumption.

The Metals Reserve company has agreed, Jones said, to release to the British, on their request, as much as 6,000 tons of the Bolivian ore a year, and "to consider requests for a great amount should the British need it."

GREEK VESSEL BRINGS SWISS CARGO TO N. Y.

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—The Mount Taurus, Greek registry steamer laden with several million dollars' worth of Swiss goods, steamed into New York harbor yesterday thru the combined aid of two enemies engaged in a life and death struggle.

Arrangements were made with Italy to ship goods down to Genoa. The merchandise was stowed away under the vigilant eyes of Italian inspectors. Then the Swiss government applied to Britain for a navicert, a kind of passport on the high seas for merchandise not deemed contraband by the British.

Successful completion of the voyage finished another of the bizarre episodes of war. Shipping circles said it was probably the first time on record a vessel docked here laden entirely with Swiss goods.

The merchandise consisted chiefly of Swiss machinery, cotton goods, canned milk and milk products, various kinds of chemicals, felt hats, and watch movements. Part of the cargo was for transshipment to South America.

WAR STIMULATES AMERICAN CHINA, POTTERY MAKING

Most of the European Sources Cut Off.

Stemming of imports from Europe because of the war has resulted in a boom for American makers of china, pottery, glassware, and textiles and in the development of new techniques, a survey of the industry indicated yesterday.

Delivery of china, pottery, and glassware cannot be obtained in many instances for at least three weeks, dealers reported, and in some not for two months. Several manufacturers will not even consider orders until next year.

Some china is still being imported from England, but products from Czecho-Slovakia, France, Holland, Belgium, and Germany have been shut off. The excellence and prices of fine products from these countries are being approached by American producers when quantity output is feasible, but the high cost of labor here prevents hand painting and other manual art, dealers said.

Plants Booked Far Ahead.

H. E. Cuttle, vice president of Grow and Cuttle, Inc., china and pottery dealers, said that during a recent trip thru the east he learned that the Lennox China company, Trenton, N. J., would not consider orders until 1942 and that the Cook Ceramic company, Trenton, could not handle any more this year. The Cook company, moreover, he said, increased its capacity by four times last spring and is planning to double it again.

Glass factories in the Ohio valley also are working at top speed, he said, and the quality and prices of glass produced in sizeable quantities are as good as those of the former Czecho-Slovakian plants.

War Restores Business.

The war has, in effect, restored several American glass companies to business, Percy Wilson, managing director of the Merchandise Mart, reported.

Since the fall of Czecho-Slovakia, he said, the Fenton Art Glass company has found a ready market for its hob nail and spiral glass, both of which it had relinquished to its European competitor years ago after initial development. The Blenko Glass Works had the same experience with its cathedral glass, he said.

Marked improvement in the American made crystal ware has been made since the stream from Czecho-Slovakia which formerly supplied about 80 per cent, has been cut off, Wilson said. Domestic enterprises, however, have not begun the manufacture of the fine glassware with the gold design as produced by Italy, he said.

Little increase in prices of glassware, china, or pottery is expected unless labor costs pull them up, Wilson said.

Chicago Bank Clearings Mount to 417 Millions

The Chicago Clearing House association yesterday reported last week's bank clearings totaled $417,400,000, compared with $242,700,000 in the preceding week and $322,700,000 last year. The report follows:

U. S. Exports Climb 36 Pct. in Year of War

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19 (AP).—United States exports exceeded imports by $1,391,000,000 during the first 12 months of the European war, the commerce department said today. This was the largest margin since 1921.

For the 12 months ending Aug. 31 exports totaled $4,016,000,000 and imports totaled $2,625,000,000. The export total represented an increase of 36.6 per cent over the $2,768,000,000 during the 12 months immediately preceding the war. Imports showed a rise of 23.1 per cent.

Figures for World War.

The department said that during the first year of the world war, United States exports increased 22.3 per cent, reaching $2,883,000,000 and imports declined 13.4 per cent to $1,658,000,000.

Asserting that price advances were not a significant factor in either period, the department said that the increase in exports "represented primarily increases in physical volume."

Cause of Gold Flow.

The heavy margin, it said, was "one of the principal factors operating to produce a wholly unprecedented movement of gold" to this country. The gold inflow aggregated more than $4,000,000,000 during the 12 months.

The United Kingdom took about one-third of America's exports, compared with its usual purchases of about one-sixth. British countries as a whole took nearly two-thirds.

BUILDING TOTAL IN SEPTEMBER IS PEAK SINCE 1929

New York, Oct. 19 [Special].—New business contracted for in the building industry last month established a new high mark for any September since 1929, F. W. Dodge corporation reported today.

Total of contracts awarded in the 37 states east of the Rocky mountains was 7 per cent above a year ago at $347,651,000, reflecting a sharp increase in private construction in face of a small decline in publicly financed building volume.

The survey said the rearmament program again was reflected in the increase in awards for manufacturing buildings. The volume for this class of construction rose from $20,738,000 in September, 1939, to $37,980,000 last month.

Residential building, which amounted to $152,372,000 in September, came within one per cent of the August total, which was the highest recorded for any month since July, 1929.

Detroit Rex Products Co. Opens Chicago Warehouse

The Detroit Rex Products company, manufacturer of industrial solvents and dry cleaning preparations, yesterday announced the opening of a new Chicago office and warehouse at 1166 West Cermak road. The company formerly had its office at 201 North Wells street and used public warehouses. S. B. Crooks, regional manager, said new facilities are being planned in other midwestern cities.

WESTINGHOUSE AIR BRAKE NET PROFIT DOUBLED

Hercules Powder Earnings Rise.

September quarter earnings of the Westinghouse Air Brake company were double those of last year, shareholders were informed in a report issued yesterday. The report did not indicate to what extent earnings have been swelled by national defense orders awarded the company.

Hercules Powder company, another of the many sharing in the armament program, also announced a substantial boost in profits notwithstanding increased federal taxes affecting all businesses. General Foods corporation reported smaller net earnings.

Westinghouse Air Brake earnings amounted to $1,305,287 for the quarter, equal to 41 cents a share, compared with $630,249, or 20 cents a share, in the comparable 1939 period.

Blackmore Made Chairman.

George A. Blackmore, president, was elected chairman of the board to succeed the late Charles A. Rowan.

Hercules Powder, whose plants in various parts of the country are operated from executive headquarters in Wilmington, Del., announced net profits for the first nine months of 1940 were $3,744,236. The figure was after deduction of federal taxes which increased to $2,901,498, and was equal to $2.54 a share on common stock. Earnings for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1939, were $3,646,561, or $2.47 a share.

C. M. Chester, chairman of General Foods, New York City, told shareholders this year's earnings have been "adversely affected by increased taxes and foreign exchange losses."

General Foods Profit Dips.

September quarter net profits applicable to the common stock were $2,892,361, after additional taxes calculated in an amount equal to 5 cents a share, compared with $4,389,832 a year ago. Earnings per share were 55 and 84 cents in the respective periods.

Two Chicago organizations announced improved results. Interlake Iron corporation, one of the largest of the nation's pig iron producers, reported September quarter profit of $269,095, before provision for federal taxes. In the corresponding period of last year, there was a net loss of $311,385.

Chicago Railway Equipment company announced third quarter net profit of $31,652 after taxes, against $29,828 in the three months ended with September, 1939.

Du Pont Plant at Wilmington to Be Larger

Plans for enlarging the projected $24,800,000 ammunition plant at Wilmington, Ill., were disclosed yesterday in Washington, D. C., by the war department. The announcement said that negotiations are now in progress to increase the contemplated size of the plant—to be located about 20 miles southwest of Joliet. It was indicated that the original planned size may be increased by two or possibly three times.

The original announcement said that about $10,800,000 would be spent on a powder plant and about $14,000,000 on an ammunition loading plant. It is to be operated under contract by E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co.

Order More Explosives.

The war department announced yesterday that it let a contract with the du Pont company for $11,060,000 in high explosives to be manufactured at Wilmington. On Sept. 20 a $6,700,000 order was placed, or a total of $17,760,000. The new order was for TNT, DNT and tetryl.

Announcement that the Wilmington plant, which is under construction, is to be expanded follows a war department statement on Friday that the huge smokeless powder plant at Charlestown, Ind., is to be more than twice the size originally contemplated.

The war department also announced that contracts are being placed totaling more than $10,700,000 for enlarging the plants of the Boeing Airplane company at Seattle, Wash., and Wichita, Kas. Cost of the additions to the Seattle plant, where four motor army bombers are made, is to be $7,368,849, and the new additions at the Wichita plant, where the Stearman division functions, will cost $3,367,943.

Has Purchase Option.

The contract provides that the company provide the funds for construction and the government will repay the construction cost over a five year period. At the end of the period the company has the option of buying the property at cost, less depreciation, or thru a negotiated price. If the company does not take the property title will revert to the government.

Other contracts totaling $6,775,704 were awarded by the war department for the air corps and the ordnance department. In this group the Magnaflux corporation, Chicago, was given a $180,962 order for magnetic inspection apparatus.

Two Chicago companies shared in $3,342,194 in orders for ordnance, mechanical and construction equipment. They were Northwest Engineering company, power shovels, $114,795, and Mall Tool company, bandsaws, $211,500.

Baltimore & Ohio Road Purchases 750 Gondolas

Huntington, W. Va., Oct. 19 (AP).—R. W. Ward, general manager of the Huntington plant of the American Car and Foundry company, announced today the Baltimore and Ohio railroad had placed a $2,500,000 order for 750 70 ton flat bottom gondolas.

ASSAILS CLOSED SHOP AS STEP TO JOB MONOPOLY

Shoup Argues It Leads to Caste System.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 19 [Special].—The closed shop is a step toward establishing a monopoly in employment against the public welfare and leads ultimately to the caste system which controls India, Paul Shoup, president of the Merchants and Manufacturers' association, said in an address today before the Illinois association.

He said "if our form of government is to survive it will require the intelligent interest of every citizen from the viewpoint of the welfare of the country as a whole and not of groups." He declared the denial of the right of a man to work under a condition of his own choosing was an infringement upon his personal liberty and a check on individual initiative, enterprise, and energy.

Often Quote Lincoln.

Shoup said that labor union leaders often quote what Abraham Lincoln said in his first message to congress about prior rights of labor, but that they never quote the paragraph in the message that "applies to hundreds of thousands of men who are trying to meet pay rolls, and to those who have risen to places of great responsibility in industry from the dollar a day class."

"Lincoln said that the prudent, penniless beginner saves surplus with which to buy tools or land for himself, then labors on his own account and at length hires another beginner to help him," he quoted:

Opens Way to All.

"'This is the just and generous and prosperous system which opens the way to all, gives hope to all, and consequent energy and progress and improvement of conditions for all.'

"Let them beware of surrendering a political power, which they already possess, and if surrendered will surely be used to close the door of advancement against such as they and to fix new disabilities and burdens upon them until all liberty shall be lost."

CHA FILES SUITS TO CONDEMN 80 NORTH SIDE SITES

The Chicago Housing authority announced yesterday that it has filed condemnation proceedings against a number of property owners in the area of the proposed near north side housing project. The properties are located in the area bounded by Chicago avenue, Oak street, the alley to the east of Larrabee street, and Hudson avenue—a total area of about 18 acres.

"We are instituting condemnation proceedings to obtain some 80 parcels on which we have no options," Edgal L. Schnadig, chairman of the land acquisition committee and treasurer of the CHA, said. "A majority of the owners in the district have agreed to sell their properties and the remainder will be secured thru condemnation."

BIG LOOP BANKS' SHARES MORE WIDELY OWNED

Stockholder Total Rises to 15,630.

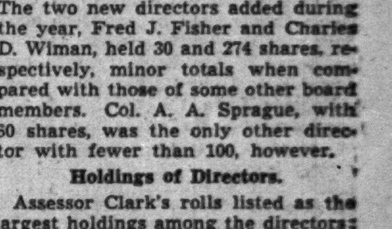
The number of shareholders of common stock in the six big loop banks increased substantially during the year ended April 1, 1940. More than 930 names were added to the list, bringing the aggregate to more than 15,630. These facts were shown by the bank assessment rolls for personal property taxes made public yesterday by John S. Clark, Cook county assessor.

Few major changes occurred in the control of large blocks of stock. Most of these big holdings remained in the hands of a relatively small number of families. Some bank directors added to their holdings, and a few reduced their totals.

Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, the shares of which are most widely held, accounted for the biggest boost in the number of holders. This bank listed 10,057 stockholders on April 1, or 895 more than the 9,162 a year ago. Ownership of the First National bank expanded to 4,004 holders from 3,962.

Some Are Closely Held.

The usual concentrated holdings of the four other big loop banks contrasted with the broad ownership of Continental and First National. The American National bank had 58 holders, four less than in 1939; the Harris Trust and Savings bank, 353, the same as last year; the Northern Trust company, 540, or 10 more than a year ago, and the City National Bank and Trust company, 622, four less than in 1939.



Walter J. Cummings (left), Mrs. Elizabeth McElwee (center), and J. R. Leavell are holders of big banks' stocks.

The bank assessment rolls for personal property taxes in Cook county are compiled as of April 1 each year. The tax on bank stockholders is indirect. It is paid by the banks. The assessed values on which the tax is paid this year and the tax rate have not yet been determined.

Biggest change among the directors of the Continental bank was the disposal of 300 shares by James R. Leavell, reducing his holdings to 340. The two new directors added during the year, Fred J. Fisher and Charles D. Wiman, held 30 and 274 shares, respectively, minor totals when compared with those of some other board members. Col. A. A. Sprague, with 60 shares, was the only other director with fewer than 100, however.

Holdings of Directors.

Assessor Clark's rolls listed as the largest holdings among the directors: W. J. Cummings, chairman, 5,019; J. Q. Adams, 4,000; Edward Landsberg, 4,250, and Edward A. Cudahy Jr., 3,375. All were the same as a year ago. In addition, Mrs. Lillian G. Cummings held 500 shares, and the Cummings' three sons, Arthur J., Edward W., and Walter J. Jr. had 200 each.

Among the families which held the largest blocks of Continental stock were the Field, Armour, Swift, Spalding, McCormick, McElwee, Mitchell, Adams, Borland, and Cowles groups.

Trustees under the will of Marshall Field, who died in 1906, held 13,576 shares, and those under the will of Joseph N. Field, 7,407. Stanley Field had 4,881 shares, the same as 1939. Marshall Field III., a director of the bank, maintained his personal holdings at 572 shares. His third wife, Ruth Pruyn Phipps Field, was listed for 2,000 shares, compared with 8,704 in 1939. Marshall Field IV. had 2,000 shares, and trustees under agreement for Bettina Field, 2,000.

Woman Has 16,854 Shares.

Mrs. Elizabeth S. McElwee, widow of Robert H. McElwee, lumber dealer, was recorded as the individual owning the largest number of Continental shares. She had 16,854. The trustees under the will and a trust agreement

STOCK MARKET UNEVEN AFTER WEEK'S UPTURN

Losses Exceed Advances by Small Margin.

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—After a week of generally rising prices, the stock market today turned irregular. Quiet strength was exhibited by some specialties, but losses of fractions to a point or so were slightly in the majority at the close.

Selling was never urgent and the ticker tape frequently loafed, but efforts to boost leading steels, rails, and aircrafts met only half-hearted response.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined 0.1 point at 44.7, but on the week retained a net advance of 0.7. The mild relapse on balance came in the wake of four successive upturns. At the finish today the composite was just about where it was a month ago.

Some Expect Setback.

Some traders were inclined to stand aside in view of the thought that the list might be due for a modest technical setback following the lengthy forward tilt. Inspiration from the war news or the home election campaign apparently was lacking, altho continued favorable business prospects again served to prop sentiment.

Shares on the offside in the two hour proceedings included United States Steel, Bethlehem, Crucible Steel, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, J. I. Case, Boeing, United Aircraft, Union Carbide, New York Central, Great Northern, Anaconda, and du Pont.

Among gainers were American Telephone, General Motors, Loew's, Kennecott, United States Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, Murray corporation, Nash-Kelvinator, New York Shipbuilding, and Paramount.

Taxes Are Influence.

One flaw in market influences was found in latest corporation earnings. These generally disclosed large third quarter improvement in gross earning over last year but reflected increased inroads into profits by higher federal taxes.

Prices were erratic Monday, but from then on the direction was upward. Tension over far eastern affairs eased, altho question marks surrounding the latest shift of the axis powers in the Balkans proved a mild buying handicap.

PROFIT SELLING CHECKS GRAIN FUTURES RISE

Profit taking sales had a depressing effect on the grain markets yesterday. Wheat futures held within a range of about 1 cent a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade. An early advance almost equaled the seasonal high prices, but the upturn was lost later. Closing trades were ⅛ cent higher to ⅛ cent lower.

Corn finished ⅛ to ⅝ cent lower, the latter on July, while oats were unchanged to ¼ cent higher, the latter on May. Rye was ⅛ to ½ cent lower. Commission houses were good buyers of soy beans and the market developed independent strength and closed ½ to 1¼ cents higher.

Reports from the southwest and northwest said there was no evidence of a sustained selling movement among farmers, despite recent price gains, and the belief prevails that an advance of several cents more will be needed to induce farmers to redeem grain pledged under government loans.

First National Shares Jump $19 in Last Week

Sharp advances marked trading in stocks of the larger Chicago banks last week. First National shares jumped 19 points, Harris Trust 18 points and Northern Trust 13 points. American National and City National showed net gains of 5 points, while Continental Illinois was 3½ points higher. La Salle National rose 2 points and Chicago Title and Trust a point.

COPPER AND LEAD REACH NEW HIGHS AGAIN LAST WEEK

Several Other Staples End with Lower Prices.

Copper and lead prices again reached new 1940 highs and hides continued a steep climb last week against a background of national defense requirements. Other commodity futures markets failed to extend the preceding week's broad advances and either lost ground or idled in slow trade.

Silk, which earlier in the week established a new peak, and rubber declined as traders became less apprehensive over the far eastern situation.

Tin Futures Are Weaker.

Copper futures closed the week at 11.68 cents a pound in the December deliveries for a net gain of 0.31 cent. The new high set earlier was 11.74 cents. Lead futures gained 0.13 cent a pound to 5.28 cents in December contracts. The rise began when the cash price was raised ¼ cent a pound to 5.35 cents, East St. Louis basis, the highest since September, 1939, and the second boost this month.

Tin futures were off ⅝ cent a pound at 51 cents in December contracts and the cash market eased from 52 to 51.62½ cents. Other cash metals held firm.

Sugar Ends Unchanged.

Hides pushed ahead 1.7 cents a pound to 12.85 cents in the December contracts. Wool tops futures slipped ½ cent a pound to $1.12 in December. The cash market held at the season's high of $1.25.

Domestic sugar futures finished unchanged and Santos coffee dipped 0.08 cent a pound to 5.74 in December. Cocoa and cottonseed oil advanced moderately.

The Dow-Jones commodity futures index closed the week at 55.41 for a gain of 0.98. The Associated Press weighted wholesale price index of 35 staples closed at 74.94, an advance of 0.74 for the week.

ILLINOIS WAGES AND JOBS CLIMB ABOVE AVERAGE

September Is Fifth Month to Show Such Gains.

Making a better than average showing for the fifth consecutive month, employment in Illinois gained 1.5 per cent between Aug. 15 and Sept. 15, and pay rolls expanded 2.6 per cent, Martin P. Durkin, Illinois department of labor director, announced yesterday. His survey was based on reports from 6,558 manufacturing and nonmanufacturing companies covering 659,851 wage earners.

Compared with a year ago, the number of employés on Sept. 15 was 1.2 per cent larger and their wage payments were 11.5 per cent larger, while a comparison with records of September, 1938, shows gains of 16.6 and 26.1 per cent, respectively, Durkin said.

The average employment upturn of the preceding 17 years was 1.2 per cent for the Aug. 15 to Sept. 15 period. The average increase in wage payments was 0.3 per cent. The gain in employment from April to September, 1940, was estimated at 6.2 per cent; that in pay rolls 9.4 per cent.

As in preceding months, the best comprehensive showing was made in the manufacturing groups, a reflection of the increasing activity of general industry. Average weekly earnings of manufacturing employés were computed at $27.97; those of nonmanufacturing workers $27.41, and the combined average at $27.79, 28 cents higher than the August average.

Chicago Gain is Lower.

Durkin announced increases of 1.4 per cent in employment and 2.3 per cent in pay rolls on the basis of reports from 3,896 reporting establishments in Chicago. He said substantial gains were shown by manufacturers of stone, clay, and glass products, metals and machinery, transportation equipment, wood products, rubber products, chemicals, textiles, and food, as well as the wholesale and retail trade groups.

Durkin announced that in line with the recommendation of the central statistical board at Washington, D. C., the Illinois department has adopted the five years 1935 thru 1939 as a base period for the computation of employment data. Formerly indices were based on the years 1925 thru 1927.

'NON-COM' TO GET HIS CHEVRONS TO TUNE OF 663,000

An idea of the importance of noncommissioned officers for the national defense program may be gathered from an invitation for bids on chevrons received by the Illinois Manufacturers' association from the Philadelphia quartermaster's depot, United States army.

These sleeve insignias are required as follows:

Master sergeant [first grade]	5,000 pairs
First sergeant [second grade]	1,000 pairs
Technical sergeant [second grade]	8,000 pairs
Staff sergeant [third grade]	62,000 pairs
Sergeant [fourth grade]	92,000 pairs
Corporal [fifth grade]	45,000 pairs
Private, first class [sixth grade]	450,000 pairs

BIG LOOP BANKS' SHARES MORE WIDELY OWNED

Stockholder Total Rises to 15,630.

of Robert H. McElwee, who died in 1927, were listed for 6,984 shares. Another item for the trustee of William M. McElwee and Annie Harvey McElwee accounted for an additional 400.

More than 12,000 shares were held by the Borland family. Harriet B. Borland had 6,111; Dorothy Fuller Borland, 2,650, and Chauncey B. Borland, 2,450. Other members of the family had holdings.

About 11,000 shares were held by the Armours. Allison V. Armour was listed for 2,908 shares; Gwendolin C. Armour, 2,625; Lester Armour, 2,089; Laurance H. Armour, 350; Lacy Armour, 1,200; Allison Armour II., 833; Laurance Armour, 665, and Norman Armour, 500.

Another of the largest individual holders was Guy H. Mitchell, brother of John J. Mitchell, late Chicago banker, with 15,000 shares. Hortense M. Acton, also a member of the Mitchell family, was recorded for 11,589 shares.

The Ball family of Muncie, Ind., held only 2,965 shares this year, compared with more than 7,900 on April 1, 1939. Largest blocks in the Swift family total of about 5,000 shares were owned by T. Philip Swift, 3,232 shares, and Edward F. Swift Jr., 1,000 shares.

First National Holders.

Among the directors of the First National bank, R. Douglas Stuart made the largest change in his holdings, raising his total to 312 with the addition of 40 shares. Bernard E. Sunny listed 150 shares, 30 more than last year; Edward E. Brown, president, 387, or 5 more; Ralph Budd, 50, or 20 more; James B. Forgan, 537, or 12 less; Bentley G. McCloud, 82, or 20 more; and John P. Oleson, 204, or 6 less.

Thomas J. Carney, the new director, was recorded as holding 10 shares. Sixteen board members held their interest in the bank's 300,000 outstanding shares unchanged. Among these were Augustus A. Carpenter with 936, Ira N. Morris with 2,488, Albert H. Wetten with 898, and Harry A. Wheeler with 751.

Robert Allerton continued to hold the largest number of shares individually. He had 5,724, the same as a year ago. The Oliver family was listed for more than 8,000 shares. James Oliver II., Gertrude Oliver Cunningham, Joseph D. Oliver Jr., and Susan Catherine Oliver, as trustees, care of H. Gail Davis, Oliver Farm Equipment company, South Bend, were listed for 7,000 shares. Items for individuals comprised the remaining shares.

Ball Family Retains Holdings.

The Ball family of Muncie, Ind., retained holdings of more than 1,000 shares of First National stock, and Maurice L. Rothschild and the Maurice L. Rothschild Investment corporation had more than 2,400 shares. The Medville N. Rothschild family kept 2,000 shares. Another family group with substantial holdings was Babson, with 1,228.

Forty shares were listed again this year for Harold L. Ickes, United States secretary of the interior, and 200 share were held by Brenda Diana Duff Frazier, New York "glamor girl." Bart & Co., Montreal, Canada, was placed on the list as holder of 3,610 shares.

Other individuals and organizations included Chicago corporation, 2,000 shares; Art Institute of Chicago, 214; E. Edwin Mills, 1,150; James Dougan Norris, 1,869; Norris Grain company, 1,940; Robert R. McCormick, 1,195; Travelers Insurance company, 3,500; Field estate, 1,562; Dexter Cummings, 1,855; and University of Chicago, 590.

Families Have Control.

The Smith and Harris families continued their control over the Northern Trust company and the Harris Trust and Savings bank, respectively.

A block of 6,000 of the Northern Trust's 30,000 shares, held by trustees under the will of Byron L. Smith, remained unchanged from a year ago. Also the same were the holdings of Solomon A. Smith, president, 1,560 shares; Walter Byron Smith, a director, 1,000; and Solomon Byron Smith, a director, 121.

Trustees for the Smiths had 2,000 additional shares of Northern Trust stock. No one outside the Smith family had as many as 1,000 shares. The Art institute held 341; Field museum, 342; University of Chicago, 341; R. M. Roloson Jr., 637; trustee of the will of Marshall Field, 600; Miss Florence D. Bartlett, 246; and Frederick C. Bartlett, 247. Holdings of all directors remained the same as in 1939.

Own More Than Half.

Altho Albert W. Harris, chairman of the Harris Trust, disposed of 325 shares during the year, and Stanley G. Harris, a director, of 51 shares, the Harris family retained more than half the bank's 60,000 shares outstanding. Albert Harris kept 8,529 shares, and Stanley G. Harris, 5,404. Trustees under the will of Norman W. Harris had more than 18,000 shares.

Charles G. Dawes, chairman of the board, disposed of 700 shares of his stock in the City National Bank and Trust company, retaining 1,055 shares. Two other directors increased their blocks, Theodore W. Robinson adding 53 for a total of 253 and John Goodridge acquiring 7 for a total of 38.

Robert L. Milligan continued as the largest individual holder with 1,970 shares, the same as on April 1, 1939. The largest block of 10,347 shares was recorded for the Chicago corporation. Another of 6,017 shares was held unchanged by the Central Illinois Securities corporation.

Company Has Control.

The American Holding company continued to dominate the American National Bank and Trust company, holding 6,250 shares of the 10,000 outstanding, as it did a year ago. Lawrence F. Stern, who was elected president on Jan. 9, increased his holdings by 338 shares to 348. No holdings were recorded for Laurance H. Armour, the former president, who had 163 shares last year.

Calvin Fentress, the president, was listed for 2,487 shares of the Personal Loan and Savings bank, an increase of 214 over last year. John R. Nicholson, a director, was recorded for 1,200 shares of the La Salle National bank, formerly the National Builders Bank of Chicago, and Laurance Armour, chairman of the board, 1,000 shares. Three trustees, A. D. Marimpietri, Samuel Levin, and Charles H. Burr, controled more than half the 4,000 shares of the Amalgamated Trust and Savings bank with their holdings of 2,874 shares.

CHICAGO STEEL MILLS TO EASE OPERATING RATE

Chicago steel mills are scheduled to start operations tomorrow at 97.7 per cent of theoretical ingot capacity—a slight decline from the 98.6 per cent rate at the beginning of this week. The reduction is due to the necessity for closing open hearth furnaces for repairs.

The Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation blew in another blast furnace at the Gary works. It now has 20 of its 23 Chicago district furnaces in operation.

Operations in the Pittsburgh district are scheduled to start tomorrow at 93 per cent, up two points from last week. This is the highest rate in the current upturn. During the boom period of last autumn a 95 per cent rate was reached.

OIL TEST FINDS SATURATION AT 4 DEPTH LEVELS

Centralia, Ill., Oct. 19 (AP).—By encountering saturation in a fourth formation, the Carter Oil company's well in Omaha township of Gallatin county continued to hold the spotlight in Illinois oil exploration this week.

The well successively encountered these saturations: In a shallow formation between 500 and 600 feet, in the Biehl sand at 1,331 feet, in the Palestine sand at 1,699 feet, and in the Hardinsburg sand between 2,142-59 feet. It was drilling below 2,176 feet this week-end.

Justice Office to Investigate Bank's Willkie Advertisement

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—The senate campaign expenditures committee today turned over to the department of justice for investigation a complaint against the First National Bank of Englewood, Chicago.

Rep. John M. McCormack.

House Majority Leader John W. McCormack, [D., Mass.], made the complaint in regard to an advertisment the bank recently placed in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. The advertisment was a statement of the bank's condition to which was appended this note: "In a last stand for democracy, every director and officer of this bank will cast his vote for Wendell Willkie."

A committee statement said that committee members were doubtful whether such an advertisment was a violation of section 313 of the federal corrupt practices act which prohibits a national bank from making a contribution in connection with any election to political office. The attorney general will be asked to rule on the question.

J. M. [100 per cent] Nichols, president of the bank, when informed of the filing of the complaint last Thursday, said he would be delighted if an issue were made of the matter. He had ordered the same advertisment to be printed in the American Banker in this morning's issue.

The committee today received a complaint from the Nebraska State Republican Central committee that the state's Democratic committee was abusing the government franking privilege by distributing large quantities of literature under the frank of Senator George W. Norris, [R., Neb.].

Chairman Guy M. Gillette, [D., Ia.], said he assumed that the contents of the franked letters were portions of the Congressional Record and not printed at public expense. Unless the material is shown to be nonfrankable, he said, no violation of the law was involved.

"I got a car that will keep up with the brick business!"

Russell E. Shelhamer, 5413 Race Ave.

"BECAUSE business is picking up, I decided I had to get around faster. As salesman for the Carey Brick Company, 6558 W. Fullerton, I drive about 25,000 miles a year within a 50 mile radius.

"The car I had was a big 1932 model. It had gone 150,000 miles. Enough said.

"My brother, Charles, who works for the same company, has a Buick. It is his fourth. He advised me strongly to get one. I knew his car and liked it. So I thought I would look at one.

"I started reading want ads in the Tribune and ran across this ad offering a 1939 Buick Century Sedan. I called on the advertiser, the West Side Buick Sales Company, 4666 Washington Blvd. Frank Moore, the sales manager, showed me the car. It was okay and very similar to my brother's.

"The deal was $445 and my old car. I'm satisfied I got a car that will keep up with the brick business."

TRIBUNE WANT ADS GIVEN MAJOR SHARE OF CREDIT FOR SALE OF 2,743 USED CARS*

"I have always felt that the condition of a used car, price and the proper advertising medium are of paramount importance to quick turnover. Every used car we handle is properly reconditioned and backed with a good warranty. We keep no used car in stock over 30 days.

"In our case, the proper advertising medium has proved to be the Tribune. We have been using your classified columns to sell used cars for over 20 years. During the 12 months ended September 30, 1940, over 75% of all our advertising dollars went into the Tribune. We sold 2,743 used cars in this period and increased our used car business 54%.

"For this record, Tribune want ads must be given the major share of the credit."

(Signed) FRANK L. MOORE, Sales Mgr.,
West Side Buick Sales Co.,
4666 Washington Blvd.

*Lined up, bumper to bumper, 2,743 cars would form a parade of automobiles more than eight miles long—greater than the distance from Grant park to Cicero avenue.

BEFORE YOU DECIDE to spend anything on your present car, find out how little money will buy you one of the smart looking, late model used cars now on the market at attractive prices.

During the past three months new car sales in Cook county were 28% ahead of the same period last year. This great volume of sales has brought a greater number of late model used cars into the market. Dealers are pricing them to sell quickly. As a result, you have a splendid opportunity to get a bargain in the make and model you prefer. For a review of these values, see the Used Automobiles for Sale columns in the want ad section today.

UTILITY OFFERS PLAN FOR SINGLE CLASS OF STOCK

United Light & Power Files Proposal with SEC.

The United Light and Power company yesterday filed with the Securities and Exchange commission an amended plan of recapitalization outlining a proposed reclassification of the currently outstanding stock. The plan, which is intended to facilitate compliance with the public utility holding company act, enlarges upon the application filed last July 24.

The company proposes to authorize the issuance of 7,000,000 shares of $10 par capital stock, of which 3,947,676 would be outstanding after the exchange of shares.

Offer Six Shares for One.

Holders of the 600,000 shares of $6 preferred stock, on which dividend accumulations last Sept. 30 were $51 a share [a total of $30,600,000], would receive six new shares for each preferred share and unpaid dividends. Holders of the class A and class B common would receive one new share for each 10 shares held. Holders of less than 10 common shares would receive scrip.

The exchange would reduce the capital of the company from $73,907,072 to $39,476,760, thus creating a capital surplus of $34,430,312.

Serves Five Million Persons.

Of this surplus, $25,000,000 would be transferred to the reserve for depreciation of investments, and a portion of the remainder applied to write off organization expense and effect reductions in the investment account. The balance, $6,174,438, would remain as capital surplus.

The company, which thru subsidiaries serves a population of more than 5,000,000 in Illinois and 12 other states, had $36,777,500 in bonds and debentures outstanding on April 30.

INVESTMENT COMPANIES.

Investment companies were devised theoretically to give the small investor two advantages in putting his money to work:

1. Diversification—spreading the risks of investment among securities of many different companies representing numerous industries.

2. Expert management to select proper securities for investment, using extensive research, statistical data, market analyses, and special training and experience.

The investor of limited means has neither the time nor funds to conduct thoro investment analyses nor to maintain constant supervision of his portfolio of securities. The investment company, therefore, may appeal to him as a vehicle for his savings.

Investment companies are of several different types. In the "fixed" investment trust, the portfolio of securities is selected when the trust is organized and the securities held in trust are rarely, if ever, changed. Management in the fixed trust is at a minimum and the success of such a trust depends primarily on the wisdom with which the original portfolio was selected.

Opposed to the fixed trust is the "management type" investment company which can change its security holdings at any time to take advantage of changing market conditions. Here, the integrity and judgment of the management, its ability to anticipate market trends and to appraise the value of securities are the predominant influences on the company's prosperity.

Investment companies are also classified on the basis of the redeemability of their shares. Open-end companies are required to repurchase their outstanding shares at the stockholders' request and maintain a market for the shares at a bid price equal to their net asset value less a small fee.

Open-end companies usually have only one class of stock, which is being bought and sold by them continuously. Closed-end companies do not redeem their shares and often have more than one class of security.

Investment companies as a whole have not always proved themselves superior to the ordinary investor in selecting stocks which will appreciate in value or in predicting market movements. Some have been mismanaged and a few have been looted by their managers. Those which have been moderately successful over a period of years may merit consideration for the investment of a portion of the small investor's savings.

The investment company should be judged by its record as shown by the results it has had over a period of years. Scrutiny should also be given to the fees and loading charges included in the purchase price of its shares. The reliability and competence of the management is also of paramount importance.

DIAMOND CENTER IS ESTABLISHED IN NEW YORK CITY

Seeks to Become Hub of World Trade.

New York, Oct. 19 [Special].—A step toward making New York the leading diamond center of the world was taken today with the opening of the Radio City Jewelers Center, Inc., in midtown Manhattan.

Noted European diamond traders, now refugees from Antwerp, Paris, Berlin, and Brussels, will be housed in the building. It was erected by a syndicate for the refugees under the direction of Harry Klapan, a New York diamond trader. The refugee jewelers will pay rent for the space they occupy.

Quarters for 36 Jewelers.

The building, a two story structure of modern design, created by Irving Krudroff, architect, will provide quarters for about 36 jewelers.

The second story is designed especially for the exhibition of diamonds. Each office has a skylight, providing daylight instead of artificial light for exhibitions.

The first story is lighted by a special type flourescent lamp giving the effect of daylight lighting. Each wall of the ground floor is lined by individual booths, each with a glass showcase for exhibition purposes.

Jewelers Attend Dedication.

Several hundred jewelers from the New York area attended the dedication ceremony today. Among them was Henry Modell, president of the Smaller Business association of New York, who coöperated with the jewelers in erecting the building for the refugees.

Among the distinguished European jewelers who will occupy space in the building are Leo Finkelstein, who for 39 years was the largest wholesale diamond dealer in Berlin and who fled to this country in 1937; John Teschmer, originally from Lodz, Poland, and Leon Rakowski of Warsaw and Berlin.

PRICES OF MOST MEAT ANIMALS RISE LAST WEEK

Most classes of live stock advanced in price at the Chicago stockyards during the last week, altho there was an abnormally wide spread between cattle and hog values. Cattle prices were the second highest for the month of October since 1929. Hog markets were lowest for October in six years, and fourth lowest for the month since 1911.

The week's cattle average, at $11.90 a hundredweight, up 20 cents over the preceding week, was $2 higher than a year ago. The six day hog average, at $6.40, up 15 cents for the week, was 70 cents lower than in 1939.

The various classes of lambs sold steady to 15 cents lower during the week, the six day average at $9.10, showing 20 cents decline.

BOND MARKET, EXCEPT RAILS, TENDS HIGHER

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—Bonds finished today's short session with a good assortment of moderate gains despite a dip in rail issues on profit taking.

The market's tone suggested a few traders at least were willing to risk new commitments over the week-end in contrast with the caution evident in many Saturday markets in recent weeks.

Bonds in best demand chiefly were of the utility and industrial groups. A few foreign dollar loans also moved up a point or more.

United States government obligations edged up a little in a slow market.

"BETTY THINKS WE'VE STRUCK OIL"

"Must be the car. Did you tell her we found it thru a Tribune want ad?"

A late model used car can be more than just something to ride around in. It can be a definite business and social asset.

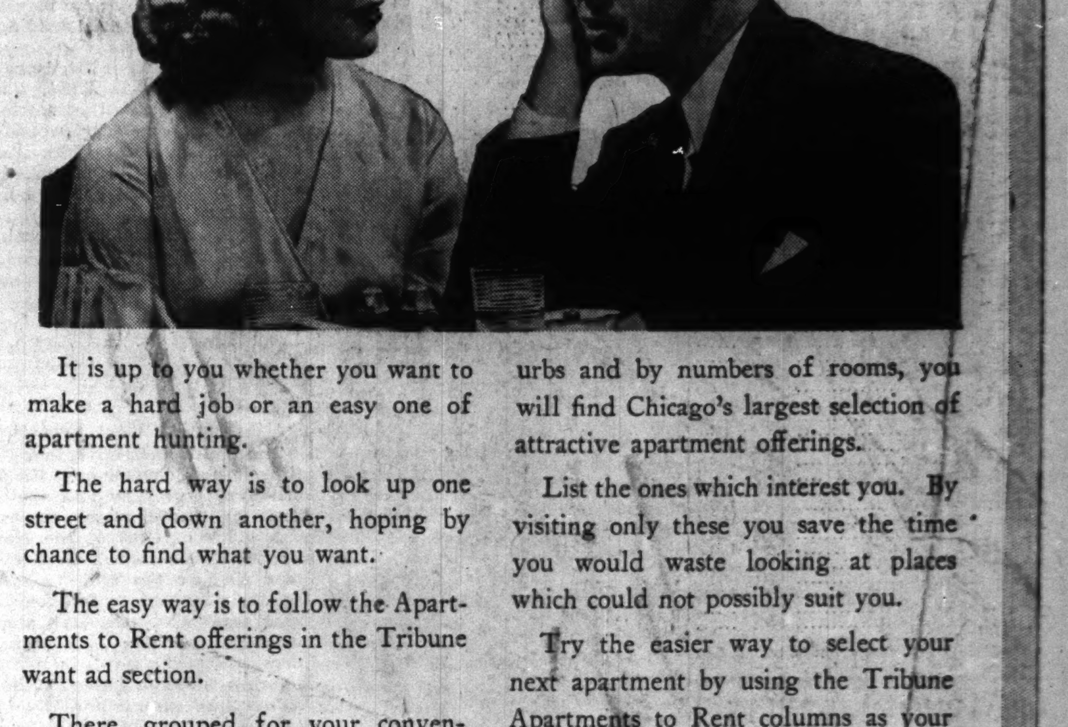
If you are getting less motoring value than your money entitles you to, consult the Used Automobiles for Sale columns in the Tribune want ad section.

Good looking, late model used cars of every popular make are described and offered in these columns. You have a wide range of colors, body styles, fittings and accessories. Many of the cars can hardly be told from new. Your present car may be the only down payment required.

Review the offers in the Tribune want ad section now and look at these late model used car values today!

"GOT ANY IDEAS WHERE TO MOVE?"

"Why not look for our next apartment in the Tribune Want Ads?"



It is up to you whether you want to make a hard job or an easy one of apartment hunting.

The hard way is to look up one street and down another, hoping by chance to find what you want.

The easy way is to follow the Apartments to Rent offerings in the Tribune want ad section.

There, grouped for your convenience by locations in Chicago and suburbs and by numbers of rooms, you will find Chicago's largest selection of attractive apartment offerings.

List the ones which interest you. By visiting only these you save the time you would waste looking at places which could not possibly suit you.

Try the easier way to select your next apartment by using the Tribune Apartments to Rent columns as your guide.

WANT A BETTER JOB?

Training can prepare you to take full advantage of your opportunities for a better job at more pay. If you want to get ahead faster, you will be interested in the regular and short courses of specialized training offered to ambitious men and women in the Instruction, Trade Schools, Musical and Dramatic, Dressmaking and Millinery Schools and Dancing Schools columns in the Tribune want ad section.

Because they get better results, want ad users place more want advertising in the Tribune than they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

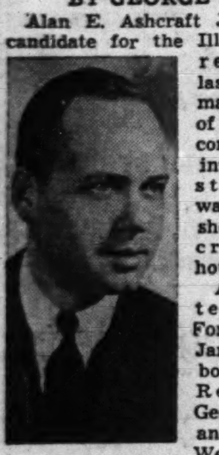
STATE ECONOMY IS PROGRAM OF A. E. ASHCRAFT

Where Does Cash Go? Asks Candidate.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Alan E. Ashcraft Jr., Republican candidate for the Illinois house of representatives, last week demanded revival of the economy committee whose investigation of state spending was twice cut short by Democrats in the house.



Alan Ashcraft Jr.

Ashcraft is teamed with Former Senator James J. Barbour against Representatives George H. Smith and Charles H. Weber, Democrats. The three top vote getters will win two year terms on Nov. 5. Altho two of the three men representing the Rogers Park-Evanston district are now Democrats, in 1938, the single G. O. P. nominee polled more votes than they did.

"I want the taxpayers to know how their money is being spent," said Ashcraft, now serving his third term in the Evanston city council. "Not even the legislature knows now.

Blames the Democrats.

"The Democrats stopped two investigations but they will not be able to stop the next one, in the session starting in January."

Ashcraft pointed out that the cost of state government in Illinois has increased 900 per cent since the world war, while the population has gone up only 30 per cent. State revenue is estimated at $241,836,000 for the current two year period, but this does not take into consideration that sales tax receipts went up to $90,818,000 in the year ended July 1.

"It's your money," Ashcraft said. "That is the simple reason why I will support, if elected, the recommendations of the last legislature investigating committee."

List of Recommendations.

These recommendations were:

1. Cut state expenses by an average of at least 10 per cent.
2. End the 2 per cent political assessment on the state's $40,000,000 a year pay rolls.
3. Break up an undercover alliance diverting road money to personal and political purposes in the state's $50,000,000 a year highway industry.
4. Halt campaign fund shakedowns of persons and companies doing business with the state.
5. Stop pay roll padding which diverts tax money to political purposes.
6. Seek grand jury investigation of sales tax fixing and the state's purchases of liquor revenue stamps at 0 times the prices paid in nearby states.
7. Create a standing committee to serve as a permanent legislative check on state spending.

Indorsed by L. V. L.

Ashcraft was indorsed in the primary by the non-partisan Legislative Voters league which said: "Enjoys enviable reputation for deep interest in public affairs, and as capable, aggressive official."

Former Senator Barbour served 20 years in the upper chamber of the state lawmaking body and has always been indorsed by the L. V. L. for his "valuable public service."

While Ashcraft and Barbour were coöperating in their campaign, it was reported that each of the Democratic candidates is making a drive for votes on the "three for me" basis. If a voter marks the ballot for only one house candidate, he receives three votes.

Smith, a brother of Clayton F. Smith, president of the Cook county board, supported parole reform legislation in the last sessions. "Hard worker, has shown by his votes some independence," says the L. V. L.

On the other hand, the L. V. L. report dismissed Weber's six terms with the words: "Record does not justify another term." Weber failed to support parole reform.

See Victory for Knox.

Republicans are confident of capturing the district's senate seat for William G. Knox, manufacturer of electrical products and a world war veteran. The Democratic incumbent, John J. Meyers, "failed flatly" to measure up to the standards of the district, said the L. V. L.

In the 8th district [Lake, McHenry, and Boone counties] there is a nominal contest over the senate seat occupied for 12 years by Ray Paddock, Round Lake farmer and chairman of the Lake county board. The house race was decided in the primary.

The phrase "nominal contest" is used because Paddock, with three determined opponents, got 22,239 votes in the primary, while the Democratic nominee, Theodore Reusch of Zion, got 183 in a write in campaign. The Democratic organization did not bother to have a name placed on the ballot for this office.

"We will get the biggest Republican vote in our history on Nov. 5," said Senator Paddock, who is indorsed by the L. V. L.

1,400 Mentally Ill War Vets Work for Cure

One of the most efficiently operated and pleasant little villages on the north shore is composed of 1,400 ex-servicemen, each one suffering from a mental disease. Every one of these patients, at one time or another was insane, all not stark raving mad, perhaps, but each mentally ill.

The village is technically called a hospital, but in operation it is more like a town. It is the Veterans' hospital at Downey, Ill., just west of Great Lakes Naval Training station. Visitors entering the gates find themselves in a beautiful park which scores of men are busily landscaping. These men, one is told, are the inmates.

Patients Till Soil.

Ten bright red brick buildings are scattered thru the park area. These trim two and three story structures compose the hospital. At one end of the park are several hundred acres of rich farm land on which the patients raise barley, corn, and oats. Part of it is pasture land for 50 sheep and the farm's horses and mules. Patients also are in charge of caring for 265 hogs.

Head of this hospital-village is Dr. Pelmar Goode, manager since 1935. He has been treating mental cases among war veterans for more than 17 years. One of the misconceptions he has tried to dispell is the idea that mental ills are stigmas.

Mental Ills no Disgrace.

"For centuries the general public, as well as many people in the medical profession, have had an erroneous conception of mental diseases, in that they feel such an affliction is a disgrace," he says. "The essential difference between a mental disease and physical disease is the difference in location. For example, pulmonary tuberculosis is located in the chest and mental diseases in the brain.

"All persons mentally sick are really suffering from an illness which is as severe and disabling as any physical disease."

Work One of Best Cures.

One of the most satisfactory treatments which the hospital uses is occupational therapy—keeping the patients busily working at interesting crafts, such as weaving, woodwork, painting, landscaping, farming, etc. Work takes the patient's mind away from what bothers him. The mentally ill, says Dr. Goode, live within themselves and occupational therapy brings them "out" again in their surrounding world.

Dr. Goode three months ago added another therapy to the hospital's many other treatments. The new cure he calls bibliotherapy, cure by books. Patients who have reached a certain stage of mental health are taken to the hospital library of 6,000 books and encouraged to select one.

Then, the patient reads it and discourses on it before a small group of other patients at one of the bibliotherapy meetings. The patient can select any topic in the world on which to speak. By this method the patient is given self-confidence, very necessary to a complete cure.

134 Discharged in 1939.

Approximately 67 per cent of the patients are suffering from dementia praecox, 4 per cent from manic depressive psychoses, 20 per cent from syphilis, and 9 per cent from various other diseases.

During 1939, 189 new patients were admitted to the hospital for treatment. There were 134 discharges, 32 deaths, and 106 patients placed on trial visit to their homes. Patients who return to their homes and are found not well enough to remain there return to the hospital for further treatment. But many on the trial visit home adjust well enough to stay.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH TO HOLD FAMILY SERVICE

Family day will be observed at the Wellington Avenue Congregational church, 615 Wellington avenue, today at the morning service. The Rev. T. F. Rutledge will preach. The choir is under the direction of Marcia Sandahl.

The Women's club will hold its regular meeting on Tuesday evening, and will hear a lecture on Chinese art by Mrs. Harold E. Davis. Mrs. C. B. Wilcox is president of the group.

Poets Form Studio to Read Poetry to One Another

North shore poets will have a chance to get together and compare their work at the newly formed Poetry Studio, which will meet Tuesday evening for the first time at the Highland Park Y. W. C. A. The new group will be sponsored by the education committee of the "Y," under the chairmanship of Mrs. Warren Danley. The leader, Rowena Bennett, will read poems, and Dr. George Lake, Mrs. Raymond Watts, Mrs. Fowler Barker, Mrs. Donald McGiben, and Miss Elizabeth Bredin will read from their own works.

Purple Heart, Military Order, to Meet Tuesday

The regular meeting of Ray Workman chapter No. 50, Military Order of the Purple Heart, will be held Tuesday evening at the Hotel Sherman. Officers for the year will be elected and installed, and a plaque will be presented to one of the members for faithful service.

Immaculata Alumnae Hold Style Show Thursday

Uncle Sam, dictator of fashion, portrayed by Jack Ponic, 6738 Glenwood avenue, introduces three mannequins for the fashion show to be presented at the annual fall card party of the Immaculata Alumnae association on Thursday evening in the Edgewater Beach hotel. In front, Shirley Brice, 6429 Wayne avenue, is modeling a blue gray afternoon dress with lace vestee and cuffs, featuring the new low flounced skirt. Merle Smith's white lynx chubby tops a black crepe dress with bracelet sleeves and apron draping on the skirt front. Miss Smith resides at 6242 Lakewood avenue. Betty McCormick, 6538 Greenview avenue, will model a black wool dress with orchid sequin trim and a silver fox stole.

ODOR OF GREASE PAINT IN THE AIR— IT'S DRAMA TIME

Little Theaters Begin Fall Rehearsals.

Little theater groups whose members have returned from the summer circuit are lining up their casts for fall productions on the north side. Other drama minded residents—young hopefuls who can visualize their names on glittering marquees someday or older persons who have no stage ambitions but still get a thrill from life in the theater—are joining church and school dramatic groups and soon will appear behind the footlights on their neighborhood stages.

The Uptown players will open their 15th season in a new auditorium, the Chicago Civic theater. Their first production will be "Ladies of the Jury," starring Gertrude Needham, to be presented Friday and Saturday, under the direction of J. Bradley Griffin.

List Members of Cast.

Another innovation is the Uptown Players Junior theater, under the direction of Lenore Brown. The Juniors will give four plays in Channing hall of the Peoples church, 941 Lawrence avenue, opening with "The Emperor's New Clothes" by Charlotte Corpenning on Nov. 30.

13th Season of Y. Theater.

The Little Theater association of Central Y. M. C. A. college will open its 13th season with Sutton Vane's comedy, "Outward Bound," to be given Wednesday thru Saturday night at 19 South La Salle street. Carlisle Bloxom is the director, Herbert Carson, production manager, and Emanuel Weisenberg, stage manager.

Helen Lundgren will play the leading rôle of Mrs. Midget, Jerome Moos will appear as Tom Pryor, Marjorie Prentice as Mrs. Cliveden Banks,

SUNDAY EVENING CLUB TO HEAR BALTIMORE PREACHER TONIGHT

Dr. Harold Bosley, pastor of Mount Vernon Place Methodist church, Baltimore, Md., will make his first appearance before the Sunday Evening club tonight in Orchestra hall, speaking on the topic "No Weapon but Hate." Clifford W. Barnes will preside, and Horace W. Armstrong, trustee of the club, will participate in the program.

Dr. Harold Bosley.

Dr. Bosley, formerly of the University of Chicago, went to Baltimore in 1938, after five years as director of religious activities at Iowa State college. His book, "The Quest for Religious Certainty," was considered an authoritative contribution to current thought.

The Abernathy ensemble will give a choral program at the preliminary meeting, 7 o'clock and Hidson H. Pittman, assistant to Mr. Barnes, will inaugurate a new series of informal Bible talks on the theme "Religious Resource for Effective Living." The guest soloist at the 8 o'clock meeting will be Marian Carlisle.

G. O. .P OF 44TH WARD TO GIVE DANCE FRIDAY

A Halloween party will be given Friday evening by the 44th ward Young Republican organization at 2800 Sheridan road. Cornstalks and pumpkins will decorate the room, and old fashioned contests including apple ducking will be held. Dancing and prizes will also be featured. The arrangement committee consists of Bud Ffeil, Esther Noggle, Mary Alexander, Henry Chapin, Arlene Binyon, Margaret Hall, Mrs. Mary Binyon, Joseph McMahon, Charlotte Korwin, Gloria Dunn, and Sam Fields. Prominent Republicans will be present.

NORWAY'S PLIGHT IS TOLD IN LETTER TO NORTH SIDER

Animals Lost in War's Destruction.

A vivid description of conditions in German occupied Norway is contained in a letter received by a Chicago woman from her cousin in Norway. The letter was received by Mrs. Nellie E. Mitchell of the Eastgate hotel, an employé in The Tribune composing room.

The letter reads:

"Lillehammer, Norway,
"[Gudbrands' valley], Aug. 4, 1940.

"Dear cousin: Thousand thanks for your letter, which was two months in reaching me. I suppose even the mail has stopped! Mrs. ——, whom you met here, has not heard from her young daughter in Minnesota, and now they've moved, so she feels terribly worried about her. Her sons both came home and were not injured, but for other neighbors around it was worse. Sons have fallen, buildings burned, and all the animals got killed or burned.

Agricultural College Burns.

"The agricultural college near your father's birthplace was also burned. But Germans are living all around here now, and they will build up everything again this winter. All is very sorrowful here, but no one, I suppose, can help that. Perhaps the worst is yet to come! Many whom you met here are gone and will never return.

"I am staying at home; my brother has work. Regards from the two rich ladies near us whom you met. They nearly went insane during the war trouble. We all had to flee to the woods for quite a long period. Eight days of that time I did not remove my clothes.

Roads Are Torn Up.

"For six weeks the soldiers and airplanes were around us day and night; the roads are all torn up and almost impassable. Well, it might have been better if we had all been blown up then. I don't understand anything any more; I seem so stunned. I suppose I should be thankful that I can see and hear.

"Now we're having nice late summer weather, but things have been very dry; perhaps because so much of our land burned. There'll be very little growing on our land now, but there aren't animals to eat anyway, now.

"No One Receives Mail."

"I suppose the young men over there are in the war, too; O my what sorrow and trouble. No one I know receives any mail from over there.

"I hope you are well and have work; when you have work and work hard, you can forget many things. Peter —— sends regards; his son also fell.

"Tomorrow I'm going to the woods to gather berries, but now we have no sugar. Do write soon; and, pray for us. Maybe that will help."

RAVENSWOOD WOMEN TO SPONSOR FASHION SHOW FOR HOSPITAL

The Woman's auxiliary of the Ravenswood Hospital association will sponsor its annual benefit card party and fashion show at 1:30 o'clock Friday in the Crystal ballroom of the Edgewater Beach hotel. Funds will be used to purchase special equipment for the hospital and nurses' home.

Mrs. Robert Leitz.

Mrs. W. W. Lill of Kenilworth, president, is general chairman. As members of the special gifts committee, Mrs. M. M. Toeller, Mrs. Merrick Breck, Mrs. M. F. Jennings, and Mrs. George R. Schmidt have charge of assembling the linen chest and selecting table awards. Mrs. Robert Leitz is planning the fashion show and among the models will be Mrs. F. N. Bussey, Mrs. George Hathaway, Mrs. L. W. Wilson, Mrs. Albert Mickow, and some of the nurses.

Mrs. C. C. Rentfro and Mrs. E. J. Macintyre are in charge of tickets.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

BETTY KIVLAN, 2924 Park place, Evanston, was recently elected president of the senior class at Frances Shimer college in Mount Carroll. Aside from this honor, Betty was also chosen feature editor of the Record, the student publication. She is the third of her family to hold the post. Betty succeeded her sister Eloise, who had in turn succeded her sister Pauleen. Betty is also a member of the varsity hockey and swimming team, and is student head of baseball. Another Chicago girl who was elected an officer of the senior class is Audrey Ewald of 928 Winona street, who holds the position of secretary to the class.

Two north side boys who are cadets at the Culver Military academy were recipients of awards recently in recognition of their scholastic achievement. Joseph O. Kostner, 49 East Cedar street, received a silver "A," and Howard A. Weiss, 1341 Balmoral avenue, won a gold "A." Kostner is a member of Company D, and Weiss is a lieutenant in the Black Horse troop.

OUR Towner, Dorothy Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Campbell, 841 Dakin street, will have things a bit easier than most of her college mates at Beloit college. Dorothy was one of 15 students who were exempted from taking the regular freshman English course as a result of the high mark received in a preliminary test. More than 176 freshmen took the test, and Dorothy was one of the few who proved herself smart enough to get along without the course.

James F. Hotton, 1215 Diversey parkway, received surprise after surprise last week when he reached his 40th birthday. First of all, the office staff at the Alexian Brothers' hospital where he has worked for more than 20 years, gave him a surprise birthday luncheon. That evening he had another party. The night after that he was given a surprise dinner party by 37 friends at a restaurant, and was tendered a final surprise dinner the next night by his family.

DOUGLAS MURRAY, 1769 Washington street, Wilmette, arrived in Glendale, Cal., the other day to enroll in the Curtiss Wright Technical institute. He is studying aeronautical engineering. The school is one of the largest aviation technical schools in the country, and Murray will be studying with about 300 army men, and 700 civilians.

Joseph N. Clemens, director of the Lincoln branch of the Chicago Boy's club, 1725 Orchard street, will be installed as the new president of the Boys Club Association of Chicago at a meeting tomorrow to be held in the Y. M. C. A. at 59 East Monroe street.

Richard D. Stockton, son of Walter T. Stockton, and Mrs. Earl T. DeMoe, 315 Davis street, Evanston, was one of 92 students at Hamilton college, Clinton, N. Y., who were cited for high scholarship ranking.

N. Raymond Kean, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. M. Kean, 2658 Ewing avenue, Evanston, has been busy winning honors at the Citadel Military school in South Carolina. He holds the rank of intelligence lieutenant on the battalion staff, is photographic editor of the school year book, and is circulation manager of the weekly newspaper. He was recently appointed one of eight cadets to the cadet activities committee.

WOMEN'S FEDERATION WILL HOLD MEETING ON EDUCATIONAL WORK

An all day and evening forum to further interest in civic and educational work will be held on Wednesday in the Peoples church, 941 Lawrence avenue, under the auspices of the 9th district, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. Walter H. Hermsdof is district president.

Speakers for the morning session from 9 to 12:30 o'clock will be Edward Redman, Meadville seminary at the University of Chicago, on "Life and Youth"; P. C. Farris, business executive, "The Future of Youth in Industry"; Mrs. Cora Heinemann, board of education, "Chicago Schools," and Dr. Arthur Todd, sociology department at Northwestern university, "Youth's Recreational Needs."

Miss Vanette Lawler will open the afternoon session at 1:30 o'clock with a talk on "Public School Music in America." Dr. Clifford Shaw from the juvenile research department at the University of Chicago will speak on "How Can We Stop Crime?" and Prof. Paul A. Schilpp, philosophy department, Northwestern, will consider "Conscription versus Democracy." In the evening Dr. Helen Howe, supervisor of public school music, will discuss her work. Mrs. Clyde Bassler and Miss Adelaide Thomasson are co-chairman of arrangements.

FINDS CHICAGO OUT IN COLD ON DEFENSE WORK

Area Has the Yards, Says Candidate.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Naval shipbuilding for Chicago as a part of the city's share of rearmament porjects was urged last week by Charles S. Dewey, Republican candidate for congress from the 9th congressional district.

Continuing his battle against neglect of the Chicago area in handing out national defense contracts, the former assistant secretary of the treasury enumerated his reasons why this part of the country is ideally situated to aid in the naval end of rearmament. His newest proposal was made at a 44th ward rally in the Swiss club house at 639 Webster avenue.

Dewey, who was a naval lieutenant aboard the battleship Mississippi in the world war, said Chicagoland has the facilities for building smaller craft, such as submarine chasers, coast defense vessels, and fast, flatbottomed craft for reconnaisance or landing troops.

Have Plant Facilities.

"There are six factories in this area that could manufacture such boats," he declared. "Their plants can be expanded to provide work for hundreds of the area's unemployed. Boats built here could be delivered to the Atlantic coast via the Great Lakes, or they could be sent down the deep waterway and the Mississippi river to the Gulf of Mexico.

"For those who doubt that boats even of fair size could be built here, I would like to point out that ten submarines for our navy are being built in Manitowoc. Those sizable craft will be sent down the waterway and the Mississippi."

Dewey pointed out that in addition to its shipyards, the Chicago area also has numerous factories equipped to turn out valves, pumps and other parts and materials needed for larger vessels being constructed elsewhere.

These shipyards and factories are safer here than those nearer the seaboards, he declared, because adequate land defenses can protect them against hostile visitations. Much more vulnerable centers are buzzing with defense building activity, he told his listeners.

Propounds a Query.

"Why hasn't Chicago received its share of these armament contracts?" he asked. "It is because the New Deal congressmen representing this area have failed to interest themselves in the industrial workers they profess to represent in congress.

"I cannot understand this indifference on the part of the local New Dealers. They claim to be the friends of labor, yet when the opportunity presents itself to help workers of this area obtain jobs in private industry they sit idly by and allow contracts involving hundreds of millions of dollars to go to other sections of the country."

Dewey promised to fight for correction of this situation in congress. Meanwhile he placed himself at the disposal of any group interested in attracting defense projects to Chicago.

Moreland Gains Strength.

In the large 7th district on the northwest side, the prospects of Former Ald. James C. Moreland, G. O. P. challenger of Congressman Leonard W. Schuetz, brightened with the announcement of aid from Former Congressman M. A. Michaelson.

Michaelson opposed Moreland in the primary last April and received nearly 13,000 votes. He announced he would ask all those who supported him then to vote for Moreland on Nov. 5.

"We must have a Republican in congress from our district, and Moreland must win," Michaelson said. "Casting aside all personal aims and feeling that absolute unity is necessary in the present emergency, I have enlisted in the cause and am giving all my time and energy to bring about the election of Moreland."

Haderlein Pushes Fight.

In his talks last week Haderlein stressed the importance of the good neighbor policy toward South America, and pledged his support to its continuation if he is elected.

Paddock was notified last week of his appointment to the Illinois National Guard service commission, formed to coöperate with enlisted Illinoisians in solving home and financial problems arising by reason of their military service. The appointment was made by Maj. Gen. Samuel T. Lawton, commander of the 33d division of the National Guard.

Paddock, who served as a captain and major in the 86th division in the world war, recently received a citation as one of the Illinois delegates to the St. Louis convention of 1919 that helped organize the American Legion.

Annual Luncheon.

Chicago and suburban Households of the Order of Martha, Catholic Church Extension society, will hold their annual luncheon and card party Thursday noon at the Sovereign hotel, 6200 Kenmore avenue.

Voice of the North Side

Readers of the Metropolitan Section are invited to contribute to this column on matters of neighborhood interest. Readers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Full names and addresses must be given. No manuscripts will be returned. Address Voice of the North Side, The Tribune.

ADDISON STREET BUS SERVICE.

I don't suppose that those concerned will ever read this, but I am going to crab anyway.

It is about the rotten bus service on Addison street during the rush hours. What happens to all the buses after they get downtown? There should be almost a parade of them, instead of only one every 15 to 20 minutes on the return trip. I know, I have timed them in the morning on my way to Wright Junior college.

Cold winds from the lake soon will add to the thrill of waiting at Sheridan road and Addison street. The least the bus company could do would be to build shelters at the bus stops if it won't put more buses on the route. DISGUSTED.

WANTS TRAFFIC LIGHTS RESTORED.

The traffic lights at Sheridan road and Wellington avenue have been put out of commission. Now that Sheridan road is a one-way speedway, pedestrians are taking their lives in their hands to cross that street without a traffic officer or the traffic lights, and the park board should put these lights back into service immediately. FIND A REFUGE FROM BOMBS IN EVANSTON HOME

English Mother and Son Flee Gloucester.

John Nunn.

Mrs. Roy Nunn's native home in Gloucester, England, seems far away from her sister's apartment in Evanston. But less than a month ago, she was hurrying to finish her washing before the next air raid alarm sent her into an underground shelter. Only a few friends have heard about her experiences and reactions during three weeks of day and night air raids and the dangerous Atlantic crossing on the Scythia.

Today Mrs. Nunn and her 9 year old son, John, residing peacefully at 812 Clark street in Evanston, think perhaps they dreamed some of the horror of the last few months.

Bombs and Cannon.

"When I was at home and could hear the horrible sirens—they're so bloodcurdling—" said the young mother, "and then look out the window and see the balloons go up and hear the bombs and the retorting antiaircraft fire, I really knew what was happening.

"At first every one was worried and hurried to shelters," she continued, "but after a while the alarms became annoying. You'd be in the midst of baking a cake, or sweeping a room—then have to leave suddenly for an hour or more."

Only one bomb, she reports, did any property damage in their little town. It dropped thru a bedroom in a house on the next street and was buried 35 feet deep, but did not explode. The man sleeping in the adjoining room moved to his outside shelter and went back to sleep.

Altho many had applied, John is the only one from his school who has had the opportunity to come to the United States. His aunt, Edna Rowland of Evanston, and several family friends arranged for the passage in June and last month was the first chance the Nunns had to embark.

After the passengers, including 80 refugee children and their escorts and 20 others with their parents, boarded the Scythia, the boat remained in the harbor four days before the all clear signal was given.

"We were chased by submarines," related Mrs. Nunn, "a mine became entangled on the side of the ship at 2 o'clock one morning and we waited tensely for four hours before it was drawn away and when the destroyers left us, they went to help the City of Benares on which 75 refugee children were lost. We saw some of the empty lifeboats. Then to add to our discomfort, in mid-Atlantic we hit the tail end of a gale."

Life on Steamship.

Passengers were advised to keep their clothes on thruout the trip, stay with their children, always carry a lifebelt and remain in the vicinity of their lifeboats. A lifeboat drill was held every day.

"The first day they were crowding around a little shop, buying gifts," she said. "One of the officers taught them a song, 'The Little Sea Evacuees,' and formed an orchestra; there was an instructor in the gym and movies to keep them entertained. Most of them did not realize the danger and were on one happy merry-go-round most of the time."

Mr. Nunn works in the airplane factories in Gloucester. During his free hours, he serves in the auxiliary fire service.

"All the men have some additional home defense job," explained Mrs. Nunn. "Some one is always at every post."

The Nunns lived in Evanston from 1926 to 1931 and John was born here. The father lost him position in the depression and they went back to England. They prefer this country to England and had always intended to return, so this was somewhat of a homecoming for the mother and son.

As for John, he's just started to school and is rapidly learning American slang. Soon his playmates won't notice his accent or his "English" phrases as he willingly tells about the German plane he saw brought down and shows his pieces of shrapnel.

Assist with Plans for Parish Party

These five young ladies of Our Lady of MountCarmel parish are helping with arrangements for the annual card and dancing party which the parish willsponsor on Friday evening at the Drake hotel. They are: Carol Hedges, Nancy Scott, Pat Finnegan, AnnHolinger, and Irene McCourt.

MOUNT CARMEL PARISH TO HOLD PARTY FRIDAY

The annual card and dancing party of Our Lady of Mount Carmel church, 690 Belmont avenue, will be held on Friday evening at the Drake hotel. It will be a double celebration because the pastor, Msgr. Joseph A. Casey will be celebrating the 40th anniversary of his ordination.

Mrs. Ray P. Tennes is general chairman and she will be assisted by Mrs. Harry Reynolds. Others who head committees are: Mrs. Robert P. Minto, Mrs. John W. Clarke, Mrs. Virginia Carroll, Mrs. Joseph Heyer, Mrs. John L. Kellogg, Mrs. Harry Reutlinger, Mrs. John Lomax, and Mrs. Ray York.

Pastor to Speak.

Members of the Hemenway Methodist church, Evanston, will hear a talk tomorrow evening by Dr. Preston Bradley, pastor of the People's church of Chicago. This is part of the lecture series sponsored by the Evanston church.

READY TO OPEN N. Y. A. DEFENSE TRAINING CENTER

Civic leaders, business men, and industrialists from the north side will be among the guests tomorrow at the formal dedication of the new National Youth Administration work experience center, 153 West Huron street. First of its kind in the country, the center will offer practical training for industrial jobs to more than 3,000 Chicago youths each month.

Operating under the new national defense program, the center occupies six floors, each of which is filled with modern production machines at which any youth from 18 to 24 years old may be trained to be a skilled workman.

Will Be under Supervision.

State N. Y. A. administrator Mary Stuart Anderson pointed out that the boys and girls will work under skilled supervision in the shops, and will also receive pay of $18.50 for 74 hours of work each month.

The center is equipped to handle 1,800 youths at a time.

Principal speaker at the dedication will be Aubrey Williams, national administrator of the N. Y. A., who is coming from Washington to take part in the ceremonies. Others expected to talk are Mayor Kelly, Federal Judge William J. Campbell, Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, and Administrator Anderson.

Invited to Attend.

The following prominent north side leaders have been invited to attend the ceremonies: Jurgen Peterson and Ernest F. Olson, president and secretary, respectively, of the Belmont Avenue Improvement association; George L. Torpe, president, and August R. Torpe, secretary of the Central North Town Business association.

U. GUILD PLANS INSPECTION OF BAHA'I TEMPLE

Will Visit Three Studios in Afternoon.

Mrs. James M. Judson.
[Bernie Photo.]

The University guild's fall pilgrimage tomorrow will begin with a tour of the Baha'i House of Worship, 501 Sheridan road, Wilmette. After a noon luncheon at the Evanston Golf club, the group will visit the studios of three artists, John Doctoroff, Lucie Hartrath and Albin Polasek, all in Chicago.

Mrs. Frank C. Engelhart, an artist and patroness of the arts, has arranged for the pilgrimage and will introduce the artists. Mrs. James M. Judson is president of the guild. Reservations for the tour should be made with Mrs. Frank H. T. Potter or Mrs. Edward R. Ladd.

Evanston Woman's Club.

Mrs. Charles E. Clifton will preside during a "Discussion Please" period at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning when proposed by-laws revisions will be considered. At 2 o'clock, Edward Howard Griggs of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences will offer "A Philosophy of Life for the Present Age."

Members will tour the Morton arboretum Friday and hear a lecture on "Plant Material from the Standpoint of Value in the Landscape" by E. L. Kammerer. The home and education department is arranging the tour, which will include luncheon at the Woodrige Country club in Lisle. The group will leave the clubhouse at 9:30 o'clock.

Virginia Baur will review "Jupiter Laughs" by A. J. Cronin, for the drama study group Friday morning and Mrs. Henry S. Pierson will be hostess chairman for luncheon at Vera Megowen's. At 2 o'clock that afternoon, Mrs. W. Ira Williams will show her colored movies of "Tulip Gardens in Holland" and Arthur Jackson, junior horticulturist in the Garfield Park conservatory, will discuss the cultivation of bulbs.

Wilmette Woman's Club.

Members of the Wilmette League of Women Voters will be guests at the Wednesday meeting. Ashton B. Taylor, exchange student, will tell of his experiences in Europe last year, Dr. Herbert N. Wheeler will present an illustrated lecture on "The Lure of the Forest" and M. Rene Dussaq, young Argentinian, will interpret one American to the other.

Chicago Junior School.

Mrs. Samuel E. Moist, 1104 Sheridan road, Wilmette, will be hostess to the Evanston Friends of the school at 2 o'clock tomorrow. Harriet Allyn will present character sketches in monolog. Mrs. L. J. Hubbard, Mrs. Franklin Wanner, Mrs. N. N. Rindskopf and Mrs. W. A. Osgood will be assisting hotesses.

10th District.

Mrs. Richard C. Johnston, art chairman, and Mrs. W. J. Bargen, American home chairman, will sponsor a joint luncheon and lecture at 12:30 o'clock Friday in the Wedgwood room at Marshall Field's. Theodore V. Hinske will talk on "The Romance of Oriental Rugs."

Lake Forest Woman's Club.

Mrs. Henry Rhode, state American citizenship chairman and a club member, will conduct the 2:30 o'clock meeting Friday in the Public library. Music will be furnished by Miss Betty Bruner, instructor of music in the Lake Forest public schools. Mrs. John C. Milton, Mrs. M. R. Porter, Mrs. Noel S. Young, and Mrs. George Smith will be hostesses.

Evanston Catholic Club.

Dr. Paul Kiniery, head of the history department at Loyola university, will discuss "The War: Can We Stay Out?" at the civics meeting at 5 o'clock this evening. Husbands and friends are invited. Mrs. George C. Mullen is chairman, assisted by Miss Margaret Hayes and Mrs. Howard Morrison.

For the first art and literature meeting Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. J. M. Bireley will present Miss Mary Virginia Lee, who will read "The American Scene," by Stephen Vincent Benet. Tea will be served by Mrs. R. J. James Jr., Mrs. J. V. Hellgeth, and Mrs. Morrison.

New England Women.

Mrs. Gair Tourtellot, president of the Evanston colony of New England women, will be hostess for a tea Thursday in her home, 1104 Colfax street.

Bride at Home

Mr. and Mrs. Donald McDonough are at home at 1008 Belden avenue. The bride is the former Kathleen O'Connell, daughter of Mrs. Maurice O'Connell, 2677 Orchard street, and her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John McDonough, 2223 Clifton avenue.

FAMOUS SINGER TO OPEN NORTH SHORE CONCERTS

Marian Anderson Will Be Heard Sunday.

Marian Anderson, contralto, will present the opening concert in the north shore series next Sunday evening in the Highland Park High school auditorium. This is the second season that Highland Park has provided a concert series for the north shore.

Other recitals scheduled include the original Jaroff Don Cossack choir, Nov. 19; Mischa Levitzki, pianist, Jan. 28; Mischa Elman, violinist, March 4, and Ezio Pinza, basso, April 22.

Net

has a new sophistication

It's ethereal—but today there's a worldliness about it, too, that makes it newly important, that gives it verve and unsuspected distinction.

Above left, the very swathed, very willowy long sleeved bodice of tissue metal cloth is a perfect foil for the full net skirt, $49.50.

Friendship

One of the richest rewards of life is friendship. No man, however strong, can be truly happy without at least one other person that he is pleased and proud to call FRIEND. And the happiest is he who has a host of friends . . . who keeps making new ones.

Fostering friendship is one of the most pleasant aspects of the entire program of the Y M C A. In effect, we take you by the arm, present you to another and say, "Here is a friend." What we actually do, of course, is give you an opportunity to enjoy a common interest. What sounder foundation can there be for a real and lasting friendship?

It is this function which has been one of the greatest factors in making the Y M C A and its work the tradition that it is today. The possibilities for friendship, so amply provided by the Y M C A, are a magnet which draws many differing personalities and matches each with another, to the incontestable advantage of all concerned.

Whatever your interests, you will build friendships among the congenial persons engaged in the same activities at the Y M C A.

Stop at the Y M C A most convenient to you today and ask for complete details of a membership for this Fall and Winter.

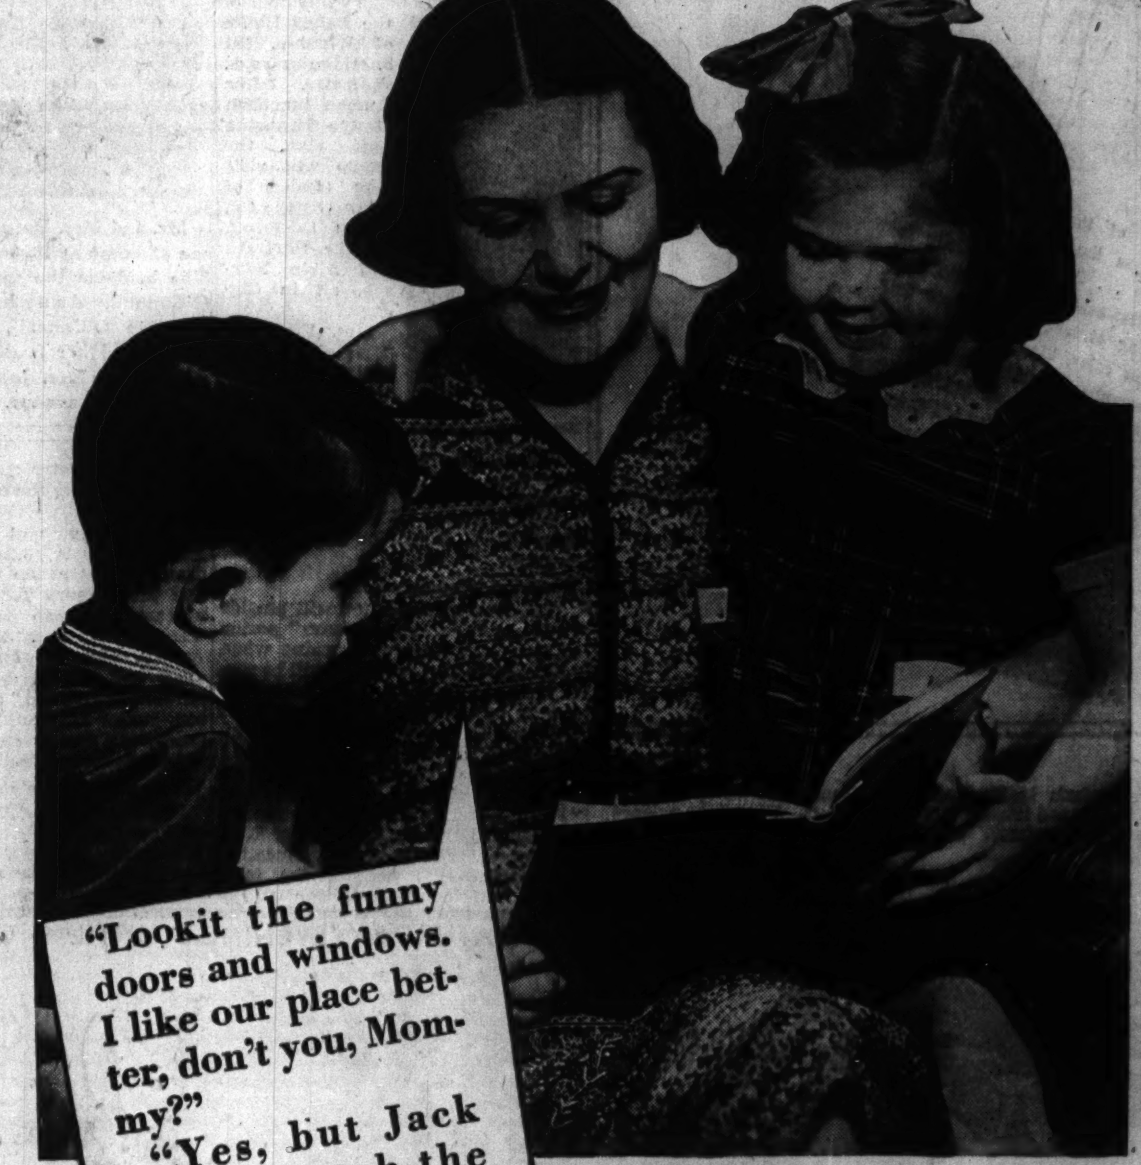
"This is the house that Jack built"



"Lookit the funny doors and windows. I like our place better, don't you, Mommy?"
"Yes, but Jack didn't watch the Tribune want ad bargains like we did."

A play room for your children—weather-tight doors and windows—extra closets—automatic heat—would you like to add these features to your home?

Consult the Building Materials column in the Tribune want ad section. There you will find splendid opportunities to save money on the millwork, plumbing, heating equipment and other items you may need to make your home more comfortable.

"I'm celebrating tonight"
"No more time clocks for me. From now on I'm going to be my own boss."

WHO'D HAVE THOUGHT IT?
Who'd ever guess that your attic or storeroom is chockful of articles which you no longer use but which have a definite value to someone else? Look over your unwanted possessions. Then look over the Barter and Exchange column in the Tribune want ad section. You'll never know otherwise what unusual opportunities you may have for trading things you don't want for things you do.

Machine shops, food, hardware, drug and electrical stores and the many other established enterprises described in the Business Opportunities column in the Tribune want ad section offer you a wide range of opportunity to cash in on your special business talents.

The chance you have sought may be advertised in today's want ad section of the Tribune. Review the Business Opportunities column now.

Because they get better results, want ad users place more want advertising in the Tribune than they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

Children's Scientific Footwear

July 19, 1940

Mr. D. F. McMahon
Chicago Tribune
Chicago, Illinois

Dear Mr. McMahon:

Seven years ago, we opened our first store near Broadway on Devon featuring scientific footwear for children.

To reach a reader audience appreciative of the specialized fitting service of top quality footwear for children, we chose the Tribune. The results were very satisfactory.

You can best judge the success of this advertising by the fact that in 1935 we opened a second store in Winnetka, and in 1938, a third store on the South Side of Chicago.

In each case, we simply expanded our use of Sunday Tribune Metropolitan section advertising which is still paying out for our original store. It is an advertising plan, you may be sure, that we intend to follow in the future.

Sincerely yours,
J. R. DeWitt

Shoe Retailer Tells How Advertising in the Sunday Tribune Metropolitan Sections Helped Him Open Two New Stores

In the above letter, a neighborhood shoe retailer tells how one store grew into three as a result of advertising in the Sunday Tribune Metropolitan sections.

No matter how large or small your store—regardless of what you sell, or to whom you sell—you can benefit by the economical, tested plan which the Tribune has developed especially for the neighborhood merchant.

Do you want more information about this low-cost sales building method which 745 neighborhood enterprises used last year to get more patronage from the people best able to trade with them?

Call SUPerior 0100—Metropolitan Section advertising—and ask a Tribune representative to bring you the complete facts.

SELECT YOUR SCHOOL CAREFULLY

Living in America: teaching American people, and getting American Money for it, we teach you to dance the American Way.

Few people can dance these so-called foreign dances with the style that makes them distinctive.

In these dances you must practice, and dance, with the same person, thus robbing you of the fun of being popular in a crowd—instead of being popular with just the one person with whom you can perform this special dance.

Every person can learn to dance the FOX TROT, ONE STEP, TWO STEP, and WALTZ sufficiently well to be able to dance with any one chosen as a partner, and enjoy it to the fullest extent.

We teach an entirely different system than any other school, but we teach you how to dance—which in itself is decidedly different.

It is not what steps you make, but how you move your body in time, tune and accent with music that makes you an artistic dancer.

Sane music is an important factor in getting full measure of enjoyment out of your dancing. We employ sane music only.

A W-G-N SCOOP! PREMIERE OF NEW DE MILLE MOVIE

Stars Madeleine Carroll, Gary Cooper on Air.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Next Thursday W-G-N will present a notable radio scoop—the radio première of Cecil B. DeMille's new $2,000,000 technicolor Paramount production, "North West Mounted Police." Chicago will have its first real motion picture première that evening when the lavish production is presented at the Chicago theater with all the stars and Mr. DeMille participating.

Cecil B. DeMille.

All the stars, headed by Gary Cooper, Madeleine Carroll and Paulette Goddard, will be presented on the W-G-N première of the picture, which will be presented on In Chicago Tonight from 7:30 to 8 p. m., station, will direct the air première. at the theater. Mr. DeMille will be master of ceremonies.

William A. Bacher, production chief of W-G-N, who last week obtained the exclusive broadcasting rights for the station, will direct the air première His writing and production staff is now busy on the radio adaptation.

De Mille to Introduce Stars.

Other stars who will appear on the W-G-N show will be Preston Foster, Lynne Overman and Robert Preston. Additional Hollywood notables are expected to be on hand for the broadcast.

Mr. De Mille will introduce the stars who will present specially adapted scenes from the all color production which depicts Gary Cooper as a Texas Ranger who journeys to Canada in search of an outlaw. Hollywood previewers have pronounced "North West Mounted Police" as the greatest among De Mille's impressive list of motion picture productions.

Immediately following the broadcast the stars will join in a parade thru bedecked loop streets and then go to the Chicago theater for the première showing of the picture. [The picture will open the same evening in a selected list of other theaters in Chicago.]

Second Broadcast Planned.

Batteries of kleig lights, clicking newsreel cameras and flaring flashbulbs will add color to the loop première. The State Street council, loop business men's organization, headed by David Mayer Jr. is coöperating with W-G-N, Balaban and Katz, and Paramount pictures in this gala première.

W-G-N is planning a second broadcast from the scene of the premiere in the loop, employing the W-G-N short wave unit from 8:30 to 9 p. m., provided the time is available.

Four Music Experts on Your Music I. Q. Tomorrow

Four personalities in Chicago's music world will serve as experts on "Your Music I. Q.," music quiz program presented from 8:30 to 9 p. m. tomorrow on W-G-N. John Weicher, concert master of the Chicago Symphony orchestra; William Wymetal, chief regisseur of the Chicago Opera company; Robert Pollak, music critic, and Miss La Verne De Lorrier, authority on popular music recordings, will be the board of experts.

LEW LOYAL, BETSY FOLLOW TRAIL OF SPY ORGANIZATION

What an all-American boy does when he discovers a mysterious anti-American organization will be depicted on the new Lew Loyal adventure feature at 7 p. m. next Friday over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Lew Loyal, with his friend Betsy True and his Uncle Mack, a secret serevice agent, will follow the trail of the Brothers of Freedom, suspected spy organization, as next Friday's episode opens.

The adventures of Lew Loyal are also portrayed in the Comic magazine of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. A $10,000 contest for boys and girls is being sponsored by THE TRIBUNE in connection with the comic strip and radio program.

FANTASTIC TALE OF CHILD GIANTS ON 'PETER QUILL'

A bizarre scheme to build an army of child giants—mentally incapable of reason, blindly loyal to their masters—will be unfolded on the Peter Quill show today. The fantastic story of half-mad Prince Hirogi and his baby giants will be heard from 3 to 3:30 p. m. over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Blair Walliser, writer and producer of the Quill series, projects possible insidious uses of glandular injections, now used by doctors to aid handicapped people, in this episode. As with other incidents on the Quill show, the story is on the borderline of reality—a possible glimpse into the future.

Prince Hirogi, a supposed oriental scientist, is depicted as discovering a potion, made by combining thyroxin and pituitoxin, which, when injected into the blood stream, causes extremely rapid physical growth with no corresponding mental change.

BOAKE CARTER RETURNS TO AIR NEXT WEDNESDAY

Commentator to Start W-G-N—MBS Series.

After an absence of almost two years from the networks, Boake Carter, nationally known news commentator and editorialist will return to the air next Wednesday. He will be heard from 7:30 to 7:45 p. m. on Mondays, Wednesday, and Saturday weekly over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system.

This series will be sponsored by United Airlines. This is the first time an air line has sponsored a regular program on a major network. Carter, who is a pilot, has flown more than 200,000 miles on commercial lines.

Most of his broadcasts will originate in New York but when he travels about the country on lecture assignments he will be picked up from various cities.

Carter has had a life filled with adventure. Born in Baku, Russia, where his father was in the consular service, he was educated at Cambridge university. During the war he served with the Royal Flying corps; later was a roving correspondent for the London Daily Mail. He illustrated his own stories. He is also a portrait painter.

He was a reporter in Philadelphia from 1924 to 1932 when he got into radio work. For years he was followed by a multitude of listeners because of his outspoken comments on national and world affairs.

This will be his first radio series on a national network with half the world at war.

WILKOMIRSKI'S SOLO TO FEATURE SYMPHONIC HOUR

Marion Claire Will Sing Three Songs.

Michael Wilkomirski, concertmaster of the W-G-N Symphony orchestra, will be featured on the Chicago Tribune Symphonic Hour tonight in a violin solo presentation of Ravel's "Tzigane." The concert will be broadcast from 9 to 10 p. m. over W-G-N, the coast to coast Mutual network, and the entire network of the Canadian Broadcasting corporation.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of the CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak during the broadcast. Marion Claire, noted soprano, will sing three solos and Henry Weber will lead the orchestra in selections from Von Weber, Mendelssohn, and Tschaikowsky.

After the orchestra's opening presentation of the overture to "Euryanthe," by Carl Maria von Weber, Miss Claire will sing Oscar Strauss' "Music in My Heart" as the first of her solos. The orchestra will play the scherzo in G minor for string octet, by Felix Mendelssohn, and will conclude the hour of music with the finale from Peter Tschaikowsky's Fifth Symphony.

Miss Claire and the augmented chorus will sing "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean" and "Calm As the Night," by Joseph Bohm.

The complete program:

Euryanthe, overture....................Weber
Orchestra.
Music in My Heart..............O. Strauss
Marion Claire and orchestra.
Scherzo in G Minor for String Octet....
..............................Mendelssohn
Orchestra.
Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen. White

The Chicago Theater of the Air will broadcast "The Student Prince" from 9 to 10 p. m. next Saturday over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system. Three well known artists, Marion Claire, Jan Peerce, and Bruce Foote, will sing the leads in Sigmund Romberg's gay operetta.

Jan Peerce, noted radio and concert tenor, makes a triumphant return to the Theater of the Air after his appearance in "The Student Prince" in the spring series. He will again portray the part of Prince Karl Franz.

Miss Claire, W-G-N's operatic soprano, who sang opposite Peerce in the spring production as Kathie, will again be starred.

Altho a newcomer to the W-G-N operettas, baritone Bruce Foote, is known thruout the country and especially in the midwest. He won second place in the Chicago Opera Company auditions this season.

The operetta will be under direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs and productions at W-G-N. Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N and artistic director of the Chicago Opera Company, will lead the W-G-N concert orchestra and chorus.

LECTURE FORUM AGAIN PLANNED BY ANSHE EMET

Opening Session Will Be Held Nov. 12.

Rabbi Solomon Goldman.

For the ninth year Anshe Emet synagogue, Pine Grove avenue and Grace street, will hold its forum of lectures and discussions, the opening session to be held Nov. 12.

At the first meeting Bertrand Russell, English philosopher and educator, will exchange views with Clifton Utley, director of the Chicago Council of ForeignRelations, and Dr. Solomon Goldman, author and lecturer. The forum series will be conducted on 12 Tuesday evenings ending Feb. 11.

On the second evening, Nov. 12, Leland Stowe, foreign correspondent, will speak on "Uncle Sam Rediscovers America." The next meeting will consist of the group that conducts the University of Chicago Round Table, including Dr. Paul H. Douglas, Maynard C. Krueger, and Walter H. C. Laves. Their subject will be "Can America Stay Out of War."

Other prominent speakers who have been scheduled to appear at the forum include Pierre Van Paasen, noted Flemish author; Emil Lengyel, authority on central European politics; David Seabury, psychologist and author, and Oswald Garrison Villard, former editor of The Nation.

Max M. Grossman is chairman of the forum committee, and William A. Nudelman is director.

Hebrew school graduation exercises of the Anshe Emet synagogue schools will be held Tuesday evening at the temple, Pine Grove avenue and Grace street. William A. Nudelman, director of education, will present the graduates, and the main address will be delivered by Rabbi Judah Nadich. The graduating class wil present a play and music will be furnished by the Anshe Emet ensemble under the direction of Herbert Gutstein.

The youth division of the American Jewish congress is opening a new district in the Rogers Park area.

The playshop of the Ner Tamid Senior alliance will present "Three Men On a Horse" this evening at the auditorium, Rosemont and California avenues.

RAT WAR MOVES TO NEW WARDS; TOLL MOUNTING

The city's war against rats rolled on last week, as the army of rat baiters, equipped with poisonous red squill, moved into 15 new wards, placing bait in every rat hole. The exterminators, working out of Commissioner of Public Works Oscar E. Hewitt's office, have so far killed an estimated 400,000 rats, and the toll is mounting every day.

According to the latest report from Commissioner Hewitt 14 wards have been baited and the first stage of the destruction is completed. These wards are the 22d, 23d, 26th, 29th, 30th, 31st, 33d, 35th, 37th, 39th, 47th, 48th, 49th, and 50th. With these sections now under control work has been started in the 1st, 3d, 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 10th, 16th, 18th, 21st, 32d, 34th, 36th, and 40th.

Rat Canvass Made.

The battle against the rodents has been helped by a house to house canvass to ascertain where and under what conditions rats have been seen in the neighborhoods. With more than one-third of the city already checked the relief workers who are doing the baiting are using the reports to guide their work.

35 Wards 100 Per Cent.

As the work of exterminating the pests is being carried out only in wards where 100 per cent of the buildings are supplied with garbage cans the drive to supply every building with a receptacle is being pushed harder. At the latest report 35 out of the 50 city wards were 100 per cent supplied.

End Their Police Duties

Mark 50 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kaczmarek.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kaczmarek, 4910 North Monitor avenue, recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. Their four sons, four daughters, and nine grandchildren all joined in the festivities. Mr. Kaczmarek came from Poland in 1887 and Mrs. Kaczmarek came to this country from West Prussia in 1890, the year that they were married. The wedding took place at St. Stanislaus Kostka church.

SCHOOL SOCIAL DANCE CLASSES TO OPEN FRIDAY

The third season for the social centers sponsored by the Chicago board of education will be opened with a homecoming Friday night under the direction of Ernestine L. Badt. Alumni are invited. Instruction in square and folk dancing will be offered in the classes in preparation for a barn dance Nov. 1.

North side centers are located at Amundsen High school, 5110 North Damen avenue; Lane, 2501 Addison street; Senn, 5900 Glenwood avenue, and Waller, 2007 Orchard street. The centers are open to all persons between 16 and 25 years old who wish to learn to dance or spend an evening with others their own age.

The beginners' class at 7 o'clock offers basic ballroom dancing, the one step, fox trot, and waltz. Those in the advanced class at 7:45 o'clock will learn to dance the rumba, tango, and Viennese waltz. Classes are limited to 200 members. General dancing continues from 8:30 o'clock to midnight.

MEDICAL UNIT PLANS PUBLIC RELATIONS MEET

The Women's auxiliary of the north side branch of the Chicago Medical society will hold its annual public relations meeting tomorrow afternoon at the Chicago Historical society.

A movie, sponsored by the American Society for the Control of Cancer, will be shown, and John M. Pratt, executive administrator of the National Physicians Committee for the Extension of Medical Services, will speak on medical progress.

Dr. Franklin C. Bing, secretary of the Council on Foods of the American Medical association, will discuss "Nutrition in Relation to National Defense."

4 POLICEMEN TOTAL UP 130 YEARS OF DUTY

Get a Farewell Party on Retirement.

Four retiring policemen at Town Hall station, 3600 North Halsted street, collectively celebrated more than 130 years of police work a few days ago at a farewell party at 3239 North Clark street.

Sx hundred persons attended the celebration given by their fellow officers. The retiring policemen, each on the force for more than 30 years, are Sergt. Michael Miniter, Policemen Michael Walsh and Thomas Sullivan, and Police Operator James Nary.

Pounded Beat Together.

For more than 30 years Officers Sullivan and Walsh have been partners on the police force. As rookies they pounded a beat together. They were at East Chicago avenue station for more than 10 years, and when they were transferred to Town Hall 12 years ago they were assigned to the same shift on "the wagon."

Walsh, who resides with a sister at 3711 Kenmore avenue, is a bachelor. He was retired in September. Sullivan, his partner, is married and has one son, Thomas. Sullivan, who says he "isn't much of a hand at fishing," thinks he and his partner may try it more often now that they have the time. Most of the time, however, he says, he will spend taking care of his three-story building at 905 Dakin street.

War Balks Erin Trip.

Sergt. Miniter, who has been a policeman for 34 years, 16 of which he has spent as desk sergeant at Town Hall, says he would like to take a trip to Ireland, but the war will prevent that. He intends to spend his leisure taking care of his house at 7361 North Hoyne avenue. He has two sons, John and Walter; two daughters, Mary and Ann, and one grandchild. He was retired from the police department Aug. 1.

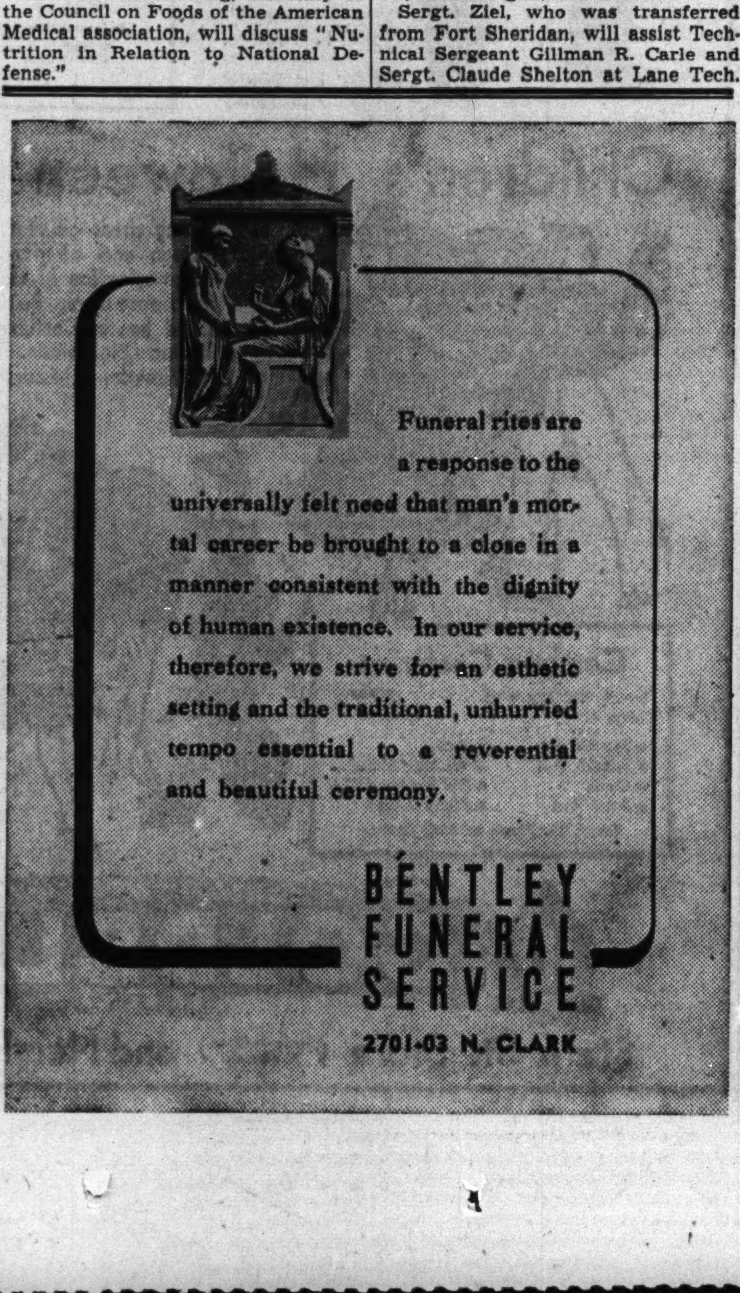
Operator Neary, who resides at 2323 Kenmore avenue, was retired this month. He has worked at the Town Hall switchboard for eight years. He has made only one plan for the futur, he says, and that is continuing to stay in Chicago, which, he adds, "is the greatest place in the world." Officer Neary has one son, James Jr., and one daughter, Katherine.

AUSTIN ALUMNUS ADDED TO ARMY STAFF AT LANE

Sergt. John R. Ziel, a Chicagoan who was graduated from Austin High school and received his R. O. T. C. training there, has been appointed to the Lane Technical High school R. O. T. C. staff from the regular army.

Sergt. Ziel joined the army in 1935, and soon held a corporal's warrant. Two years later he was made a sergeant, and in 1938 saw service in the Philippines, where he experienced, among other things, three typhoons and two earthquakes. He is an expert marksman in the use of the rifle, pistol, machine gun, and howitzer.

Sergt. Ziel, who was transferred from Fort Sheridan, will assist Technical Sergeant Gillman R. Carle and Sergt. Claude Shelton at Lane Tech.



Funeral rites are a response to the universally felt need that man's mortal career be brought to a close in a manner consistent with the dignity of human existence. In our service, therefore, we strive for an esthetic setting and the traditional, unhurried tempo essential to a reverential and beautiful ceremony.

OFFICERS PLAN A MILITARY DANCE FOR NOVEMBER 2

The annual military ball of the Cook county chapter of the Reserve Officers' association will be held in the Grand ballroom of the La Salle hotel on Saturday evening, Nov. 2. The ball will be preceded by a dinner for Lieut. Gen. Ben Lear, recently transferred from Panama to Chicago to command the 2d army.

This will be the first opportunity for the officers and their ladies of the Chicago area to greet the new commanding officer. Maj. George B. Morse, chairman of the ball, announced that plans have been made to accommodate more than 500 couples.

Are you selling all the people right in your own neighborhood who might trade with you?
For more than 12 years, large and small businesses located in many neighborhoods and suburbs of Chicago have proved conclusively that there is no better way to build sales and profits than by running a consistent schedule of low-cost advertising in the Sunday Tribune Metropolitan sections.
During 1939, a total of 745 neighborhood enterprises used this advertising plan to get a greater share of the patronage of the families who can best trade with them.
One or more of these five sections—North, Northwest, West, Southwest, and South—are edited for and read exclusively by the families in your trading area.
For more information about this time, and result-tested plan for increasing your sales, call SUPerior 0100—Metropolitan section advertising.

DIVIDE SIX ROOM APARTMENT INTO 2 SMALLER ONES

Owner Himself Builds an Ornamental Door.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

This is a story which will interest you because of the many ingenious, attractive changes made in a six room apartment in Chicago. It will have further interest for you if you have ever considered the possibilities of dividing a large apartment into two smaller ones.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald M. MacDonald, 6425 Ingleside avenue, Chicago, were faced with the problem of doing just that.

The apartment had six rooms and one bath, a long hallway running from front to back, and a large back porch.

Now the first floor of the building has been divided into two apartments, and the entrance to the MacDonald home has been placed on the north side of the structure. New steps and wrought iron rail lead to a finely designed door which Mr. MacDonald built himself.

Just inside there is a small hallway which leads thru an arched opening into the living room.

This room was once the dining room of the apartment. The beams were removed from ceiling, walls replastered, and radiator handsomely inclosed in ivory cabinet which matches the woodwork. The walls were canvased in ivory tone, with a pale green ceiling and a wood rose carpeting.

Beyond this room ,and adding to its apparent size, are French doors which lead out to the living-dining porch.

A new bathroom was installed and it's a little beauty. The walls are of structural glass, with a faint peach glow—reflected from the soft coloring in the rubber tile floor, in the deep pink of the shower curtains, and the dusty pink of the towels and accessories. The shower and tub are built-in and there's a small casement window over the tub.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Oct. 21.

Grapevines planted during fall may do better than spring planted stock because of an earlier start. The grape can be moved easily as soon as the leaves fall from well ripened wood. Make cuttings 8 to 12 inches long and with three joints. Make the lower cut just below joint and the upper cut about an inch above the bud. Bury the cuttings in the soil until spring and line out in the garden. Cuttings of many kinds of shrubs can be handled in the same manner with good results.

Tuesday, Oct. 22.

Bittersweet vines can be propagated from seeds sown this fall by root cuttings, or from soft wood cuttings. It makes a strong vine in partial shade and is fine for the north porch.

Wednesday, Oct. 23.

A number of bulbous plants do well in the rockery. The grape hyacinth is delightful for banks and pockets among the rocks. They grow from 5 to 6 inches high. Glory of the Snow has a fine blue flower, doing nicely in colonies, like the snowdrops and squills. The snowdrop and squill look attractive when dotted between bulbs. Regale lilies between peonies will prove attractive and various other combinations easily can be arranged.

Thursday, Oct. 24.

If the garden has not been put in good condition see that it is done at once. The vegetable garden plot should be cleaned of all débris, the ground given a good coat of barnyard manure if it is available, spaded under, and the soil allowed to remain in the rough. Frost will mellow the soil and planting will be easier next spring. All rubbish that can be burned should be destroyed. The tools should be cleaned and stored.

Friday, Oct. 25.

Tulips can be planted as long as the ground can be worked. Take good care of the bulbs now because foreign sources of supply are cut off. Get the neighbors to help and have the vacant lot next door plowed this fall for next spring's planting. If it is not needed for vegetables cover crops can be sown to keep down weeds; it is one way to aid in city beautification and to combat weeds.

Saturday, Oct. 26.

Root pruning fruit trees that have made too rank growth is often beneficial. Take a sharp spade and cut thru the thick roots on one side the first year; if that fails to check the growth and cause fruitfulness, the other side may be cut the second year. This refers to older trees that do not fruit well.

A Tenderfoot Learns to Ride

TO LEAD A HORSE
STIRRUP PULLED UP AND STRAP LOOPED THRU
RIGHT HAND CLOSE TO BIT
LOOSE ENDS OF REINS IN LEFT HAND
ADJUSTING STIRRUP WHILE IN SADDLE
KEEP "FEEL" ON REINS WITH FREE HAND
RAISE KNEE TOWARD HORSES HEAD

There are certain definite points of etiquet to be observed by all considerate riders of the horse trails and bridle paths, I have learned by actual experience since I began taking instruction from Elmer J. Holdorf. I quote a few of them below, substantially as they were given to me:

Be considerate to your mount always, or good riders will condemn you, perhaps even to your face.

If you're to ride in company with some one else, don't start out until your companions are mounted, or you will make their steeds restless.

It's best not to cluck at your horse to start him or urge him on faster. Other mounts nearby may respond to it. Anyhow, it isn't necessary.

Keep your horse under control at all times, and especially when others are about you; most saddle horses are spirited creatures, easily excited.

Some Horses Kick.

Don't ride less than half a length away from the horse in front, which may kick no matter how well behaved he is considered.

Scold your horse if he shows signs of biting another. Usually a sharp word from you is enough to remind him of his manners.

Never run your horse past other mounted riders. Horses are very susceptible to the example of others of their kind, and you might start a small stampede.

Pass approaching horses to the right. Keep to the right side of the trail for other riders who are overtaking you.

It's a good rule to speak a word of greeting to other riders you meet, whether you know them or not. Equestrians, unlike motorists, make a point of being pleasant to each other.

When riding with other equestrians, group the horses rather than the riders. It's a form of cruelty to compel a spirited horse to stay behind a plodder.

Don't Let Horse Browse.

Keep your mount from browsing along the trail. It's not only impolite on the horse's part [and a well-mannered horse knows this], but it's also destructive of park and forest preserve plant life, that should be saved for every one's enjoyment.

While fording a stream, don't run your horse or he may fall. And it's best not to halt him in the water. He might shy and give you an unexpected bath.

And Avoid Mudholes.

Steer your horse around mudholes if possible. Getting him muddy is not only unsightly, but it makes extra work for the stable hands.

Be careful of fire. Be sure your cigarets and matches are extinguished before you throw them away. Report suspicious smoke at the nearest telephone.

Stop and look both ways before crossing a highway.

Don't be a drug store cowboy, the name horsemen contemptuously apply to wild riders.

RIDING STORIES IN THE TRIBUNE ELICIT PRAISE

Start Many on the Way to Horsemanship.

Horsemen and horsewomen of the Chicago area including many leaders of the sport, have expressed their commendation for the series of riding stories appearing in the Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE under the heading "A Tenderfoot Learns to Ride."

This series, written by Harold Smith, a member of THE TRIBUNE staff, began last July 21 and will be concluded with next Sunday's installment.

Most of those who have lauded the series have urged that it be reproduced in booklet form, a suggestion that has been taken under advisement by THE TRIBUNE.

Riding Interest Increases.

Some of the commentators credit this feature and other equestrian stories that have appeared in the Metropolitan section recently with responsibility for much of the increase in riding interest shown this summer. One of these is Herbert J. Lorber, president of the Town and Country Equestrian association, director of the Arlington Jockey club, and former polo player.

"There has been a sharp upturn this year in the number of new riders," Lorber said. "The increase has been too big to be attributed to normal growth. I am convinced the Tenderfoot series was the major factor in this unusual growth. The stories, based on sound horsemanship principles, point out graphically the simplicity and the pleasure of enjoying park and forest preserve woodlands from horseback."

Wayne Dinsmore, secretary of the Horse and Mule Association of America, also credited the Tribune series with stimulating interest in riding, and urged that the stories be collectively issued "for the lasting benefit they can confer on the sport of horsemanship."

Many Start Riding.

Riding apparel dealers and others catering to the needs of the equestrian world say that the demand for "first" outfits by beginning riders has never been greater than at present.

A. K. Gordon, manager of the riding apparel department of a large store attributed a one-third increase in sales largely to THE TRIBUNE's stories of horse world activities and to the Tenderfoot series.

Similar comment was made by Don Iltis, manager of another large store catering to the starting rider.

Catholic University Group Plans Masquerade Saturday

DEWEY DEMANDS NAVAL VESSELS BE BUILT HERE

Would Aid Jobless, Says Candidate.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Naval shipbuilding for Chicago as a part of the city's share of rearmament porjects was urged last week by Charles S. Dewey, Republican candidate for congress from the 9th congressional district.

Continuing his battle against neglect of the Chicago area in handing out national defense contracts, the former assistant secretary of the treasury enumerated his reasons why this part of the country is ideally situated to aid in the naval end of rearmament. His newest proposal was made at a 44th ward rally in the Swiss club house at 639 Webster avenue.

Dewey, who was a naval lieutenant aboard the battleship Mississippi in the world war, said Chicagoland has the facilities for building smaller craft, such as submarine chasers, coast defense vessels, and fast, flatbottomed craft for reconnaisance or landing troops.

Have Plant Facilities.

"There are six factories in this area that could manufacture such boats," he declared. "Their plants can be expanded to provide work for hundreds of the area's unemployed. Boats built here could be delivered to the Atlantic coast via the Great Lakes, or they could be sent down the deep waterway and the Mississippi river to the Gulf of Mexico.

"For those who doubt that boats even of fair size could be built here, I would like to point out that ten submarines for our navy are being built in Manitowoc. Those sizable craft will be sent down the waterway and the Mississippi."

Dewey pointed out that in addition to its shipyards, the Chicago area also has numerous factories equipped to turn out valves, pumps and other parts and materials needed for larger vessels being constructed elsewhere.

These shipyards and factories are safer here than those nearer the seaboards, he declared, because adequate land defenses can protect them against hostile visitations. Much more vulnerable centers are buzzing with defense building activity, he told his listeners.

Propounds a Query.

"Why hasn't Chicago received its share of these armament contracts?" he asked. "It is because the New Deal congressmen representing this area have failed to interest themselves in the industrial workers they profess to represent in congress.

"I cannot understand this indifference on the part of the local New Dealers. They claim to be the friends of labor, yet when the opportunity presents itself to help workers of this area obtain jobs in private industry they sit idly by and allow contracts involving hundreds of millions of dollars to go to other sections of the country."

Dewey promised to fight for correction of this situation in congress. Meanwhile he placed himself at the disposal of any group interested in attracting defense projects to Chicago.

Moreland Gains Strength.

In the large 7th district on the northwest side, the prospects of Former Ald. James C. Moreland, G. O. P. challenger of Congressman Leonard W. Schuetz, brightened with the announcement of aid from Former Congressman M. A. Michaelson.

Michaelson opposed Moreland in the primary last April and received nearly 13,000 votes. He announced he would ask all those who supported him then to vote for Moreland on Nov. 5.

"We must have a Republican in congress from our district, and Moreland must win," Michaelson said. "Casting aside all personal aims and feeling that absolute unity is necessary in the present emergency, I have enlisted in the cause and am giving all my time and energy to bring about the election of Moreland."

Haderlein Pushes Fight.

In his talks last week Haderlein stressed the importance of the good neighbor policy toward South America, and pledged his support to its continuation if he is elected.

Paddock was notified last week of his appointment to the Illinois National Guard service commission, formed to coöperate with enlisted Illinoisians in solving home and financial problems arising by reason of their military service. The appointment was made by Maj. Gen. Samuel T. Lawton, commander of the 33d division of the National Guard.

Paddock, who served as a captain and major in the 86th division in the world war, recently received a citation as one of the Illinois delegates to the St. Louis convention of 1919 that helped organize the American Legion.

Nixon Alumni Will Elect New Officers on Thursday

Nixon alumni will hold their annual meeting at 8 o'clock Thursday evening in Hermosa park fieldhouse, Kilbourn and Belden avenues. Election of officers will be held. George M. O'Brien Jr. is president.

Lutheran Day Nursery Opens Annual Bazar on Tuesday

The children at the Lutheran Deaconess Day nursery lead busy lives playing with their toys while the nursery's board of directors is even more busy planning for the annual bazar next Tuesday and Wednesday at the Logan Square Masonic hall. Four year old Dorothy Segnitz (left) pauses a moment while preparing her dolls for their dinner.

Another 4 year old, June Malek, demonstrates the use of her toy washing machine in which her doll's clothing is washed. Very domestic youngsters all, Diane Kotarek rocks her doll to sleep while Edgar Christiansen helps. The children spend their days at the nursery while their mothers are working.

NORWAY'S PLIGHT IS TOLD IN LETTER TO NORTH SIDER

Animals Lost in War's Destruction.

A vivid description of conditions in German occupied Norway is contained in a letter received by a Chicago woman from her cousin in Norway. The letter was received by Mrs. Nellie E. Mitchell of the Eastgate hotel, an employé in The Tribune composing room.

The letter reads:

"Lillehammer, Norway,
"[Gudbrands valley], Aug. 4, 1940.

"Dear cousin: Thousand thanks for your letter, which was two months in reaching me. I suppose even the mail has stopped! Mrs. ——, whom you met here, has not heard from her young daughter in Minnesota, and now they've moved, so she feels terribly worried about her. Her sons both came home and were not injured, but for other neighbors around it was worse. Sons have fallen, buildings burned, and all the animals got killed or burned.

"This means cows, horses, pigs, chickens—and no doubt the fox. Many owned profitable fox farms near these little cities.

Agricultural College Burns.

"The agricultural college near your father's birthplace was also burned. But Germans are living all around here now, and they will build up everything again this winter. All is very sorrowful here, but no one, I suppose, can help that. Perhaps the worst is yet to come! Many whom you met here are gone and will never return.

"I am staying at home; my brother has work. Regards from the two rich ladies near us whom you met. They nearly went insane during the war trouble. We all had to flee to the woods for quite a long period. Eight days of that time I did not remove my clothes.

Roads Are Torn Up.

"For six weeks the soldiers and airplanes were around us day and night; the roads are all torn up and almost impassable. Well, it might have been better if we had all been blown up then. I don't understand anything any more; I seem so stunned. I suppose I should be thankful that I can see and hear.

"Now we're having nice late summer weather, but things have been very dry; perhaps because so much of our land burned. There'll be very little growing on our land now, but there aren't animals to eat anyway, now.

"No One Receives Mail."

"I suppose the young men over there are in the war, too; O my what sorrow and trouble. No one I know receives any mail from over there.

"I hope you are well and have work; when you have work and work hard, you can forget many things. Peter —— sends regards; his son also fell.

"Tomorrow I'm going to the woods to gather berries, but now we have no sugar. Do write soon; and, pray for us. Maybe that will help."

Will Play Cards.

The Niobe club, group No. 411 of the Polish Women's Alliance of America will sponsor a card party at 4611 Gladys avenue at 1 o'clock Friday. Mrs. Anna Przygocki and Mrs. Frank J. Kafka are in charge of arrangements.

ELMWOOD PARK GIRL TO DANCE IN OPERA BALLET THIS SEASON

When the Chicago opera season opens Nov. 2, a young northwest sider will be making her first major appearance on a Chicago stage She is Dorothy Mortrude a member of the corps de ballet of the Ballet theater which has been engaged for regular performances during the opera season. The ballet will also present 12 exclusive programs, the first of which will take place on Nov. 3.

Miss Dorothy Mortrude.

Miss Mortrude, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arve M. Mortrude of Elmwood Park, is a graduate of Steinmetz High school. Since she was 6 years old, Miss Mortrude has studied dancing. A pupil of Edna McRae, she tried for a place in the ballet two years ago during a visit to her aunt in the east. Competing in a list of 250 dancers, she was one of the 16 chosen for the troupe.

The ballet will give two special all-ballet performances each week during the six week opera season, appearing on Thursday evenings and Sunday afternoons at the Civic Opera house.

AUSTIN ALUMNUS ADDED TO ARMY STAFF AT LANE

Sergt. John R. Ziel, a Chicagoan who was graduated from Austin High school and received his R. O. T. C. training there, has been appointed to the Lane Technical High school R. O. T. C. staff from the regular army.

Sergt. Ziel joined the army in 1935, and soon held a corporal's warrant. Two years later he was made a sergeant, and in 1938 saw service in the Philippines, where he experienced, among other things, three typhoons and two earthquakes. He is an expert marksman in the use of the rifle, pistol, machine gun, and howitzer.

Sergt. Ziel, who was transferred from Fort Sheridan, will assist Technical Sergeant Gillman R. Carle and Sergt. Claude Shelton at Lane Tech.

FORESTERS HOLD ANNUAL PARTY FRIDAY EVENING

An annual card party will be held Friday evening by the Northwest Side Associated Courts of the Catholic Order of Foresters at St. Sylvester's auditorium, Richmond and Palmer streets.

Christ G. Hendricks, 2823 West Wellington avenue, is chairman of the event, and Vincent J. Newman, 3106 North Francisco avenue, is secretary.

The following eight courts are included in the northwest side: St. Marks, St. Boniface, Christopher Columbus, Manning, Hynes, St. Rochus, St. John Berchman, and Msgr. Thiele.

JEWISH CENTER TO MARK LAYING OF CORNER STONE

The laying of the corner stone of a $30,000 addition to the Hebrew Institute of Albany Park, 4858 North Lawndale avenue, will be observed next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The principal address will be by Rabbi Adam Neuberger, director of the institute since last February.

Altho only a year old, the institute operates a Hebrew school with an attendance of 400 pupils, as well as a community social center. These departments will occupy the first and second floors of the new biulding, respectively. Religious services will be held, as previously, in the old part of the building.

Max L. Coleman, 4714 North St. Louis avenue, is chairman of the corner stone ceremony and Maurice J. Nathanson, 4859 North Monticello avenue, will act as master of ceremonies.

Halloween Party.

The Chicago District Outing club will hold a Hallowen party Saturday evening in the Garfield park refectory, Guests are invited to come in costume.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About People You May Know

A RECENT bride of the northwest side is Mrs. Albert Sikora, who was graduated from Kelvyn Park High school last June. She is the former Elaine Dorothy Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo J. Miller of 4920 Deming place. Her husband is the son of Mrs. Josephine Sikora of 2724 North Hamlin avenue.

Real estate dealers in Des Plaines now can boast that their city has a 100 per cent country atmosphere, even tho a rapidly growing community with several thousand inhabitants. And, if their boast is questioned, they have proof.

For within the last week two Chicago motorists have been hailed into Police Magistrate Albert Sengstock's court on speeding charges and pleaded that they did not know they were in a town.

"That is the last straw. What is the maximum fine?" was the judge's reply to Keith Peterson's statement, "I didn't know it was a town," and his reaction was similar a day or so later when Clarence Higgins told him he thought he was in the country. Both were fined.

UNTIL recently Eugene Oeschler of 2837 Roscoe street had not seen one of his sisters for 31 years and another for 43 years. The former, Mrs. Klara Hees, has returned to her home in Nevada after a visit with her brother here, and the latter, Mrs. Fanny Howard, has returned to California. With two other sisters and two other brothers, the family was born in Germany. The sisters came to this country in 1897 and 1909, and Mr. Ooeschler came over in 1923. He has been in the hotel business here. One brother, Reynold, lives at 1831 North Orleans street.

JAMES VEBECK, 6038 North Neva avenue, was the winner of the annual contest among freshmen at Ripon college, Ripon, Wis., for the best essay on "Why I Have Chosen Ripon as My College." Vebeck was voted the most literary in his class in 1938 when he was graduated from Carl Schurz High school. He also received an award for "outstanding service to his school," and a scholarship at the Art institute.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Owen, 2351 North Normandy avenue, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Helen, to Robert E. White, 1652 North Austin avenue. The wedding will take place Nov. 9 at the Judson Baptist church in Oak Park.

Purple Heart, Military Order, to Meet Tuesday

The regular meeting of Ray Workman chapter No. 50, Military Order of the Purple Heart, will be held Tuesday evening at the Hotel Sherman. Officers for the year will be elected and installed, and a plaque will be presented to one of the members for faithful service.

PLAN DEFENSE AND RECREATION TALKS ON NOV. 8

Thousands Will Attend Conference.

Recreation's rôle in the national defense program will be brought out at the Sixth Annual Recreation conference to be held Nov. 8 in the Hotel Sherman, by the Chicago Recreation commission.

Dr. Malcolm S. MacLean.
[Cheyne Photo.]

"The basis for national preparedness rests upon maintenance of citizen morale," explained Dr. Arthur H. Todd of Northwestern university sociology department. "Recreation, defined as the healthy, wholesome use of citizens' leisure time, plays a key rôle in the morale of a nation at any time."

Thousands to Attend.

For this reason, "Recreation and Preparedness" was chosen for the theme of the conference. Dr. Malcolm S. MacLean, new president of Hampton institute, Norfolk, Va., and former director of the General college of the University of Minnesota, will be the principal speaker.

Dr. Todd is chairman of the conference and author of the annual survey on recreation in the Chicago area, published by the commission. The conference is the only one of its kind in the United States which brings together professional recreation leaders and thousands of lay men, women, and youths from the communities in an all day program centered upon recreation as a constructive social force.

Recreation Aids Patriotism.

In further explanation of the conference theme, Dr. Todd said: "The qualities of citizenship which make for a nation's preparedness are the same in times of peace as in times of stress and emergency. But during an emergency, these qualities must meet a special challenge—the challenge of heightened discipline and danger. Recreation fosters the positive states of mind whose sum total is patriotism.

"Recreation," he concluded, "is vital to preparedness and the thousands of citizens who will gather for the conference next month realize this fact.

"Out of the round table discussions, open forums and speeches by nationally known leaders of public opinion can come a real contribution to the welfare of our democratic nation."

POLISH UNION PRINTERS PLAN TO HOLD DANCE

The Polish Union Printers' association will hold its annual fall dance on Saturday evening at the P. R. C. U. Youths' hall, Milwaukee avenue and Noble street. Featured on the program of entertainment will be a dance exhibition by Wallace and Letitia. Music will be furnished by Mark Anthony and his orchestra, and dancing will begin at 8:30 p. m.

Suburb Notes Hundred Years of Methodism

When the bells call the Methodist of Barrington to worship today they will be celebrating the 100th anniversary of Methodism in the Barrington area. In the congregation will be an 83 year old lady who attended the old Barrington Center church when she was a little girl and whose grand father was a charter member of the church. That woman is Mrs. H. A. Harnden of Barrington.

Mrs. H. A. Harnden.

In 1840, classes met and worshipped in the schoolhouse or at members' homes and heard ministers of the Dundee circuit preach. But in 1853 the members felt that a place for worship was necessary and a church was built. It stands today. It served as a recruiting station during the civil war. There will be services at the old Barrington Center church this afternoon and a memorial service for the charter members will be held in the little graveyard.

Built by Newcomers.

A church was started in the White school district in 1844 in the Wheeling circuit and when the village of Barrington began to grow, many of the members moved into town and it was that group which built the first Methodist church, a combination school and church of logs, in 1858.

As more and more Methodist from the two outlying churches moved into the village a larger church was built in what was known as Barrington station, on the corner of Ela and Franklin streets, and is today St. Anne's Catholic church.

In 1872 the Cook street church was built and sold when the present church was purchased and dedicated in January, 1931. The parsonage, which was built in 1896, is being abandoned and the new pastor, the Rev. Christian Justus Doenecke, will live in the parsonage near the church.

The Rev. George T. Nesmith, former pastor, retired last Tuesday and died suddenly the following day.

Charter members of the Barrington Center church were Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Philip N. Gould, Mrs. Alvah Miller and her son, E. N. Miller, and Mr. and Mrs. William De Vol, the grandparents of Mr. Harnden. The Rev. Nathan Jewett organized the classes in the White school district.

Came West in 1840.

The De Vols came to Barrington from New York in 1840. Mrs. Harnden's grandfather was a schoolteacher and he became the justice of peace and was active in public affairs in the little community. Her father was seven years old when the family came west.

Two years later the family which was destined to be the other grandparents of Mrs. Harnden also arrived from New York. They were the Jacksons and Catherine Jackson married William G. De Vol in 1854. But the Jacksons were Baptists and when the De Vols moved to Barrington their 11 year old daughter attended the Methodist church in the morning and the Baptist church in the afternoon. Mrs. Harden hastens to remark that her mother had never asked this of her but that she had felt it would make her happier.

Mrs. Harnden remembers when the Cook street church was dedicated and it holds many memories for not only was there worship but all of the social life also centered around the church. It was there that she and her future husband spent many gay hours with their friends, but dancing was not permitted for it was considered unbecoming for a church member to indulge in such frivolity.

Wood Stoves Heated It.

Remembering back to the Barrington Center days, Mrs. Harnden tells of the wood stoves which furnished the heat for the church. People came in farm wagons.

Mrs. Harnden laughed as she recalled how she and her sister would walk a mile and a half to ride to church on a hayrack with some friends of theirs whose father had found it the only conveyance large enough to hold his whole family. There was no organ in that early church, for some of the members felt that organ music was wicked.

Mr. Harnden was also born near Barrington in Cuba township; his family had come from Vermont. Three of Mr. and Mrs. Harnden's children are still living in Barrington, Wilber, Howard P. and Stella M. Welty. Another son, Floid, lives in Kansas City. Mr. Harnden was superintendent of the church for 13 years and Mrs. Harnden organized the primary department.

Invite Former Members.

For the morning services today, former members, choir singers, pastors and their families have been asked to return. Old songs will be sung by a choir of former years and the Rev. C. J. Doenecke will greet long time members, Mrs. H. A. Harnden, Mrs. J. E. Nightingale, Mrs. G. W. Nightingale, and Mrs. Ernest Rieke. The Rev. Thomas E. Ream will conduct the afternoon services at the old Barrington Center church, which is kept up but no longer is used for regular services.

The anniversary dinner will be held on Wednesday.

The chairman for the centennial celebration is Corliss Anderson. Members of the committee are Mrs. P. R. Drover, Mrs. Charles Elsner, Charles Forsberg, Howard Harnden, Harold Safford, and Mrs. John Schwemm.

E. C. SANDQUIST, J. A. DAVIS LAY DOWN PROGRAM

Rap Democrats for Blocking Efforts.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Revival of the legislative investigation of state spending which was twice cut short by the Democratic state administration, was demanded last week by Republican candidates for the Illinois house of representatives in the 25th district, which blankets most of the northwest side.

E. C. Sandquist.

James A. Davis.

Representative Elroy C. Sandquist and James A. Davis, the G. O. P. nominees, declared that voters should remember how the inquiry was halted on two occasions by the Democrats. Their opponents are Representative Raymond T. O'Keefe and Stanley R. Kosinski. The three top vote getters Nov. 5 will win house seats.

Lays Down Program.

The Republican candidates said that the proposed investigating committee should keep in view the following program:

1—Cut state expenses by at least 10 per cent, average.

2—End the 2 per cent political assessment on the state's $40,000,000 a year pay rolls.

3—Break up an undercover alliance diverting road money to personal and political purposes in the state's $50,000,000 a year highway industry.

4—Halt campaign fund shakedowns of persons and companies doing business with the state.

5—Stop pay roll padding done to divert tax money for political purposes.

6—Seek grand jury investigation of sales tax fixing and the state's purchases of liquor revenue stamps at 10 times the prices paid in nearby states.

7—Create a standing committee to serve as a permanent legislative check on state expenditures.

Query for Democrats.

Democrats in the 1939 and 1940 sessions of the legislatures denied charges of waste and graft. If the denials were well-founded, why did they not permit continuance of the investigations to clear themselves, Sandquist and Davis asked.

"They wouldn't give the committee time to prove or disprove a charge that thousands of state automobiles had been purchased without legislative authority," Sandquist said. "We couldn't get the figures.

"Nor were we given the opportunity to look into the charge that the numerous cars unheard of by the public are used for 'joy-riding' as well as for state business."

Sandquist, a businessman seeking his fourth term in the house, is classed as a "valuable member" by the nonpartisan Legislative Voters' league.

Will Support Inquiry.

Davis, owner of a wholesale company, said that if elected he will support any investigation of inefficiency and waste.

"Taxpayers have a right to know all of the facts about their state government," Davis said. "They are paying for the show—$90,818,000 last year in sales tax alone—so they should be informed what goes on behind the scenes.

"We know that state spending has gone up 900 per cent since Frank O. Lowden was governor of Illinois in the world war. We also know from state figures that relief and old age assistance don't account for this. The only thing to do is to dig into the facts, subpena witnesses and records, and get the answers for the people."

Democratic tactics differ from G. O. P. methods, since the Democrats are merely intent upon holding the gains made in previous years.

For Better Bus Service.

Representative O'Keefe as president of the Chicago-Cook County Car Riders' association, talks a good deal about accomplishments in extending feeder bus service in the northwest section.

"I am proud to have had a part in bringing about a new section of the feeder bus service," O'Keefe said. "The Illinois Commerce commission recently granted our group 12 wards improved service. I spent much time at the hearings to aid the project."

O'Keefe will speak at a celebration Oct. 30 signalizing the new service. The program includes a parade ending at a speaking platform at Kimball and Diversey avenues. O'Keefe is described as "active and energetic" by the L. V. L. He has served five terms, and in the last election received the largest vote of any candidate in the state for this office.

Kosinski, his running mate, was

DENIES BUS LINE IS NEEDED.

A petition is being circulated to the residents on Wrightwood avenue to have the bus now terminating at Pulaski road operate thru to Cicero avenue.

With the opening of Wrightwood avenue under the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad tracks, it was the understanding that the bus would not operate thru but might be operated to Kostner avenue for the benefit of the high school students from a safety standpoint.

There is no need for this bus transportation on Wrightwood avenue with normal transportation on Diversey and Fullerton avenues. The jog in Wrightwood avenue at Kostner avenue would not make for good operation. The narrowness of the street west of Kostner avenue would also interfere and cause a safety hazard unless the parkway were reduced at additional expense and lessening the present fine appearance of the street.

Whoever is interested in this project might do better to petition for the paving of Fullerton avenue from the boulevard west to Cicero avenue where an improvement is obviously necessary.

SAYS DUMP IS RAT FREE.

In your last issue you printed a statement from the Riis Park Civic association which, in effect, charged that nothing was being done to exterminate rats on the "garbage dump" at Fullerton and Narragansett avenues.

I was surprised at the statement. The fact is that the first areas attacked were the so-called city dumps. We are attempting to eliminate the rats completely from them. On this particular one we have been unable to find any evidence of rats for more than ten days. On another dump we feel certain that it is rat free.

We are continuing to check on the dump at Fullerton and Narragansett avenues.

DIVIDE SIX ROOM APARTMENT INTO 2 SMALLER ONES

Owner Himself Builds an Ornamental Door.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

This is a story which will interest you because of the many ingenious, attractive changes made in a six room apartment in Chicago. It will have further interest for you if you have ever considered the possibilities of dividing a large apartment into two smaller ones.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald M. MacDonald, 6425 Ingleside avenue, Chicago, were faced with the problem of doing just that.

They owned a two apartment building and felt that the first floor apartment which they occupied was larger than they needed; that if they could divide it and make two apartments where only one had been before, the arrangement would give them just the amount of space they wanted.

The apartment had six rooms and one bath, a long hallway running from front to back, and a large back porch. It was not a layout which seemed entirely amenable to change, but Mr. MacDonald felt he could do things with it. He is a carpenter, and a deft expert in working with wood. Both he and Mrs. MacDonald had faith that they could get results—and they did!

Make Two Apartments.

Now the first floor of the building has been divided into two apartments, and the entrance to the MacDonald home has been placed on the north side of the structure. New steps and wrought iron rail lead to a finely designed door which Mr. MacDonald built himself.

Just inside there is a small hallway which leads thru an arched opening into the living room.

This room was once the dining room of the apartment. The beams were removed from ceiling, walls replastered, and radiator handsomely inclosed in ivory cabinet which matches the woodwork. The walls were canvased in ivory tone, with a pale green ceiling and a wood rose carpeting.

Beyond this room, and adding to its apparent size, are French doors which lead out to the living-dining porch. The original stairs which led from this porch to the second story were put outside the porch, leaving the entire space free for a semioutdoor room in warm weather. The space under the stairs was put to good use, with built-in cupboards for storage, bedding, and so on.

Build New Bathroom.

A new bathroom was installed and it's a little beauty. The walls are of structural glass, with a faint peach glow—reflected from the soft coloring in the rubber tile floor, in the deep pink of the shower curtains, and the dusty pink of the towels and accessories. The shower and tub are built-in and there's a small casement window over the tub.

This bathroom occupies the spot where formerly the pantry stood.

The kitchen was changed considerably, in process of general renovation. It was much larger in its original state. Its ceiling was lowered, new cabinets and cupboards were built. The entire side of the wall which once opened into the pantry is now cabinet and table space. There is a recessed shelf for the phone, and tiny open shelves over the range and cupboards over the refrigerator.

A door leads out to the living porch. And into the porch wall has been built a serviceable storage space for vegetables, nice and cool in the winter, since the porch is not heated in cold weather.

Cream and White.

Kitchen wainscoat and upper walls are painted cream and white, while the trim and accessories are orange.

In the bedroom there was the problem of wardrobe and closet space. Mrs. MacDonald wanted an abundance of it, and succeeded in obtaining it.

First, more light and air were brought into the room by building a new, large French window in place of the old, smaller one. The ceiling was lowered and a new maple floor was laid.

Then, the original closet in the bedroom was transformed into what one might call a wardrobe closet. Opposite the entrance door is a long, plate glass mirror which adds to the sense of space. And the walls are lined with large drawers and many smaller ones, shelves and cabinets, shoe and hat racks, and an umbrella cabinet. There is a small center closet, and then a third closet was added to the room by taking space from the former hallway which ran the length of the apartment.

The walls and woodwork are in dusty pink, a treatment which adds still further to the size of room.

All this was not done in a day, but was the result of time and thought and work. More changes are being planned for the future.

Auto Show to Have Pageant

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Oct. 21.

Grapevines planted during fall may do better than spring planted stock because of an earlier start. The grape can be moved easily as soon as the leaves fall from well ripened wood. Make cuttings 8 to 12 inches long and with three joints. Make the lower cut just below joint and the upper cut about an inch above the bud. Bury the cuttings in the soil until spring and line out in the garden. Cuttings of many kinds of shrubs can be handled in the same manner with good results.

Tuesday, Oct. 22.

Bittersweet vines can be propagated from seeds sown this fall by root cuttings, or from soft wood cuttings. It makes a strong vine in partial shade and is fine for the north porch.

Wednesday, Oct. 23.

A number of bulbous plants do well in the rockery. The grape hyacinth is delightful for banks and pockets among the rocks. They grow from 5 to 6 inches high. Glory of the Snow has a fine blue flower, doing nicely in colonies, like the snowdrops and squills. The snowdrop and squill look attractive when dotted between bulbs. Regale lilies between peonies will prove attractive and various other combinations easily can be arranged.

Thursday, Oct. 24.

If the garden has not been put in good condition see that it is done at once. The vegetable garden plot should be cleaned of all débris, the ground given a good coat of barnyard manure if it is available, spaded under, and the soil allowed to remain in the rough. Frost will mellow the soil and planting will be easier next spring. All rubbish that can be burned should be destroyed. The tools should be cleaned and stored.

Friday, Oct. 25.

Tulips can be planted as long as the ground can be worked. Take good care of the bulbs now because foreign sources of supply are cut off. Get the neighbors to help and have the vacant lot next door plowed this fall for next spring's planting. If it is not needed for vegetables cover crops can be sown to keep down weeds; it is one way to aid in city beautification and to combat weeds.

Saturday, Oct. 26.

Root pruning fruit trees that have made too rank growth is often beneficial. Take a sharp spade and cut thru the thick roots on one side the first year; if that fails to check the growth and cause fruitfulness, the other side may be cut the second year. This refers to older trees that do not fruit well.

STATE SPENDING INQUIRY URGED BY CANDIDATES

Sandquist, Davis Offer Assembly Program.

nominated in place of Floor Leader Benjamin S. Adamowski, who dropped out to run for United States senator. Mr. Kosinski, who has been in business on the northwest side for more than 30 years, is chief clerk of the Chicago division of the secretary of state's office.

Plans 64 Speeches.

To prove that he is no "coat tail rider," Kosinski will have addressed 64 audiences by Nov. 5. He will have appeared at 40 nonpolitical meetings of civic, union, church, fraternal, veterans', and neighborhood improvement organizations.

"Democrats were in the majority when the legislature passed the automobile antitheft act and reduced auto license fees," Kosinski said. "This helped increase auto license registrations, now at a record high, thus increasing the road fund and general prosperity."

Tall, genial, and bespectacled, Mr. Kosinski began his career as a clothing salesman on Milwaukee avenue. Later he got into the real estate and insurance business, which still is his line. He has been an officer of the Jefferson Park and Ridgemoor building and loan associations.

Dramatic and Social Club to Have Halloween Party

St. Stephen's Dramatic and Social club is sponsoring a Halloween party at 8:30 o'clock Saturday evening in the school hall of Old St. Stephen's church, Ohio and Sangamon streets. Prizes will be awarded for the best costumes. Members of the committee are Caroline Baron, Catherine Welk, Dolly Soske, Alexander Kulik Jr., Casimer Soszynski, and Edward Wallace.

New Law Students.

Northwest side residents who have enrolled in John Marshall Law school, 315 Plymouth court: Larry H. Dugan, 2511 North Nordica street; Bennie Elmore, 1420 North Fairfield avenue, and Marian Lupo, 2327 North Sayre avenue.

FIND NEW HOPE AS THEY STUDY TO AID DEFENSE

Older Mechanics Brush Up at School.

The Schurz National Defense Training school at 3601 Milwaukee avenue is insignificant when compared with the 5,400 students in the Schurz High school and with the 5,900 students in the evening schools there. But to the 250 unemployed technicians and mechanics from the neighborhood who have been admitted to the school, it is a source of hope and inspiration.

This school is one of five in Chicago started last spring as part of the government's national defense program. Its aim is to rehabilitate men who have had training or experience in industries vital to the country's needs but who have become rusty in their trades thru years of unemployment and scrap-jobs.

Preserve Self-Esteem.

As a rule those taking this course, which is far over applied for, are those who have preserved their self-esteem thru the years of depression, and are not willing to retire to the relief rolls or permanent WPA work.

There are WPA men among them, drawing $60, $70, or $80 a month from the government, who would be glad to get jobs in private industry at half those wages. And there are those recommended by the Illinois Employment agency, who work every day from 3 until 9 o'clock with no pay at all.

Face Two Obstacles.

They are hoping that thru this training they may overcome two obstacles which are apparent thruout the world, the reluctance of business men to hire workmen over 40 years old on the ground that they have lost their touch, and the difficulty of men between 25 and 30 to get jobs because when they were graduated from school there were no opportunities open for them to gain the experience which was needed for advanced jobs.

So naturally nearly all those enrolled in the seven types of classes at Schurz are between 25 and 30 or their forties.

In the mechanical drawing class is Edward Kimmeth, 44, of 3313 North Newland avenue, who is married and has four children. He completed one year of college education and continued studying bookkeeping at night school. During the war he was placed in a machine shop at the Rock Island arsenal, where he obtained his groundwork in machinery.

Hit by Depression.

For more than a dozen years after the war he was a well paid instrument engraver and draftsman for well known Chicago companies, but was suddenly laid off when the depression came along.

He has been on WPA work, but even the few dimes which he and his children must spend daily for carfare has seemed like too large a slice. "It still seems like a dream," he said. "There must be openings some place, and I hope this training will get me one." WPA men are only enrolled in the courses for a few months, when they are shifted back to some other project with little chance for private employment.

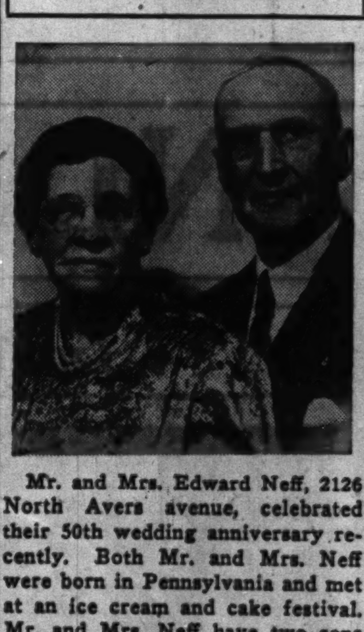
Career Is Interrupted.

The career of Armin L. Hansen, 47, of 2165 Milwaukee avenue, has been interrupted both by the world war and the depression. He attended business college and started out auspiciously as a salesman. But then came the war, and afterwards he went back to work as a street car conductor. This lasted for 12 years, until the depression. Since then he has relied on intermittent WPA jobs to support his wife and four children. He is also in the drafting class.

In the forge class Martin Duris, 30, of 4861 Kenmore avenue, is pointed out as a man who was once one of the best blacksmiths and horseshoers in the Czecho-Slovak army. Altho born here, he went back to the old country when it was freed from Austro-Hungarian control in 1920, and was in the army until 1934, when he returned to America.

The instructors of the various classes are: Electrical, Edward Schwachtgen; foundry, Arthur Webb; drafting, W. F. Hanselman; forge, James Mason; pattern shop [carpentry], Thomas Sutherland and Henry Solem; machine shop, Harry Kohler and Alfonse Kreuzer, and auto shop, Clarence Anderson and Fred Bridges.

Festival Romance



Mr. and Mrs. Edward Neff, 2126 North Avers avenue, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary recently. Both Mr. and Mrs. Neff were born in Pennsylvania and met at an ice cream and cake festival. Mr. and Mrs. Neff have two sons and one grandson.

RAT WAR MOVES TO NEW WARDS; TOLL MOUNTING

14 Areas Are Baited with Red Squill.

The city's war against rats rolled on last week, as the army of rat baiters, equipped with poisonous red squill, moved into 15 new wards, placing bait in every rat hole. The exterminators, working out of Commissioner of Public Works Oscar E. Hewitt's office, have so far killed an estimated 400,000 rats, and the toll is mounting every day.

According to the latest report from Commissioner Hewitt 14 wards have been baited and the first stage of the destruction is completed. These wards are the 22d, 23d, 26th, 29th, 30th, 31st, 33d, 35th, 37th, 39th, 47th, 48th, 49th, and 50th. With these sections now under control work has been started in the 1st, 3d, 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 10th, 16th, 18th, 21st, 32d, 34th, 36th, and 40th.

Rat Canvass Made.

The battle against the rodents has been helped by a house to house canvass to ascertain where and under what conditions rats have been seen in the neighborhoods. With more than one-third of the city already checked the relief workers who are doing the baiting are using the reports to guide their work. The commissioner's office has to date, received a total of 147,558 reports of the presence of rats in the 50 wards.

35 Wards 100 Per Cent.

As the work of exterminating the pests is being carried out only in wards where 100 per cent of the buildings are supplied with garbage cans the drive to supply every building with a receptacle is being pushed harder. At the latest report 35 out of the 50 city wards were 100 per cent supplied.

Only two wards on the northwest side failed to attain the 100 per cent mark at the last check. The 28th ward is 87.1 per cent supplied, and has 881 buildings still without cans. The 38th ward is 97.2 per cent supplied and has 388 buildings still without receptacles.

MEDILL-TRIBUNE POST TO HOLD INSTALLATION

Medill-Tribune Post No. 348 of the American Legion will hold its installation party Wednesday evening at 7:30 at the Club Alibi, 4911 Broadway. Officers of the post are Frank J. Prohaska, commander; Sam Hatfield, senior vice commander; Berry Patrick, junior vice commander; Dan Martin, adjutant; Edward Kloud, finance officer; Leo Duryea, service officer; Leo Connelly, judge advocate; Phil Hampson, historian; Ben Week, chaplain, and Ben Huebner and Frank Walrath, sergeants-at-arms. Installing officer is Louis Rossett, 6th district commander.

SUNDAY EVENING CLUB TO HEAR TALK ON HATE

Dr. Harold Bosley, pastor of Mount Vernon Place Methodist church, Baltimore, Md., will make his first appearance before the Sunday Evening club tonight in Orchestra hall, speaking on the topic "No Weapon but Hate." Clifford W. Barnes will preside, and Horace W. Armstrong, trustee of the club, will participate in the program.

Dr. Harold Bosley.

Dr. Bosley, formerly of the University of Chicago, went to Baltimore in 1938, after five years as director of religious activities at Iowa State college. His book, "The Quest for Religious Certainty," was considered an authoritative contribution to current thought.

The Abernathy ensemble will give a choral program at the preliminary meeting, 7 o'clock and Hidson H. Pittman, assistant to Mr. Barnes, will inaugurate a new series of informal Bible talks on the theme "Religious Resource for Effective Living." The guest soloist at the 8 o'clock meeting will be Marian Carlisle.

CLUB WILL HOLD CHRYSANTHEMUM SHOW IN PARK

Members of the Portage Park Garden club will take part in its annual fall chrysanthemum show Saturday at the park fieldhouse, 4100 North Long avenue. It will be open to the public from 2 until 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Faira Bowsher, 5057 West Ainslee street, president of the club, said she expected more than 300 entries.

Some of the members who have participated successfully in past shows and will have entries in this one are Mrs. Viola Paulson, 7406 Forest Preserve drive; Mrs. Grace Kuhlman, 3656 North Luna avenue; Mrs. J. W. Goberville, 4032 North Mason street; Paul Kunow, 5835 Warwick avenue.

11,000 STUDENTS TO HAIL SCHURZ 30TH BIRTHDAY

Alumni Hold a Dance Wednesday Night.

Carl Schurz High school will celebrate its 30th anniversary on Wednesday. The Jefferson-Schurz Alumni association, which dates back to 1888, is sponsoring a musical program and dance that evening. In 1910, when the first building was completed, fewer than 1,000 students were enrolled in the school. Today 11,000 students are listed in the day and night classes.

[Jaenel Photo.]

There was only one building at first, but in 1926 extensive additions were completed, furnishing more classrooms, a swimming pool, a large auditorium, and technical equipment for vocational training. Before Schurz opened, students from the far northwest side attended the Jefferson Township High school, which opened in 1882.

Four Teachers Remain.

When the new school opened teachers packed up their books and moved over to the new halls of learning. Four of those teachers are still there. They are Charlotte Bendix, Mary J. Moynihan, William F. Willard, and James Mason. The original teaching staff at Schurz numbered under 50; today 175 teachers, a principal for the day school, and one for the night school, and several assistant principals guide the learning of the students. On the present faculty there are 27 alumni of the high school.

The musical department of Schurz is directed by Leroy Wetzel, who organized the a cappella choir at the school. It is considered one of the finest in Chicago high schools. James Mason, one of the early teachers, is an instructor in the technical department teaching foundry and forge, but he organized the first orchestra at Schurz in 1912 and has conducted the orchestras of the school since that time.

Has Many Publications.

In 1915 the school had a 16 to 20 page monthly paper and it now has all sorts of publications, chief being the biweekly paper which has won honors in various high school competitions conducted by Columbia university. Also active in athletics, Schurz has won several championships. This year it was switched from the north to the west league.

The present principal of the school, Albert Bauersfeld, took up his duties in 1939 as the third principal to hold the office. The first was Walter T. Slocum, who held the controling reins for 26 years. In 1936 Thomas Johnson came to serve for three years.

The celebration on Wednesday will be largely a reunion and will be held in the school auditorium. The Carl Schurz Alumni association is a continuation of the Jefferson-Schurz Alumni association, which held its first reunion in 1888. This association is one of the largest and oldest in Chicago.

The officers of the alumni association are Ernest Schein, president; Ruth Purcell, secretary; Dr. Howard Lagerquist, vice president; Jullian Collins, treasurer.

LEW LOYAL, BETSY FOLLOW TRAIL OF SPY ORGANIZATION

What an all-American boy does when he discovers a mysterious anti-American organization will be depicted on the new Lew Loyal adventure feature at 7 p. m. next Friday over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Lew Loyal, with his friend Betsy True and his Uncle Mack, a secret serevice agent, will follow the trail of the Brothers of Freedom, suspected spy organization, as next Friday's episode opens.

The adventures of Lew Loyal are also portrayed in the Comic magazine of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. A $10,000 contest for boys and girls is being sponsored by THE TRIBUNE in connection with the comic strip and radio program.

In School Fashion Show

"Uncle Sam, the Dictator of Fashion" (impersonated by Jack Ponic) is escorted by Virginia Blaha and Betty Ann Joyce, two of the models in the style show which the Immaculata alumnae will present at their annual fall card party. The party will be held at the Edgewater Beach hotel on Thursday evening. As a climax to the show the fashion bride and her attendants, elected by the senior class, will be presented by Uncle Sam. The party will inaugurate the alumnae scholarship fund drive.

Ted Malone to Broadcast from Home of Parkman

The home of Francis Parkman in Independence, Mo., will be visited by Ted Malone during his tour around the country for his American Pilgrimage broadcasts at 1 p. m. today over WENR.

BOAKE CARTER RETURNS TO AIR NEXT WEDNESDAY

Commentator to Start W-G-N—MBS Series.

After an absence of almost two years from the networks, Boake Carter, nationally known news commentator and editorialist will return to the air next Wednesday. He will be heard from 7:30 to 7:45 p. m. on Mondays, Wednesday, and Saturday weekly over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system.

This series will be sponsored by United Airlines. This is the first time an air line has sponsored a regular program on a major network. Carter, who is a pilot, has flown more than 200,000 miles on commercial lines.

Most of his broadcasts will originate in New York but when he travels about the country on lecture assignments he will be picked up from various cities.

Carter has had a life filled with adventure. Born in Baku, Russia, where his father was in the consular service, he was educated at Cambridge university. During the war he served with the Royal Flying corps; later was a roving correspondent for the London Daily Mail. He illustrated his own stories. He is also a portrait painter.

He was a reporter in Philadelphia from 1924 to 1932 when he got into radio work. For years he was followed by a multitude of listeners because of his outspoken comments on national and world affairs.

This will be his first radio series on a national network with half the world at war.

Science and Dog Care, Becker's Topic Today

Bob Becker, sportsman and dog authority, will discuss the function of modern science in guarding the health of dogs on his Chats About Dogs program today. A special guest for the discussion will be Dr. C. E. Gross, director of the Morrell laboratory of scientific research. The broadcast will be aired from 1:45 to 2 p. m. today over W-G-N.

WILKOMIRSKI'S SOLO TO FEATURE SYMPHONIC HOUR

Marion Claire Will Sing Three Songs.

Michael Wilkomirski, concertmaster of the W-G-N Symphony orchestra, will be featured on the Chicago Tribune Symphonic Hour tonight in a violin solo presentation of Ravel's "Tzigane." The concert will be broadcast from 9 to 10 p. m. over W-G-N, the coast to coast Mutual network, and the entire network of the Canadian Broadcasting corporation.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of the CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak during the broadcast. Marion Claire, noted soprano, will sing three solos and Henry Weber will lead the orchestra in selections from Von Weber, Mendelssohn, and Tschaikowsky.

After the orchestra's opening presentation of the overture to "Euryanthe," by Carl Maria von Weber, Miss Claire will sing Oscar Strauss' "Music in My Heart" as the first of her solos. The orchestra will play the scherzo in G minor for string octet, by Felix Mendelssohn, and will conclude the hour of music with the finale from Peter Tschaikowsky's Fifth Symphony.

Miss Claire and the augmented chorus will sing "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean" and "Calm As the Night," by Joseph Bohm.

The Symphonic Hour is produced by William A. Bacher.

The complete program:

Euryanthe, overture....................Weber
Orchestra.
Music in My Heart...............O. Strauss
Marion Claire and orchestra.
Scherzo in G Minor for String Octet....
.............................Mendelssohn
Orchestra.
Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen. White

Tzigane ....Ravel
Michael Wilkomirski and orchestra.
Columbia the Gem of the Ocean....Becket
Marion Claire, chorus and orchestra.
Speech ....
Col. Robert R. McCormick.
Calm As the Night.....................Bohm
Marion Claire, chorus and orchestra.
Fifth Symphony, finale.........Tschaikowsky
Orchestra.

The musical commentary is written by Cecil Smith of The Chicago Tribune music and drama staff.

The Chicago Theater of the Air will broadcast "The Student Prince" from 9 to 10 p. m. next Saturday over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system. Three well known artists, Marion Claire, Jan Peerce, and Bruce Foote, will sing the leads in Sigmund Romberg's gay operetta.

Jan Peerce, noted radio and concert tenor, makes a triumphant return to the Theater of the Air after his appearance in "The Student Prince" in the spring series. He will again portray the part of Prince Karl Franz.

Miss Claire, W-G-N's operatic soprano, who sang opposite Peerce in the spring production as Kathie, will again be starred.

Altho a newcomer to the W-G-N operettas, baritone Bruce Foote, is known thruout the country and especially in the midwest. He won second place in the Chicago Opera Company auditions this season.

The operetta will be under direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs and productions at W-G-N. Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N and artistic director of the Chicago Opera Company, will lead the W-G-N concert orchestra and chorus.

Grace Moore to Sing on Sunday Evening Hour

Grace Moore, noted soprano will be heard on the Sunday Evening hour over WBBM-CBS at 8 tonight.

Victor Kolar, violinist and composer, who is making his season debut in the series as conductor of the 75 piece symphony orchestra and mixed chorus of 26 voices, has selected a program of varied character.

Miss Moore is heard first singing an aria, "Ebben ne Andro Lontana" from the opera "La Wally," by Catalani. She will later be heard in Arensky's Valse, "Orpheus and His Lute," by Sullivan and, with the chorus, will close with Malotte's setting of "The Lord's Prayer."

"This is the house that Jack built"

"Lookit the funny doors and windows. I like our place better, don't you, Mommy?"
"Yes, but Jack didn't watch the Tribune want ad bargains like we did."

A play room for your children—weather-tight doors and windows—extra closets—automatic heat—would you like to add these features to your home?

Consult the Building Materials column in the Tribune want ad section. There you will find splendid opportunities to save money on the millwork, plumbing, heating equipment and other items you may need to make your home more comfortable.

"I'm celebrating tonight"

"No more time clocks for me. From now on I'm going to be my own boss."

WHO'D HAVE THOUGHT IT?

Who'd ever guess that your attic or storeroom is chockful of articles which you no longer use but which have a definite value to someone else? Look over your unwanted possessions. Then look over the Barter and Exchange column in the Tribune want ad section. You'll never know otherwise what unusual opportunities you may have for trading things you don't want for things you do.

Machine shops, food, hardware, drug and electrical stores and the many other established enterprises described in the Business Opportunities column in the Tribune want ad section offer you a wide range of opportunity to cash in on your special business talents.

The chance you have sought may be advertised in today's want ad section of the Tribune. Review the Business Opportunities column now.

Because they get better results, want ad users place more want advertising in the Tribune than they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

A W-G-N SCOOP! PREMIERE OF NEW DE MILLE MOVIE

Stars Madeleine Carroll, Gary Cooper on Air.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Cecil B. DeMille.

Next Thursday W-G-N will present a notable radio scoop—the radio première of Cecil B. DeMille's new $2,000,000 technicolor Paramount production, "North West Mounted Police." Chicago will have its first real motion picture première that evening when the lavish production is presented at the Chicago theater with all the stars and Mr. DeMille participating.

All the stars, headed by Gary Cooper, Madeleine Carroll and Paulette Goddard, will be presented on the W-G-N première of the picture, which will be presented on In Chicago Tonight from 7:30 to 8 p. m., station, will direct the air première. at the theater. Mr. DeMille will be master of ceremonies.

William A. Bacher, production chief of W-G-N, who last week obtained the exclusive broadcasting rights for the station, will direct the air première His writing and production staff is now busy on the radio adaptation.

De Mille to Introduce Stars.

Other stars who will appear on the W-G-N show will be Preston Foster, Lynne Overman and Robert Preston. Additional Hollywood notables are expected to be on hand for the broadcast.

Mr. De Mille will introduce the stars who will present specially adapted scenes from the all color production which depicts Gary Cooper as a Texas Ranger who journeys to Canada in search of an outlaw. Hollywood previewers have pronounced "North West Mounted Police" as the greatest among De Mille's impressive list of motion picture productions.

Immediately following the broadcast the stars will join in a parade thru bedecked loop streets and then go to the Chicago theater for the première showing of the picture. [The picture will open the same evening in a selected list of other theaters in Chicago.]

Second Broadcast Planned.

Batteries of kleig lights, clicking newsreel cameras and flaring flashbulbs will add color to the loop première. The State Street council, loop business men's organization, headed by David Mayer Jr. is coöperating with W-G-N, Balaban and Katz, and Paramount pictures in this gala première.

W-G-N is planning a second broadcast from the scene of the premiere in the loop, employing the W-G-N short wave unit from 8:30 to 9 p. m., provided the time is available.

This gala broadcast will be the third "movie night" presentation on W-G-N in as many weeks. Last week scenes from "Dreaming Out Loud," the new Lum and Abner picture, with Frances Langford, were broadcast. One week earlier W-G-N-Mutual aired highlights of the première of Knute Rockne—All American" from South Bend, Ind. All three presentations are realizations of W-G-N's constant objective—of presenting the newest and the best in entertainment first!

Volunteer Dopesters Help Red Grange on Forecasts

When Red Grange goes on the air at 9:15 p. m. each Friday and 5:45 p. m. each Saturday over W-G-N and the Mutual network with his pregame forecasts and postgame scores, he is backed up with stack after stack of voluminious reports supplied by a volunteer army of "dope specialists." Grange digests this material, puts it together with his personal observations, and is thereby able to make accurate predictions on the outcome of the leading games.

Star in W-G-N Movie Premiere

Madeleine Carroll (left), Gary Cooper, and Paulette Goddard, three stars of the new Cecil B. De Mille $2,000,000 Paramount production "North West Mounted Police," who will come to Chicago for the radio premiere of the picture on W-G-N-Mutual and its theater premiere at the Chicago theater next Thursday evening. The radio premiere will be presented on In Chicago Tonight from 7:30 to 8 p. m. with Mr. De Mille as master of ceremonies.

FANTASTIC TALE OF CHILD GIANTS ON 'PETER QUILL'

A bizarre scheme to build an army of child giants—mentally incapable of reason, blindly loyal to their masters—will be unfolded on the Peter Quill show today. The fantastic story of half-mad Prince Hirogi and his baby giants will be heard from 3 to 3:30 p. m. over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Blair Walliser, writer and producer of the Quill series, projects possible insidious uses of glandular injections, now used by doctors to aid handicapped people, in this episode. As with other incidents on the Quill show, the story is on the borderline of reality—a possible glimpse into the future.

Back to Land, Radio Topic

"Back to the Land," a dramatization of rural vocational possibilities, will be the On Your Job presentation, at 12:30 p. m. today over the NBC-Red network.

WENDELL L. WILLKIE TO SPEAK ON HUMAN NEEDS AT 1 P.M. TODAY

Wendell L. Willkie, Republican Presidential nominee, will be heard over W-G-N and the Mutual network at 1 p. m. today when he speaks in behalf of the "Community Mobilization for Human Needs."

Mr. Willkie will be introduced by Charles Francis Adams, national chairman of the charity organization. The half-hour program will also feature a show by members of the Screen Actors' guild and Felix Mills' orchestra. During the guild's program Hedda Hopper will interview Donald Duck. The program will originate from Boston, Hollywood, and some point in Wisconsin.

The broadcast will also be heard over WBBM and WENR.

FIFTY YEAR OLD MAYFAIR CHURCH MARKS BIRTHDAY

Started as Sunday School in Private Home.

The Mayfair Methodist church will observe its 50th anniversary this week. In 1890 Mrs. Georgiana Peters started a Sunday school in her home across the street from the old Northwestern railroad station and later church services were held there. Under the leadership of the Rev. James W. Lee a church was erected at Wilson and Kilpatrick avenues and was called the Montrose Episcopal church. In 1893 the name was changed to Mayfair.

The parsonage was built under the supervision of the late Rev. C. D. Wilson during his pastorate, which began in 1898 and extended for 10 years. Another one of early pastors, W. W. Aylesworth, is expected to return for the week-long celebration which will begin tomorrow.

Ceremonies Begin Tomorrow.

Community night will be tomorrow evening. The Wiley college Jubilee singers will provide the music. Women's night will be observed on Tuesday. Mrs. T. R. Cravens, president of the Woman's Society of Christian Service, will preside. Mrs. A. C. Aldrich, president of the Rock River Conference Woman's association, will give the address. The Edgebrook Woman's chorus will sing.

The anniversary banquet will be held at 6.30 o'clock on Wednesday evening. J. R. Sterling will be the toastmaster, and Dr. John M. Schneider will give the address. The Jubilee Music festival will be on Thursday, and favorite hymns of five decades will be sung by the choir under direction of Victor W. Schultz. Youth night on Friday will include three speakers.

Speakers to Discuss Youth.

The Rev. Harlow V. Holt, who organized a number of the Epworth leagues in the area, will speak on "The Youth of 50 Years Ago." The Rev. James O'May, pastor of the Avondale Methodist church, will speak on "The Youth of 25 Years Ago," and Miss Leona Barrett, president of the Lake Geneva Young People's institute will discuss "The Youth of Today."

Next Sunday will be Golden Jubilee Sunday. The Homecoming Vesper service will be at 4 o'clock. The present 26 room church structure was built in 1922 while the Rev. W. J. Hyde was pastor. The Rev. Armand Guerrero is the present pastor. Wilson Georges is the recreational director, and Irene Iacovetti is the play school teacher.

COLLEGE SERIES OF LECTURES TO OPEN TUESDAY

The first of the "Tuesday Evenings" at North Park college will be held this week. This opening attraction will be an illustrated lecture, "The World in Color," by Milron Lory. It will mark the opening of the sixth season of these programs.

Committee members are: Karl A. Olsson, director; E. Gustav Johnson, Walter J. Moberg, E. Clifford Toren, Laura Bruce, Algoth Ohlson, Benevieve Farsje.

Other programs will be: Oct. 29, Illinois Symphony orchestra, with Harold Reever as soloist; Nov. 5, Rockwell Kent, "Art for Everyone;" Nov. 12, Tarini Prasad Sinha, who will speak on his friend Gandhi; Nov. 19, Faculty concert, with Howard Silberer, pianist; Edgar Borup, violinist, Marcia Sandahl, contralto; Nov. 26, Abbe Ernest Dimnet, "Has Christianity Failed the World in Its Crisis?"; Dec. 3, William Blodgett Holmes, "The Land of the Incas," a motion picture in natural colors; Dec. 10, Dr. Reuben Gustavson, "Ersatz" a discussion of synthetics; Dec. 16, 17, annual Christmas concert under the direction of Dean E. Clifford Toren.

Irish Plan a Card Party to Aid Shrine Building

On Wednesday evening, Oct. 30, the Irish Mummers club and friends of St. Patrick will hold a card party and dance at McEnery hall, 4039 Madison street. The proceeds of the party will be sent to Saint Patrick, Mo., where Father Francis O'Duignan is building a national shrine to St. Patrick. Chairman of the party is Erin Newton, and Eileen O'Connor will be cochairman.

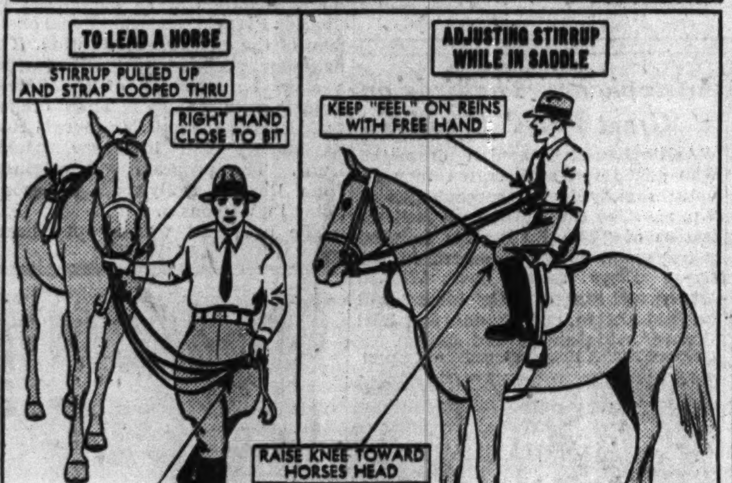
Tenderfoot Learns to Ride



TO LEAD A HORSE
STIRRUP PULLED UP AND STRAP LOOPED THRU
RIGHT HAND CLOSE TO BIT
LOOSE ENDS OF REINS IN LEFT HAND
ADJUSTING STIRRUP WHILE IN SADDLE
KEEP "FEEL" ON REINS WITH FREE HAND
RAISE KNEE TOWARD HORSES HEAD

[This is the fourteenth in a series of stories describing a course in elementary riding instruction.]

There are certain definite points of etiquet to be observed by all considerate riders of the horse trails and bridle paths, I have learned by actual experience since I began taking instruction from Elmer J. Holdorf. I quote a few of them below, substantially as they were given to me:

Be considerate to your mount always, or good riders will condemn you, perhaps even to your face.

If you're to ride in company with some one else, don't start out until your companions are mounted, or you will make their steeds restless.

It's best not to cluck at your horse to start him or urge him on faster. Other horses nearby may respond to it. Anyhow, it isn't necessary.

Keep your horse under control at all times, and especially when others are about you; most saddle horses are spirited creatures, easily excited.

Some Horses Kick.

Don't ride less than half a length away from the horse in front, which may kick no matter how well behaved he is considered.

Scold your horse if he shows signs of biting another. Usually a sharp word from you is enough to remind him of his manners.

Never run your horse past other mounted riders. Horses are very susceptible to the example of others of their kind, and you might start a small stampede.

Pass approaching horses to the right. Keep to the right side of the trail for other riders who are overtaking you.

It's a good rule to speak a word of greeting to other riders you meet, whether you know them or not. Equestrians, unlike motorists, make a point of being pleasant to each other.

When riding with other equestrians, group the horses rather than the riders. It's a form of cruelty to compel a spirited horse to stay behind a plodder.

Don't Let Horse Browse.

Keep your mount from browsing along the trail. It's not only impolite on the horse's part [and a well-mannered horse knows this], but it's also destructive of park and forest preserve plant life, that should be saved for every one's enjoyment.

While fording a stream, don't run your horse or he may fall. And it's best not to halt him in the water. He might shy and give you an unexpected bath.

And Avoid Mudholes.

Steer your horse around mudholes if possible. Getting him muddy is not only unsightly, but it makes extra work for the stable hands.

Be careful of fire. Be sure your cigarets and matches are extinguished before you throw them away. Report suspicious smoke at the nearest telephone.

Stop and look both ways before crossing a highway.

Don't be a drug store cowboy, the name horsemen contemptuously apply to wild riders.

Disregard of the simple rules of good horsemanship stamps you as being either ignorant or boorish.

RIDING STORIES IN THE TRIBUNE ELICIT PRAISE

Start Many on Route to Horsemanship.

Horsemen and horsewomen of the Chicago area including many leaders of the sport, have expressed their commendation for the series of riding stories appearing in the Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE under the heading "A Tenderfoot Learns to Ride."

This series, written by Harold Smith, a member of THE TRIBUNE staff, began last July 21 and will be concluded with next Sunday's installment.

Most of those who have lauded the series have urged that it be reproduced in booklet form, a suggestion that has been taken under advisement by THE TRIBUNE.

Riding Interest Increases.

Some of the commentators credit this feature and other equestrian stories that have appeared in the Metropolitan section recently with responsibility for much of the increase in riding interest shown this summer. One of these is Herbert J. Lorber, president of the Town and Country Equestrian association, director of the Arlington Jockey club, and former polo player.

"There has been a sharp upturn this year in the number of new riders," Lorber said. "The increase has been too big to be attributed to normal growth. I am convinced the Tenderfoot series was the major factor in this unusual growth. The stories, based on sound horsemanship principles, point out graphically the simplicity and the pleasure of enjoying park and forest preserve woodlands from horseback."

Wayne Dinsmore, secretary of the Horse and Mule Association of America, also credited the Tribune series with stimulating interest in riding, and urged that the stories be collectively issued "for the lasting benefit they can confer on the sport of horsemanship."

Many Start Riding.

Riding apparel dealers and others catering to the needs of the equestrian world say that the demand for "first" outfits by beginning riders has never been greater than at present.

A. K. Gordon, manager of the riding apparel department of a large store attributed a one-third increase in sales largely to THE TRIBUNE's stories of horse world activities and to the Tenderfoot series.

Similar comment was made by Don Iltis, manager of another large store catering to the starting rider.

Crippled Children Enjoy Party

MOUNT CARMEL PARISH TO HOLD PARTY FRIDAY

The annual card and dancing party of Our Lady of Mount Carmel church, 690 Belmont avenue, will be held on Friday evening at the Drake hotel. It will be a double celebration because the pastor, Msgr. Joseph A. Casey will be celebrating the 40th anniversary of his ordination.

Mrs. Ray P. Tennes is general chairman and she will be assisted by Mrs. Harry Reynolds. Others who head committees are: Mrs. Robert P. Minto, Mrs. John W. Clarke, Mrs. Virginia Carroll, Mrs. Joseph Heyer, Mrs. John L. Kellogg, Mrs. Harry Reutlinger, Mrs. John Lomax, and Mrs. Ray York.

Triangle Club Will Hold Minstrel Show and Dance

The Triangle club will hold its seventh annual minstrel show and dance Friday evening at Logan Square Masonic temple, 2453 North Kedzie avenue. Members of the minstrel cast include Lieut. J. J. Murrin, Art Bielan, P. P. Stermer, Happy Vesley, Jack O'Malley, Ray Thompson, Bill Kilbiner, Henry Kemper, Joseph Des Roches, and Jack Fierce.

Open House.

Winfield auxiliary will hold open house at the Standard club, 320 South Plymouth court at 8 o'clock on Wednesday. Radio and stage personages will entertain.

ST. WILLIAM'S CHURCH TO HOLD SILVER JUBILEE

Priests and members of the St. William's Catholic church, 2554 North Sayre avenue, will celebrate the silver jubilee of the parish with a solemn high mass of jubilee next Sunday and at a banquet on Wednesday, Oct. 30.

Bishop Bernard J. Shell and former pastors and curates of the church will be present for the solemn mass. The first church was a frame building serving 10 families. During the 25 years of its existance, St. William's has served the Catholics of Mont Clare and Elmwood Park.

Party at Lion's Club.

The party will be held at the Lion's club, 4308 West North avenue. The Rev. Paul F. Loeffel, who is general chairman of the affair, is being assisted by the Rev. J. P. McDermott, the Rev. W. B. Lynch, and the Rev. John H. Kuhlmey, curates of the parish. There will be cards and dancing and many prizes.

Chairmen and cashiers for the committees are James Fleming, John Mares, Miss Theresa Durkin, Grover Doody, Dr. Karl Klocker, Joseph Krecji, Mrs. Felix Galuhn, Mrs. Charles Maly, Mrs. Leopold Elischer, Mrs. Mary Parent, Mrs. Joseph Clausen, and Mrs. Richard Kohlhaas, Mrs. Archibald Burrows, Mrs. John Strudeman.

Committee Members.

The Holy Name society, the Catholic Women, and Mothers' clubs and the Young Ladies Sodalities are all contributing their services to the party preparations.

Mr. and Mrs. George Ehrler, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Arado, Dr. Karl Klocker, are members of the entertainment committee. Other committee members are Mrs. Henry Marquardt, Mrs. James Henessy, Mrs. Charles Maly, Mrs. Julia Matusek, Mrs. Frank Rice, Mrs. Paul Kniewel, Mrs. John Wollschlaeger, and Mrs. Gunnard Seaberg.

City B'nai B'rith Women Give Tea This Afternoon

A tea for prospective members of the Chicago Business and Professional Women's auxiliary, B'nai B'rith, will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Ruth Kramer, 3745 Leland avenue. Next Sunday the lodge will hike thru the forest preserves north of Chicago.

OFFICERS PLAN A MILITARY DANCE FOR NOVEMBER 2

The annual military ball of the Cook county chapter of the Reserve Officers' association will be held in the Grand ballroom of the La Salle hotel on Saturday evening, Nov. 2. The ball will be preceded by a dinner for Lieut. Gen. Ben Lear, recently transferred from Panama to Chicago to command the 2d army.

This will be the first opportunity for the officers and their ladies of the Chicago area to greet the new commanding officer. Maj. George B. Morse, chairman of the ball, announced that plans have been made to accommodate more than 500 couples.

FIRST CIVIL SERVICE EMPLOYE TO HEAD CITY WORKERS' BALL

Phillip Steele.

Phillip Steele, 411 Fullerton parkway, who is chief engineer in charge of the Springfield avenue pumping station, is one of the leaders of the Municipal Employés Society of Chicago that will hold its 22d annual dance and card party Saturday night at the Palmer House.

The society was founded more than 25 years ago for the protection of civil service and pension rights of city workers. The proceeds of the party are to go for this purpose.

President of the group is John P. Dillon of the Bureau of Streets.

HOME TO BENEFIT THRU AN ANNUAL CHRISTMAS SALE

The woman's auxiliary of the Evangelical Home for Children and Aged at Bensenville will open its annual Christmas sale at 10 o'clock on Wednesday at St. Paul's house, 3831 North Mozart street. The members are women from the Chicago area. Chairmen of the sale are Mrs. Robert Stauber and Mrs. George Broman.

Officers of the auxiliary are Mrs. Albert H. Broman, president; Mrs. Robert Stauber, vice president; Mrs. E. C. Hammam, second vice president; Mrs. Leo Rahn, financial secretary; Mrs. Louise Arndt, treasurer, and Mrs. Robert Frey, corresponding secretary.

Members who will be in charge of booths are Mrs. Henry Koester, Mrs. Henry Bach, Mrs. Leo Rahn, Mrs. Anna Wertz, Mrs. George Grabo, Miss Henrietta Schill, Mrs. Caroline Kramer, Mrs. Arthur Lee, Mrs. Marie Borterson, Mrs. Louise Arndt, Mrs. Ernest Schumacker, and Mrs. E. W. Kneip. Refreshments will be served.

Friendship

One of the richest rewards of life is friendship. No man, however strong, can be truly happy without at least one other person that he is pleased and proud to call FRIEND. And the happiest is he who has a host of friends . . . who keeps making new ones.

Fostering friendship is one of the most pleasant aspects of the entire program of the Y M C A. In effect, we take you by the arm, present you to another and say, "Here is a friend." What we actually do, of course, is give you an opportunity to enjoy a common interest. What sounder foundation can there be for a real and lasting friendship?

It is this function which has been one of the greatest factors in making the Y M C A and its work the tradition that it is today. The possibilities for friendship, so amply provided by the Y M C A, are a magnet which draws many differing personalities and matches each with another, to the incontestable advantage of all concerned.

Whatever your interests, you will build friendships among the congenial persons engaged in the same activities at the Y M C A.

Stop at the Y M C A most convenient to you today and ask for complete details of a membership for this Fall and Winter.

URGES STATE SPENDING INQUIRY

SABATH SEEKS HELP OF REDS, FOE DECLARES

Dykema Points Out Congress Speech.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

The charge that Congressman Adolph J. Sabath of the 5th district is making a bid for the friendship and support of reds and other subversive elements, enlivened the congressional campaign on the west side last week.

Martin Dykema, Republican nominee who is hopeful of unseating Sabath on Nov. 5, made the charge. Dykema also charged that it was this friendliness that prompted Sabath to vote against continuation of the Dies inquiry into un-American activities.

Dykema quoted from a recent speech in congress by Sabath, in which the congressman made a plea for an improvement of relations between the United States and the soviets.

This speech was regarded as so important by the communists that their candidate for President, Earl Browder, referred favorably to it in a recent radio address, Dykema said.

Why Not Woo Soviets?

"My query has been and still is today: Why should not the United States try to cultivate the good will of the soviet republics?" Sabath said in his speech.

Sabath intimated that if the soviets were wooed properly they might side with the United States in calling "Japan's bluff."

"I know there are critics of Russia and its policies," the Sabath speech continued. "Investigation will reveal, I sincerely believe, that a whole lot of the criticism of Russia is due to Nazi and Fascist propaganda.

"That is one of the subtle tricks of the leaders of these two isms. They conduct all kinds of subversive activities and then try to escape detection and blame by pointing their fingers at the communists."

Clears Anti-Dies Vote.

"My opponent did not want to hurt his friends by encouraging the Dies investigation, so he and four other Illinois Democrats tried vainly to halt the inquiry," said Dykema. "He hoped then and he hopes now that the subversive elements in his district will reward his friendly gesture by giving him their votes on Nov. 5.

"Well, I hope he gets them. They are not the votes I want. I am convinced there are enough truly American votes in the 5th district to elect me to congress."

Maciejewski Foes Join.

The week's chief development in the large 6th district, which takes in most of the western suburbs as well as the western wards of Chicago, was the consolidation of forces opposed to the reëlection of Congressman Annton F. [Whitey] Maciejewski.

Leaders of groups backing Joseph Wagner, Republican nominee, were invited to rallies to be held in the Berwyn Republican headquarters at 6305 Cermak road next Tuesday and on Oct. 28. Both meetings are sponsored by the women's regular Republican organization.

Tuesday's gathering will be attended by Wagner and other G. O. P. leaders of the west side, including Frank Houcek, candidate for state representative from the 19th senatorial district. Capt. William J. Grace, past state commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, also will attend, according to Mrs. Helen Denning, president.

Peace the Watchword.

Peace will be the watchword of the two meetings, Mrs. Denning said. She declared that the election of a Republican President and a Republican congress is the only way to insure that we will stay out of war as long as it is humanly possible.

Joseph A. Coyner, chairman, and Mrs. John K. Russell III, head of the women's division, declared that response to their call for volunteer workers in this year's campaign have been phenomenal.

Large groups of these men and women are at work in Oak Park, Cicero [Maciejewski's home], Berwyn, Riverside, La Grange, River Forest, and in the various Chicago wards, Mrs. Russell said.

Aid for Moreland.

In the 7th district, a corner of which juts down into the west side, the candidacy of Former Ald. James C. Moreland, G. O. P. contender for the seat occupied by Congressman Leonard W. Schuetz, received impetus with the announcement by former Alderman M. A. Michaelson that he will work for Moreland's election from now until election day.

"We must have a Republican in congress from our district and Moreland must win," Michaelson declared.

The Illinois League of Women Voters made public last week a survey of the voting record of west side congressmen with respect to important legislation considered at the present session of congress.

It showed that Sabath, Maciejewski, and Schuetz were among those who voted against the Hatch act that prohibits pernicious political activity by a federal employé, and that Sabath and Maciejewski joined the forces that defeated the Fish amendment, which would have delayed the draft for 60 days.

Fifty Canaries Furnish Music for a Cobbler

Vincent Granata.

There's one thing about America that still surprises Vincent Granata, 524 North Parkside avenue. Everybody who wants to can have a canary.

Vincent Granata repairs shoes. He has been fixing Austin's shoes since 1914. All the while the accompaniment to the whir of the machinery in his shop has been the running chirp of his golden cinnamon, white and dusty colored canaries. He has 50 of them, all descendants of the first three that he bought a week after he landed in America.

When Granata was a child in Naples, his father worked for the "sidaco," or mayor, of the city. He was a rich man whose hobby was horses and birds. One day the father brought a canary home to his boy, Vince. Then day by day in a little house on a narrow street in Naples a boy tended his canary and listened to his song. One day the boy went away to try his wings and left his canary.

Came to Chicago.

In 1909 Vincent Granata came to Chicago, got a job on the Burlington railroad. He liked everything about his new home but he missed his canary. It was a part of the Naples he remembered, the city that turned orange in the sun and braced its palmetto trees against the blue and gold of the sky. He had shared a small singing part of the brightness of his home land.

One day, a few weeks after he was working on the railroad, Granata passed a store on Blue Island avenue. There in the window were three canaries in a cage, yellow ones with cinnamon spots. It cost him more than 10 dollars for the three of them. He paid the money and a moment later was trudging to his rooming house.

His birds built nests and more canaries were hatched in their new home. Granata carefully chose the mates and blended new colors in plumage. He has pure white canaries and yellow ones. Some are half black and half white and one is almost black. When parents neglect their offspring, Granata feeds them with a medicine dropper and broken graham crackers.

Material for Nests.

He puts bits of straw, brown cloth, cotton, and string in the cages so they can build their own nests. One of the cages, made of wood and wire, is a replica of the old Austin Town hall at Parkside and Race. Its door is beautifully carved and he says, "The birds like this one."

Mr. Granata knows his canaries. Some are altos and some sopranos. Some have different length chirps. "My canaries get better health every year," says Mr. Granata.

In 1922, when he moved to his present home, he noticed pigeons hanging around his back yard. He built a home for them with the doors wide open. Today 20 pigeons use the Granata coop as a refuge for rest or food. He knows his pigeons, too, and for their entertainment and to brighten their lives he planted flowers.

"This is a wonderful place," says Mr. Granata. "My children have gone to school and my cannas, they are six feet high." Then, too, there are his 50 canaries of which he said: "I just didn't think they'd have those too in America.

ISABELLA LODGE PRESENTS PENNY CARNIVAL TODAY

Trinity council No. 42 of the Ladies of Isabella will hold its annual penny carnival this afternoon and evening in the Veterans of Foreign Wars hall, 4654 West Madison street. Proceeds will be added to the Christmas Cheer fund of the council. Walter is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Davidson, 25 South Stough street in Hinsdale. The Toolins reside at 233 North Elm street.

SUBURB TO VOTE ON BONDS FOR 'A NEW LIBRARY

Oak Park Proposes to Raise $275,000.

Oak Parkers will vote at the general election on Nov. 5 on a $275,000 bond issue for a new main library which would replace the Scoville institute building that has housed the public library in the village since 1903.

Activities have outgrown the building erected in 1888 and presented to the community by James W. Scoville, pioneer citizen, as a community center and library. Inefficient arrangement of rooms necessitates placing a reference and reading room on the second floor. Shelf space for books and seating space for readers are said to be wholly inadequate, and heating, lighting, ventilating, and plumbing facilities antiquated.

In planning for a new building, the board of library directors, headed by W. H. Dangel, president, has had the coöperation and support of the board of trustees of Scoville institute and heirs of Mr. Scoville.

Would Be Two Story.

The proposed new building, which would be erected on the present site at Lake street and Grove avenue, is a two story structure of rubble stone with Indiana limestone for the trim and with slightly curved bays. In appearance, it would be similar to the stone work of the First Congregational church just to the west.

The general character of the surroundings have been considered in order to develop a harmonious unit for the conspicuous Lake street frontage. The architecture is designed to express the classical aspects of the building's functions.

Modern library requirements call for the placement of public rooms on one main floor level, with easy access between departments. The second floor is set back from the first floor level. A minor entrance on Grove avenue would lead to the children's department on the second floor.

120,000 Volume Capacity.

Total book capacity will be 120,000 volumes, which is nearly four times the number that can be accommodated in the present building.

Total cost of the building is estimated at $310,000. It is proposed to finance the cost with the bond issue for $275,000, and $35,000 to be obtained from sources other than taxation . The bonds will be amortized over a period of 19 years at an interest rate of 3 per cent. Cost to the taxpayer would be 6 cents on every $100 of assessed valuation.

Members of the board of library directors are W. H. Dangel, president; Mrs. J. B. Forbes, vice president; Mrs. H. H. Eggleston, secretary; R. G. Haskins, and W. H. Chamberlain.

'Robin Hood' with Ballet to Be Given in La Grange

"Robin Hood," combining old English music and folk dances with the ballet, will be presented Thursday in the Lyons Township High school, La Grange. The program will be the first of three to be presented this winter by Junior Programs, Inc., under the sponsorship of the American University Women. Mrs. P. J. Ross is president of the La Grange branch. Mrs. R. R. Whipple is president of the Western Springs branch.

One of the most important social events of the season in Hinsdale is the annual fall card party of Hinsdale center. Mrs. Robert L. Toolin, left, and Mrs. T. William Merrill, board members, are busy with plans for entertaining 400 villagers next Wednesday at 1:30 o'clock at the Katherine Legge Memorial home, County Line road. Mrs. Lester Roth is president of the Hinsdale center. Mrs. W. W. Grainger is general chairman for the Wednesday's party.

LA GRANGE ART LEAGUE TO OPEN ITS NEW SEASON

Celebrating its growth and starting another busy season, the La Grange Art league, with a membership among artists and laymen residing in suburbs along the Burlington railroad, starting tomorrow will observe La Grange Art week. Junior memberships in the league will be awarded in a poster contest being conducted among students of high school art classes.

C. J. Bergstrom, mural painter and lecturer, will give a chalk talk Friday at the assembly of the high school in La Grange. An exhibit of his paintings will hang in the community room of the school during the week.

Saturday and Sunday the annual exhibition of members' work will be hung in the Legion rooms of the La Grange town hall. Tea will be served Sunday afternoon.

Officers of the league are Mrs. Thomas A. Anderson, president; Mrs. Charles Glessner, vice president; Mrs. J. B. Davison, secretary, and Dr. Donald C. Lemon, treasurer.

POLISH UNION PRINTERS PLAN TO HOLD DANCE

The Polish Union Printers' association will hold its annual fall dance on Saturday evening at the P. R. C. U. Youths' hall, Milwaukee avenue and Noble street. Featured on the program of entertainment will be a dance exhibition by Wallace and Letitia. Music will be furnished by Mark Anthony and his orchestra, and dancing will begin at 8:30 p. m.

FIRST CIVIL SERVICE EMPLOYE TO HEAD CITY WORKERS' BALL

Phillip Steele, 411 Fullerton parkway, who is chief engineer in charge of the Springfield avenue pumping station, is one of the leaders of the Municipal Employés Society of Chicago that will hold its 22d annual dance and card party Saturday night at the Palmer House.

Phillip Steele.

The society was founded more than 25 years ago for the protection of civil service and pension rights of city workers. The proceeds of the party are to go for this purpose.

President of the group is John P. Dillon of the Bureau of Streets, and vice presidents are, Howard C. Brodman, chief of the Bureau of Maps, and Jacob G. Bennema, Board of Education engineer custodian. Steele is a member of the executive board, and was the first employé of the city to be placed under civil service.

All-Women Dinner.

Five hundred invitations have been issued for the All-Women dinner to be held Thursday evening in Grace Epscopal church of Oak Park. Mrs. F. C. Borwell is chairman.

PLAN DEFENSE AND RECREATION TALKS ON NOV. 8

Thousands Will Attend Conference.

Recreation's rôle in the national defense program will be brought out at the Sixth Annual Recreation conference to be held Nov. 8 in the Hotel Sherman, by the Chicago Recreation commission.

Dr. Malcolm S. MacLean.
[Cheyne Photo.]

"The basis for national preparedness rests upon maintenance of citizen morale," explained Dr. Arthur H. Todd of Northwestern university sociology department. "Recreation, defined as the healthy, wholesome use of citizens' leisure time, plays a key rôle in the morale of a nation at any time."

Thousands to Attend.

For this reason, "Recreation and Preparedness" was chosen for the theme of the conference. Dr. Malcolm S. MacLean, new president of Hampton institute, Norfolk, Va., and former director of the General college of the University of Minnesota, will be the principal speaker.

Dr. Todd is chairman of the conference and author of the annual survey on recreation in the Chicago area, published by the commission. The conference is the only one of its kind in the United States which brings together professional recreation leaders and thousands of lay men, women, and youths from the communities in an all day program centered upon recreation as a constructive social force.

Recreation Aids Patriotism.

In further explanation of the conference theme, Dr. Todd said: "The qualities of citizenship which make for a nation's preparedness are the same in times of peace as in times of stress and emergency. But during an emergency, these qualities must meet a special challenge—the challenge of heightened discipline and danger. Recreation fosters the positive states of mind whose sum total is patriotism.

"Recreation," he concluded, "is vital to preparedness and the thousands of citizens who will gather for the conference next month realize this fact.

"Out of the round table discussions, open forums and speeches by nationally known leaders of public opinion can come a real contribution to the welfare of our democratic nation."

Syrian Progressive League to Mark 23d Anniversary

The Syrian Progressive league will celebrate its 23d anniversary with a cabaret party and dance Saturday evening in the Knickerbocker hotel, 163 East Walton street. The league has planned the party to raise funds for a west side clubhouse for the 8,000 Syrian Americans living in Chicago. Guests will be Assessor John S. Clark., Ald. James B. Bowler [25th], and Ald. Edward Joe Upton [30th], and Edward J. Kaindl, county recorder.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

TAKING things "as they come" has been the philosophy of Mrs. Fredericka Langkafel, 34 North Catherine avenue, La Grange, who plans to celebrate her 95th birthday Thursday at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Langkafel of Clarendon Hills. Four sons, three daughters, 10 grandchildren, and eight great-grandchildren plan to attend the birthday dinner. Mrs. Langkafel is the widow of August Langkafel, pioneer merchant of Proviso township, who died 32 years ago. Born in Germany, she came with her husband to the Chicago area in 1871.

Mrs. Fredericka Langkafel.

Mrs. J. L. Vollintine, 127 East Walnut street, Hinsdale, recently was appointed chairman of the disaster relief committee for her community by James B. Forgan, chairman of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross.

THERE is a presidential campaign going on at Duncan Y. M. C. A. that has nothing to do with national issues. Votes are obtained by bringing in new members and by old members renewing their memberships. In the older boys' division, John Conforti is candidate of the American party, and Joe Giacolone is the choice of the National party. The goal is 475 members to be registered during October.

Eight Boy Scouts from the Oak Park Area council recently receiving the Eagle badge, highest award in Scouting, were William Mikesell, troop 2; Leonard Caryl, troop 9; James Sender, troop 20; Robert Madden, troop 20; Richard Zino, troop 26; Wallace Golbeck, troop 39; and Philip Ray, troop 40, all of Oak Park; and Clark Perrin, troop 71, Maplewood.

WHEN Mrs. Anna Sanger, of Clinton, Ia., attended the recent golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer A. Tuttle in Hinsdale, she brought with her a piece of the cake preserved from the wedding of 50 years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Tuttle have been residents of Hinsdale more than 30 years. Three years ago, Mr. Tuttle retired after having been an employé of the Burlington railroad more than 54 years.

Ruth Esser of Aurora has been elected president of her class at Rosary college for the fourth year. She is a graduate of West High school, Aurora, and at Rosary is doing her major work in sociology. Grace Ryan, of Oak Park, was elected secretary of the class. Joan Holland, of Maywood, was chosen one of the student government councilors. Marion Korrell, of Melrose Park, is the new junior class president. Miss Mary Furlong, of River Forest, is the new president of the athletic association.

PROVISO JUNIOR CLASS TO PLAY 'WHAT A LIFE!'

"What a Life!", Broadway comedy hit of last season, has been chosen as the junior class play at Proviso Township High school, according to an announcement by Miss Emily Reid, director. The play will be presented in matinées Oct. 30 and 31, with an evening performance Nov. 1.

Faculty members assisting in the tryouts for parts were Miss Helen Harris, Miss Cecil Stark, Miss Frances Killian, Miss Eleanor Lonek, C. E. A. Moore, and Manley W. Immel.

PLAN FESTIVAL ON HALLOWEEN IN BROOKFIELD

Members of the Brookfield Business Men's association have no desire to let Halloween pass unnoticed. They even want to be in on the fun. But instead of the pranks that often go with the night of spooks and elves, the business group will sponsor a celebration that will be open to all boys and girls of the suburb.

Irving Rezny, chairman of the celebration committee, said the program will include a parade to form near the Gross school and move to Kiwanis park, where an amateur contest will be held. Talent will include singers, dancers, monologists and acrobatic performers.

Working with Mr. Rezny on the committee are William Strandquist, Dudley Williams, Walter Richter, Robert Tlapa, Curtis Darnell, Al Herchenroder, and Michael Colgrass.

LOTTIE O'NEILL TURNS A BLAST ON DEMOCRATS

Feared Exposure of Waste, She Says.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

With a homemaker's concern over waste, Representative Lottie Holman O'Neill last week demanded that an investigation of state spending, which twice was cut short by the Democrats, be revived in the session of the Illinois legislature starting in January.

Lottie H. O'Neill.

Mrs. O'Neill and Warren L. Wood of Joliet are Republican nominees for reëlection to the house from the 41st district, made up of Du Page and Will counties. There also are two Democratic nominees, Representative Joseph Sam Perry of Glen Ellyn and Martin K. Miller of Joliet. The three top vote getters win two year terms.

Mrs. O'Neill, a widow, was the first woman elected to the legislature. She is serving her eighth term, and is chairman of the house committee on education. Her tireless campaigning is mostly on the subject of Wendell L. Willkie for President, she said, but she took time out to fire a blast at Democrats in the legislature.

Blast at Democrats.

"With the exception of a single downstater, every Democrat in the house voted to stop the economy investigation in the last general session," Mrs. O'Neill declared.

"Nothing but fear could have motivated their votes. There could be no valid reason for blocking an inquiry into state spending by the house committee which had already been appointed."

Taxpayers' money to the tune of about $262,000,000 will be spent by the Springfield government in the current two year period, she declared. She pointed out that this figure takes cognizance of the fact that sales tax revenue alone was $90,818,000 last year.

"Why shouldn't the people know what is being done with their money under the shelter of blanket appropriations for 'condingent funds?'" Mrs. O'Neill demanded.

"Charges remaining to be proved or disproved include the one that countless automobiles have been purchased by the state without legislative authority, and that many of these are used for personal joy riding."

Proposed by Committee.

A later investigating committee, which a few months ago had only a few weeks in which to operate, made the following recommendations:

1. Cut state expenses by an average of at least 10 per cent.
2. End the 2 per cent political assessment on the state's $40,000,000 a year pay rolls.
3. Break up an undercover alliance diverting road money to personal and political purposes in the state's $50,000,000 a year highway industry.
4. Halt campaign fund shakedown of persons and companies doing business with the state.
5. Stop pay roll padding done to divert tax money for political purposes.
6. Seek grand jury investigation of sales tax fixing and the state's purchases of liquor revenue stamps at 10 times the prices paid in nearby states.
7. Create a standing committee to serve as permanent legislative check on state expenditures.

Mrs. O'Neill, whose home is in Downers Grove, was praised by the nonpartisan Legislative Voters' league with these words: "Her intelligence and long experience make her deserving of renomination." She considers the victory of the women-on-juries bill the high spot of her service in the last session.

Rep. Perry's Schedule.

Representative Perry, one of the leaders on the Democratic side of the house, this week will concentrate on telling Will county citizens of the amount of direct state expenditures there. In the past seven years [up to July 1] Will county has received a total of $10,152,458 including the following items:

Old age assistance	$1,099,120.
Direct relief	$2,345,517.
Mothers' pensions	$57,595.
School grants	$1,045,823.
Gasoline tax refunds	$1,784,89[illegible]
New roads, etc.	$3,668,249.

A senate contest enlivens the campaign in the 2d district where the house candidates were virtually elected in the primary because they were limited to three in number.

Frank Ryan, dapper member of the Chicago Board of Trade and dean of the house by virtue of his 26 years as a representative, is the Democratic nominee for state senator. The L. V. L. said of him in April: "Constant attendant at sessions, able, active, one of leading Democrats in house."

Makes Active Campaign.

Despite the strong Democratic grasp on the district, which includes parts of wards 20, 25, and 27, Ryan is campaigning actively. The last Repub-

PRAISES HALLOWEEN PARTIES.

Thanks to community leaders, many west suburbs in recent years have come to look upon Halloween as a time for a supervised celebration rather than a night for individual exploits. Witches and spooks have been retained but they are now intermingled with adults, and as a householder I approve of the more modern plan.

Where the villages have arranged Halloween programs, boys and girls have responded with enthusiasm and the oldsters also have had their share of the fun. Fortunately, many of the suburbs are close enough to farming areas to provide a late October touch with cornstalks and pumpkins.

Despite a changing world and the constant oncoming of new generations, Halloween seems to have kept its appeal and to have a fixed place in American folklore. Let's recognize the fact as many business men's groups and service clubs already have. We have proof that supervision has added to the fun rather than having robbed the occasion of any of its excitement. Let's give credit to those community leaders who give forethought to the approach of a day of which youngsters are so fully aware. G. L. T.

SEE HOME PLANS DISAPPEAR.

Ever since I've been married I have figured on some day building a house. Now I'm just a dumb woman who can't sit back, light up a fat cigar and talk about business. I can just add the pennies, walk a block to save one on my shopping sprees and save that penny toward my building fund.

As I had it figured I could start building my house in three years. Salaries were awful little during the depression which the President and not our pay check says is over. All of a sudden I find the government is saving us for something and the price of lumber has shot up sky high and my husband's safety is threatened. I guess maybe this isn't a nation of homes.

I can't afford to build now, and by the time we get thru this boom, plus the next depression or inflation, I'll be an old woman with a cane and a cat. Of course, I'm not a business woman so I wouldn't say for sure. It just smells that way.

SEES INSPIRATION IN STATUE OF LIBERTY SONNET

D.A.R. Member Wants It in Every Home.

The 54th anniversary of the dedication of the Statue of Liberty, on Oct. 28, would be an opportune occasion for acquainting residents thruout the country with the inscription at the base of the statue, according to Mrs. Murray Mendell, 855 South Cleveland boulevard, Hinsdale.

Mrs. Mendell's interest in the statue was stimulated 20 years ago when her mother, learning of the inscription, prevailed upon a niece living in New York City to make a trip to Bedloe's Island and copy it.

Mrs. Mendell, a member of Gen. Henry Dearborn chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, arranged that the sonnet be printed on the cover of the chapter's calendar.

"It occurred to me then," she explained, "that here was a message for all of the people. I should like to see it placed in every home in America.

Every one is familiar with the Statue of Liberty, but comparatively few with the inscription at its base. Emma Lazarus, author of the sonnet, called it 'The New Colossus.' It reads:

"Not like the brazen giant of Greek fame,
With conquering limbs astride from land to land;
Here at our sea-washed sunset gates shall stand
A mighty woman with a torch, whose flame
Is the imprisoned lightning, and her name
Mother of Exiles.
From her beacon hand glows world-wide welcome;
Her mild eyes command the air-bridged harbor
That twin cities frame,
'Keep ancient lands, your storied pomp,' cries she.
With silent lips, 'Give me your tired, your poor,
Your huddled masses yearning to breathe free,
The wretched refuse of your teeming shore,
Send these, the homeless, tempest-tossed to me.
I lift my lamp beside the golden door!'"

DIVIDE SIX ROOM APARTMENT INTO 2 SMALLER ONES

Owner Himself Builds an Ornamental Door.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

This is a story which will interest you because of the many ingenious, attractive changes made in a six room apartment in Chicago. It will have further interest for you if you have ever considered the possibilities of dividing a large apartment into two smaller ones.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald M. MacDonald, 6425 Ingleside avenue, Chicago, were faced with the problem of doing just that.

They owned a two apartment building and felt that the first floor apartment which they occupied was larger than they needed; that if they could divide it and make two apartments where only one had been before, the arrangement would give them just the amount of space they wanted.

The apartment had six rooms and one bath, a long hallway running from front to back, and a large back porch. It was not a layout which seemed entirely amenable to change, but Mr. MacDonald felt he could do things with it. He is a carpenter, and a deft expert in working with wood. Both he and Mrs. MacDonald had faith that they could get results—and they did!

Make Two Apartments.

Now the first floor of the building has been divided into two apartments, and the entrance to the MacDonald home has been placed on the north side of the structure. New steps and wrought iron rail lead to a finely designed door which Mr. MacDonald built himself.

Just inside there is a small hallway which leads thru an arched opening into the living room.

This room was once the dining room of the apartment. The beams were removed from ceiling, walls replastered, and radiator handsomely inclosed in ivory cabinet which matches the woodwork. The walls were canvased in ivory tone, with a pale green ceiling and a wood rose carpeting.

Beyond this room ,and adding to its apparent size, are French doors which lead out to the living-dining porch. The original stairs which led from this porch to the second story were put outside the porch, leaving the entire space free for a semioutdoor room in warm weather. The space under the stairs was put to good use, with built-in cupboards for storage, bedding, and so on.

Build New Bathroom.

A new bathroom was installed and it's a little beauty. The walls are of structural glass, with a faint peach glow—reflected from the soft coloring in the rubber tile floor, in the deep pink of the shower curtains, and the dusty pink of the towels and accessories. The shower and tub are built-in and there's a small casement window over the tub.

This bathroom occupies the spot where formerly the pantry stood.

The kitchen was changed considerably, in process of general renovation. It was much larger in its original state. Its ceiling was lowered, new cabinets and cupboards were built. The entire side of the wall which once opened into the pantry is now cabinet and table space. There is a recessed shelf for the phone, and tiny open shelves over the range and cupboards over the refrigerator.

A door leads out to the living porch. And into the porch wall has been built a serviceable storage space for vegetables, nice and cool in the winter, since the porch is not heated in cold weather.

Cream and White.

Kitchen wainscoat and upper walls are painted cream and white, while the trim and accessories are orange.

In the bedroom there was the problem of wardrobe and closet space. Mrs. MacDonald wanted an abundance of it, and succeeded in obtaining it.

First, more light and air were brought into the room by building a new, large French window in place of the old, smaller one. The ceiling was lowered and a new maple floor was laid.

Then, the original closet in the bedroom was transformed into what one might call a wardrobe closet. Opposite the entrance door is a long, plate glass mirror which adds to the sense of space. And the walls are lined with large drawers and many smaller ones, shelves and cabinets, shoe and hat racks, and an umbrella cabinet. There is a small center closet, and then a third closet was added to the room by taking space from the former hallway which ran the length of the apartment.

The walls and woodwork are in dusty pink, a treatment which adds still further to the size of room.

All this was not done in a day, but was the result of time and thought and work. More changes are being planned for the future.

Parks Get Ready for 'Mum Show

Miss Theresa Roche of 532 West 46th place is the girl surrounded by 'mums. The picture is a reminder that 750 varieties of chrysanthemums will be on display at Garfield park conservatory, Lake street and Central Park avenue, from Nov. 9 to Dec. 1. The show also includes the Lincoln park conservatory which will be open daily from 8 o'clock in the morning until 10 o'clock in the evening.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Oct. 21.

Grapevines planted during fall may do better than spring planted stock because of an earlier start. The grape can be moved easily as soon as the leaves fall from well ripened wood. Make cuttings 8 to 12 inches long and with three joints. Make the lower cut just below joint and the upper cut about an inch above the bud. Bury the cuttings in the soil until spring and line out in the garden. Cuttings of many kinds of shrubs can be handled in the same manner with good results.

Tuesday, Oct. 22.

Bittersweet vines can be propagated from seeds sown this fall by root cuttings, or from soft wood cuttings. It makes a strong vine in partial shade and is fine for the north porch.

Wednesday, Oct. 23.

A number of bulbous plants do well in the rockery. The grape hyacinth is delightful for banks and pockets among the rocks. They grow from 5 to 6 inches high. Glory of the Snow has a fine blue flower, doing nicely in colonies, like the snowdrops and squills. The snowdrop and squill look attractive when dotted between bulbs. Regale lilies between peonies will prove attractive and various other combinations easily can be arranged.

Thursday, Oct. 24.

If the garden has not been put in good condition see that it is done at once. The vegetable garden plot should be cleaned of all débris, the ground given a good coat of barnyard manure if it is available, spaded under, and the soil allowed to remain in the rough. Frost will mellow the soil and planting will be easier next spring. All rubbish that can be burned should be destroyed. The tools should be cleaned and stored.

Friday, Oct. 25.

Tulips can be planted as long as the ground can be worked. Take good care of the bulbs now because foreign sources of supply are cut off. Get the neighbors to help and have the vacant lot next door plowed this fall for next spring's planting. If it is not needed for vegetables cover crops can be sown to keep down weeds; it is one way to aid in city beautification and to combat weeds.

Saturday, Oct. 26.

Root pruning fruit trees that have made too rank growth is often beneficial. Take a sharp spade and cut thru the thick roots on one side the first year; if that fails to check the growth and cause fruitfulness, the other side may be cut the second year. This refers to older trees that do not fruit well.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield park conservatory.

PAGEANT IN OAK PARK WILL MARK PRINTING'S BIRTH

Programs to Be Held in Lowell School.

With a combination pageant and exhibit, Oak Park will join hundreds of other communities in the United States in celebrating the 500th anniversary of the invention of movable type by Johannes Gutenberg. Programs will be held Tuesday thru Friday at the Lowell school.

The pageant, beginning each evening at 7:30 o'clock, will depict the evolution of the written and printed word. A $50,000 exhibit of old books and printing will be sponsored by the Oak Park public library.

Will Head Celebration.

Members of the celebration committee are James J. Garvey, business manager of the elementary schools, chairman; J. Ernest Shelby, Miss Elsie McKay, Mrs. A. M. Houser Jr. Mrs. A. J. Pohlman, William H. Dangel, W. J. Hamilton, and Arthur F. Epperson.

Fifty elementary school children will take part in the pageant which will have 11 episodes. The entire production will be produced by the children. The social science department will furnish material and, with the English department, write the plays and train the narrators.

The art department will plan settings and design costumes, while the household art department will make the costumes. Building of the sets has been left to the industrial arts department.

To Show First Editions.

The library exhibit will show specimens of early printing, including many first editions. The collection will include "History of Florence," published in 1476; a copy of the New Testament published in London in 1583; a first edition of "Little Women," and some of the Godey's Lady's books.

An exact model of the first Gutenberg printing press now under construction at the high school will be on display. Also exhibited will be modern printing accompanied by a motion picture illustrating printing processes.

Dedicate Tablet Today at Batavia Sanatorium

Dedication of an honor roll tablet will take place this afternoon on the grounds of Fox River sanatorium, Batavia. Leon Zimmerman, executive president of the Chicago Consumptive Aid society, will dedicate the tablet. Rabbi Abraham E. Abramowitz will be guest speaker. Comments will be made by Dr. Jacob J. Mendelsohn, medical director of the sanatorium. Vocal selections will be given by Irene Herman.

Masquerade.

The annual masquerade party of the Chicago Catholic University club will be held at 8:30 o'clock Saturday evening in the Midland hotel, 172 West Adams street.

TRINITY CHURCH ALL DRESSED UP IN $5,000 GOWN

Paint Scheme Is First in 24 Years.

For the first time since Trinity Evangelical church was built in 1916, it has a coat of paint on its walls. More than $5,000 is being spent on a beautification project for the church which was built at Fillmore street and Austin boulevard when the neighborhood was a meadow and men and women walked to church carrying lanterns. That was only 24 years ago.

The Rev. H. R. Neuman.

More than $18,000 has been pledged by the church's 500 members to liquidate the 24 year old debt on the church and to pay for the inner and outer improvements. The Rev. H. R. Neuman, who came to the church as pastor more than two years ago, is chairman of the improvement committee. Assisting him are the trustees, Walter Janggen, president; H. P. Groenboom, vice president; Harry Komen, George Michel, and Carl Kaufman.

Thought Modernized, Too.

A modernization of thought is the companion to the modernized church. In 1924, when the addition was made to the present building, members were opposed to a church kitchen, to suppers and entertainments in the church or a dramatic program. Today Mrs. Neuman teaches dramatics and a play is presented every month on a portable stage complete with footlights and scenery. In the improvement project $2,000 is being spent for a modern kitchen.

The landscaping of the church is completed. The shrubbery includes arborvitæ, muga pines, and Chinese junipers. The large urns in front of the church are blooming with flowers. The parkways have been paved and new lawns put in.

The painting in the church is in pastel shades. The pilasters have been painted to resemble Bedford stone and the pilaster caps are laid in mauve gray highlighted with terra cotta. Walls are café au lait color and the window returns are terra cotta.

Ceiling Cream Colored.

The ceiling is cream colored with the beams in a soft pea green. Chandeliers were painted to match the ceiling. The foyer and stairways are a "coffee with milk" color, and the window glass before just frosted glass, have been stenciled in amber shades,

Recently 6 year old twins, Audrey and Andrea Groenboom, presented the church with a new baptismal font in memory of their baby brother, Ronald, who died in January, 1939.

The church chancel is being remodeled. It will be divided and an altar will be placed at the rear with a dorsal frame and a cross on the altar. Before, the pulpit served as the center of interest.

The Rev. Mr. Neuman says the entire improvement project will be completed in December in time for the 24th anniversary celebration of the church's founding. The first large meeting to be served by the new kitchen will be the Illinois Conference of Evangelical churches, which will be held next April. Trinity is the youngest church to be accepted by the conference for the annual meeting.

Music Appreciation Club Elects Its First Staff

Officers were elected ecently for the newly organized music appreciation club at John Mashall High school. They are Julius Berger, president; Rosilind Meyers, vice president; Betty Drucker, secretary; and Allen Kanter, sergeant at ams. Marilyn Haris is chairman of the program committee.

Education Talk.

Louis Wirth, associate professor of sociology at the University of Chicago, will speak at 7:30 o'clock on the topic "Education versus Indoctrination" at the forum of the First Congregational church of Oak Park.

DR. WARREN N. CLARK ASSUMES THE PULPIT IN WHEATON CHURCH

Dr. Warren N. Clark, for the last 11 years pastor of the Berwyn Methodist church, has gone to the pulpit of Gary Memorial Methodist church, Wheaton. He succeeds the Rev. Charles K. Carpenter, who has retired. Dr. Clark's pulpit in Berwyn has been taken by the Rev. J. J. Hitchens, his classmate at Garrett Biblical institute 25 years ago.

Dr. Warren N. Clark.

A native of Kansas, Dr. Clark received his bachelor of philosophy degree at Kansas Wesleyan university, where he was captain of the football team and was winner, in 1909, of the Kansas state oratorical contest. He studied later at Garrett Biblical institute and was given a student appointment in the stockyards district. There his ministry lasted 17 years, during which membership of the seven-days-a-week church increased from 40 to 600. During his pastorate at Berwyn, 789 persons were received in full membership, and a serious debt problem was solved.

The Rev. Mr. Hitchens goes to the Berwyn pulpit from a seven year pastorate at Berry Memorial church on Chicago's north side. Born in England, he attended Garrett institute and upon his graduation in 1912 went to the Detroit conference. In 1914 he came to the Rock River conference and before going to Berry church held pastorates in Rock Falls, Ill., Joliet, Ill., and the Lamon avenue church in Chicago.

OFFICERS PLAN A MILITARY DANCE FOR NOVEMBER 2

The annual military ball of the Cook county chapter of the Reserve Officers' association will be held in the Grand ballroom of the La Salle hotel on Saturday evening, Nov. 2. The ball will be preceded by a dinner for Lieut. Gen. Ben Lear, recently transferred from Panama to Chicago to command the 2d army.

This will be the first opportunity for the officers and their ladies of the Chicago area to greet the new commanding officer. Maj. George B. Morse, chairman of the ball, announced that plans have been made to accommodate more than 500 couples.

lican senator from this district was elected in 1926.

"I have worked hard for you in the house in Springfield for 26 years," Ryan tells the voters. "You are my boss, so I am asking you to advance me to the senate."

George W. Tebbens, 1214 South Ashland avenue, is the Republican senate nominee. He admitted that his is an uphill battle "because there are from 15 to 20 Democratic jobs in every precinct here."

"I've been in the florist business here for 35 years," he says. "Under the old New Deal, I have had to close my store and put a mortgage on my home. Relief tenants can't pay their rent. We won't see the end of this depression until we have a business man in the White House."

Club to Dance.

The Y-Not-Be Social club of St. Joseph's parish, Downers Grove, will hold its fourth anniversary dance Friday night in the school hall, Franklin street and Highland avenue. Larry Cogswell is president of the club.

Mr. D. F. McMahon
Chicago Tribune
Chicago, Illinois

Dear Mr. McMahon:

Seven years ago, we opened our first store near Broadway on Devon featuring scientific footwear for children.

To reach a reader audience appreciative of the specialized fitting service of top quality footwear for children, we chose the Tribune. The results were very satisfactory.

You can best judge the success of this advertising by the fact that in 1935 we opened a second store in Winnetka, and in 1938, a third store on the South Side of Chicago.

In each case, we simply expanded our use of Sunday Tribune Metropolitan section advertising which is still paying out for our original store. It is an advertising plan, you may be sure, that we intend to follow in the future.

Sincerely yours,
J. R. DeWitt.

Shoe Retailer Tells How Advertising in the Sunday Tribune Metropolitan Sections Helped Him Open Two New Stores

In the above letter, a neighborhood shoe retailer tells how one store grew into three as a result of advertising in the Sunday Tribune Metropolitan sections.

No matter how large or small your store—regardless of what you sell, or to whom you sell—you can benefit by the economical, tested plan which the Tribune has developed especially for the neighborhood merchant.

Do you want more information about this low-cost sales building method which 745 neighborhood enterprises used last year to get more patronage from the people best able to trade with them?

The site is Camp Sagawau near Lemont, Ill., which is occupied in the summer by the Girl Reserves of the Y. W. C. A. Girls who know the hum of machinery and the routine of work tables will rest in the large recreation hall, the dining hall, and the 13 cabins in the woods.

Miss Mary Kraiss, chairman of the outing committee, is assisted by Miss Lottie Vadlo, Miss Wanda Beganis, and Miss Mary Miller.

Plan Card Party.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Bohemian club will hold a dessert bridge party at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the club house, 3659 Independence boulevard.

Mothers' Party

Mrs. John E. Walsh, 912 North East avenue, Oak Park, is chairman of the annual Halloween card party and dance to be held Friday night by the Trinity High School Mothers' club in the school gymnasium, River Forest.

SUNDAY EVENING CLUB TO HEAR TALK ON HATE

Dr. Harold Bosley, pastor of Mount Vernon Place Methodist church, Baltimore, Md., will make his first appearance before the Sunday Evening club tonight in Orchestra hall, speaking on the topic "No Weapon but Hate." Clifford W. Barnes will preside, and Horace W. Armstrong, trustee of the club, will participate in the program.

Dr. Harold Bosley.

Dr. Bosley, formerly of the University of Chicago, went to Baltimore in 1938, after five years as director of religious activities at Iowa State college. His book, "The Quest for Religious Certainty," was considered an authoritative contribution to current thought.

The Abernathy ensemble will give a choral program at the preliminary meeting, 7 o'clock and Hidson H. Pittman, assistant to Mr. Barnes, will inaugurate a new series of informal Bible talks on the theme "Religious Resource for Effective Living." The guest soloist at the 8 o'clock meeting will be Marian Carlisle.

Plan Homecoming Party to Aid Sisters of Mercy

The annual homecoming party for the benefit of the Sisters of Mercy at Precious Blood school will be held Wednesday evening in the church hall, Congress street and Western avenue. Organizations making the arrangements are the Altar and Rosary society, the Holy Name society, and the Young Peoples' clubs.

CICERO WELFARE CENTER DRIVES TO RAISE $1,000

To Sell Memberships at $5 Each.

Working to meet the $1,000 annual payment due on the building at 54th street and Cermak road, officers, directors and friends of the Cicero Welfare center have adopted a plan of selling either life or sustaining memberships at $5 each.

James Gable.
[Nechtman Photo.]

Memberships are payable within a period of five years for the purpose of liquidating the encumbrance on the center building and grounds and workers have bound themselves together as a community council to further aid the community welfare cause.

In appreciation of civic loyalty, each new member will receive a metal engraved card for pocketbook use. Business firms will receive an engraved metal window plaque.

Aims of President.

James Gable, president of the center, said he hoped at least $500 might be raised at the end of this month when the annual payment will be due, and that an additional $500 will be raised in the next 30 days. He said sufficient funds were on hand for half the instalment and subscriptions were depended upon for the rest. Final goal of the center is 1,000 members and $5,000.

The Cicero Welfare center was organized in 1919 and was chartered the following year. Soon afterward an Infant Welfare clinic was established in the center's first quarters, a store at 52nd avenue and 22nd place. Since then the center has widely broadened its scope of activities.

In larger quarters at 5334-36 West 25th street, the Cicero Day nursery was taken over and conducted until funds were exhausted in 1931. A dental clinic was established in 1936.

Purchase Dolese Home.

Growth of the center necessitated larger quarters. A substantial sum toward a home had been in the building fund for 15 years, and in 1939 quarters were purchased thru the generosity of the William Dolese family.

For this achievement, credit is given to Miss Marie Dolese, the building committee, the women's auxiliary, town officials, the health department and contributed labor. Credit also is given tradesmen who donated material and services for remodeling the building.

Thru assistance of the American Red Cross and the WPA, classes have been carried on in home hygiene, care of the sick, first aid and weaving. Activities include a Fathers' club and a Mothers' club.

Provides Meeting Place.

The center also provides a meeting place for young people's groups and service activities. Camp periods and outings are arranged for the summer months, and used clothing and furniture are distributed to low income families.

Last year, 3,000 pieces of clothing and 500 articles of furniture found their way into needy homes. Wheel chairs and crutches are loaned to invalids. Other services include a preschool clinic, WPA hot lunches for school children, Red Cross surgical dressing units, infantile paralysis aid, and coöperation with the National Travelers' Aid association.

It is explained that anticipated future needs of the center will require contributions of both advice and financial aid from every interested person in the community.

PASTOR, ASSISTANT BOTH TO CELEBRATE 25 YEARS IN PULPIT

A double silver jubilee will be celebrated today by Grace Lutheran church of River Forest for its pastor, Dr. O. A. Geiseman, and his assistant, Dr. Paul Bretscher. Both men were ordained into the ministry 25 years ago. They were also classmates at Concordia Theological seminary, St. Louis. The anniversary vesper service will begin at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon with the liturgical portion conducted by the Rev. A. R. Kretzmann, pastor of St. Luke's church.

The Rev. O. A. Geiseman.

The anniversary sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Walter E. Hohenstein of Bloomington, Ill. The service will be followed by a supper and a social evening in the parish hall at which Prof. Louis A. Menking of Luther institute will be toastmaster and the Rev. G. A. Ross, pastor of St. John's church, Pekin, Ill., will deliver the principal address.

Dr. O. A. Geiseman has been pastor of Grace church for the last 18 years. His first call into the ministry a quarter century ago was at Wenona, Ill. Dr. Bretscher received his first call from the Gospel Lutheran church, Milwaukee, Wis., a missionary church. In addition to his work at Grace church he holds the position of dean of the college at Concordia Teachers college, River Forest, where he is also professor of religion and languages.

A W-G-N SCOOP! PREMIERE OF NEW DE MILLE MOVIE

Stars Madeleine Carroll, Gary Cooper on Air.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Next Thursday W-G-N will present a notable radio scoop—the radio première of Cecil B. DeMille's new $2,000,000 technicolor Paramount production, "North West Mounted Police." Chicago will have its first real motion picture première that evening when the lavish production is presented at the Chicago theater with all the stars and Mr. DeMille participating.

Cecil B. DeMille.

All the stars, headed by Gary Cooper, Madeleine Carroll and Paulette Goddard, will be presented on the W-G-N première of the picture, which will be presented on In Chicago Tonight from 7:30 to 8 p. m., station, will direct the air première. at the theater. Mr. DeMille will be master of ceremonies.

William A. Bacher, production chief of W-G-N, who last week obtained the exclusive broadcasting rights for the station, will direct the air première His writing and production staff is now busy on the radio adaptation.

De Mille to Introduce Stars.

Other stars who will appear on the W-G-N show will be Preston Foster, Lynne Overman and Robert Preston. Additional Hollywood notables are expected to be on hand for the broadcast.

Mr. De Mille will introduce the stars who will present specially adapted scenes from the all color production which depicts Gary Cooper as a Texas Ranger who journeys to Canada in search of an outlaw. Hollywood previewers have pronounced "North West Mounted Police" as the greatest among De Mille's impressive list of motion picture productions.

Immediately following the broadcast the stars will join in a parade thru bedecked loop streets and then go to the Chicago theater for the première showing of the picture. [The picture will open the same evening in a selected list of other theaters in Chicago.]

Second Broadcast Planned.

Batteries of kleig lights, clicking newsreel cameras and flaring flashbulbs will add color to the loop première. The State Street council, loop business men's organization, headed by David Mayer Jr. is coöperating with W-G-N, Balaban and Katz, and Paramount pictures in this gala première.

W-G-N is planning a second broadcast from the scene of the premiere in the loop, employing the W-G-N short wave unit from 8:30 to 9 p. m., provided the time is available.

FANTASTIC TALE OF CHILD GIANTS ON 'PETER QUILL'

A bizarre scheme to build an army of child giants—mentally incapable of reason, blindly loyal to their masters—will be unfolded on the Peter Quill show today. The fantastic story of half-mad Prince Hirogi and his baby giants will be heard from 3 to 3:30 p. m. over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

LEW LOYAL, BETSY FOLLOW TRAIL OF SPY ORGANIZATION

What an all-American boy does when he discovers a mysterious anti-American organization will be depicted on the new Lew Loyal adventure feature at 7 p. m. next Friday over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Lew Loyal, with his friend Betsy True and his Uncle Mack, a secret serevice agent, will follow the trail of the Brothers of Freedom, suspected spy organization, as next Friday's episode opens.

Young Jack Bivans, Chicago boy, plays in the rôle of Lew Loyal. Betsy True is portrayed by Patti Willis and Bret Morrison, widely known radio actor, takes the part of Uncle Mack. Script for the new drama is written by John D. Hess. Production is in charge of William A. Bacher, with Blair Walliser as director.

The adventures of Lew Loyal are also portrayed in the Comic magazine of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. A $10,000 contest for boys and girls is being sponsored by THE TRIBUNE in connection with the comic strip and radio program.

The radio premiere will be presented on In Chicago Tonight from 7:30 to 8 p. m. with Mr. De Mille as master of ceremonies.

WILKOMIRSKI'S SOLO TO FEATURE SYMPHONIC HOUR

Marion Claire to Sing Three Songs.

Michael Wilkomirski, concertmaster of the W-G-N Symphony orchestra, will be featured on the Chicago Tribune Symphonic Hour tonight in a violin solo presentation of Ravel's "Tzigane." The concert will be broadcast from 9 to 10 p. m. over W-G-N, the coast to coast Mutual network, and the entire network of the Canadian Broadcasting corporation.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of the CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak during the broadcast. Marion Claire, noted soprano, will sing three solos and Henry Weber will lead the orchestra in selections from Von Weber, Mendelssohn, and Tschaikowsky.

After the orchestra's opening presentation of the overture to "Euryanthe," by Carl Maria von Weber, Miss Claire will sing Oscar Strauss' "Music in My Heart" as the first of her solos. The orchestra will play the scherzo in G minor for string octet, by Felix Mendelssohn, and will conclude the hour of music with the finale from Peter Tschaikowsky's Fifth Symphony.

Miss Claire and the augmented chorus will sing "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean" and "Calm As the Night," by Joseph Bohm.

The Symphonic Hour is produced by William A. Bacher.

The musical commentary is written by Cecil Smith of The Chicago Tribune music and drama staff.

The Chicago Theater of the Air will broadcast "The Student Prince" from 9 to 10 p. m. next Saturday over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system. Three well known artists, Marion Claire, Jan Peerce, and Bruce Foote, will sing the leads in Sigmund Romberg's gay operetta.

Jan Peerce, noted radio and concert tenor, makes a triumphant return to the Theater of the Air after his appearance in "The Student Prince" in the spring series. He will again portray the part of Prince Karl Franz.

Miss Claire, W-G-N's operatic soprano, who sang opposite Peerce in the spring production as Kathie, will again be starred.

Altho a newcomer to the W-G-N operettas, baritone Bruce Foote, is known thruout the country and especially in the midwest. He won second place in the Chicago Opera Company auditions this season.

The operetta will be under direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs and productions at W-G-N. Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N and artistic director of the Chicago Opera Company, will lead the W-G-N concert orchestra and chorus.

Eddie and Fanny Plan New Series Over W-G-N

BOAKE CARTER RETURNS TO AIR NEXT WEDNESDAY

Commentator to Start W-G-N—MBS Series.

After an absence of almost two years from the networks, Boake Carter, nationally known news commentator and editorialist will return to the air next Wednesday. He will be heard from 7:30 to 7:45 p. m. on Mondays, Wednesday, and Saturday weekly over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system.

This series will be sponsored by United Airlines. This is the first time an air line has sponsored a regular program on a major network. Carter, who is a pilot, has flown more than 200,000 miles on commercial lines.

Most of his broadcasts will originate in New York but when he travels about the country on lecture assignments he will be picked up from various cities.

Carter has had a life filled with adventure. Born in Baku, Russia, where his father was in the consular service, he was educated at Cambridge university. During the war he served with the Royal Flying corps; later was a roving correspondent for the London Daily Mail. He illustrated his own stories. He is also a portrait painter.

"GOING PLACES"

October 20, 1902.

The Madison-Crawford section of Chicago was little more than open prairie when three young, obscure merchants opened their first shop. It was a small shop, but destined to revolutionize Chicago's conception of what a Man's Store should be.

The young merchants were Leon and Dana Baer and Theodore Prodie—with limited capital but unlimited faith in their ideas and purpose. Their purpose, to help men succeed by enabling them to have the appearance of success. Their idea—to make this possible by offering men a new conception of value—not merely value based on low price, but that value which makes anything worth possessing. Baer Bros. & Prodie were the first in the entire industry to adopt a policy of guaranteed satisfaction.

In this shop quality knew no compromise. Stocks were critically selected to provide the Style, Fabrics, Colors and Patterns necessary to fit each man's particular personality.

The years passed by. Additions were made to the little shop and it became a big store, as thousands of men intent on "going places" in the business and professional world recognized that this new conception of value made the "going" easier.

October 20, 1940.

Baer Bros. & Prodie believes that the need for that original understanding of value is as great today as it was when their business first started.

Under one roof are the products of America's finest manufacturers—Hart Schaffner & Marx and Don Richards Clothing, Arrow Shirts, Resilio and Wembley Ties, Stetson and Mallory Hats, Florsheim Shoes, Interwoven Socks, Kaylon and Nobelt Pajamas, Cooper Underwear, Alligator Raincoats, McGregor Sportswear, Hickok Belts, Paris Suspenders and Garters, Swank Jewelry. Equally important is the able and friendly assistance of salesmen who know the right styles and color combinations for individual personalities.

It's little wonder that men who are today "going places" go first to Baer Bros. & Prodie.

MADISON AT CRAWFORD

ROBERT BLAINE IS PIONEER AS GLIDER PILOT

Studied in University in Germany.

One of the first commercial glider licenses issued by the civil aeronautics board, when it was the bureau of air commerce, was that granted to Robert F. Blaine of West Chicago, in 1929. Under this license, Mr. Blaine, as president of the Illini Flying club at the University of Illinois, taught 24 members of the collegiate group to fly in an elementary type, or primary, glider. The glider was built by Mr. Blaine and members of the club. During the entire course of instruction the plane was never damaged.

Mr. Blaine was executive chairman of the American Open Soaring contest, and is sales manager of the Lewis School of Aeronautics at Lockport.

For the school year of 1932-'33 Mr. Blaine was awarded a fellowship to study at the University of Göttingen, Germany. The university has been the seat of aeronautical research for many years and Mr. Blaine worked there in the fine aeronautical research laboratories. As a member of the regular flying club organized as a part of the physical education department at the school, Mr. Blaine flew gliders and sailplanes in competition, representing the university.

Won in Competition.

The competition took the form of collegiate contests thruout the country and enabled him to travel with the other students to many out of the way places in Germany and to study first hand the system of training which was at that time already set up to build a pilot reserve, altho Versailles treaty provisions were being met. On several occasions he won in competition.

At the conclusion of his school work, Mr. Blaine proceeded with the power flying for which he had earned a private pilot's certificate in 1930. A few years later he returned to soaring. In 1939 he was elected secretary of the Chicagoland Glider council, whose purpose is to foster and promote motorless flying activity in the Chicagoland area. In this capacity he arranged many interesting events intended to attract the attention of young men to the possibilities in the middle west for soaring.

The Chicagoland Glider council increased its membership and successful meetings were held, notably a demonstration of motorless flight staged under his direction at Elmhurst in February.

Viewed by 10,000.

It is estimated that nearly 10,000 persons came out on an uncomfortably cold day to see demonstrated several sailplanes which came from five midwest states to compete for two trophies posted by the Aircraft Owners and Pilots association, of which Mr. Blaine is a member.

In 1939 Mr. Blaine became president of the Glen Ellyn Glider club, which then consisted of but two members, Harold Kreuger and David W. Miller of Glen Ellyn. The three completed construction of an advanced sailplane which had been started a year earlier by Kreuger and Miller. Working closely with the civil aeronautics board, they arranged for the certification as to airworthiness of the glider known as "The Wolf," after its designer, Wolf Hirth.

Test flights were made before an inspector early in September, 1939, and many successful flights were made after the granting of the certificate, the first certificate to be awarded an American built sailplane constructed from foreign plans.

Irish Plan a Card Party to Aid Shrine Building

On Wednesday evening, Oct. 30, the Irish Mummers club and friends of St. Patrick will hold a card party and dance at McEnery hall, 4039 Madison street. The proceeds of the party will be sent to Saint Patrick, Mo., where Father Francis O'Duignan is building a national shrine to St. Patrick. Chairman of the party is Erin Newton, and Eileen O'Connor will be cochairman.

ST. MALACHY'S OLD PUPILS TO RETURN AT RALLY SATURDAY

The old school bell of St. Malachy's will call back its old school children Saturday for a reunion in the school auditorium, Washington and Oakley boulevards. Alumni of a grammar school who have stayed united since commencement, the men and women of St. Malachy's will exchange memories over coffee cups thru the evening.

The Rev. John F. Brown.

The head of the committee is the pastor of the parish, the Rev. John F. Brown. The 1940 grammar school students assisting him are Dorothy Lunz and Anthony Vader. Older pupils are Mae Fitzpatrick and Charles Costello from the class of 1890.

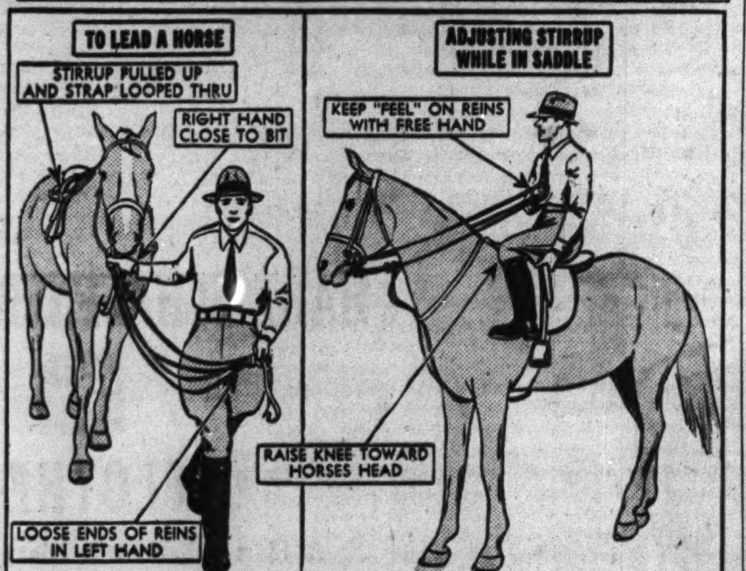
Attorney William John Granata recently took time out from his campaign for clerk of the Probate court to give an ice cream and cake party at the Spaulding School for Crippled Children at 1620 Washington boulevard. The party was given in co-operation with the Chicago Police post of the American Legion. In the picture, left to right, are Patrick J. O'Shea, commander of the Legion post; Frank Duzinski, Valentine Wollak, Paddy Spears, Charles Friedman, and Mr. Granata. Plans for regular parties for the children are being made.

A Tenderfoot Learns to Ride



TO LEAD A HORSE
STIRRUP PULLED UP AND STRAP LOOPED THRU
RIGHT HAND CLOSE TO BIT
LOOSE ENDS OF REINS IN LEFT HAND
ADJUSTING STIRRUP WHILE IN SADDLE
KEEP "FEEL" ON REINS WITH FREE HAND
RAISE KNEE TOWARD HORSES HEAD

[This is the fourteenth in a series of stories describing a course in elementary riding instruction.]

There are certain definite points of etiquet to be observed by all considerate riders of the horse trails and bridle paths, I have learned by actual experience since I began taking instruction from Elmer J. Holdorf. I quote a few of them below, substantially as they were given to me:

Be considerate to your mount always, or good riders will condemn you, perhaps even to your face.

If you're to ride in company with some one else, don't start out until your companions are mounted, or you will make their steeds restless.

It's best not to cluck at your horse to start him or urge him on faster. Other mounts nearby may respond to it. Anyhow, it isn't necessary.

Keep your horse under control at all times, and especially when others are about you; most saddle horses are spirited creatures, easily excited.

Some Horses Kick.

Don't ride less than half a length away from the horse in front, which may kick no matter how well behaved he is considered.

Scold your horse if he shows signs of biting another. Usually a sharp word from you is enough to remind him of his manners.

Never run your horse past other mounted riders. Horses are very susceptible to the example of others of their kind, and you might start a small stampede.

Pass approaching horses to the right. Keep to the right side of the trail for other riders who are overtaking you.

It's a good rule to speak a word of greeting to other riders you meet, whether you know them or not. Equestrians, unlike motorists, make a point of being pleasant to each other.

When riding with other equestrians, group the horses rather than the riders. It's a form of cruelty to compel a spirited horse to stay behind a plodder.

Don't Let Horse Browse.

Keep your mount from browsing along the trail. It's not only impolite on the horse's part [and a well-mannered horse knows this], but it's also destructive of park and forest preserve plant life, that should be saved for every one's enjoyment.

While fording a stream, don't run your horse or he may fall. And it's best not to halt him in the water. He might shy and give you an unexpected bath.

Don't let your horse drink at a ford unless you're going to exercise him considerably right away. Never let a horse drink at the end of a ride; it may injure him permanently.

Keep to the established trails. A horse's hooves quickly destroy grass, wild flowers, and young trees.

And Avoid Mudholes.

Steer your horse around mudholes if possible. Getting him muddy is not only unsightly, but it makes extra work for the stable hands.

Be careful of fire. Be sure your cigarets and matches are extinguished before you throw them away. Report suspicious smoke at the nearest telephone.

Stop and look both ways before crossing a highway.

Don't lose your temper with your horse. Set him a good example by being calm at all times. Never betray any fear you might feel. A horse is quick to take its cue from its rider.

Don't be a drug store cowboy, the name horsemen contemptuously apply to wild riders.

Disregard of the simple rules of good horsemanship stamps you as being either ignorant or boorish.

13 CAMERA CLUB FANS WIN PHOTO CONTEST 'AWARDS

Thirteen winners in the Berwyn amateur photography contest recently were announced at a meeting of the Berwyn Camera club, sponsor of the project in conjunction with the Berwyn Playground and Recreation commission. Three first place winners were Lawrence Schleyer, for his picture taken within the Berwyn city limits in the 15 to 18 age group; Joseph Skala for pictures taken outside the city limits, and William Dennin for pictures taken by persons more than 18 years old.

Other winners in the 15 to 18 age classification were Lawrence Klima, second, and B. A. Liska, third. In the same age group, for prints of scenes outside Berwyn, winners were Victor Gorecki, second, and Lawrence Schleyer, third and honorable mention. Successful competitors in the over 18 age division were Walt Dorsey, second, and Ray Stevens, third. Dorsey, Stevens, and Dennin received honorable mention.

All winning prints and others selected will be exhibited at the annual hobby show of the Playground commission in December. Members of of the contest committee were Norman Misek, Milton Fries, and Carl Palmer. Judges were K. A. Weston, A. J. Brunner, and H. M. Larsen.

Hold Last Half of 16th Walther Conclave Today

The Walther league of the Northern Illinois district today will hold the final half of its two-day 16th annual convention in the Stevens hotel. The organization is an affiliate of the International Walther league, youth organization of the Synodical Conference Lutheran church.

INDIAN SUMMER CARTOON TO BE TOLD IN MUSIC

A music portrayal of the cartoon "Indian Summer," by John T. McCutcheon of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE will be presented under the direction of Frank Bennett at 7:30 o'clock this evening in the Austin Methodist church, Central and Race avenues. The musical arrangement for the choir was made by Mrs. Bennett.

Soloists will be Earl Bichel, tenor, Indian warrior; Margaret F. Christy, soprano, Indian maid; I. Rai Sturgis, basso, Indian chief; David Johnson, grandfather; Martin Beisner Jr., grandson. Betsy Reed will be the pianist and Frank Beal the electrician. Members of the male quartet are David Ross, tenor; Ernst Budde, second tenor; Don Lathrope, baritone, and Lenard Rathenberg, bass.

Indian maids are Delia Marshall, Rhoda Gipson, Peggy Hodgins, Evelyn De Grott, Frances Smedberg, and Marjorie Kindred.

MEDILL-TRIBUNE POST TO HOLD INSTALLATION

Medill-Tribune Post No. 348 of the American Legion will hold its installation party Wednesday evening at 7:30 at the Club Alibi, 4911 Broadway. Officers of the post are Frank J. Prohaska, commander; Sam Hatfield, senior vice commander; Berry Patrick, junior vice commander; Dan Martin, adjutant; Edward Kloud, finance officer; Leo Duryea, service officer; Leo Connelly, judge advocate; Phil Hampson, historian; Ben Week, chaplain, and Ben Huebner and Frank Walrath, sergeants-at-arms. Installing officer is Louis Rossett, 6th district commander.

RIDING STORIES IN THE TRIBUNE ELICIT PRAISE

Start Many on the Way to Horsemanship.

Horsemen and horsewomen of the Chicago area including many leaders of the sport, have expressed their commendation for the series of riding stories appearing in the Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE under the heading "A Tenderfoot Learns to Ride."

This series, written by Harold Smith, a member of THE TRIBUNE staff, began last July 21 and will be concluded with next Sunday's instalment.

Most of those who have lauded the series have urged that it be reproduced in booklet form, a suggestion that has been taken under advisement by THE TRIBUNE.

Riding Interest Increases.

Some of the commentators credit this feature and other equestrian stories that have appeared in the Metropolitan section recently with responsibility for much of the increase in riding interest shown this summer. One of these is Herbert J. Lorber, president of the Town and Country Equestrian association, director of the Arlington Jockey club, and former polo player.

"There has been a sharp upturn this year in the number of new riders," Lorber said. "The increase has been too big to be attributed to normal growth. I am convinced the Tenderfoot series was the major factor in this unusual growth. The stories, based on sound horsemanship principles, point out graphically the simplicity and the pleasure of enjoying park and forest preserve woodlands from horseback."

Wayne Dinsmore, secretary of the Horse and Mule Association of America, also credited the Tribune series with stimulating interest in riding, and urged that the stories be collectively issued "for the lasting benefit they can confer on the sport of horsemanship."

Many Start Riding.

Riding apparel dealers and others catering to the needs of the equestrian world say that the demand for "first" outfits by beginning riders has never been greater than at present.

A. K. Gordon, manager of the riding apparel department of a large store attributed a one-third increase in sales largely to THE TRIBUNE'S stories of horse world activities and to the Tenderfoot series.

Similar comment was made by Don Iltis, manager of another large store catering to the starting rider.

Golden Year

MR. AND MRS. FRED BLUDER.

Special church services, open house and a reception in the village hall celebrated the recent golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bluder, residents of Hodgkins for 36 years. Mr. Bluder is a former trustee of the village and severed several terms as chief o fthe fire department. He and Mrs. Bluder have long been active members of Immanuel Lutheran church. MARMION CADETS ARE RECIPIENTS OF HONOR BARS

Honor bars were awarded recently at Marmion Military academy, Aurora, to the cadets who have maintained high scholastic standings. Among the winners were 19 Chicago boys. Honored as proficient cadets were M. A. Hettich, J. J. King, B. J. Mieczkowski, M. T. West, G. P. Latchford, N. J. Mezydlo, A. P. Focht, T. E. Kelleher, and C. E. Segler.

Receiving a silver bar as honor cadets were E J. Squires, R. I. Beckman, and A. J. Pappas. Distinguished cadets were A. C. Gelb, E. F. Mocny, H. N. Cantrell, J. J. Martin, and J. J. Starshak. In the band competition, awards were given to A. P. Focht, and G. P. Latchford.

The awards were made before a general assembly of the cadets. Proficient cadets received a bronze bar, honor cadets a silver bar, and distinguished cadets a gold bar. Presentations were made by Capt. T. J. Bednard, assistant headmaster.

Friendship

One of the richest rewards of life is friendship. No man, however strong, can be truly happy without at least one other person that he is pleased and proud to call FRIEND. And the happiest is he who has a host of friends . . . who keeps making new ones.

Fostering friendship is one of the most pleasant aspects of the entire program of the Y M C A. In effect, we take you by the arm, present you to another and say, "Here is a friend." What we actually do, of course, is give you an opportunity to enjoy a common interest. What sounder foundation can there be for a real and lasting friendship?

It is this function which has been one of the greatest factors in making the Y M C A and its work the tradition that it is today. The possibilities for friendship, so amply provided by the Y M C A, are a magnet which draws many differing personalities and matches each with another, to the incontestable advantage of all concerned.

Whatever your interests, you will build friendships among the congenial persons engaged in the same activities at the Y M C A.

Stop at the Y M C A most convenient to you today and ask for complete details of a membership for this Fall and Winter.

RAT WAR MOVES TO NEW WARDS; TOLL MOUNTING

14 Wards Already Baited with Red Squill.

The city's war against rats rolled on last week, as the army of rat baiters, equipped with poisonous red squill, moved into 15 new wards, placing bait in every rat hole. The exterminators, working out of Commissioner of Public Works Oscar E. Hewitt's office, have so far killed an estimated 400,000 rats, and the toll is mounting every day.

According to the latest report from Commissioner Hewitt 14 wards have been baited and the first stage of the destruction is completed. These wards are the 22d, 23d, 26th, 29th, 30th, 31st, 33d, 35th, 37th, 39th, 47th, 48th, 49th, and 50th. With these sections now under control work has been started in the 1st, 3d, 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 10th, 16th, 18th, 21st, 32d, 34th, 36th, and 40th.

Rat Canvass Made.

The battle against the rodents has been helped by a house to house canvass to ascertain where and under what conditions rats have been seen in the neighborhoods. With more than one-third of the city already checked the relief workers who are doing the baiting are using the reports to guide their work.

As the work of exterminating the pests is being carried out only in wards where 100 per cent of the buildings are supplied with garbage cans the drive to supply every building with a receptacle is being pushed harder. At the latest report 35 out of the 50 city wards were 100 per cent supplied.

List of Lagging Wards.

Wards on the west side that are not 100 per cent supplied with garbage cans are as follows:

20th ward—94.5 per cent supplied; 312 buildings without cans.

24th ward—99.3 per cent supplied; 27 buildings without cans.

25th ward—57.2 per cent supplied; 2,537 buildings without cans.

27th ward—84.2 per cent supplied; 1,216 buildings without cans.

28th ward—87.1 per cent supplied; 881 buildings without cans.

WAR'S ALARMS UPSET LIFE IN COUNTRY TOWN

Wilmington to House Munition Workers.

When a small town goes down to the drug store newspaper stand on a bright autumn morning and reads that it's about to be bordered by a $25,000,000 munitions plant, what happens? And if it learns within a few days that its population is to double, perhaps treble, or increase even more, then what happens?

Well, if the little town is Wilmington, Ill., a municipality of 1,800 along the Kankakee river on alternate route 66, it simply gets ready to be a big town. Its residents quietly lay aside a century of small town history to prepare, in a few weeks, for the biggest boom since Thomas Cox walked onto the site in 1836 and put up a sawmill.

Wilmington is 16 miles south of Joliet, 57 miles by highway south of Chicago's loop. For years it has been a spot where city folks went for a week-end in the country. When its residents discovered that the United States government had selected 41,000 acres between there and Joliet for a munitions plant, the folks mobilized.

Begin Town Meetings.

They began with good old fashioned town meetings, and the "regulars" on Water street, Wilmington's main thoroughfare, say that neighbors who "hadn't done any goin' in 20 years" came out to the meetings. Now the sessions have become part of the town system.

Town meeting members began by talking over housing, and women who usually spend early autumn canning tomatoes and putting up pickles began wondering how many new sheets and towels they'd need to go into first class rooming house keeping.

Business men started a zoning project on a big town scale, and general discussion along Water street tended toward speculating on the expense of enlarging the sewage system for subdivision. Townsfolk appointed committees for everything they could think of. In fact, nearly every third person on Water street turns out to be a member of at least one committee.

Reports of the number of munitions plant workers who may seek housing in Wilmington vary from 2,000 to 10,000. As one oldtimer put it, "All we're sure of is we're goin' to have a lot of new folks around here, and I guess we'd better have room for 'em." Wilmingtonians know that construction gangs will be coming in within a few weeks.

Newcomers a Problem.

Right now they're concerned with providing space for workmen. A committee made up of Irene Dorsey Stanley, William La Vasseur, Ray Wall, O. L. Addleman, and Louis Cassingham has found that Wilmington and surrounding territory within a radius of four miles can accommodate 1,100 newcomers, and that is without counting quarters for cots.

All of their survey is accompanied by rules and regulations. When the first settlers came to Wilmington from Scotland, from New England, and from Herkimer county, in New York state, they weren't troubled by the sanitary accommodations, or lack of them. But times have changed.

When a little town gets an overnight attack of growing pains it finds it has to conform to government health laws. Wilmingtonians are getting suggestions such as the following: A minimum of 36 inches should be the space between any point on adjoining beds; bed positions should alternate so that the head of one is adjacent to the foot of the next; there must be a minimum of one toilet to each 10 inhabitants; one shower for each 25; a washstand for each five. Commodes are ruled out.

Must Have Paper Cups.

Landlords must supply paper cups with proper containers. Ventilation, heating, and vaccination are dictated by rule. And the landlord must see that tenants' floors are scrubbed with soap and water every second day, and that the bedding is kept clean. The strictest rules apply, of course, to quarters where workers will live dormitory fashion. Rooming house keepers will get $2.50 a week per cot. Some of the hardier old residents think the workmen's accommodations are a little on the fancy side.

Meanwhile, Wilmington itself is getting a manicure. Business men along Water street are painting up and installing sidewalk level entrances. If Wilmington is going to grow, it may as well do so in earnest, its residents think, so they've appointed a committee to look into the possibility of getting more manufacturing plants to locate there. Members of that group are W. H. Whitmore Jr., Thomas Wesoloski, and Louis Max.

Almost daily out of town realtors drive up and down Wilmington's shaded streets and over onto its wooded island to look over the prospects of subdivision. The residents watch each suggestion warily. "We don't want to find ourselves in a ghost town later on," they say. "We want new homes built well; built to stay." A committee is working over the zoning plan. Those men are L. A. Bitterman, Charles Martin, and Robert Carter.

Others Are Busy.

Other committees and their members are: Survey of homes and lots, O. L. Osburn, Fred Smednecht, and

The O'Tooles! They Came Up with Chicago

Miss Blanche Beasant, branch librarian of the Davis Square branch of the Chicago public library and a student of the back of the yards area, was asked to name a typical family of the early days of that neighborhood. Her answer was "the O'Tooles." This is the first of two articles on the family.

BY GLADYS PRIDDY.

The United States, land born in love of freedom and consecration to liberty, ever has been a land of firsts. Its children learn names of those explorers first to find the Mississippi, first to push west of the great river, first to penetrate the deep forests of Oregon. The present of America is still close to the beginning; every community has records of its first settlers—and in newer sections some of the first settlers themselves!

Stories of these first settlers and their families are histories of the communities they helped to build. So it is that the story of the family of Patrick O'Toole, Irish immigrant who arrived in Chicago on Lincoln's first inauguration day, March 4, 1861, is representative of a section of O'Toole's adopted city.

Founded Line of O'Toole.

As head of one of the first 13 families to settle "back o' the yards," Patrick O'Toole founded a line that was to grow with the city, to be representative of the movement of the Irish into the yards area and then gradually farther and farther south. His son, "Jimmy" O'Toole, former judge of the municipal court and now assistant city corporation counsel, resides in Beverly Hills, 9406 Pleasant avenue. "Jimmy O'Toole's children have followed the Irish farther south, too, and their children with them.

The O'Tooles are a typical family of Chicago's southwest side, Irish and possessing a flair for politics as exemplified by the second generation, the "Hon. Jimmy" as he was known in the state legislature. As a typical family, the story of the O'Tooles is told.

Perhaps it was the rollicking tales of far countries told by the officers and men in the barracks near young Patrick O'Toole's home in old Ireland. Perhaps it was the hungry feeling he may have known after a crop failure. Or it may have been the letters other young Irishmen wrote home from America.

Joined Immigrant Army.

Anyhow, young Patrick O'Toole and his brother John joined the army of Irish who "came out" to the new land in the last century. They landed in New York in the late '50s, and John became a shop worker there.

Patrick's son knows little of his father's career in New York state. He does know that his father married Bridget Coughlin of Dublin either shortly before coming to America or shortly after arriving. He thinks the marriage must have taken place here, for, he says, "I don't believe my father ever was in Dublin."

The parents were living in Greenbush, N. Y., when "Jimmy" was born on Oct. 23, 1860, and they brot the infant and his sister, Eleanor, to Chicago in 1861. The mother died when the third child, Mary, was born in 1863.

Eleanor is now Mrs. Eleanor Garrett of 9747 Hamilton avenue, and her sister is Mrs. Mary Collins of 8026 Sangamon street.

Saw a Young Chicago.

Patrick O'Toole, in his '20s, saw the young Chicago, the city of wooden buildings that were to become ashes a decade hence. He saw a city of mud and hope. He saw a city with jobs—hard ones, it's true—for black-haired, blue eyed young Irishmen.

He saw adventure and opportunity. And he followed other Irishmen before him into the Rock Island shops, then at 47th street and Wentworth avenue. He became a blacksmith's helper. He was there a short while when once more he followed the Irish and took his place as a laborer in the packing houses along the Chicago river in the vicinity of 22d street.

His son says, "I remember him first as a foreman," so young Mr. O'Toole of King's county, Ireland, must have been a good worker. In 1865 he found a mother for his family, Katie O'Brien from Tipperary. They had a son, now dead.

Lived on West Side.

The O'Tooles first lived on Chicago's old west side. They moved into a house on Barber street. They lived, too, in the vicinity of 22d and Lumber streets, 22d and Johnson streets, and 22d and Halsted streets. On Nov. 1, 1872, they moved to Packers and Exchange avenues into "New Patch," an area where the Hutchinson Packing company had erected seven houses for its foremen.

The O'Tooles occupied one of those houses. The Armour plant had moved to the present stockyard area in 1870, along with other packing plants, and the trek to back o' the yards began. There were two other "patches" in those early days—Armour's patch and Stone avenue patch.

A one room school at 43d and Wood streets took care of the education of the neighborhood youngsters. Attendance ran as high as 35 on good days; the all time low occurred one winter's day when the teacher, "Jimmy" O'Toole and two other boys were the only ones there.

Visited Prison Camp.

Patrick O'Toole's family began the serious business of growing up back o' the yards. His son was already storing up precious memories. He could recall trips to Camp Douglas to see rebel prisoners. He remem-

Peddler, Zone Problems Face Ridge Council

Ways and means of enforcing peddler and zoning ordinances, are on the current business list of the Ridge Civic council, an organization which has served the Morgan Park, Beverly, and Brainard communities for more than 30 years. The council is made up of representatives of civic and service clubs in these communities.

For its latest project, George G. Lorentz, council police and fire chairman and assistant principal of Morgan Park High school, has arranged the program for the next meeting a week from tomorrow evening in Ridge park fieldhouse. Lorentz will present Capt. James Kerr of the 13th police district and Capt. James P. Fleming of the 14th district and representatives of the park district and forest preserves as speakers.

The council's next meeting also will take up the sex crime problem in the Ridge community.

Zoning Case Pending.

William R. Gunner heads the zoning committee which functions to prosecute infractions of the zoning rules, such as the installation of apartments in areas set aside for residences only. The case of the building at 10757 South Hale avenue in which there are two apartments, contrary to regulations, is now pending on an appeal to the Superior court.

Mrs. Ben E. Buttle is chairman of the conservation committee in charge of a fund of $200 to provide plaques identifying donors of boulders to be placed along a memorial highway on Western avenue between 111th and 91st streets. There have been 250 elm trees, donated by the county and state, planted along the route. Labor costs were paid by the council and by women's clubs.

Five Year Sewer Project.

A sewer project, now under construction, is considered one of the outstanding accomplishments of the council. This, too, began in 1930 when T. C. Phillips and O. E. Northrup mapped plans of the local improvement board before a government engineer. The plans set out a system of sewer relief south of 87th street and east of Western avenue. The project was taken over by the PWA, and the work has progressed, based upon the original plan, northward from 131st and Laflin streets to 123d, including laterals leading from the main sewer. At the present rate of progress, the work will be completed in five years at a cost of $10,000,000.

Early this spring, the council embarked upon a railroad right-of-way improvement program by suggesting to Rock Island road trustees that the crossings were in poor condition. The road agreed to finance necessary repairs and replacements, and the crossings at 95th, 99th, 103d, 104th, and 105th streets are now completed. The minimum cost per crossing was $2,000. Now the council will turn its attention to beautifying the parkways along the tracks.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

A SPECIAL celebration has been planned for today and Wednesday in recognition of the Rev. Wilford H. Taylor, who has led the Homewood Presbyterian church to 10 years of progress. The Rev. Dr. Paul Johnson of the Presbyterian extension board will speak at the 11 o'clock services today and there will be a recognition ceremony under the direction of Mrs. William C. Glass. An informal reception will be held for the minister and his family on Wednesday evening under the direction of a committee representing the numerous organizations of the church.

The Rev. W. H. Taylor.

Since coming to Homewood on Oct. 30, 1930, the Rev. Mr. Taylor has effected improvements in the church property and has freed the church of its major indebtedness, having received the full coöperation of his congregation, which has increased 100 per cent in a decade. He also has served as chaplain of the Homewood American Legion, and the Rotary club's first president.

The two Mikuta boys—Jerry Jerome and Francis Jerry—will give a piano recital at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening in the Masonic Temple studio in Chicago Heights, where they live with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mikuta. Jerry is in second grade and Francis is in fifth grade at McKinley school. They have invited 100 of their friends to hear them play seven numbers on the piano.

ARTHUR W. VINER, son of Jacob Viner, 5554 Kenwood avenue, professor of economics at the University of Chicago, and Mrs. Viner, vice president of the Cook County League for Women Voters, has been elected treasurer of the American Student Defense league, Harvard chapter. A graduate of the University of Chicago High school, he is a junior at Harvard.

"Our primary concern," he has written home, "is to make America strong, and to make America strong we must work not only on terms of national defense within our geographic borders but also in terms of hemispheric coöperation. We are working now to start a system of exchanging students between this and the South American republics."

Jack Chelius, 7456 South Shore drive, is one of nine students to be pledged by the Mines Press club at the Colorado School of Mines. The club is an organization of juniors and seniors who have done outstanding work on the staffs of the student publications. Membership is elective. Chelius is a junior student of ferrous-metallurgy.

Link Defense to Recreation Session Plans

Recreation's rôle in the national defense program will be brought out at the Sixth Annual Recreation conference to be held Nov. 8 in the Hotel Sherman, by the Chicago Recreation commission.

Dr. Malcolm S. MacLean. [Cheyne Photo.]

"The basis for national preparedness rests upon maintenance of citizen morale," explained Dr. Arthur H. Todd of Northwestern university sociology department. "Recreation, defined as the healthy, wholesome use of citizens' leisure time, plays a key rôle in the morale of a nation at any time."

Thousands to Attend.

For this reason, "Recreation and Preparedness" was chosen for the theme of the conference. Dr. Malcolm S. MacLean, new president of Hampton institute, Norfolk, Va., and former director of the General college of the University of Minnesota, will be the principal speaker.

Dr. Todd is chairman of the conference and author of the annual survey on recreation in the Chicago area, published by the commission. The conference is the only one of its kind in the United States which brings together professional recreation leaders and thousands of lay men, women, and youths from the communities in an all day program centered upon recreation as a constructive social force.

Recreation Aids Patriotism.

In further explanation of the conference theme, Dr. Todd said: "The qualities of citizenship which make for a nation's preparedness are the same in times of peace as in times of stress and emergency. But during an emergency, these qualities must meet a special challenge—the challenge of heightened discipline and danger. Recreation fosters the positive states of mind whose sum total is patriotism.

"Recreation," he concluded, "is vital to preparedness and the thousands of citizens who will gather for the conference next month realize this fact.

"Out of the round table discussions, open forums and speeches by nationally known leaders of public opinion can come a real contribution to the welfare of our democratic nation."

SUNDAY EVENING CLUB TO HEAR TALK ON HATE

Dr. Harold Bosley, pastor of Mount Vernon Place Methodist church, Baltimore, Md., will make his first appearance before the Sunday Evening club tonight in Orchestra hall, speaking on the topic "No Weapon but Hate." Clifford W. Barnes will preside, and Horace W. Armstrong, trustee of the club, will participate in the program.

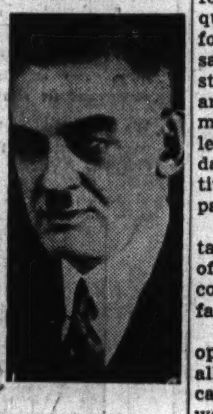
Dr. Harold Bosley.

Dr. Bosley, formerly of the University of Chicago, went to Baltimore in 1938, after five years as director of religious activities at Iowa State college. His book, "The Quest for Religious Certainty," was considered an authoritative contribution to current thought.

The Abernathy ensemble will give a choral program at the preliminary meeting, 7 o'clock and Hidson H. Pittman, assistant to Mr. Barnes, will inaugurate a new series of informal Bible talks on the theme "Religious Resource for Effective Living." The guest soloist at the 8 o'clock meeting will be Marian Carlisle.

FIRST CIVIL SERVICE EMPLOYE TO HEAD CITY WORKERS' BALL

Phillip Steele, 411 Fullerton parkway, who is chief engineer in charge of the Springfield avenue pumping station, is one of the leaders of the Municipal Employés Society of Chicago that will hold its 22d annual dance and card party Saturday night at the Palmer House.



Phillip Steele.

The society was founded more than 25 years ago for the protection of civil service and pension rights of city workers. The proceeds of the party are to go for this purpose.

President of the group is John P. Dillon of the Bureau of Streets, and vice presidents are, Howard C. Brodman, chief of the Bureau of Maps, and Jacob G. Bennema, Board of Education engineer custodian. Steele is a member of the executive board, and was the first employé of the city to be placed under civil service.

Purple Heart, Military Order, to Meet Tuesday

The regular meeting of Ray Workman chapter No. 50, Military Order of the Purple Heart, will be held Tuesday evening at the Hotel Sherman. Officers for the year will be elected and installed, and a plaque will be presented to one of the members for faithful service.

Demands State Renew Inquiry on Fat Pay Rolls

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Representative David I. Swanson, a member of two economy committees whose investigations were cut short by the Democratic power in the Illinois legislature, declared last week that he would move to revive the inquiry into pay roll padding and other waste in the session starting in January.

David I. Swanson.

Swanson and Calvin T. Weeks are Republican nominees for the house of representatives in the 11th district, which includes the 16th and 18th wards and parts of wards 3, 13, 15, 17, and 19. Democratic nominees are Representatives Michael E. Hannigan and George A. Fitzgerald. The three top vote getters win the house jobs paying $5,000 for a two year term.

As one of the leaders in the economy probes, Swanson takes special interest in getting at the bottom of the many charges of gross inefficiency and waste. In 1939 and again this year investigating committees were set up, only to be shelved about the time witnesses were called in to testify.

Combine Turns Trick.

In both instances, the trick was turned by Democrats and a handful of nominal Republicans bought with Democratic patronage.

"The investigation ought to be revived," Swanson said. "And this time it must be pushed thru to a conclusion.

Taxpayers want to know about these charges and they have a right to know. Every one of us pitches sales tax pennies on counters every day and it mounts up to $90,818,000 for a single year. This is three times as much as was received from the state real estate tax.

"Only by cutting out padded pay rolls and wasteful purchases can we take the sales tax off of food or reduce it in some other way. State spending has increased 900 per cent since Gov. Frank O. Lowden's administration. And relief and old age assistance don't account for this increase."

Outlines a Program.

Republicans on the investigating committee should have the following program in mind, Swanson said:

1. Cut all state expenses 10 per cent [average].
2. End the 2 per cent political assessment on the state's $40,000,000 a year pay rolls.
3. Break up an undercover alliance diverting road money to personal and political purposes in the state's $50,000,000 a year highway industry.
4. Halt campaign fund shakedowns of persons and companies doing business with the state.
5. Stop pay race padding done to divert tax fixing and the state's purposes.
6. Seek grand jury investigation of sales tax fixing and the state's purchases of liquor revenue stamps at 10 times the price paid in nearby states.
7. Create a standing committee to serve as a permanent legislative check on state expenditures.

Blocked by Democrats.

"The Democrats wouldn't give us a chance to prove or disprove such charges as that there are thousands of state authomobiles, purchased without legislative authority," Swanson said. "They didn't let us look into the report that hundreds of the cars are used for joy riding.

"When the committees asked department heads for pay roll lists we were told it would require six months' time of a dozen men to prepare them. We were refused permission to hire even one independent investigator. How long will the taxpayers stand for it?"

Swanson said this is the first state administration which ever maintained an official patronage office at direct expense to the taxpayers—not charged to a political organization.

Fought Greater Spending.

Weeks, Swanson's teammate, served three terms in the house. During his service he fought every appropriation increase and every tax increase except for bills affecting the public schools.

He introduced a bill under which two-thirds of the vast sales tax revenue, instead of one-third, would be placed in the relief fund according to state law.

Weeks' platform includes these planks: Cut state spending thru general funds by at least 20 per cent; reduce taxes accordingly; require annual audits of state and local governments by certified public accountants, pass a law giving the people of Chicago the right to vote on whether they want the city manager plan.

"Defeat of the city manager enabling legislation in the last three sessions shows that the Democrats don't want to let the people decide home rule questions," Weeks said.

Campaign Every Night.

The Democrats now are campaigning every night in the week. Representative George A. Fitzgerald is talking mainly about old age assistance and state grants-in-aid to public schools.

"Old age assistance in Illinois has amounted to $110,000,000 since 1936. and now reaches 140,000 aged persons," he said. "This fact and the recent increase of maximum payments to $40 for those who really need it show that the Democrats are doing most for the aged. Performance counts.

SPEED UP RACE FOR CONGRESS IN FOUR DISTRICTS

Moynihan Campaign Given New Aid.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Congressional candidates in four of the districts that embrace southern and southwestern Chicagoland mustered forces last week for a stretch drive the like of which has not been seen for several years.

All four of the districts—the 1st, 2d, 3d, and 6th—are now represented by Democrats, but the Republican nominees and their supporters are confident of victory on Nov. 5. Neutral observers agree that G. O. P. victories in these districts are possible.

One of the chief developments of the week was the expansion of the 2d district campaign in behalf of former Congressman Patrick H. Moynihan, favored in some quarters to unseat Congressman Raymond S. McKeough.

Aid for Moynihan.

The Moynihan forces were joined by those of Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th] and Thomas A. Thornton, two of the former congressman's rivals in the primary last April. Thornton was supported in the primary by advocates of the Townsend plan.

Edward J. Finan, another former rival of Moynihan, joined forces with him two weeks ago.

Moynihan, in his appearances at various political and neighborhood meetings, pledged upon his return to congress to fight for completion of the last remaining link in the lakes to gulf waterway. Widening and deepening of the channel from the Ford plant on the Calumet river westward to Western avenue is necessary before the terminal facilities in Lake Calumet can be developed fully, Moynihan declared.

He said that immediate completion of the waterway project is a vital defense measure.

Fought for Waterway.

"When I was in congress I fought for and gained action on waterway development," Moynihan said. "Our present congressman has not seen fit to carry on this work.

"Recently both houses of congress voted in favor of completion of the final waterway link, but the President vetoed the measure. Our present congressman voted against passing it over the veto, thereby helping to deny his own district the benefits in the way of employment and business stimulation the project would bring."

Attack Kelly Record.

In the 3d district the lively fight over Congressman Edward A. Kelly's congressional attendance record continued with animation. The G. O. P. nominee, Waldemar J. Roehler, touched off the fireworks by declaring that Kelly had given the district only a 47 per cent representation thus far in the present session of congress. Kelly denied this hotly, declaring he voted on every important measure that was before the lower house, with the exception of those which came up for action while he was seriously ill last summer.

Roehler cited figures last week that indicate Congressman Kelly was recorded as absent for 162 of the 394 roll calls taken in the 76th congress thru Oct. 10.

Congressman Kelly claimed that he has been instrumental in bringing almost 67 million dollars in federal improvements to his district.

Asks Support for G. O. P.

In the predominantly colored 1st district, former Senator William E. King, colored G. O. P. challenger of Congressman Arthur W. Mitchell, appealed to his people last week to support the entire Republican ticket in the coming election.

Wendell L. Willkie should be elected President, King said, because he stands for defense preparation divorced from politics, recognition of the rights of minority groups, and a sane attitude in general toward government.

Dwight H. Green deserves election as governor for his successful fight against vice and corruption as United States district attorney, King told his followers. Wayland Brooks is a logical choice for United States senator so that he may fight subversive institutions and influences, King declared, and stated George F. Barrett, if chosen Illinois attorney general, can be counted on to break the hold of the Kelly-Nash machine.

Volunteer Army Grows.

In the 6th district the groups supporting the candidacy of Joseph Wagner, Berwyn dairy man and Republican nominee, reported large increases in the number of volunteer workers, which, they said, presaged a G. O. P. victory next month.

Their campaign has stirred the Democratic incumbent, Congressman Anton F. [Whitey] Maciejewski of Cicero, into earlier campaign activity than usual.

The Illinois League of Women Voters made public the voting records of the various incumbents in the present session of congress. The league's compilation shows that Mitchell, McKeough, and Maciejewski voted against the Hatch measure to prohibit pernicious political activity on the part of federal office holders, while Kelly was paired against it. On the Fish amendment, which would have delayed the draft for 60 days, Mitchell, McKeough, and Maciejewski voted no.

A CALL FOR STREET REPAIRS.

It is hoped that this will be read by all politicians of the 13th ward before election time. My subject is the deplorable condition of streets thruout the ward. The street most frequently mentioned is 72d street west of Damon avenue, which has been in bad condition for three years.

I suggest that repairing such streets would be the best way for office seekers to show their gratitude for friendships. And at present we have WPA to participate in such work.

Having a precinct polling place on this street does not make an impressive appearance to voters. UPRIGHT CITIZEN.

STUDENTS AID IRON LUNG FUND.

Youth is often represented as demanding, seldom giving. As a statement to the contrary, I offer the item that Calumet High school students recently collected $200 and donated the entire amount to the Auburn Park Lions club for the iron lung fund. B. R.

N.Y.A. TO OPEN JOB EXPERIENCE CENTER IN CITY

Hold Shop Dedication Tomorrow.

Representatives of industry and business on the southwest side will be among the guests at tomorrow's formal opening of the National Youth administration work experience center, the first of its kind in the country, 153 West Huron street. Ceremonies will take place at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

Speakers will include Aubrey Williams, national administrator who is coming from Washington, D. C., to take part in the exercises; Mayor Kelly; Judge William J. Campbell of the United States District court; Bishop Bernard J. Sheil; C. W. Sanford, principal of University High school, University of Illinois, and chairmen of the school work council of the NYA, and Mary Stuart Anderson, state youth administrator.

Part of Defense Plan.

An inspection tour will follow the formal program. The center is a six story factory building with 60,000 square feet of floor space. The 10 different shops are equipped with hundreds of production machines and precision tools and young people will work under skilled supervisors. They will have the opportunity to get experience in sheet metal work, welding, machinery, foundry, forge, woodworking, power sewing, cooking, radio production, drafting, and designing. The NYA serves youth of 18 to 24 years of age.

The center will be a part of the national defense program in that it will provide work experience for industrial jobs. It is estimated that 3,000 Chicago boys and girls will gain industrial experience monthly. The center is under the jurisdiction of the Chicago area of the NYA.

Leaders to Attend.

Among southwest leaders who have been invited to attend the opening tomorrow are Fred C. Rathje and Jay W. Bissell, president and secretary of the Englewood Business Men's association; J. V. Finn and Albert E. Vicek, president and secretary of the Town of Lake Chamber of Commerce; O. S. Hansen and J. R. Raymond, president and secretary of the Ashland Avenue Business Men's association; Arthur A. Baer and Harry A. Seger, president and secretary of the Beverly Commercial association; William C. Groebe and Robert J. Hill, president and secretary of the Beverly Hills Southtown association, and B. F. Cauble and John C. Friesse, president and secretary of the Brainard Business association.

Others and the organizations they represent are Walter J. Wolf and Dewey Prettyman, Brighton Park Chamber of Commerce; William R. Wooter and Isaac C. Goldstine, Clearing Business Men's association, and Frank H. Rimkis and Bruno L. Rimkis.

THE O'TOOLES! THEY CAME UP WITH CHICAGO

Story of One Typical Irish Family.

bered running "all the way downtown" after the Chicago fire and falling into a bin of buttons in the Field and Leiter store.

He made a little money on the trip, too. He sold charred pieces of wood to fashionable folks driving thru the fire scorched streets. These souvenirs of the fire brought young Jimmy a quarter apiece. And Patrick O'Toole's son had begun his education the hard way.

He recalls, "The first money I ever found was a two cent piece. Another boy told me it was no good. I threw it away. Then he picked it up and put it in his pocket. If he's still alive, he owns a fine string of flat buildings over east near the shore. Well, I had a string of youngsters!"

Goes Into Packing Plant.

At 13, Patrick O'Toole's son followed the elder O'Toole into the packing plant. The lad worked at all kinds of manual labor; served as water boy on the new buildings for wages of 50 cents a day, and became, finally, head shipping clerk of one plant.

Jimmy O'Toole, who was to begin the study of law at night school at the age of 32, was 16 when he tried night school the first time. He began with a class of 25 boys, all of whom were engaged in the hardest kind of manual labor in the yards. Attendance dwindled. At the end of five weeks the teacher and Jimmy O'Toole were left to themselves. O'Toole collected from the other boys at the next pay day and settled with the teacher. That was the end of night school for a while.

The death of Patrick O'Toole left his son, then 18, at the head of the family. Jimmy wasn't panic stricken. He was the boy who had risen at dawn a few years before and put on his yoke and pails, his outfit for hauling 12 pails of water from the well in the yards. He'd had to do the family shopping for years. The O'Tooles had moved frequently since settling back o' the yards, but they'd kept within the neighborhood.

Came a Turning Point.

A turning point in the life of Jimmy O'Toole and, perhaps the fortunes of the family, came with his first layoff after his father's death. The other lads his age took the weeks of idleness as a matter of course. Jimmy had a family to support and he recalled a man who had a warehouse downtown and had often visited the yards. He wrote a letter of application, and he says that the effort "took me out of a rut."

An answer came, and O'Toole went to work in a warehouse cellar at Kinzie and Dearborn streets for $12 a week. Transportation was so poor that he walked nearly half the way. His pay increased until it reached $21 a week, and Jimmy married Catherine Kelly on Feb. 6, 1884. He moved to 36th street and Emerald avenue, paid $11 a month rent and still has the receipt for the first month.

But his company reorganized and his job was eliminated. Jimmy O'Toole came back to the yards, beginning as a tally clerk for $50 a month. This was his first "white collar" job, he says, and he calls it his second milestone. His political activities began at this point, too.

Why They're Democrats.

At the beginning, O'Toole was interested merely in community affairs. He hadn't become affiliated with major party activities, but he explains that all Irish were Democrats, originally as a matter of course.

"They came over here after the rebellion," he says, "and after years and years of hating the government. When they landed on Broadway they asked who was running the government. They were told that the Republicans were. 'That settles it,' they said, 'we're ag'in the government. We're Democrats.'"

O'Toole went into township politics in the spring of 1885 for recreation, he says. In those days there were two tickets, the one backed by the packers and stockyards company, and the opposition, or peoples' ticket.

"By instinct and tradition, I was with the opposition," explains O'Toole. He asked for a day off to vote and he was told that if he thought more of his vote than his job he'd better go vote! He was 25, had a wife and one child and a wage of $15 a week, but he voted and sent in his resignation. His resignation was refused; the opposition ticket won and O'Toole received a raise of $25 a month with time off to run for school director.

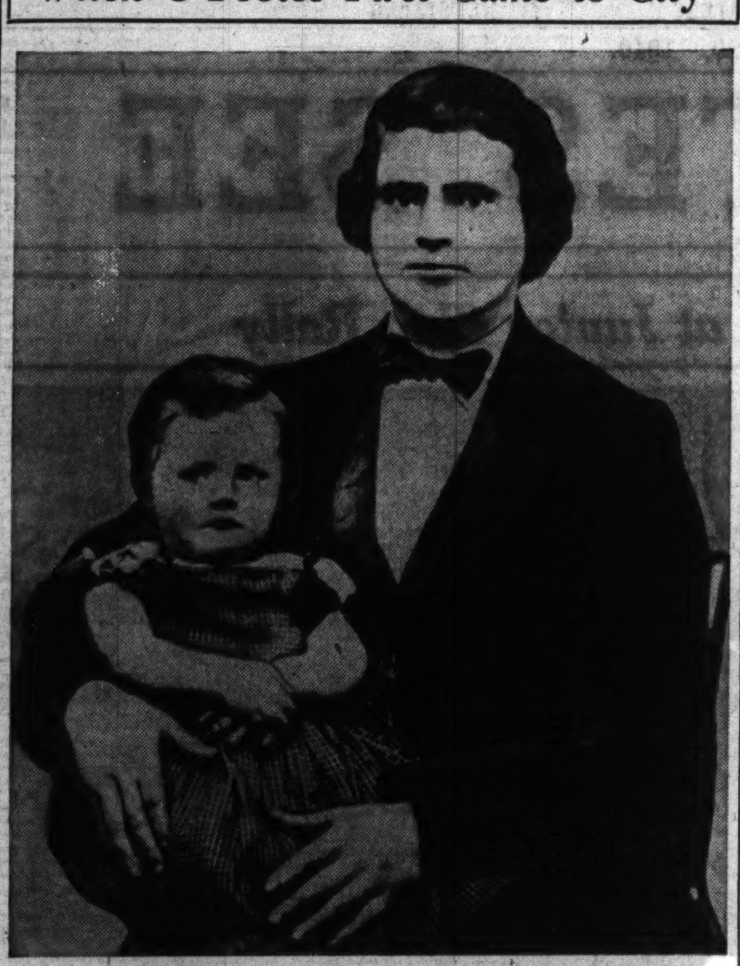
Wins School Election.

He was head shipping clerk when he left his company three years later. He won the school election that year in district No. 6, where he had been a pupil, and his political career had begun, as he says, "on the wrong foot." He was a candidate on the reform ticket, "because," he explains, "I had a good reputation in the district and, due to the fact that I have lived in the territory ever since, I'm afraid I have been unable to live up to the reputation."

But his political career had begun, and by the fall of 1888 he was a minority member of the general assembly. At the beginning of the legislature's session in 1889, O'Toole was 28 and he still lived back o' the yards, 47th and Paulina streets.

He had two children, Henry, born Dec. 26, 1885, and James, born Sept. 24, 1893. There were to be three more: Sylvester on April 13, 1896, Florence on July 22, 1899, and John on Nov. 1, 1902. And the O'Tooles were almost ready to make the first move in their shift away from the yards. In 1892 they went south to 55th and May streets.

When O'Tooles First Came to City



The O'Toole family were newcomers to Chicago when they sat for daguerreotypes. Here Patrick O'Toole poses with his small son, Jimmy. Patrick was one of Chicago's many Irish immigrants who found employment in the packing houses and moved to the stockyards. Jimmy, whom he is holding here, grew up to work in the yards, to become a school trustee, a representative in the state legislature, and a Municipal court judge. He is now an assistant corporation counsel and resides at 9406 Pleasant avenue.

St. George Church Bazar to Be Held on Three Days

The annual indoor fall festival and bazar of St. George church, 3924 South Wentworth avenue, will take place this evening, and on Saturday and next Sunday evenings in the school auditorium. The Christian Mothers organization of the parish will add to the festivities by holding a card party in the school on Thursday evening.

WAR'S ALARMS UPSET LIFE IN COUNTRY TOWN

Wilmington Must House Munition Workers.

Lester Stahl; sanitary conditions, Dr. L. J. Erlandson and Dr. C. R. Willson; fire protection, Denny Fitzpatrick, Glenn Kurth, Mose Matone, and Arthur Singleton; recreation, Leo Le Marr, Frank Riley, Tony Bergera, and L. A. Schwenker.

Lester J. Stevens, school superintendent, and the board of education members are wondering what to do about an increased school population. They think the situation will boil down to help from the government. There is a new grade and high school building combined. It was completed in 1936 as a $95,000 PWA project. Outstanding bonds total $46,000 now, and the debt is still too large and too new to incur other indebtedness.

Frank Jones, Joliet, Wilmington school board attorney, is inquiring at Washington to see if there will be assistance for the Wilmington school.

Grandsons of Pioneers.

As Wilmington prepares for new residents, it mourns the passing of a century old order. Many of the farmers who must sell their land for the plant are the grandsons and great-grandsons of the pioneers who settled the settlement. The names of Bell, Morey, Buss, Hayden, Morgan, Younker, and Ward are old names in the Wilmington farming area.

Some families have prospered on the good land that their ancestors claimed. They wonder why the government couldn't have chosen the poor stripped acres in the open coal mines south of Wilmington. They've been told that much of a TNT plant must be built underground, and only good land bedded on good rock is safe for below surface construction.

Farmers are shopping for other farms. Their neighbors out of the munitions plant zone have boosted prices, so the farmers are going far afield. Some have bought land in Livingston, Ford, and Iroquois counties. Landowners, of course, are not so worried as tenants. The owners will have settlements with which to buy new land; the tenants must try to rent and probably will have the expense of moving a considerable distance. There are good-bys to be said, stock to be driven from the fields and barns, old homes to leave.

First Named Winchester.

So Wilmington prepares for another chapter in its life story. It all began when Thomas Cox laid out the town and named it Winchester, but there was another town of that name down near Jacksonville, so the place became Wilmington. Arriving at almost the same time Cox did was Peter Stewart, a Scotchman who had helped build the Erie canal and came to Illinois to prospect for the Illinois and Michigan canal.

He became inspector of stone masonry for the project, settled permanently in Wilmington; became a pillar of the Presbyterian church, which he helped build, "president" of the underground railway in the vicinity, and his name still survives in the local hotel, the Stewart House.

Other Scotch folk followed Stewart. Settlers built mills in the town, and Wilmington was the center where farmers stayed several days getting their grain ground. A dam made it possible to navigate the Kankakee to the I. & M. canal, and Wilmington became a shipping center. A towpath and locks were built.

Waterfront Life Short.

But its life as a waterfront was short. The towpath is better known as a place for Sunday afternoon strolling than for shipping. The towpath bridge was the diving board for at least three generations of Wilmington's masculine population. But that was spoiled when automobiles brought picnic parties to the towpath end of the island and the boys had to put on bathing suits.

Perhaps Wilmington's growing pains first began when route 66, now alternate 66, went thru and the steady roar of traffic denied it the full tranquility of being a little town. Then a new company bought the paper mill and made it a modern plant. And now Wilmington is to step into the frame that surrounds the typical young American city of today. It is to be flanked by subdivisions and blocked off into zones.

Chicago, Illinois

Dear Mr. McMahon:

Seven years ago, we opened our first store near Broadway on Devon featuring scientific footwear for children.

To reach a reader audience appreciative of the specialized fitting service of top quality footwear for children, we chose the Tribune. The results were very satisfactory.

You can best judge the success of this advertising by the fact that in 1935 we opened a second store in Winnetka, and in 1938, a third store on the South Side of Chicago.

In each case, we simply expanded our use of Sunday Tribune Metropolitan section advertising which is still paying out for our original store. It is an advertising plan, you may be sure, that we intend to follow in the future.

Sincerely yours,
J R DeWitt

Shoe Retailer Tells How Advertising in the Sunday Tribune Metropolitan Sections Helped Him Open Two New Stores

In the above letter, a neighborhood shoe retailer tells how one store grew into three as a result of advertising in the Sunday Tribune Metropolitan sections.

No matter how large or small your store—regardless of what you sell, or to whom you sell—you can benefit by the economical, tested plan which the Tribune has developed especially for the neighborhood merchant.

DRAMA, BOOKS ADDED TO CLUB STUDY CLASSES

Englewood Women Map a Busy Season.

Mrs. William Johnson.
[Marshall Photo.]

The Englewood Woman's club is beginning its 45th year of activity. Mrs. William Johnson, president, and the group of officers and chairmen have planned a busy season with special study programs for each department. They have added two new study classes, drama, with Mrs. J. M. Valkenburgh as chairman and book review with Mrs. William F. Wigner, chairman.

The creative writing class will be continued. Mrs. A. J. Fisher is chairman of it, and Miss Mildred I. Reid is instructor. Miss Lily Houts will go on as instructor of the American citizenship group.

Third District.

Mrs. E. D. Chapman, Homewood, who is serving her first year as 3d district chairman of the Park Ridge School for Girls, has announced a tour of the school for Nov. 5. The school is a project of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs. The tour is open to all members of the district.

A new contest, for district women only, is being sponsored by Mrs. E. W. Leggott, district chairman of art. It will be a poster contest, and five entries from each club will be admitted.

Beverly Hills Women.

The annual men's night will take place at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening in Ridge park fieldhouse. A musical revue, "It's a Small World," will be the entertainment. Executive board members will receive guests at a supper in the library following the show. Mrs. T. S. Miller, 9200 South Damen avenue, and her committee will preside at the supper tables.

Brainerd Woman's Club.

Brainerd club members are planning men's night on Friday evening. Mrs. Edward Walter, president, and all past presidents, will welcome members and their husbands and friends at 8:15 o'clock in Ridge park fieldhouse.

Chicago Lawn Woman's Club.

"Every Club a Training in Citizenship" is the theme of the American citizenship department's study program. Mrs. W. R. Ludwig, 5956 South Washtenaw avenue, chairman, will entertain her department members at luncheon Wednesday, and they will plan the year's work.

Besides study of the privileges of American citizenship, members are to discuss sponsoring a handicraft class to keep boys off the street. Mrs. K. E. Cain, Mrs. William M. Collins, Mrs. Leo Kranz, Mrs. H. T. Simpson, and Mrs. I. S. Turley will assist Mrs. Ludwig. A. C. Stevesson, club president, will be special guest.

Clearing Woman's Club.

A consumers' education program will be presented at 1 o'clock a week from tomorrow afternoon at the American Legion home, 5649 West 63d street. All women in the community are invited. There will be no admission charge. Mrs. Grayson Barley, chairman of the American home department, is in charge. Her assistants will be Mrs. William Mercer, Mrs. James Hughes, Mrs. W. D. Gilmour, Mrs. Paul Arterburn, Mrs. George Holme, Mrs. F. M. West, Mrs. Willard Walvoord, Mrs. R. C. Taylor, and Mrs. Charles Febel.

Englewood Intermediate Club.

Jerome S. Wald will be speaker at the meeting at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Englewood Masonic temple. He will appear under the auspices of the American Bar association, and his subject will be "Uncle Sam's Scotland Yard."

A men's night program will take place at 8:30 o'clock Friday evening in the Morrison hotel roof bungalow. The men, who have been previously entertained by a play or program arranged by the members, will reverse the order and give the program themselves. Men on the entertainment committee are Ernest Van Duser, Russell Peppet, Irving Fox, Edwin McWilliams, Tom Carley, Armin Heidbreder, and Charles Treat.

Hamilton Park Women.

A regular session will be called to order at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning in Hamilton park fieldhouse. Mrs. Wesley Mitchell, chairman of the American citizenship committee, will introduce Mrs. Herbert Bebb, former president of the Southwest League of Women Voters.

Mrs. W. L. Long, ways and means chairman, and her co-chairman, Mrs. T. R. Helmer, are planning a luncheon and card party at 12:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon in the Log Cabin at 2300 West 95th street.

Fernwood Woman's Club.

On opening meeting will be held at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon in Fernwood park fieldhouse. Following the business meeting, Mrs. Guy H. Moses, chairman of the American citizenship committee, will introduce Marion E. Gridley, author, who will speak on "Indian Legends of American Scenes." Miss Gridley has studied Indian customs, and she has published three books about Indian life and habits.

Morgan Park Woman's Club.

Literature and the press will be topics of the day at the next regular club meeting at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning in the Morgan Park Methodist church, 110th street and Longwood drive.

Haldore Hanson, writer, lecturer, and former war correspondent, will discuss "Popaganda and the News" at the afternoon session. Mrs. Harold F. Wood, program chairman, and Mrs. George T. Dutton, press chairman, have collaborated in arranging this part of the program. Special guests tomorrow will include Mrs. F. Z. Gifford of the "Illinois Clubwoman;" Mrs. B. I. Meyer of "The Clubwoman" of the General Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. R. E. Pfeifer, 3d district press chairman, and Mrs. George A. Harriman, state press chairman.

Brighton Park Woman's Club.

Members of the Brighton Park Woman's club, fourth district, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, will meet at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in McKinley park fieldhouse, 39th street and Western avenue.

In Pageant of Auto Show

Twenty suburban and community beauty queens will appear in the pageant "Nonstop America," which will be a feature of the 41st annual Chicago Automobile show opening Saturday at the International Amphitheater. These five girls will represent Chicago's southwest side and southwest suburbs. They are, left to right: Jean La Mar, 8218 South Laflin street, as Miss Southtown; Elvira Weir, 12733 South Western avenue, as Miss Blue Island; Helen Tresnak, 3534 South Marshfield avenue, Miss Brighton Park; Vivian Blomquist, 15002 South Morgan street, Miss Harvey, and Elaine Zirzow, 41 West Main street, Chicago Heights, as Miss Chicago Heights. A W-G-N SCOOP! PREMIERE OF NEW DE MILLE MOVIE

Stars Madeleine Carroll, Gary Cooper on Air.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Next Thursday W-G-N will present a notable radio scoop—the radio première of Cecil B. DeMille's new $2,000,000 technicolor Paramount production, "North West Mounted Police." Chicago will have its first real motion picture première that evening when the lavish production is presented at the Chicago theater with all the stars and Mr. DeMille participating.

Cecil B. DeMille.

All the stars, headed by Gary Cooper, Madeleine Carroll and Paulette Goddard, will be presented on the W-G-N première of the picture, which will be presented on In Chicago Tonight from 7:30 to 8 p. m., station, will direct the air première. at the theater. Mr. DeMille will be master of ceremonies.

William A. Bacher, production chief of W-G-N, who last week obtained the exclusive broadcasting rights for the station, will direct the air première His writing and production staff is now busy on the radio adaptation.

De Mille to Introduce Stars.

Other stars who will appear on the W-G-N show will be Preston Foster, Lynne Overman and Robert Preston. Additional Hollywood notables are expected to be on hand for the broadcast.

Mr. De Mille will introduce the stars who will present specially adapted scenes from the all color production which depicts Gary Cooper as a Texas Ranger who journeys to Canada in search of an outlaw. Hollywood previewers have pronounced "North West Mounted Police" as the greatest among De Mille's impressive list of motion picture productions.

Immediately following the broadcast the stars will join in a parade thru bedecked loop streets and then go to the Chicago theater for the première showing of the picture. [The picture will open the same evening in a selected list of other theaters in Chicago.]

Second Broadcast Planned.

Batteries of kleig lights, clicking newsreel cameras and flaring flashbulbs will add color to the loop première. The State Street council, loop business men's organization, headed by David Mayer Jr. is coöperating with W-G-N, Balaban and Katz, and Paramount pictures in this gala première.

W-G-N is planning a second broadcast from the scene of the premiere in the loop, employing the W-G-N short wave unit from 8:30 to 9 p. m., provided the time is available.

This gala broadcast will be the third "movie night" presentation on W-G-N in as many weeks. Last week scenes from "Dreaming Out Loud," the new Lum and Abner picture, with Frances Langford, were broadcast. One week earlier W-G-N-Mutual aired highlights of the première of Knute Rockne—All American" from South Bend, Ind. All three presentations are realizations of W-G-N's constant objective—of presenting the newest and the best in entertainment first!

Ted Malone to Broadcast from Home of Parkman

The home of Francis Parkman in Independence, Mo., will be visited by Ted Malone during his tour around the country for his American Pilgrimage broadcasts at 1 p. m. today over WENR.

WENDELL L. WILLKIE TO SPEAK ON HUMAN NEEDS AT 1 P.M. TODAY

Wendell L. Willkie, Republican Presidential nominee, will be heard over W-G-N and the Mutual network at 1 p. m. today when he speaks in behalf of the "Community Mobilization for Human Needs."

Mr. Willkie will be introduced by Charles Francis Adams, national chairman of the charity organization. The half-hour program will also feature a show by members of the Screen Actors' guild and Felix Mills' orchestra. During the guild's program Hedda Hopper will interview Donald Duck. The program will originate from Boston, Hollywood, and some point in Wisconsin.

The broadcast will also be heard over WBBM and WENR.

Star in W-G-N Movie Premiere

Madeleine Carroll (left), Gary Cooper, and Paulette Goddard, three stars of the new Cecil B. De Mille $2,000,000 Paramount production "Northwest Mounted Police," who will come to Chicago for the radio premiere of the picture on W-G-N-Mutual and its theater premiere at the Chicago theater next Thursday evening. The radio premiere will be presented on In Chicago Tonight from 7:30 to 8 p. m. with Mr. De Mille as master of ceremonies.

FANTASTIC TALE OF CHILD GIANTS ON 'PETER QUILL'

A bizarre scheme to build an army of child giants—mentally incapable of reason, blindly loyal to their masters—will be unfolded on the Peter Quill show today. The fantastic story of half-mad Prince Hirogi and his baby giants will be heard from 3 to 3:30 p. m. over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Blair Walliser, writer and producer of the Quill series, projects possible insidious uses of glandular injections, now used by doctors to aid handicapped people, in this episode. As with other incidents on the Quill show, the story is on the borderline of reality—a possible glimpse into the future.

Back to Land, Radio Topic

"Back to the Land," a dramatization of rural vocational possibilities, will be the On Your Job presentation, at 12:30 p. m. today over the NBC Red network.

BOAKE CARTER RETURNS TO AIR NEXT WEDNESDAY

Commentator to Start W-G-N—MBS Series.

After an absence of almost two years from the networks, Boake Carter, nationally known news commentator and editorialist will return to the air next Wednesday. He will be heard from 7:30 to 7:45 p. m. on Mondays, Wednesday, and Saturday weekly over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system.

This series will be sponsored by United Airlines. This is the first time an air line has sponsored a regular program on a major network. Carter, who is a pilot, has flown more than 200,000 miles on commercial lines.

Most of his broadcasts will originate in New York but when he travels about the country on lecture assignments he will be picked up from various cities.

Carter has had a life filled with adventure. Born in Baku, Russia, where his father was in the consular service, he was educated at Cambridge university. During the war he served with the Royal Flying corps; later was a roving correspondent for the London Daily Mail. He illustrated his own stories. He is also a portrait painter.

He was a reporter in Philadelphia from 1924 to 1932 when he got into radio work. For years he was followed by a multitude of listeners because of his outspoken comments on national and world affairs.

This will be his first radio series on a national network with half the world at war.

Eddie and Fanny Plan New Series Over W-G-N

Eddie and Fanny Cavanaugh, veterans of the air who know every one in radio, will be presented on W-G-N from 3:30 to 3:45 p. m. Mondays thru Fridays, beginning tomorrow. The Cavanaughs will broadcast from their studio in the Chicago theater and will answer the questions of fans about radio celebrities.

WILKOMIRSKI'S SOLO TO FEATURE SYMPHONIC HOUR

Marion Claire Will Sing Three Songs.

Michael Wilkomirski, concertmaster of the W-G-N Symphony orchestra, will be featured on the Chicago Tribune Symphonic Hour tonight in a violin solo presentation of Ravel's "Tzigane." The concert will be broadcast from 9 to 10 p. m. over W-G-N, the coast to coast Mutual network, and the entire network of the Canadian Broadcasting corporation.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of the CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak during the broadcast. Marion Claire, noted soprano, will sing three solos and Henry Weber will lead the orchestra in selections from Von Weber, Mendelssohn, and Tschaikowsky.

After the orchestra's opening presentation of the overture to "Euryanthe," by Carl Maria von Weber, Miss Claire will sing Oscar Strauss' "Music in My Heart" as the first of her solos. The orchestra will play the scherzo in G minor for string octet, by Felix Mendelssohn, and will conclude the hour of music with the finale from Peter Tschaikowsky's Fifth Symphony.

Miss Claire and the augmented chorus will sing "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean" and "Calm As the Night," by Joseph Bohm.

The Symphonic Hour is produced by William A. Bacher.

The complete program:

Euryanthe, overture....................Weber
Orchestra.
Music in My Heart..............O. Strauss
Marion Claire and orchestra.

Speech ....
Col. Robert R. McCormick.
Calm As the Night....................Bohm
Marion Claire, chorus and orchestra.
Fifth Symphony, finale.........Tschaikowsky
Orchestra.

The musical commentary is written by Cecil Smith of The Chicago Tribune music and drama staff.

The Chicago Theater of the Air will broadcast "The Student Prince" from 9 to 10 p. m. next Saturday over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system. Three well known artists, Marion Claire, Jan Peerce, and Bruce Foote, will sing the leads in Sigmund Romberg's gay operetta.

Jan Peerce, noted radio and concert tenor, makes a triumphant return to the Theater of the Air after his appearance in "The Student Prince" in the spring series. He will again portray the part of Prince Karl Franz.

Miss Claire, W-G-N's operatic soprano, who sang opposite Peerce in the spring production as Kathie, will again be starred.

Altho a newcomer to the W-G-N operettas, baritone Bruce Foote, is known thruout the country and especially in the midwest. He won second place in the Chicago Opera Company auditions this season. For the past several years he has been an instructor in the University of Illinois, done musical background work for motion pictures, and appeared as regular soloist in several of Chicago's leading churches.

The operetta will be under direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs and productions at W-G-N. Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N and artistic director of the Chicago Opera Company, will lead the W-G-N concert orchestra and chorus.

SOPHIE TUCKER'S SONG STORY ON MELODY STREET

The story of the song that made Sophie Tucker famous will be dramatized on "Melody Street," presented from 7 to 7:30 p. m. next Wednesday over W-G-N.

Back in 1910, Sophie Tucker, the original red hot mamma of the night clubs, introduced "Some of These Days" and catapulted to fame with the song. The story of the song's origins will be dramatized under the direction of Blair Walliser, W-G-N producer. Harold Stokes and his W-G-N Dance orchestra will contribute musical numbers to the weekly stroll down Melody street.

'BO' WACH BACK AT OLD POST IN CORNELL SQUARE

Again Director Where He Began Work.

"Bo" Wach is back at Cornell square as director of the indoor and outdoor activities of the park at 51st street and Loomis boulevard. Two weeks ago he returned to the place where he began as an instructor 22 years ago. His "homecoming" was a matter of a stack of congratulatory telegrams and the exercise of "shaking hands for a week," according to Robert Wach himself.

Robert Wach.

Wach served steadily at Cornell square, earning a city-wide park supremacy rating for athletic competition in seven consecutive years, 1921-28, until he was transferred to Calumet park in 1935. From there he went to Trumbull park in 1938, and now he's home again. The return is more than just coming back to a place where he used to work. "Bo" was one of the first five youngsters to sign up at Cornell when the park was opened.

Served in the Army.

When the Bohemians moved from the west side to the Cornell square area, Wach says his parents came along. He was born in the Cornell neighborhood and grew up there. As a young fellow, he joined the army and served from 1912 to 1915. When he'd served his "hitch," he came back to the south side and to a job in the stockyards for Swift's.

He recalls: "Jobs were hard to get in those days. I carried beef and hogs. But in four years I was a test clerk in the superintendent's office." Wach is 51 now, and he's seen much of the progress of labor in the yards.

In 1915, he explains, corporations found it difficult to keep employés satisfied. Workers drifted from one place to another—wherever they heard a little more money was being paid. While at Swift's, Wach organized a recreation and athletic program to help overcome the movement among workers.

Fake Wrestling Palled.

That was his first experience in the recreation direction. He became a wrestler about that time, too, but he found he "had to fake and quit. Sport without sportsmanship doesn't amount to much."

So Wach made his big decision about his life work. He left Swift's and an $85 a week salary and went to Cornell square as a park instructor for $85 a month. His reason—"I thought parks offered the greatest opportunity for me. I loved the work, and I brought up the boys in the neighborhood."

He trained many boys. He taught them folk dances along with games and gymnastics. He taught them obedience and good sportsmanship. He taught with simple, direct instructions. He taught with the latent strength and perservance that had made him army and navy wrestling champion on the west coast.

Kept Up Sokol Work.

As the years went along, many of the Bohemian families moved into the Gage park and Marquette park neighborhoods. German, Polish, and Slovak groups took their places. Wach went right on with his Sokol work, carrying the gospel of the Sokol [gymnastic organization] to his new pupils. They in turn taught him their languages, so he is somewhat of a linguist.

Two different sets of brothers, the Missings and the Staleks, went from the Wach supervised gym to the stage. The Missings are an acrobatic troupe; the Staleks are jugglers.

He served as an instructor for 16 years; he became a director six years ago. He considers his exchange of $85 a week for $85 a month a wise choice, "because I've been happy, and I think I've given a lot of service." His son, Edward, who was graduated at the University of Illinois in 1938, is carrying on the family work. He's an instructor at Ogden park.

POLISH UNION PRINTERS PLAN TO HOLD DANCE

The Polish Union Printers' association will hold its annual fall dance on Saturday evening at the P. R. C. U. Youths' hall, Milwaukee avenue and Noble street. Featured on the program of entertainment will be a dance exhibition by Wallace and Letitia. Music will be furnished by Mark Anthony and his orchestra, and dancing will begin at 8:30 p. m.

Attorney William John Granata recently took time out from his campaign for clerk of the Probate court to give an ice cream and cake party at the Spaulding School for Crippled Children at 1620 Washington boulevard. The party was given in co-operation with the Chicago Police post of the American Legion. In the picture, left to right, are Patrick J. O'Shea, commander of the Legion post; Frank Duzinski, Valentine Wollak, Paddy Spears, Charles Friedman, and Mr. Granata. Plans for regular parties for the children are being made.

DAYS OF GAS PIPE GUNS RECALLED AT GLENWOOD

ROTC in School Now Lists 300 Youths.

"The Lincoln company is the only company to bear rifles with a one inch gas pipe for a barrel." This is not a report of recent National Guard activities, but a statement taken from the United States property auditor's report of 1899, and refers to the military activities of the Glenwood Manual Training school. This school, located at 187th and Halsted streets, was one of the first in the Chicago area to institute military training as a regular part of the student curriculum.

William A. Michael.

Founded in 1887, Glenwood first began its military work five years later in 1892. At that time a student was selected as drill master, and competitions were held among the boys' cottages in drilling.

Boys Learn Trades.

Glenwood is a privately endowed institution for dependent, not delinquent, boys from broken homes. They range from 7 to 16 years old. Situated on a 400 acre farm, the school is almost a self-contained and self-sufficient city. The boys attend a modern school on the grounds, and are taught various trades in the work shops. A majority of the food the boys eat is raised on the well equipped farm which boasts an excellent herd of dairy cattle and a new pasturization plant. Superintendent of Glenwood is William A. Michael.

Altho the school now offers R. O. T. C. training, it is not ranked with the high schools of the city, but is classed as a "55 c" school which indicates that the government supplies only part of their military equipment, the rest being donated by the school.

Once Had Wooden Guns.

Altho the school is now equipped with Springfield army rifles the early drills were carried out with wooden guns fashioned in the machine shop. One cottage group, however, fitted their guns with gas pipe barrels to simulate regulation rifles.

In 1919 an application was made to the war department for the establishment of an R. O. T. C. unit. This marked the first official R. O. T. C. work in the school.

FAITH LUTHERAN CHURCH CLUB TO OFFER MUSICAL

The Adriels club of Faith Lutheran church, 8300 South Sangamon street, will present a musical entertainment at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening. The affair is to be called "Dew Drop Inn" and will take place on the first floor of the church.

The entertainment committee members are Miss Dorothy Pucks, Mrs. William Johnson, Mrs. John Stach, Mrs. Thomas E. Barrett, Miss Lorraine Barrett, Miss Mildred Glawe, Miss Florence Leightfuss, and Miss Betty Haserodt.

Members of the committee in charge of refreshments are Mrs. Arthur G. Hoover, chairman; Mrs. Elmer R. Hoger, Mrs. Fred C. Rathje, Mrs. R. R. Marvin, Mrs. William T. Maass, and Mrs. Fred Tegtmeyer.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Oct. 21.

Grapevines planted during fall may do better than spring planted stock because of an earlier start. The grape can be moved easily as soon as the leaves fall from well ripened wood. Make cuttings 8 to 12 inches long and with three joints. Make the lower cut just below joint and the upper cut about an inch above the bud. Bury the cuttings in the soil until spring and line out in the garden. Cuttings of many kinds of shrubs can be handled in the same manner with good results. The grape can be layered by digging a 2 to 3 inch trench and burying a cane in it. Roots will appear at each joint.

Tuesday, Oct. 22.

Bittersweet vines can be propagated from seeds sown this fall, by root cuttings, or from soft wood cuttings. It makes a strong vine in partial shade and is fine for the north porch. Hardy chrysanthemums are now in bloom and the best should be noted and planted in spring. Do not plant any except the early kinds. Continue to plant peonies. If a plant is doing well allow it to remain where it is. Iris still can be divided and planted. Surplus stock can be used in many places, given to friends, or donated to the community park.

Wednesday, Oct. 23.

A number of bulbous plants do well in the rockery. The grape hyacinth is delightful for banks and pockets among the rocks. They grow from 5 to 6 inches high. Glory of the Snow has a fine blue flower, doing nicely in colonies, like the snowdrops and squills. The snowdrop and squill look attractive when dotted between bulbs. Regale lilies between peonies will prove attractive and various other combinations easily can be arranged.

Thursday, Oct. 24.

If the garden has not been put in good condition see that it is done at once. The vegetable garden plot should be cleaned of all débris, the ground given a good coat of barnyard manure if it is available, spaded under, and the soil allowed to remain in the rough. Frost will mellow the soil and planting will be easier next spring. All rubbish that can be burned should be destroyed. The tools should be cleaned and stored.

Friday, Oct. 25.

Tulips can be planted as long as the ground can be worked. Take good care of the bulbs now because foreign sources of supply are cut off. Get the neighbors to help and have the vacant lot next door plowed this fall for next spring's planting. If it is not needed for vegetables cover crops can be sown to keep down weeds; it is one way to aid in city beautification and to combat weeds.

Saturday, Oct. 26.

Root pruning fruit trees that have made too rank growth is often beneficial. Take a sharp spade and cut thru the thick roots on one side the first year; if that fails to check the growth and cause fruitfulness, the other side may be cut the second year. This refers to older trees that do not fruit well.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield park conservatory.

DIVIDE SIX ROOM APARTMENT INTO 2 SMALLER ONES

Owner Himself Builds an Ornamental Door.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

This is a story which will interest you because of the many ingenious, attractive changes made in a six room apartment in Chicago. It will have further interest for you if you have ever considered the possibilities of dividing a large apartment into two smaller ones.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald M. MacDonald, 6425 Ingleside avenue, Chicago, were faced with the problem of doing just that.

They owned a two apartment building and felt that the first floor apartment which they occupied was larger than they needed; that if they could divide it and make two apartments where only one had been before, the arrangement would give them just the amount of space they wanted.

The apartment had six rooms and one bath, a long hallway running from front to back, and a large back porch. It was not a layout which seemed entirely amenable to change, but Mr. MacDonald felt he could do things with it. He is a carpenter, and a deft expert in working with wood. Both he and Mrs. MacDonald had faith that they could get results—and they did!

Make Two Apartments.

Now the first floor of the building has been divided into two apartments, and the entrance to the MacDonald home has been placed on the north side of the structure. New steps and wrought iron rail lead to a finely designed door which Mr. MacDonald built himself.

Just inside there is a small hallway which leads thru an arched opening into the living room.

This room was once the dining room of the apartment. The beams were removed from ceiling, walls replastered, and radiator handsomely inclosed in ivory cabinet which matches the woodwork. The walls were canvased in ivory tone, with a pale green ceiling and a wood rose carpeting.

Beyond this room, and adding to its apparent size, are French doors which lead out to the living-dining porch.

Build New Bathroom.

A new bathroom was installed and it's a little beauty. The walls are of structural glass, with a faint peach glow—reflected from the soft coloring in the rubber tile floor, in the deep pink of the shower curtains, and the dusty pink of the towels and accessories. The shower and tub are built-in and there's a small casement window over the tub.

This bathroom occupies the spot where formerly the pantry stood.

The kitchen was changed considerably, in process of general renovation. It was much larger in its original state. Its ceiling was lowered, new cabinets and cupboards were built. The entire side of the wall which once opened into the pantry is now cabinet and table space. There is a recessed shelf for the phone, and tiny open shelves over the range and cupboards over the refrigerator.

Cream and White.

Kitchen wainscoat and upper walls are painted cream and white, while the trim and accessories are orange.

In the bedroom there was the problem of wardrobe and closet space. Mrs. MacDonald wanted an abundance of it, and succeeded in obtaining it.

First, more light and air were brought into the room by building a new, large French window in place of the old, smaller one. The ceiling was lowered and a new maple floor was laid.

Then, the original closet in the bedroom was transformed into what one might call a wardrobe closet. Opposite the entrance door is a long, plate glass mirror which adds to the sense of space. And the walls are lined with large drawers and many smaller ones, shelves and cabinets, shoe and hat racks, and an umbrella cabinet. There is a small center closet, and then a third closet was added to the room by taking space from the former hallway which ran the length of the apartment.

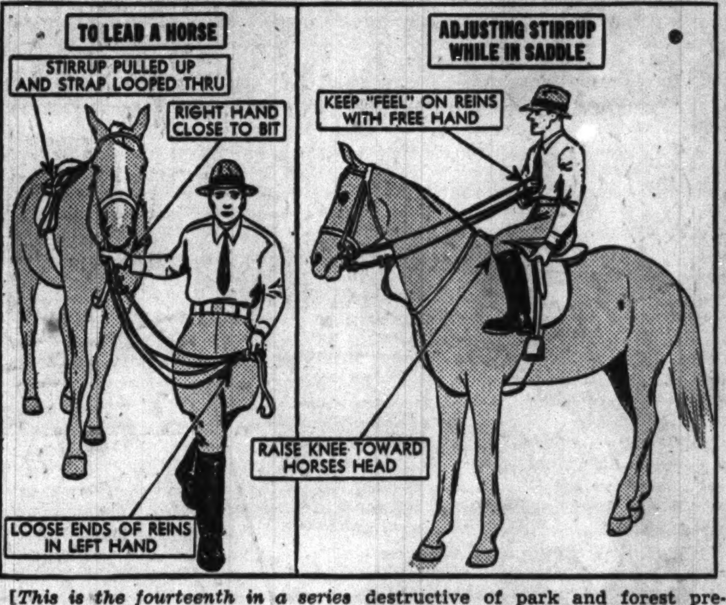
The walls and woodwork are in dusty pink, a treatment which adds still further to the size of room.

All this was not done in a day, but was the result of time and thought and work. More changes are being planned for the future.

Learning to Model Clay

Clay modeling is a popular winter activity at Ogden park, 65th street and Racine avenue. Mrs. Pierre Le Blanc and Mrs. Walter Herbold, sitting, are among the students enrolled in this class. Mildred Bolhius, 6 years old, looks on while Mrs. Le Blanc gives a final pat to an elephant and Mrs. Herbold receives instructions from the teacher, Miss Florence Cavanaugh.

A Tenderfoot Learns to Ride



TO LEAD A HORSE
STIRRUP PULLED UP AND STRAP LOOPED THRU
RIGHT HAND CLOSE TO BIT
LOOSE ENDS OF REINS IN LEFT HAND
ADJUSTING STIRRUP WHILE IN SADDLE
KEEP "FEEL" ON REINS WITH FREE HAND
RAISE KNEE TOWARD HORSES HEAD

[This is the fourteenth in a series of stories describing a course in elementary riding instruction.]

There are certain definite points of etiquet to be observed by all considerate riders of the horse trails and bridle paths, I have learned by actual experience since I began taking instruction from Elmer J. Holdorf. I quote a few of them below, substantially as they were given to me:

Be considerate to your mount always, or good riders will condemn you, perhaps even to your face.

If you're to ride in company with some one else, don't start out until your companions are mounted, or you will make their steeds restless.

It's best not to cluck at your horse to start him or urge him on faster. Other mounts nearby may respond to it. Anyhow, it isn't necessary.

Keep your horse under control at all times, and especially when others are about you; most saddle horses are spirited creatures, easily excited.

Some Horses Kick.

Don't ride less than half a length away from the horse in front, which may kick no matter how well behaved he is considered.

Scold your horse if he shows signs of biting another. Usually a sharp word from you is enough to remind him of his manners.

Never run your horse past other mounted riders. Horses are very susceptible to the example of others of their kind, and you might start a small stampede.

Pass approaching horses to the right. Keep to the right side of the trail for other riders who are overtaking you.

It's a good rule to speak a word of greeting to other riders you meet, whether you know them or not. Equestrians, unlike motorists, make a point of being pleasant to each other.

When riding with other equestrians, group the horses rather than the riders. It's a form of cruelty to compel a spirited horse to stay behind a plodder.

Don't Let Horse Browse.

Keep your mount from browsing along the trail. It's not only impolite on the horse's part [and a well-mannered horse knows this], but it's also destructive of park and forest preserve plant life, that should be saved for every one's enjoyment.

While fording a stream, don't run your horse or he may fall. And it's best not to halt him in the water. He might shy and give you an unexpected bath.

Don't let your horse drink at a ford unless you're going to exercise him considerably right away. Never let a horse drink at the end of a ride; it may injure him permanently.

Keep to the established trails. A horse's hooves quickly destroy grass, wild flowers, and young trees.

And Avoid Mudholes.

Steer your horse around mudholes if possible. Getting him muddy is not only unsightly, but it makes extra work for the stable hands.

Be careful of fire. Be sure your cigarets and matches are extinguished before you throw them away. Report suspicious smoke at the nearest telephone.

Stop and look both ways before crossing a highway.

Don't lose your temper with your horse. Set him a good example by being calm at all times. Never betray any fear you might feel. A horse is quick to take its cue from its rider.

Don't be a drug store cowboy, the name horsemen contemptuously apply to wild riders.

Disregard of the simple rules of good horsemanship stamps you as being either ignorant or boorish.

RIDING STORIES IN THE TRIBUNE ELICIT PRAISE

Start Many on the Way to Horsemanship.

Horsemen and horsewomen of the Chicago area including many leaders of the sport, have expressed their commendation for the series of riding stories appearing in the Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE under the heading "A Tenderfoot Learns to Ride."

This series, written by Harold Smith, a member of THE TRIBUNE staff, began last July 21 and will be concluded with next Sunday's instalment.

Most of those who have lauded the series have urged that it be reproduced in booklet form, a suggestion that has been taken under advisement by THE TRIBUNE.

Riding Interest Increases.

Some of the commentators credit this feature and other equestrian stories that have appeared in the Metropolitan section recently with responsibility for much of the increase in riding interest shown this summer. One of these is Herbert J. Lorber, president of the Town and Country Equestrian association, director of the Arlington Jockey club, and former polo player.

"There has been a sharp upturn this year in the number of new riders," Lorber, said. "The increase has been too big to be attributed to normal growth. I am convinced the Tenderfoot series was the major factor in this unusual growth. The stories, based on sound horsemanship principles, point out graphically the simplicity and the pleasure of enjoying park and forest preserve woodlands from horseback."

Wayne Dinsmore, secretary of the Horse and Mule Association of America, also credited the Tribune series with stimulating interest in riding, and urged that the stories be collectively issued "for the lasting benefit they can confer on the sport of horsemanship."

Many Start Riding.

Riding apparel dealers and others catering to the needs of the equestrian world say that the demand for "first" outfits by beginning riders has never been greater than at present.

A. K. Gordon, manager of the riding apparel department of a large store attributed a one-third increase in sales largely to THE TRIBUNE'S stories of horse world activities and to the Tenderfoot series.

Similar comment was made by Don Iltis, manager of another large store catering to the starting rider.

The unusual interest created by the Tenderfoot stories is shown by the fact that inquiries concerning them came from states as far east as New York and as far west as Kansas. Numerous readers wrote that they had clipped the stories and studied them as an aid in learning to ride.

Military Student Parents Will Be Guests at Supper

The members of Mothers' and Fathers' clubs of Morgan Park military academy will attend a harvest home supper Thursday evening in the school gymnasium from 7 to 8:30 o'clock. A dance will follow. Cadets will attend the supper, but not the dance. Their own harvest dancing affair will be a costume party on Saturday evening.

Friendship
One of the richest rewards of life is friendship. No man, however strong, can be truly happy without at least one other person that he is pleased and proud to call FRIEND. And the happiest is he who has a host of friends . . . who keeps making new ones.
Fostering friendship is one of the most pleasant aspects of the entire program of the Y M C A. In effect, we take you by the arm, present you to another and say, "Here is a friend." What we actually do, of course, is give you an opportunity to enjoy a common interest. What sounder foundation can there be for a real and lasting friendship?
It is this function which has been one of the greatest factors in making the Y M C A and its work the tradition that it is today. The possibilities for friendship, so amply provided by the Y M C A, are a magnet which draws many differing personalities and matches each with another, to the incontestable advantage of all concerned.
Whatever your interests, you will build friendships among the congenial persons engaged in the same activities at the Y M C A.
Stop at the Y M C A most convenient to you today and ask for complete details of a membership for this Fall and Winter.

CLUB BIRTHDAY RECALLS ORIGIN AT A TEA PARTY

Blue Island Group to Scan Half Century.

Members of the Blue Island Woman's club will attend a luncheon celebrating the organization's 50th anniversary on Tuesday at the Chicago Woman's club, a half century after the group's origin at a tea party. Mrs. Arthur Seyfarth, who has been assisting with luncheon arrangements, is the anniversary celebration chairman.

Mrs. Arthur Seyfarth.

Mrs. Harry Robinson was the hostess at the tea party in the autumn of 1890. Her guests spent the afternoon discussing prominent writers. They liked it so well that they decided to make their meeting a regular occurrence, and they became the Current Topic class.

Miss Emily Roche was the next week's hostess, and it was at her house that Mrs. Charles Young laid out a course of study.

First Meetings Informal.

In the first eight years the sessions were informal, and no officers were elected. However, the classes became so popular that an increasing membership made organization necessary. The first officers were elected and the constitution and first by-laws were adopted on June 8, 1898.

The Current Topic class became the Current Topic club. Mrs. Thomas McGrath was president. Four years later she became the first president of the Third congressional district of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs.

The Current Topic club sponsored parties for worthy causes, and $5,000 was raised toward a city library. Carnegie Foundation donated $15,000, and after the library was established, the Topic club met there. The organization helped in Red Cross work in the world war.

An enlarged charity program resulted in an increased membership. An expansion program inaugurated in 1923 under the leadership of Mrs. Ada Kallum brought about the change to the Blue Island Woman's club, a federated group. A junior organization was set up in 1929.

Homewood Woman's Club.

"Glorifying the American Home" is the theme of the American home department this year. In this connection members will study "The Art of Living," by Andre Maurois. Mrs. James R. Blair, American home chairman, will present Miss Lillian Foster at the regular meeting at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the village hall. Miss Foster, who spent several years in China, will speak on "Homemaking in the Orient." Mrs. B. O. Baugher will sing. Mrs. E. W. Davidson will accompany her.

Mrs. J. E. Trieschmann, Third district American home chairman, will be a special guest. Mrs. W. V. Pipher and Mrs. E. L. Downey will be hostesses. The creative writing class, led by Mrs. Harlan Bretz, will have its first meeting of the season an hour before the regular club session.

Chicago Heights Women.

Officers of the garden department will be hostesses at the club's second meeting of the season at 2:15 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the Presbyterian community house, 16th place and School street. Mrs. C. E. Showalter, 1428 Edgewood avenue, Chicago Heights, is chairman of the arrangements.

Program plans include garden poems by Mrs. Frank L. Simmons; whistling selections by Miss Jessica Lewis, and songs by the Chicago Heights Men's chorus directed by James Funk.

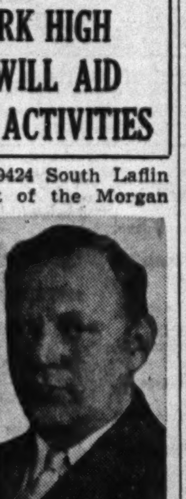
Mrs. John Kotal, third district garden chairman, and members of the Joliet Floral and Garden club will be special guests. Mrs. C. H. Kappmeyer will take charge of the tea table, and Mrs. Frank McEldowney will head the decorations committee.

George Fleming to Address High School Safety Club

George Fleming, general secretary of Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee, will speak at a meeting of the Gage Park High school safety club Friday morning. Donald Racky, director of the Gage Park High school club, will assist in conducting the meeting.

MORGAN PARK HIGH FATHERS WILL AID STUDENT ACTIVITIES

Henry T. Yaap, 9424 South Laflin street, is president of the Morgan Park High School Fathers' club which was organized recently. Members plan to foster the various activities of the Morgan Park students.



Henry T. Yaap

Meetings will take place on the first Monday evening of each month. The Nov. 4 session will be held at the home of the secretary and treasurer, F. F. Hedrick, 10124 South Charles street. Fathers of present or former students are invited to join.

A committee has been appointed to canvass the community for a regular meeting place. Several other committees have been chosen to map activities.

Church Wedding

Miss Ruth F. Elliott, the daughter of Mrs. Joseph Sayre, 6448 South Justine street, became Mrs. Harold J. Harms in a recent ceremony at the Golgotha Evangelical Lutheran church. Mr. Harms is the son of Mrs. F. A. Harms of 8102 South Hermitage avenue. He attended Tilden High school, and his wife went to Lindblom. A reception at the Flamingo hotel followed the ceremony.

TILDEN SAFETY PATROL CHOSEN FROM CADET UNIT

Corps Directs Student Traffic at School.

The safety of Tilden Technical High school students at street crossings depends a great deal on efficiency of the military patrol, composed of cadets from the R. O. T. C. unit.

Members of the patrol are placed at hazardous spots about the building. Their duties consist of helping to regulate traffic at the corners and preventing the students from jaywalking. They also supervise the loading of street cars to prevent overcrowding and bring hitch-hikers before the principal for punishment.

The following students have been chosen for military police duty:

Chief, Master Sergeant Chester Nelson; assistant chief, Second Lieutenant Emmanuel Riff; clerk, Sergt. George Katsaros; general inspector, Capt. Robert Szyman; inspector, Capt. Meade Hanger; inspector, Second Lieutenant Gordon Bey; runner, Sergt. Edward Osajda; runner, Sergt. Earl Wilson.

Stationed at the various posts will be:

Joseph Merton, William Workman, Robert Nelson, Jack Weber, Richard Makrickas, Lawrence Jennings, Richard Taylor, Joseph Sodora, John Bergera, Joseph Dardis, Van Thompson, George Candilas, Robert Robson, Kenneth Sitzler, Anthony Gomez, Harry Reckas, Edward Lantry, Walter Smolka, Donald Ayers, Jeffery Barnes, Daniel McAllister, Eugene Pedone, Willie Simon, Adolph Schultz, Alonzo Pippenger, James Tesmond, Donald Richardson, Daniel Stanko, Simble Rogers, Edward Campbell, James Allman, Harry Ansel, Robert Clouston, Charles Clemmons, Thaddeus Marcyan, Stanley Oprzedak, Eugene Pennington, Adolph Sattler, Hartwell Scott, Ernest Tinnel, Chester Was, John Kubik, Glen Verschoore, Dominic Garetto, Jack Pomy, Smith Funk, Lavere Doyle, Stephen Tanner, Joseph Natale, Robert Turbine, Robert Crowley.

Jesse Sandover, Harold Welke, Henry Miarechi, Ernest Zsembery, Robert Richards, Maynard Pon, Robert Pethick, Frank Sova, Theodore Reid, Joseph Tague, Richard Vandeveer, Robert Swanson, Wesley Townsend, Arthur Petry, Daniel Yersavich, Russel Rune, John Pauly, Harry Angus, Robert Vinson, Kenneth McKenzie, Ross Boyd, Fred Yates, John McKane, Chauncey Pippenger, Norman Dudley, Robert Ashton, Jack Schmidt, Charles Payne, Henry Knutson, John Bagatto, Dean Webster, Melvin Kopping, Robert McCormick, Howard Buckels.

NAME OFFICERS FOR ENGLEWOOD UNIT OF CADETS

New commissioned officers have been chosen at the Englewood High school R. O. T. C. unit to fill the vacancies left by the graduating class of last semester. Sergt. John A. Reeser, military instructor, made the appointments.

Commanding the battalion will be Maj. Thomas Netherton. His assistants will be Maj. Bernard Hard, executive officer; Second Lieutenant James Aldrich, adjutant, and Second Lieutenant Wayne Peterson, supply officer.

ORGANIZE LAKE COUNTY (IND.) MOTOR COUNCIL

Fifty officials and civic and industrial leaders of northern Indiana met in Gary last Wednesday to form the Lake County Area council of the Chicago Motor club, sixth organization of its kind in metropolitan Chicago.

C. A. Boughner, safety director of the sheet and tin division of the Carnegie Illinois Steel corporation, was elected chairman and Dr. Robert Gillis, former president of the Hammond Chamber of Commerce, was made secretary. Charles M. Hayes, president of the motor club, inducted the officers. He traced the origin of this council to March, 1938, when the south area council honored Earl Moore, now general superintendent of the Carnegie Illinois Steel corporation Gary works, for his service to the south side of Chicago.

The members of the new council come from Hammond, Gary, East Chicago, Dyer, and Whiting.

RAT WAR MOVES TO NEW WARDS; TOLL MOUNTING

14 Acres Already Baited with Red Squill.

The city's war against rats rolled on last week, as the army of rat baiters, equipped with poisonous red squill, moved into 15 new wards, placing bait in every rat hole. The exterminators, working out of Commissioner of Public Works Oscar E. Hewitt's office, have so far killed an estimated 400,000 rats, and the toll is mounting every day.

According to the latest report from Commissioner Hewitt 14 wards have been baited and the first stage of the destruction is completed. These wards are the 22d, 23d, 26th, 29th, 30th, 31st, 33d, 35th, 37th, 39th, 47th, 48th, 49th, and 50th. With these sections now under control work has been started in the 1st, 3d, 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 10th, 16th, 18th, 21st, 32d, 34th, 36th, and 40th.

Rat Canvass Made.

The battle against the rodents has been helped by a house to house canvass to ascertain where and under what conditions rats have been seen in the neighborhoods. With more than one-third of the city already checked the relief workers who are doing the baiting are using the reports to guide their work. The commissioner's office has to date, received a total of 147,558 reports of the presence of rats in the 50 wards.

35 Wards 100 Per Cent.

As the work of exterminating the pests is being carried out only in wards where 100 per cent of the buildings are supplied with garbage cans the drive to supply every building with a receptacle is being pushed harder. At the latest report 35 out of the 50 city wards were 100 per cent supplied.

Lagging Wards Listed.

Wards on the southwest side that are not 100 per cent supplied with garbage cans are as follows:

9th ward—97.9 per cent supplied; 280 buildings without cans.

11th ward—96.8 per cent supplied; 284 buildings without cans.

12th ward—97 per cent supplied; 342 buildings without cans.

13th ward—99.7 per cent supplied; 31 buildings without cans.

14th ward—90.9 per cent supplied; 721 buildings without cans.

15th ward—99 per cent supplied; 27 buildings without cans.

17th ward—93.7 per cent supplied; 458 buildings without cans.

19th ward—97.1 per cent supplied; 373 buildings without cans.

Town of Lake Kiwanians Elect New Club Officers

Dr. Charles Deplewski was recently elected president of the Town of Lake Kiwanis club. Other officers are Charles Detrick, vice president; Stewart W. Knarr, treasurer, and Arthur Butler, William Fuka, Frank Covert, Anthony Vosyka, Dr. Marion Kostrubala, John Haffner, Ernest Elder, and Eugene Herder, directors.

Club to Elect.

The annual dinner, salon, and installation of officers of the Jackson Park Camera club will take place Thursday, Oct. 31, in the Gladstone hotel.

"Lookit the funny doors and windows. I like our place better, don't you, Mommy?"

"Yes, but Jack didn't watch the Tribune want ad bargains like we did."

A play room for your children—weather-tight doors and windows—extra closets—automatic heat—would you like to add these features to your home?

Consult the Building Materials column in the Tribune want ad section. There you will find splendid opportunities to save money on the millwork, plumbing, heating equipment and other items you may need to make your home more comfortable.

"I'm celebrating tonight"

"No more time clocks for me. From now on I'm going to be my own boss."

Machine shops, food, hardware, drug and electrical stores and the many other established enterprises described in the Business Opportunities column in the Tribune want ad section offer you a wide range of opportunity to cash in on your special business talents.

The chance you have sought may be advertised in today's want ad section of the Tribune. Review the Business Opportunities column now.

G. O. P. CANDIDATES SEE VICTORY

STATE PAY ROLL STUFFING HIT BY NOBLE LEE

Candidate Aims at Army 'Snobbery.'

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Noble W. Lee, associate dean of John Marshall Law school and one of two Republican candidates for the Illinois house of representatives from the 5th district, last week thumped the campaign drum for reform in both the state and national administrations. His demands were:

Noble W. Lee.

1. That the next session of the legislature revive the economy investigation of state pay roll padding and other waste of taxpayers' money.

2. That the national administration immediately stop "snob practices" in the army and navy, which prevent the giving of officer's commissions to able men while two sons of President Roosevelt wear captain's uniforms.

Team with Warfield.

Lee is teamed with Col. William J. Warfield in the G. O. P. contest against Louis G. Berman and Stillman M. Frankland, Democrats. The three top vote getters in the Nov. 5 election will be seated in the house as representatives of the 5th district, which includes 5th ward and part of the 3d, 4th, and 6th wards.

"The committee to find out where millions collected by the sales tax are being wasted must be revived by the legislature, which starts a six months' session in January," Mr. Lee declared.

"In the last regular session the investigating committee had barely started its search for rotten spots in the state spending program when it was shelved by the Democrats.

Charges Are Denied.

"The Democrats said charges placed with the committee were not true. Then why didn't they permit investigation? Killing the inquiry was a disgrace and a whitewash. But nothing shall remain hidden forever.

"The public will see to it that we find out whether it is true that the Democratic administration purchased thousands of automobiles without authority from the legislature.

"Is it true that pay rolls are padded with useless employés, and that thousands are added to the rolls before elections? We are paying for it, and we want to know. Are huge funds wasted on luxurious travel by the pay rollers between Springfield and Chicago? Let's find out!"

Wave of State Spending.

A fact which cannot be questioned is that state spending has increased by 900 per cent since the administration of Gov. Frank O. Lowden, Illinois' world war governor, Mr. Lee said. Unofficial studies indicate that current spending can be cut from 10 to 20 per cent, he declared.

Turning to the defense effort, Lee charged that both the letter and the spirit of the national defense act are being violated by regulations put into effect by the New Deal.

"Instead of the policies which produced our great military and naval leaders and fighters, we can see snobbery practiced to a shocking extent," Lee said.

Schools Are "Picked."

"Applicants for officer's commissions or for transfers to other branches of service now must have graduated from 'accredited' colleges selected in an arbitrary manner," he said. This is an official regulation.

"One of the many cases I have run across will illustrate," he said. "The man is a major in the reserve who has had his commission for five years. He is a successful business man and a lawyer. He was denied a transfer, which is regarded the same as a new application, because he didn't graduate from an 'accredited' college.

Addresses Young Voters.

Frankland, the junior Democratic nominee, is 29 years old. Last week he devoted his time to appeals to first voters and others still in their 20's. He suggested that they need a young man in the legislature to recognize their wants.

"If I am elected I want the youth organizations and individuals to come to me with their problems," Frankland said. "I am especially interested in furthering educational opportunities for youth in Illinois.

"I want legislation to aid in finding positions for college graduates who have spent their all on education. There should be a better link between employers and college graduates. This would aid employers as well as the trained job seekers. The surface has been only scratched in meeting this problem."

Berman, the other Democratic candidate, is telling the voters that he supported bills increasing maximum old age assistance from $30 to $40 a month, fixing a flat $30 a month pension for blind persons, and providing pensions for mothers with dependent children.

He was the author of a law requiring public carriers to admit "Seeing-eye" dogs accompanying blind persons.

The O'Tooles! They Came Up with Chicago

Miss Blanche Beasant, branch librarian of the Davis Square branch of the Chicago public library and a student of the back of the yards area, was asked to name a typical family of the early days of that neighborhood. Her answer was "the O'Tooles." This is the first of two articles on the family.

BY GLADYS PRIDDY.

The United States, land born in love of freedom and consecration to liberty, ever has been a land of firsts. Its children learn names of those explorers first to find the Mississippi, first to push west of the great river, first to penetrate the deep forests of Oregon. The present of America is still close to the beginning; every community has records of its first settlers—and in newer sections some of the first settlers themselves!

Stories of these first settlers and their families are histories of the communities they helped to build. So it is that the story of the family of Patrick O'Toole, Irish immigrant who arrived in Chicago on Lincoln's first inauguration day, March 4, 1861, is representative of a section of O'Toole's adopted city.

Founded Line of O'Toole.

As head of one of the first 13 families to settle "back o' the yards," Patrick O'Toole founded a line that was to grow with the city, to be representative of the movement of the Irish into the yards area and then gradually farther and farther south. His son, "Jimmy" O'Toole, former judge of the municipal court and now assistant city corporation counsel, resides in Beverly Hills, 9406 Pleasant avenue. "Jimmy O'Toole's children have followed the Irish farther south, too, and their children with them.

The O'Tooles are a typical family of Chicago's southwest side, Irish and possessing a flair for politics as exemplified by the second generation, the "Hon. Jimmy" as he was known in the state legislature. As a typical family, the story of the O'Tooles is told.

Perhaps it was the rollicking tales of far countries told by the officers and men in the barracks near young Patrick O'Toole's home in old Ireland. Perhaps it was the hungry feeling he may have known after a crop failure. Or it may have been the letters other young Irishmen wrote home from America.

Joined Immigrant Army.

Anyhow, young Patrick O'Toole and his brother John joined the army of Irish who "came out" to the new land in the last century. They landed in New York in the late '50s, and John became a shop worker there.

Patrick's son knows little of his father's career in New York state. He does know that his father married Bridget Coughlin of Dublin either shortly before coming to America or shortly after arriving. He thinks the marriage must have taken place here, for, he says, "I don't believe my father ever was in Dublin."

The parents were living in Greenbush, N. Y., when "Jimmy" was born on Oct. 23, 1860, and they brot the infant and his sister, Eleanor, to Chicago in 1861. The mother died when the third child, Mary, was born in 1863.

Eleanor is now Mrs. Eleanor Garrett of 9747 Hamilton avenue, and her sister is Mrs. Mary Collins of 8026 Sangamon street.

Saw a Young Chicago.

Patrick O'Toole, in his '20s, saw the young Chicago, the city of wooden buildings that were to become ashes a decade hence. He saw a city of mud and hope. He saw a city with jobs—hard ones, it's true—for black-haired, blue eyed young Irishmen.

He saw adventure and opportunity. And he followed other Irishmen before him into the Rock Island shops, then at 47th street and Wentworth avenue. He became a blacksmith's helper. He was there a short while when once more he followed the Irish and took his place as a laborer in the packing houses along the Chicago river in the vicinity of 22d street.

His son says, "I remember him first as a foreman," so young Mr. O'Toole of King's county, Ireland, must have been a good worker. In 1865 he found a mother for his family, Katie O'Brien from Tipperary. They had a son, now dead.

Lived on West Side.

The O'Tooles first lived on Chicago's old west side. They moved into a house on Barber street. They lived, too, in the vicinity of 22d and Lumber streets, 22d and Johnson streets, and 22d and Halsted streets. On Nov. 1, 1872, they moved to Packers and Exchange avenues into "New Patch," an area where the Hutchinson Packing company had erected seven houses for its foremen.

The O'Tooles occupied one of those houses. The Armour plant had moved to the present stockyard area in 1870, along with other packing plants, and the trek to back o' the yards began. There were two other "patches" in those early days—Armour's patch and Stone avenue patch.

A one room school at 43d and Wood streets took care of the education of the neighborhood youngsters. Attendance ran as high as 35 on good days; the all time low occurred one winter's day when the teacher, "Jimmy" O'Toole and two other boys were the only ones there.

Visited Prison Camp.

Patrick O'Toole's family began the serious business of growing up back o' the yards. His son was already storing up precious memories. He could recall trips to Camp Douglas to see rebel prisoners. He remem-

Call for Aid in Red Cross Braille Work

(Picture on page 2.)

Members of the South Shore unit of the Chicago Red Cross chapter last week undertook the transcription of Braille, considered the most exacting work performed by volunteer Red Cross workers. The Braille Teaching center will be open every Monday from 10 until 12 o'clock in the morning from now on, Mrs. Mary Rynder, Braille chairman of the unit, announced.

"Braille transcription is one of the most fascinating services of the Red Cross," said Mrs. Rynder. "Any sighted volunteer who has the time to devote to making Braille literature available for blind readers may join us."

Volunteers may communicate with Mrs. Rynder by telephoning Hyde Park 4483 or Wabash 3250. The transcription takes place in the Bryn Mawr Community church parish house, 7000 Jeffery avenue.

Print for the Blind.

Braille is a system of printing in raised dots by which the blind read with their fingertips. The dots represent letters, groups of letters, figures and punctuation marks, and are embossed on paper in sufficient relief to be read by touch.

Braille transcription, which entails painstaking labor and devotion on the part of the sighted volunteer, is accomplished by Red Cross workers by two methods. One is by punching each individual dot in the paper with a stylus. The other is by use of a Braille writer, a machine which prints the various combinations of dots when keys are pressed down.

Larger than Ordinary Print.

Braille also is embossed on thin metal sheets with a stereotyper and from them a number of impressions are taken on paper. This is known as press Braille.

The standard size for hand copied books is 11 by 11½ inches. The writing runs lengthwise, 25 lines to the page. This contains a little more than half of the text printed on the average book page. The usual novel copied in Braille makes from six to eight volumes, each as large as can be conveniently handled.

Braille Mailed Free.

The first Braille was written in France in 1829. It was developed by Louis Braille to facilitate the education of the blind and to give them a medium by which they themselves could write. Since that time the process has passed thru many changes and has become the universal type for the blind, adapted to every language in which they are taught.

The average cost of a press Brailled book is 10 times that of the same volume in print. Therefore, there are few private collections and readers prefer to borrow from well stocked libraries. By a provision of congress, books for the blind go thru the mails free of charge when loaned by a library to a blind reader, or returned by him.

Catholic U. Club Dance

SUNDAY EVENING CLUB TO HEAR TALK ON HATE

Dr. Harold Bosley, pastor of Mount Vernon Place Methodist church, Baltimore, Md., will make his first appearance before the Sunday Evening club tonight in Orchestra hall, speaking on the topic "No Weapon but Hate." Clifford W. Barnes will preside, and Horace W. Armstrong, trustee of the club, will participate in the program.

Dr. Harold Bosley.

Dr. Bosley, formerly of the University of Chicago, went to Baltimore in 1938, after five years as director of religious activities at Iowa State college. His book, "The Quest for Religious Certainty," was considered an authoritative contribution to current thought.

LINNEA SOCIETY FALL MUSICAL TO HELP NEEDY

The Linnea Aid society's annual fall concert will be held at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening in Englewood Mission Covenant church, 59th and Carpenter streets. Musicians will be Minnie Cedargreen-Jernberg, violinist, accompanied by her daughter, Jean Jernberg-Collins; Mrs. Reuben Ohlson, soprano; Oscar Green, baritone; Mrs. Robert Hakanson, organist, and Mrs. Hugh Reid, pianist. Miss Ruth Bjorklund, reader, will also take part in the recital.

The Linnea Aid society is an organization which has been active in charity work for the past 34 years. It has a membership of more than 1,000 women from 24 south side Swedish churches.

Mrs. N. A. Nelson, 443 West 61st place, is president of the society. Proceeds from this concert will be used to relieve distress among the poor this winter.

Seminar.

A seminar will be presented at the meeting of the Woman's auxiliary to the Woodlawn hospital at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Link Defense to Recreation Session Plans

Recreation's rôle in the national defense program will be brought out at the Sixth Annual Recreation conference to be held Nov. 8 in the Hotel Sherman, by the Chicago Recreation commission.

Dr. Malcolm S. MacLean.
[Cheyne Photo.]

"The basis for national preparedness rests upon maintenance of citizen morale," explained Dr. Arthur H. Todd of Northwestern university sociology department. "Recreation, defined as the healthy, wholesome use of citizens' leisure time, plays a key rôle in the morale of a nation at any time."

Thousands to Attend.

For this reason, "Recreation and Preparedness" was chosen for the theme of the conference. Dr. Malcolm S. MacLean, new president of Hampton institute, Norfolk, Va., and former director of the General college of the University of Minnesota, will be the principal speaker.

Dr. Todd is chairman of the conference and author of the annual survey on recreation in the Chicago area, published by the commission. The conference is the only one of its kind in the United States which brings together professional recreation leaders and thousands of lay men, women, and youths from the communities in an all day program centered upon recreation as a constructive social force.

Recreation Aids Patriotism.

In further explanation of the conference theme, Dr. Todd said: "The qualities of citizenship which make for a nation's preparedness are the same in times of peace as in times of stress and emergency. But during an emergency, these qualities must meet a special challenge—the challenge of heightened discipline and danger. Recreation fosters the positive states of mind whose sum total is patriotism.

"Recreation," he concluded, "is vital to preparedness and the thousands of citizens who will gather for the conference next month realize this fact.

"Out of the round table discussions, open forums and speeches by nationally known leaders of public opinion can come a real contribution to the welfare of our democratic nation."

Purple Heart, Military Order, to Meet Tuesday

The regular meeting of Ray Workman chapter No. 50, Military Order of the Purple Heart, will be held Tuesday evening at the Hotel Sherman. Officers for the year will be elected and installed, and a plaque will be presented to one of the members for faithful service.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

A SPECIAL celebration has been planned for today and Wednesday in recognition of the Rev. Wilford H. Taylor, who has led the Homewood Presbyterian church to 10 years of progress. The Rev. Dr. Paul Johnson of the Presbyterian extension board will speak at the 11 o'clock services today and there will be a recognition ceremony under the direction of Mrs. William C. Glass. An informal reception will be held for the minister and his family on Wednesday evening under the direction of a committee representing the numerous organizations of the church.

The Rev. W. H. Taylor.

Since coming to Homewood on Oct. 30, 1930, the Rev. Mr. Taylor has effected improvements in the church property and has freed the church of its major indebtedness, having received the full coöperation of his congregation, which has increased 100 per cent in a decade. He also has served as chaplain of the Homewood American Legion, and the Rotary club's first president.

ARTHUR W. VINER, son of Jacob Viner, 5554 Kenwood avenue, professor of economics at the University of Chicago, and Mrs. Viner, vice president of the Cook County League for Women Voters, has been elected treasurer of the American Student Defense league, Harvard chapter. A graduate of the University of Chicago High school, he is a junior at Harvard.

"Our primary concern," he has written home, "is to make America strong, and to make America strong we must work not only on terms of national defense within our geographic borders but also in terms of hemispheric coöperation. We are working now to start a system of exchanging students between this and the South American republics."

Jack Chelius, 7456 South Shore drive, is one of nine students to be pledged by the Mines Press club at the Colorado School of Mines. The club is an organization of juniors and seniors who have done outstanding work on the staffs of the student publications. Membership is elective. Chelius is a junior student of ferrous-metallurgy.

NINE years ago a weak, skinny boy joined the Hyde Park Y. M. C. A. To build up his body, he was given development exercises to strengthen his limbs and taught to swim. Seven years later he discovered that the training was practical, for he made an heroic rescue in Lake Michigan which drew city-wide attention. Now that boy—Clifford Youman, 5109 Kimbark avenue—is considered such a model of muscular health that he has been elected president of the Y. Weightlifting and Body-building club.

Other officers elected by the club are Hubert Davis, vice president; George Parnell, secretary-treasurer; Jeff Tyrrell, city committeeman; Frank Barrow, chairman of competition and meets; Ray Gold, chairman of equipment; Gus Mensch, chairman of instructors and training, and Gilbert McLaughlin, chairman of health education. The club consists of 40 young men who are interested in spreading their interest in heavy training work.

The boys have included in their schedule programs of muscle training and a series of weekly forums dealing with such popular questions as athlete's heart, flat feet, training diets, reducing, danger of cancer and tuberculosis, relieving nervous tension, etc. The programs are at 9 o'clock on Tuesday evenings.

Mary Stoll has been chosen to be editor in chief of the Hirsch Herald, official school newspaper, this year. She will be assisted by Anita Williams, news editor; Rosemary Lauthers, feature editor; Thomas Berry, sports editor; Madelyn Reed, girls' sports editor; Ruth Swartz, exchange editor; Emory Hanson, publicity agent; Helene Friedlander, public relations manager, and Helen Neal, advertising manager. Sponsors of the paper are Miss Edna Upton, editorial adviser, and William McNally, advertising adviser.

NINE Our Towners are promoting the annual Halloween masquerade ball, peak social affair of the year for the Chicago Catholic University club, Saturday evening in the Midland hotel. Club members will appear at the dance in fancy costumes ranging from grandmothers' wedding gowns to witches' and goblins' attire. South siders on the arrangements committee are Lucille Fairbairn, 503 West 117th street; Genevieve Crowe, 5424 Cornell avenue; John A. Looby Jr., 5487 Greenwood avenue; Charles Mulcahy, Edward Canny, 8049 Ellis avenue; Mary Rowbotham, 7704 Cregier avenue; Rosalind Schmidt, 1349 East 50th street; James Brand, 8214 South East End avenue, and Gerald Molloy, 10239 Emerald avenue.

Alumnae to Dine.

South side alumnae association of Kappa Delta sorority will attend a Founders day dinner at Northwestern university chapter house at 6:30 o'clock Wednesday.

SPEED UP RACE FOR CONGRESS IN FOUR DISTRICTS

Moynihan Campaign Given New Aid.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Congressional candidates in four of the districts that embrace southern and southwestern Chicagoland mustered forces last week for a stretch drive the like of which has not been seen for several years.

All four of the districts—the 1st, 2d, 3d, and 6th—are now represented by Democrats, but the Republican nominees and their supporters are confident of victory on Nov. 5. Neutral observers agree that G. O. P. victories in these districts are possible.

One of the chief developments of the week was the expansion of the 2d district campaign in behalf of former Congressman Patrick H. Moynihan, favored in some quarters to unseat Congressman Raymond S. McKeough.

Aid for Moynihan.

The Moynihan forces were joined by those of Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th] and Thomas A. Thornton, two of the former congressman's rivals in the primary last April. Thornton was supported in the primary by advocates of the Townsend plan.

Edward J. Finan, another former rival of Moynihan, joined forces with him two weeks ago.

Moynihan, in his appearances at various political and neighborhood meetings, pledged upon his return to congress to fight for completion of the last remaining link in the lakes to gulf waterway. Widening and deepening of the channel from the Ford plant on the Calumet river westward to Western avenue is necessary before the terminal facilities in Lake Calumet can be developed fully, Moynihan declared.

He said that immediate completion of the waterway project is a vital defense measure.

Fought for Waterway.

"When I was in congress I fought for and gained action on waterway development," Moynihan said. "Our present congressman has not seen fit to carry on this work.

"Recently both houses of congress voted in favor of completion of the final waterway link, but the President vetoed the measure. Our present congressman voted against passing it over the veto, thereby helping to deny his own district the benefits in the way of employment and business stimulation the project would bring."

Attack Kelly Record.

In the 3d district the lively fight over Congressman Edward A. Kelly's congressional attendance record continued with animation. The G. O. P. nominee, Waldemar J. Roehler, touched off the fireworks by declaring that Kelly had given the district only a 47 per cent representation thus far in the present session of congress. Kelly denied this hotly, declaring he voted on every important measure that was before the lower house, with the exception of those which came up for action while he was seriously ill last summer.

Roehler cited figures last week that indicate Congressman Kelly was recorded as absent for 162 of the 394 roll calls taken in the 76th congress thru Oct. 10.

Congressman Kelly claimed that he has been instrumental in bringing almost 67 million dollars in federal improvements to his district.

Asks Support for G. O. P.

In the predominantly colored 1st district, former Senator William E. King, colored G. O. P. challenger of Congressman Arthur W. Mitchell, appealed to his people last week to support the entire Republican ticket in the coming election.

Wendell L. Willkie should be elected President, King said, because he stands for defense preparation divorced from politics, recognition of the rights of minority groups, and a sane attitude in general toward government.

Dwight H. Green deserves election as governor for his successful fight against vice and corruption as United States district attorney, King told his followers. Wayland Brooks is a logical choice for United States senator so that he may fight subversive institutions and influences, King declared, and stated George F. Barrett, if chosen Illinois attorney general, can be counted on to break the hold of the Kelly-Nash machine.

Volunteer Army Grows.

In the 6th district the groups supporting the candidacy of Joseph Wagner, Berwyn dairy man and Republican nominee, reported large increases in the number of volunteer workers, which, they said, presaged a G. O. P. victory next month.

Their campaign has stirred the Democratic incumbent, Congressman Anton F. [Whitey] Maciejewski of Cicero, into earlier campaign activity than usual.

The Illinois League of Women Voters made public the voting records of the various incumbents in the present session of congress. The league's compilation shows that Mitchell, McKeough, and Maciejewski voted against the Hatch measure to prohibit pernicious political activity on the part of federal office holders, while Kelly was paired against it. On the Fish amendment, which would have delayed the draft for 60 days, Mitchell, McKeough, and Maciejewski voted no.

BOTTLENECK AT JACKSON PARK.

It seems to me something intelligent should be done about the bottleneck which causes so many traffic snarls in Jackson park every day at rush hour. I am referring to the intersection where the continuation of the outer drive [highway 41 and 12] crosses the lagoon bridge southward and turns at about a 90 degree angle to the left. There also is a 90 degree angle turn to the right into the park and this street soon is bisected by Jeffery avenue, a thru street which is heavily traveled most of the day and has become an important artery to the far south side.

Now there is no stop light at this intersection. Why there are no lights and especially no green arrow lights permitting motorists to make left turns on these streets is a mystery to me. There is a policeman there most of the time but even he cannot prevent the long queues of autos lined up in three directions during rush hour. What is really needed, of course, is another street to get the heavy traffic thru the park, that is, an alternate for highway 41. But since the city probably hasn't any money left for such projects, let's at least have traffic lights which will even up the flow of cars from one street to another, and maybe prevent a few little collisions. E. E. Z.

LOAFING TIME FOR PUPILS.

Standing about street corners and delicatessen stores in the late afternoon and evening are many teen age girls. They are pupils of the upper grades of the grammer schools. They do not need to stay home and they have not enough money to go any place.

Social institutions seem to have neglected to find a place for these young girls who are now wasting time idling about and no doubt bored with time on their hands. E. K.

ARMY'S RACIAL RULE IS UP FOR NEGRO DEBATE

"The Negro and National Defense" will be discussed at the first monthly meeting of the Chicago Council of Negro Organizations at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow evening in the Wabash Avenue Y. M. C. A. The council is a federation of nearly 100 religious, civic, educational, business, and social welfare organizations working for the advancement of the Negro.

Principal address on the main topic will be delivered by Sidney P. Brown, chairman of an advisory committee appointed by the Chicago Housing authority to coöperate with plans for the Ida B. Wells low cost housing project. Members are expected to debate on the war department's recent order to segregate Negroes in various branches of the service.

Among the organizations in the council are the Chicago Urban league, the Wabash Avenue Y. M. C. A., Chicago Negro Chamber of Commerce, Greek letter fraternities, church groups, and others.

The woman's division of the Urban league will present its opening fall program at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the ballroom at 4459 South Park way. The division's main projects, the community centers at 4564 Indiana avenue and at 2024 Maypole avenue, will be discussed and the 1940-'41 program will be announced, according to Mrs. Hugo B. Law, 5742 Kenwood avenue, president.

Main speakers on the program will be Mrs. Vera Green Edingburg and Mrs. Dorothy Bushness Cole. Mrs. Thelma Morrow is chairman of the arrangements committee, assisted by Mrs. Margaret Lane, 4722 Langley avenue; Mrs. Kathryn Dickerson, 3842 South Park way; Mrs. Lutherine Forward, Mrs. U. G. Dailey, Mrs. Ruth Allison, Mrs. Law, Mrs. Nelson Woodley, and Miss Elizabeth Galbreath.

23,000 X-RAYED FOR T. B. GERMS IN TRUCK CLINIC

Disease Roundup Entering Third Lap.

When the big, green truck bearing the lettering "Municipal Tuberculosis Sanitarium" moves to 45th street and South Park way next week, it will mark the beginning of the third lap in the largest X-ray survey for tuberculosis ever made. In five months the survey, which is free to every resident of the city, has recorded lung pictures of 23,000 persons in the south central district.

Tho the sanitarium's ideal objective of photographing the chests of all Chicagoans probably will not be realized, the response by the public so far has been excellent, Dr. Frederick Tice, president of the board of directors of the Municipal Tuberculosis Sanitarium, said last week. The survey is the result of a dream plan long cherished by the board. It requires that the truck park in the center of every Chicago community long enough to give all residents an opportunity to be examined.

Public to Be Educated.

The truck contains a miniature X-ray machine. The machine makes use of a 4 by 5 inch X-ray film which costs five cents, compared to 67 cents for a large film.

"We knew, when we began this plan, that we would have to educate the public on tuberculosis, first of all," says Dr. C. H. Payne, 4720 South Park way, field supervisor for the sanitarium. "We wanted the public to know that, without X-rays, tuberculosis could avoid detection, and that we were ready and eager to help them with treatment."

Because of its relatively high percentage of tuberculous patients, the south central district was selected as a starting point. The truck was parked next to the Wabash Avenue Y. M. C. A., 3763 South Wabash avenue, which was used for clerical work in connection with the survey. This was on April 15. By June 20, 10,000 of the 35,000 residents in the community had come to the truck to be X-rayed.

Search for T. B.

Ten field nurses were responsible for rounding up the thousands who applied for the examination. They made a house-to-house canvass of the one-half square mile immediately surrounding the "Y," established a building record and family count.

The survey has been in operation every day since April 15, except during August, when time was taken to modernize part of the mobile unit's equipment.

The truck is open all day during weekdays and from 1 until 9 p. m. on Sundays. For several weeks after it reaches a new neighborhood, the average daily number is approximately 300 X-rays. More than 400 persons have been X-rayed in one day on several occasions.

X-Rays Filed.

Each X-ray is examined at the city sanitarium and a card is made showing the result. If the picture reveals indications of the disease, the card, showing the extent of the illness, is mailed to one of the sanitarium's dispensaries. The dispensary then assumes the obligation of seeing that treatment is begun and of having all the patient's "contacts" X-rayed.

"In no sense," Dr. Payne declared, "do we compete with private physicians. It is rather a system of coöperation. We are merely trying to fight the spread of tuberculosis by bringing cases to light, and we are only too glad to turn them over to family doctors for treatment. Also any doctor may have his patient X-rayed by us free of charge."

Dr. E. P. Troy of the sanitarium is in charge of the survey, assisted by Dr. Arthur G. Falls and Dr. Payne, as field supervisors.

Making Books for the Blind

Mrs. Mary Rynder (left), chairman of the Braille Teaching center of the South Shore Red Cross unit, last week began showing volunteer workers how to transcribe Braille books for the blind. Two of the workers who will assist the unit every Monday morning will be Mrs. Herbert Ameisen (center), 6917 Crandon avenue, and Mrs. C. V. Payson, 7205 Dorchester avenue. The books will be given to the public library.

THE O'TOOLES! THEY CAME UP WITH CHICAGO

Story of One Typical Irish Family.

bered running "all the way downtown" after the Chicago fire and falling into a bin of buttons in the Field and Leiter store.

He made a little money on the trip, too. He sold charred pieces of wood to fashionable folks driving thru the fire scorched streets. These souvenirs of the fire brought young Jimmy a quarter apiece. And Patrick O'Toole's son had begun his education the hard way.

Goes Into Packing Plant.

At 13, Patrick O'Toole's son followed the elder O'Toole into the packing plant. The lad worked at all kinds of manual labor; served as water boy on the new buildings for wages of 50 cents a day, and became, finally, head shipping clerk of one plant.

Jimmy O'Toole, who was to begin the study of law at night school at the age of 32, was 16 when he tried night school the first time.

The death of Patrick O'Toole left his son, then 18, at the head of the family. Jimmy wasn't panic stricken.

Came a Turning Point.

A turning point in the life of Jimmy O'Toole and, perhaps the fortunes of the family, came with his first layoff after his father's death. The other lads his age took the weeks of idleness as a matter of course. Jimmy had a family to support and he recalled a man who had a warehouse downtown and had often visited the yards. He wrote a letter of application, and he says that the effort "took me out of a rut."

An answer came, and O'Toole went to work in a warehouse cellar at Kinzie and Dearborn streets for $12 a week.

But his company reorganized and his job was eliminated. Jimmy O'Toole came back to the yards, beginning as a tally clerk for $50 a month. This was his first "white collar" job, he says, and he calls it his second milestone.

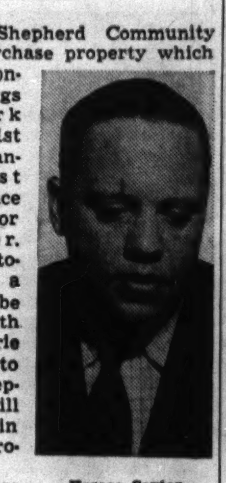
Wins School Election.

He was head shipping clerk when he left his company three years later. He won the school election that year in district No. 6, where he had been a pupil, and his political career had begun, as he says, "on the wrong foot." He was a candidate on the reform ticket,

But his political career had begun, and by the fall of 1888 he was a minority member of the general assembly. At the beginning of the legislature's session in 1889, O'Toole was 28 and he still lived back o' the yards, 47th and Paulina streets.

NEGRO CENTER IS TO EXPAND ITS FACILITIES

Good Shepherd to Buy Asylum Property.



Horace Cayton.

The Good Shepherd Community center will purchase property which includes six connected buildings on South Park way near 51st street, it was announced last week by Horace Cayton, director of the center. The property, together with a unit which will be built at 57th street and Prairie avenue, next to the Good Shepherd church, will be used jointly in the center's program.

"The purchase of the property, which has been owned by the Chicago Orphans' asylum, and the construction of the new unit are the culmination of a three year drive to obtain the funds necessary to give the entire community recreational, educational, healthful, and cultural facilities," commented Mr. Cayton, in making the announcement.

The idea for the community center was conceived by the Rev. Harold M. Kingsley, pastor of the Good Shepherd church, four years ago. Backed immediately by the Chicago Congregational union, the project soon became widely supported thruout the city and funds were raised for the building of a center on the grounds of the church. At that time it was decided to expand the board of directors and to purchase the Chicago Orphans' asylum property, which had been offered to the center.

Buildings Extend Block.

Each of the six separate but connected structures, which front on South Park way and extend a block to Calumet avenue, is three stories high and includes basement. Also there is a well equipped power plant, spacious grounds, gardens, and tennis courts. Originally the entire plant cost nearly $600,000.

Educational facilities will include a branch of the city public library, a study room for young students, who cannot work at home owing to overcrowded living conditions, a music appreciation room and a library of recordings, health, and sex education for young people and adults, and adult education and craft and theater workshop classes. Paul Robeson is scheduled to give the first recital in a lecture and concert series planned for next spring.

Plans likewise have been made for a little theater group and it is hoped that the technique of the "living newspaper," developed by the Federal Theater project, will make it possible to effectively dramatize community problems for the public.

Plan Research Program.

A research program and an archive of data on the Negro in Chicago will be maintained for the public. Available space not in use will be given over to WPA projects and a guest room will be maintained for community visitors.

Only the front building, Beecher hall, will be opened immediately. The others will be put into use from time to time during the progress of the "five year plan," which provides for the remodeling and opening of the buildings as fast as adequate support is assured.

No date has been set for the beginning of construction on the building next to the church. Tho it will complement otheers in the center's program, this unit will be owned and administered by the Good Shepherd church, while the unit on South Park way will be owned and administered by the board of directors. Selection of staff members for the latter is being made now.

CHURCH, AS OLD AS CHICAGO, WILL MARK 107TH ANNIVERSARY

Dr. Stackhouse.

The First Baptist church of Chicago, 935 East 50th street, which was founded when Chicago had a population of less than two hundred persons, will celebrate its 107th anniversary this week. An anniversary sermon will be preached at the 11 o'clock service this morning by Dr. Ernest Cadmon Colwell, dean of the divinity school at the University of Chicago. The principal speaker at the anniversary dinner at 6:30 o'clock Wednesday evening will be Dr. Perry J. Stackhouse, who is beginning his 20th year as minister of the church. During Dr. Stackhouse's first year as minister the present church structure was purchased from the Plymouth Congregation church. This is the seventh building the church has occupied.

St. Joseph's College Club to Give First Card Party

St. Joseph's College club will sponsor its first card party this evening in St. Augustine's auditorium, 50th and Laflin streets. Proceeds will be used toward the education of boys for the Franciscan priesthood. The club was organized six months ago to aid in supporting St. Joseph college, a Franciscan preparatory school at Westmont. Mrs. Edward A. Schlesser, 5311 South Bishop street, is president.

DISTRICT HEAD WILL BE GUEST OF ARCHE CLUB

Other Officers Also to Be Present.

Special guest of the Arche club for the Federation day program on Friday will be Mrs. John B. Simson, president of the Second district of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs. Other officers of the district and the presidents of all the district's federated clubs also will be guests at the meeting in the Shoreland hotel. The program will start at 2 o'clock.

Tea will be served and musical entertainment will be supplied by a trio consisting of Arvesta Parrish, contralto; Lila Groff, violinist, and Millicent Evans, pianist.

"The Beauties of Modern Cities" will be the title of an address by Dr. Scott Bedford at a meeting of the art class at 11 o'clock Friday morning in the Shoreland hotel. Mrs. Edward Heinz Jr., 5616 Blackstone avenue, chairman, will preside.

The music class will hold its annual reception at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 30, in the home of Mrs. Charles R. Walgreen, 4441 Drexel boulevard. George Bishop, tenor, accompanied by Cornelius Vleugel at the piano, will sing.

Chesterfield Woman's Club.

The annual fall party will be held on Tuesday in Tuley park fieldhouse, 90th street and St. Lawrence avenue. A dessert luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock followed by bridge. Proceeds from this and other ways and means projects will go to Burnside Settlement, Martha Washington Home for Crippled Children, Park Ridge School for Girls, Children's Scholarship league, Goodwill Industries, and the Red Cross.

Mrs. Willis K. Reynolds, chairman of the finance and revisions committee, is in charge of the party, assisted by Mrs. Guy A. Skinner, Mrs. Frank Derby, Mrs. Fern R. Ingman, Mrs. O. Perl Johnson, Mrs. Lester W. Copeland, Mrs. Thomas Ver Valin, and Mrs. J. M. Richardson.

Bryn Mawr Woman's Club.

Motion pictures on "Visual Education" and "Florida," the latter given by Mrs. Frances J. Waindle, will be highlights of the club's meeting tomorrow morning. Mrs. Arthur Strawbridge will preside. The afternoon session will be featured by a reading of "There Shall Be No Night," recent play by Robert E. Sherwood. It will be presented by Eleanor Sikes Peters. Mrs. Earl Schiek, chairman of art and literature, will present the speaker.

A studio tour will be conducted for members at 10 o'clock Friday morning under the leadership of Mrs. Earl Schiek.

Hyde Park Mothers Club.

A business meeting will be held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. L. G. Rothchild, 6616 Kimbark avenue. Mrs. D. M. Timberlake, president, will preside. A club institute on American citizenship will be supervised by Mrs. K. F. Land, delegate to the Second district in this department.

Hyde Park Travel Club.

Miss Mabel McCrimmon, a native Chilean, will address members at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Windermere East hotel. She will talk on "Arts of Chile" and will display textiles, furs, costumes, grass pictures, ceramics, and jewelry of native production.

At the morning session Mrs. E. W. Arnold, program chairman, will introduce Edwin M. Clough, assistant director of the Library of International Relations in Chicago, who will conduct a study hour on "The Present International Scene."

Mrs. B. Warren Brown, membership chairman, and her committee will give a tea to introduce new members to the club on Friday at the home of Mrs. John Howatt, 4815 Kenwood avenue.

Windsor Park Woman's Club.

Mrs. F. W. Julstrom, 7647 Colfax avenue, chairman of the garden department, will have charge of the morning program Tuesday in the new clubrooms in the Windsor Park Evangelical Lutheran church, 2619 East 76th street. Mrs. Julstrom will demonstrate unusual floral arrangements as she discusses "Winter Bouquets."

Mrs. H. C. Burgess, 3017 East 78th street, new member, will offer a group of songs at the afternoon meeting. She will be introduced by Mrs. John E. Baillie, music chairman. Miss Mary Meyer Bacon, lecturer, will be heard in a talk entitled "A Bit of This and That." She will be presented by Mrs. LeRoy Simpson, chairman of the literature department.

Members interested in music will gather at 1 o'clock for a study class to be conducted by Mrs. Baillie. At the close of afternoon session Mrs. Charles Johnson, 7814 Merrill avenue, and Mrs. David Knall, 7944 Saginaw avenue, will preside at tea tables prepared by Mrs. Herman Burghardt, social committee chairman.

Woodlawn Woman's Club.

The music department will present Norman Altermatt, violinist, at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the Southmoor hotel. Mrs. Richard Halstrom, chairman, will be in charge. Mrs. R. G. Penrose, director of the conservation class, will give a book review Tuesday morning on "Rich Land—Poor Land," by Stewart Chase. Also there will be a movie entitled "Conservation in Illinois" by Mrs. W. M. Thompson.

Woodlawn Study Club.

The regular meeting will be held tomorrow at the Plaisance hotel. At the morning session Mrs. W. R. Smith, president, will give a report on the state Federation convention, Mrs. J. K. Piety will report on the General Federation convention, and Mrs. J. Colin Moore will tell of her summer travels in the southwest.

In the afternoon Mrs. George Kirk, chairman of the citizenship department, will present Eston V. Tubbs of Morgan Park High school who will speak on "Americanism." Mrs. Richard Halstrom will sing several selections, accompanied by William Edwards Duffell.

Picked for Auto Show Revue

AMERICAN LEGION WILL DEDICATE NEW FLAG POLE

Vanderbilt Post Is to Have Charge.

A new flag and flagpole recently erected at Gibson engine house of the Indiana Harbor Belt railway will be dedicated at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon by Commodore Vanderbilt post of the American Legion, assisted by Hammond, Hessville, Victory, and Maywood posts. Francis P. Madden is Vanderbilt post commander. The 60 foot staff was constructed by employés of the engine house.

Preceding the dedication ceremony, there will be a parade of participating posts. Hammond and New York Central railroad police will be escorts. Harry F. Derne, parade marshall, will be assisted by G. I. Race.

City officials of Hammond, East Chicago, Calumet City, and Whiting will be guests.

Fort Dearborn post will hold its 12th annual Halloween party Saturday night at 6412 Cottage Grove avenue. Otto Vetter is chairman, with John Devereaux as co-chairman. z

Following its annual custom, Burke-O'Malley post will celebrate Navy day, 40 per cent of its membership being made up of sailors. Jimmy Conzelman, coach of the Chicago Cardinal football team, will be guest speaker at the program Friday night in St. Kevin's hall, 10501 Torrence avenue. Perce Brantigan, past Cook county commander, will attend. The public is invited.

New officers recently installed by Board of Trade post are Arthur A. Langlund, commander; Edward J. Kelly, senior vice commander; Iver Johnson, junior vice commander; Harry C. Freund, adjutant; William Schwartz, finance officer, and Louis W. Ernst, chaplain.

The auxiliary of Chipilly post will hold its third annual Halloween jamboree Saturday night at the armory, 16th street and Michigan avenue. Mrs. Elizabeth Coleman is chairman in charge. Mrs. Hazel Wingerter is president of the unit.

Thomas E. Doonan will give an address, "Ode to the Flag" this afternoon at 3 o'clock at a public meeting in Ridge fieldhouse. New voters will be honored.

SERBIAN PAPER, 35 YEARS OLD, MARKS BIRTHDAY

The 35th anniversary of the establishment of the first Serbian newspaper in this country will be celebrated this afternoon in the South Chicago Masonic temple. The program will be attended by thousands of Jugo-Slav-American leaders from all over the United States. The paper is the United Serbians, 536 South Clark street.

The celebration will consist of a jubilee edition of John R. Palandech's newspapers, a program of Jugo-Slav folk songs and music, and a technicolor film on Jugo-Slavia. Opera stars, leading soloists, national dancing groups and a number of singing societies and tamburitza and dance orchestras will participate.

One of the highlights will be the traditional Serbian Kolo and the Slovene wedding dance by a group of Jugo-Slav-American girls in peasant costume. Another highlight will be the singing of Slovene songs by the Korencheh sisters, Marie and Gene.

HISTORY TEACHER WILL SPEAK ON BLITZ TECHNIQUE

The early stages of German blitzkrieg techniques will be discussed in public lectures by faculty members of the University of Chicago this week. The lectures, sponsored by the downtown university college of the university, will begin at 6:45 o'clock in the Art institute.

Hugh M. Cole, instructor in history, will speak on "The Blitzkrieg in Action," third in a series of "War in the Era of Blitzkrieg," Friday evening. "English Poetry in the 1930's" will be the subject of a lecture by David Daiches, English instructor, on Tuesday evening.

Dr. Ralph Buchsbaum, instructor in zoölogy, will discuss "Lower Animals: Predators, Scavengers, and Parasites" on Wednesday evening. Dr. Buchsbaum's lecture is one in a series by members of the university's division of biological sciences on the general subject of living organisms and the problem of food-getting.

Prof. Merriam to Lecture on Democracy at U. of C.

"What is Democracy" is the title of a talk to be given by Charles E. Merriam, professor emeritus of the University of Chicago, at 4:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the university. The lecture is part of the university's program of listing defense fields in which it is most fitted to contribute.

A W-G-N SCOOP! PREMIERE OF NEW DE MILLE MOVIE

Stars Madeleine Carroll, Gary Cooper on Air.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Next Thursday W-G-N will present a notable radio scoop—the radio première of Cecil B. DeMille's new $2,000,000 technicolor Paramount production, "North West Mounted Police." Chicago will have its first real motion picture première that evening when the lavish production is presented at the Chicago theater with all the stars and Mr. DeMille participating.

Cecil B. DeMille.

All the stars, headed by Gary Cooper, Madeleine Carroll and Paulette Goddard, will be presented on the W-G-N première of the picture, which will be presented on In Chicago Tonight from 7:30 to 8 p. m., station, will direct the air première. at the theater. Mr. DeMille will be master of ceremonies.

William A. Bacher, production chief of W-G-N, who last week obtained the exclusive broadcasting rights for the station, will direct the air première His writing and production staff is now busy on the radio adaptation.

De Mille to Introduce Stars.

Other stars who will appear on the W-G-N show will be Preston Foster, Lynne Overman and Robert Preston. Additional Hollywood notables are expected to be on hand for the broadcast.

Mr. De Mille will introduce the stars who will present specially adapted scenes from the all color production which depicts Gary Cooper as a Texas Ranger who journeys to Canada in search of an outlaw. Hollywood previewers have pronounced "North West Mounted Police" as the greatest among De Mille's impressive list of motion picture productions.

Immediately following the broadcast the stars will join in a parade thru bedecked loop streets and then go to the Chicago theater for the première showing of the picture. [The picture will open the same evening in a selected list of other theaters in Chicago.]

Second Broadcast Planned.

Batteries of kleig lights, clicking newsreel cameras and flaring flashbulbs will add color to the loop première. The State Street council, loop business men's organization, headed by David Mayer Jr. is coöperating with W-G-N, Balaban and Katz, and Paramount pictures in this gala première.

W-G-N is planning a second broadcast from the scene of the premiere in the loop, employing the W-G-N short wave unit from 8:30 to 9 p. m., provided the time is available.

This gala broadcast will be the third "movie night" presentation on W-G-N in as many weeks. Last week scenes from "Dreaming Out Loud," the new Lum and Abner picture, with Frances Langford, were broadcast. One week earlier W-G-N-Mutual aired highlights of the première of Knute Rockne—All American" from South Bend, Ind. All three presentations are realizations of W-G-N's constant objective—of presenting the newest and the best in entertainment first!

LEW LOYAL, BETSY FOLLOW TRAIL OF SPY ORGANIZATION

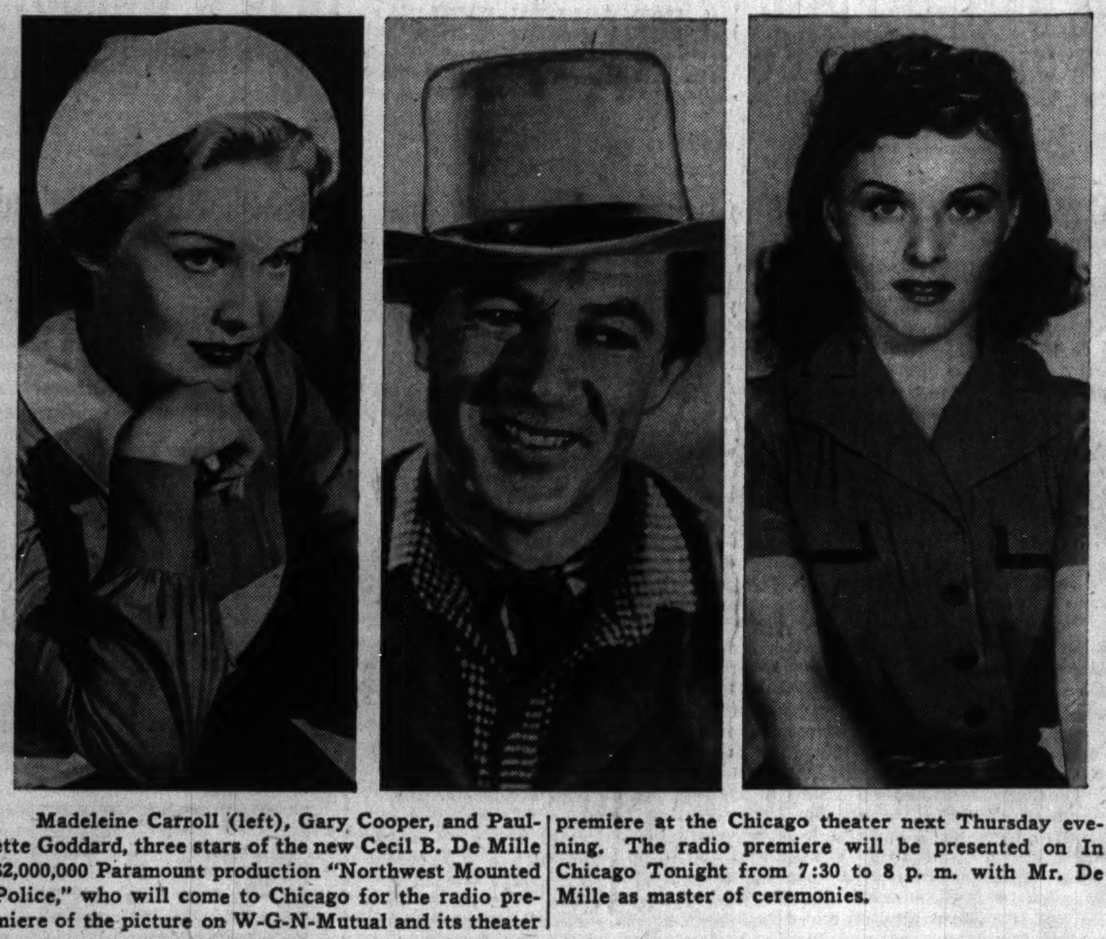
What an all-American boy does when he discovers a mysterious anti-American organization will be depicted on the new Lew Loyal adventure feature at 7 p. m. next Friday over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Lew Loyal, with his friend Betsy True and his Uncle Mack, a secret serevice agent, will follow the trail of the Brothers of Freedom, suspected spy organization, as next Friday's episode opens.

Young Jack Bivans, Chicago boy, plays in the rôle of Lew Loyal. Betsy True is portrayed by Patti Willis and Bret Morrison, widely known radio actor, takes the part of Uncle Mack. Script for the new drama is written by John D. Hess. Production is in charge of William A. Bacher, with Blair Walliser as director.

The adventures of Lew Loyal are also portrayed in the Comic magazine of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. A $10,000 contest for boys and girls is being sponsored by THE TRIBUNE in connection with the comic strip and radio program.

Star in W-G-N Movie Premiere



Madeleine Carroll (left), Gary Cooper, and Paulette Goddard, three stars of the new Cecil B. De Mille $2,000,000 Paramount production "Northwest Mounted Police," who will come to Chicago for the radio premiere of the picture on W-G-N-Mutual and its theater premiere at the Chicago theater next Thursday evening. The radio premiere will be presented on In Chicago Tonight from 7:30 to 8 p. m. with Mr. De Mille as master of ceremonies.

BOAKE CARTER RETURNS TO AIR NEXT WEDNESDAY

Commentator to Start W-G-N—MBS Series.

After an absence of almost two years from the networks, Boake Carter, nationally known news commentator and editorialist will return to the air next Wednesday. He will be heard from 7:30 to 7:45 p. m. on Mondays, Wednesday, and Saturday weekly over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system.

This series will be sponsored by United Airlines. This is the first time an air line has sponsored a regular program on a major network. Carter, who is a pilot, has flown more than 200,000 miles on commercial lines.

Most of his broadcasts will originate in New York but when he travels about the country on lecture assignments he will be picked up from various cities.

Carter has had a life filled with adventure. Born in Baku, Russia, where his father was in the consular service, he was educated at Cambridge university. During the war he served with the Royal Flying corps; later was a roving correspondent for the London Daily Mail. He illustrated his own stories. He is also a portrait painter.

He was a reporter in Philadelphia from 1924 to 1932 when he got into radio work. For years he was followed by a multitude of listeners because of his outspoken comments on national and world affairs.

This will be his first radio series on a national network with half the world at war.

SOPHIE TUCKER'S SONG STORY ON MELODY STREET

The story of the song that made Sophie Tucker famous will be dramatized on "Melody Street," presented from 7 to 7:30 p. m. next Wednesday over W-G-N.

Back in 1910, Sophie Tucker, the original red hot mamma of the night clubs, introduced "Some of These Days" and catapulted to fame with the song. The story of the song's origins will be dramatized under the direction of Blair Walliser, W-G-N producer. Harold Stokes and his W-G-N Dance orchestra will contribute musical numbers to the weekly stroll down Melody street.

'In His Steps,' Dramatic Series, Starts on W-G-N

A new half hour dramatic program based on the novel "In His Steps" will be heard over W-G-N from 3:30 to 4 p. m. today, and at the same hour each week. Each Sunday's episode will tell a complete story, with "The Boy Singer" the title of the opening production. Stories of intense human interest will be on the air each week. The novel, written by Charles M. Sheldon, sold 22,000,000 copies.

Eddie and Fanny Plan New Series Over W-G-N

Eddie and Fanny Cavanaugh, veterans of the air who know every one in radio, will be presented on W-G-N from 3:30 to 3:45 p. m. Mondays thru Fridays, beginning tomorrow. The Cavanaughs will broadcast from their studio in the Chicago theater and will answer the questions of fans about radio celebrities.

FANTASTIC TALE OF CHILD GIANTS ON 'PETER QUILL'

A bizarre scheme to build an army of child giants—mentally incapable of reason, blindly loyal to their masters—will be unfolded on the Peter Quill show today. The fantastic story of half-mad Prince Hirogi and his baby giants will be heard from 3 to 3:30 p. m. over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Blair Walliser, writer and producer of the Quill series, projects possible insidious uses of glandular injections, now used by doctors to aid handicapped people, in this episode. As with other incidents on the Quill show, the story is on the borderline of reality—a possible glimpse into the future.

Ted Malone to Broadcast from Home of Parkman

The home of Francis Parkman in Independence, Mo., will be visited by Ted Malone during his tour around the country for his American Pilgrimage broadcasts at 1 p. m. today over WENR.

WILKOMIRSKI'S SOLO TO FEATURE SYMPHONIC HOUR

Marion Claire Will Sing Three Songs.

Michael Wilkomirski, concertmaster of the W-G-N Symphony orchestra, will be featured on the Chicago Tribune Symphonic Hour tonight in a violin solo presentation of Ravel's "Tzigane." The concert will be broadcast from 9 to 10 p. m. over W-G-N, the coast to coast Mutual network, and the entire network of the Canadian Broadcasting corporation.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of the CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak during the broadcast. Marion Claire, noted soprano, will sing three solos and Henry Weber will lead the orchestra in selections from Von Weber, Mendelssohn, and Tschaikowsky.

After the orchestra's opening presentation of the overture to "Euryanthe," by Carl Maria von Weber, Miss Claire will sing Oscar Strauss' "Music in My Heart" as the first of her solos. The orchestra will play the scherzo in G minor for string octet, by Felix Mendelssohn, and will conclude the hour of music with the finale from Peter Tschaikowsky's Fifth Symphony.

Miss Claire and the augmented chorus will sing "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean" and "Calm As the Night," by Joseph Bohm.

The Symphonic Hour is produced by William A. Bacher.

The complete program:

The musical commentary is written by Cecil Smith of The Chicago Tribune music and drama staff.

The Chicago Theater of the Air will broadcast "The Student Prince" from 9 to 10 p. m. next Saturday over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system. Three well known artists, Marion Claire, Jan Peerce, and Bruce Foote, will sing the leads in Sigmund Romberg's gay operetta.

Jan Peerce, noted radio and concert tenor, makes a triumphant return to the Theater of the Air after his appearance in "The Student Prince" in the spring series. He will again portray the part of Prince Karl Franz.

Miss Claire, W-G-N's operatic soprano, who sang opposite Peerce in the spring production as Kathie, will again be starred.

Altho a newcomer to the W-G-N operettas, baritone Bruce Foote, is known thruout the country and especially in the midwest. He won second place in the Chicago Opera Company auditions this season.

The operetta will be under direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs and productions at W-G-N. Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N and artistic director of the Chicago Opera Company, will lead the W-G-N concert orchestra and chorus.

WENDELL L. WILLKIE TO SPEAK ON HUMAN NEEDS AT 1 P.M. TODAY

Wendell L. Willkie, Republican Presidential nominee, will be heard over W-G-N and the Mutual network at 1 p. m. today when he speaks in behalf of the "Community Mobilization for Human Needs."

Mr. Willkie will be introduced by Charles Francis Adams, national chairman of the charity organization. The half-hour program will also feature a show by members of the Screen Actors' guild and Felix Mills' orchestra. During the guild's program Hedda Hopper will interview Donald Duck. The program will originate from Boston, Hollywood, and some point in Wisconsin.

The broadcast will also be heard over WBBM and WENR.

Friendship

One of the richest rewards of life is friendship. No man, however strong, can be truly happy without at least one other person that he is pleased and proud to call FRIEND. And the happiest is he who has a host of friends . . . who keeps making new ones.

Fostering friendship is one of the most pleasant aspects of the entire program of the YMCA. In effect, we take you by the arm, present you to another and say, "Here is a friend." What we actually do, of course, is give you an opportunity to enjoy a common interest. What sounder foundation can there be for a real and lasting friendship?

It is this function which has been one of the greatest factors in making the YMCA and its work the tradition that it is today. The possibilities for friendship, so amply provided by the YMCA, are a magnet which draws many differing personalities and matches each with another, to the incontestable advantage of all concerned.

Whatever your interests, you will build friendships among the congenial persons engaged in the same activities at the YMCA.

Stop at the YMCA most convenient to you today and ask for complete details of a membership for this Fall and Winter.

RIDING STORIES IN THE TRIBUNE ELICIT PRAISE

Start Many on the Way to Horsemanship.

Horsemen and horsewomen of the Chicago area including many leaders of the sport, have expressed their commendation for the series of riding stories appearing in the Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE under the heading "A Tenderfoot Learns to Ride."

This series, written by Harold Smith, a member of THE TRIBUNE staff, began last July 21 and will be concluded with next Sunday's installment.

Most of those who have lauded the series have urged that it be reproduced in booklet form, a suggestion that has been taken under advisement by THE TRIBUNE.

Riding Interest Increases.

Some of the commentators credit this feature and other equestrian stories that have appeared in the Metropolitan section recently with responsibility for much of the increase in riding interest shown this summer. One of these is Herbert J. Lorber, president of the Town and Country Equestrian association, director of the Arlington Jockey club, and former polo player.

"There has been a sharp upturn this year in the number of new riders," Lorber said. "The increase has been too big to be attributed to normal growth. I am convinced the Tenderfoot series was the major factor in this unusual growth. The stories, based on sound horsemanship principles, point out graphically the simplicity and the pleasure of enjoying park and forest preserve woodlands from horseback."

Wayne Dinsmore, secretary of the Horse and Mule Association of America, also credited the Tribune series with stimulating interest in riding, and urged that the stories be collectively issued "for the lasting benefit they can confer on the sport of horsemanship."

Many Start Riding.

Riding apparel dealers and others catering to the needs of the equestrian world say that the demand for "first" outfits by beginning riders has never been greater than at present.

A. K. Gordon, manager of the riding apparel department of a large store attributed a one-third increase in sales largely to THE TRIBUNE'S stories of horse world activities and to the Tenderfoot series.

Similar comment was made by Don Iltis, manager of another large store catering to the starting rider.

The unusual interest created by the Tenderfoot stories is shown by the fact that inquiries concerning them came from states as far east as New York and as far west as Kansas. Numerous readers wrote that they had clipped the stories and studied them as an aid in learning to ride.

There are certain definite points of etiquet to be observed by all considerate riders of the horse trails and bridle paths, I have learned by actual experience since I began taking instruction from Elmer J. Holdorf. I quote a few of them below, substantially as they were given to me:

Be considerate to your mount always, or good riders will condemn you, perhaps even to your face.

If you're to ride in company with some one else, don't start out until your companions are mounted, or you will make their steeds restless.

It's best not to cluck at your horse to start him or urge him on faster. Other mounts nearby may respond to it. Anyhow, it isn't necessary.

Keep your horse under control at all times, and especially when others are about you; most saddle horses are spirited creatures, easily excited.

Some Horses Kick.

Don't ride less than half a length away from the horse in front, which may kick no matter how well behaved he is considered.

Scold your horse if he shows signs of biting another. Usually a sharp word from you is enough to remind him of his manners.

Never run your horse past other mounted riders. Horses are very susceptible to the example of others of their kind, and you might start a small stampede.

Don't Let Horse Browse.

Keep your mount from browsing along the trail. It's not only impolite on the horse's part [and a well-mannered horse knows this], but it's also destructive of park and forest preserve plant life, that should be saved for every one's enjoyment.

Steer your horse around mudholes if possible. Getting him muddy is not only unsightly, but it makes extra work for the stable hands.

Be careful of fire. Be sure your cigarets and matches are extinguished before you throw them away. Report suspicious smoke at the nearest telephone.

Stop and look both ways before crossing a highway.

DIVIDE SIX ROOM APARTMENT INTO 2 SMALLER ONES

Owner Himself Builds an Ornamental Door.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

This is a story which will interest you because of the many ingenious, attractive changes made in a six room apartment in Chicago. It will have further interest for you if you have ever considered the possibilities of dividing a large apartment into two smaller ones.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald M. MacDonald, 6425 Ingleside avenue, Chicago, were faced with the problem of doing just that.

They owned a two apartment building and felt that the first floor apartment which they occupied was larger than they needed; that if they could divide it and make two apartments where only one had been before, the arrangement would give them just the amount of space they wanted.

The apartment had six rooms and one bath, a long hallway running from front to back, and a large back porch. It was not a layout which seemed entirely amenable to change, but Mr. MacDonald felt he could do things with it. He is a carpenter, and a deft expert in working with wood. Both he and Mrs. MacDonald had faith that they could get results—and they did!

Make Two Apartments.

Now the first floor of the building has been divided into two apartments, and the entrance to the MacDonald home has been placed on the north side of the structure. New steps and wrought iron rail lead to a finely designed door which Mr. MacDonald built himself.

This room was once the dining room of the apartment. The beams were removed from ceiling, walls replastered, and radiator handsomely inclosed in ivory cabinet which matches the woodwork. The walls were canvased in ivory tone, with a pale green ceiling and a wood rose carpeting.

Beyond this room, and adding to its apparent size, are French doors which lead out to the living-dining porch.

Build New Bathroom.

A new bathroom was installed and it's a little beauty. The walls are of structural glass, with a faint peach glow—reflected from the soft coloring in the rubber tile floor, in the deep pink of the shower curtains, and the dusty pink of the towels and accessories. The shower and tub are built-in and there's a small casement window over the tub.

This bathroom occupies the spot where formerly the pantry stood.

The kitchen was changed considerably, in process of general renovation. It was much larger in its original state. Its ceiling was lowered, new cabinets and cupboards were built.

Kitchen wainscoat and upper walls are painted cream and white, while the trim and accessories are orange.

First, more light and air were brought into the room by building a new, large French window in place of the old, smaller one. The ceiling was lowered and a new maple floor was laid.

M'CARTHYS RETURN TO WEDDING ALTAR FOR GOLDEN JUBILEE

Mr. and Mrs. James F. McCarthy returned to St. Bridget's church, Archer avenue and Arch street, recently to repeat the vows they had taken 50 years ago at their wedding ceremony. They came to church for their golden anniversary rites from the cottage at 2515 Eleanor street, where they have lived all of the 50 years since October of 1890.

Both Mr. and Mrs. McCarthy remember the "Archey" road of Finley Peter Dunne's "Mr. Dooley" stories.

Mr. McCarthy was born 73 years ago at 231 South Market street. He and his parents were among the thousands who fled the flames of the Chicago fire. His wife, the former Margaret Dillon, was born at 3001 South Throop street, and she has never lived outside the "Archey" road neighborhood. She is 70 years old.

The McCarthys have nine children, all of whom reside in Chicago. They are: Mrs. Frank McMahon, Mrs. Esther Glazer, Mrs. Steven Prokup, Mrs. A. H. Peterson, Mrs. F. C. Hartig, James, Walter, Martin, and John. There are 16 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

RAT WAR MOVES TO NEW WARDS; TOLL MOUNTING

14 Wards Already Baited with Red Squill.

The city's war against rats rolled on last week, as the army of rat baiters, equipped with poisonous red squill, moved into 15 new wards, placing bait in every rat hole. The exterminators, working out of Commissioner of Public Works Oscar E. Hewitt's office, have so far killed an estimated 400,000 rats, and the toll is mounting every day.

According to the latest report from Commissioner Hewitt 14 wards have been baited and the first stage of the destruction is completed. These wards are the 22d, 23d, 26th, 29th, 30th, 31st, 33d, 35th, 37th, 39th, 47th, 48th, 49th, and 50th. With these sections now under control work has been started in the 1st, 3d, 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 10th, 16th, 18th, 21st, 32d, 34th, 36th, and 40th.

Rat Canvass Made.

The battle against the rodents has been helped by a house to house canvass to ascertain where and under what conditions rats have been seen in the neighborhoods. With more than one-third of the city already checked the relief workers who are doing the baiting are using the reports to guide their work.

35 Wards 100 Per Cent.

As the work of exterminating the pests is being carried out only in wards where 100 per cent of the buildings are supplied with garbage cans the drive to supply every building with a receptacle is being pushed harder. At the latest report 35 out of the 50 city wards were 100 per cent supplied.

Only two wards on the south side fall short of being 100 per cent supplied with garbage cans. The 2d ward is 90.8 per cent supplied, and 588 buildings are without cans. The 9th ward is 97.9 per cent supplied, and has 280 buildings without cans.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Oct. 21.

Grapevines planted during fall may do better than spring planted stock because of an earlier start. The grape can be moved easily as soon as the leaves fall from well ripened wood. Make cuttings 8 to 12 inches long and with three joints. Make the lower cut just below joint and the upper cut about an inch above the bud. Bury the cuttings in the soil until spring and line out in the garden. Cuttings of many kinds of shrubs can be handled in the same manner with good results.

Tuesday, Oct. 22.

Bittersweet vines can be propagated from seeds sown this fall by root cuttings, or from soft wood cuttings. It makes a strong vine in partial shade and is fine for the north porch.

Wednesday, Oct. 23.

A number of bulbous plants do well in the rockery. The grape hyacinth is delightful for banks and pockets among the rocks. They grow from 5 to 6 inches high. Glory of the Snow has a fine blue flower, doing nicely in colonies, like the snowdrops and quills. The snowdrop and squill look attractive when dotted between bulbs. Regale lilies between peonies will prove attractive and various other combinations easily can be arranged.

Thursday, Oct. 24.

If the garden has not been put in good condition see that it is done at once. The vegetable garden plot should be cleaned of all débris, the ground given a good coat of barnyard manure if it is available, spaded under, and the soil allowed to remain in the rough. Frost will mellow the soil and planting will be easier next spring. All rubbish that can be burned should be destroyed. The tools should be cleaned and stored.

Friday, Oct. 25.

Tulips can be planted as long as the ground can be worked. Take good care of the bulbs now because foreign sources of supply are cut off. Get the neighbors to help and have the vacant lot next door plowed this fall for next spring's planting. If it is not needed for vegetables cover crops can be sown to keep down weeds; it is one way to aid in city beautification and to combat weeds.

Saturday, Oct. 26.

Root pruning fruit trees that have made too rank growth is often beneficial. Take a sharp spade and cut thru the thick roots on one side the first year; if that fails to check the growth and cause fruitfulness, the other side may be cut the second year. This refers to older trees that do not fruit well.

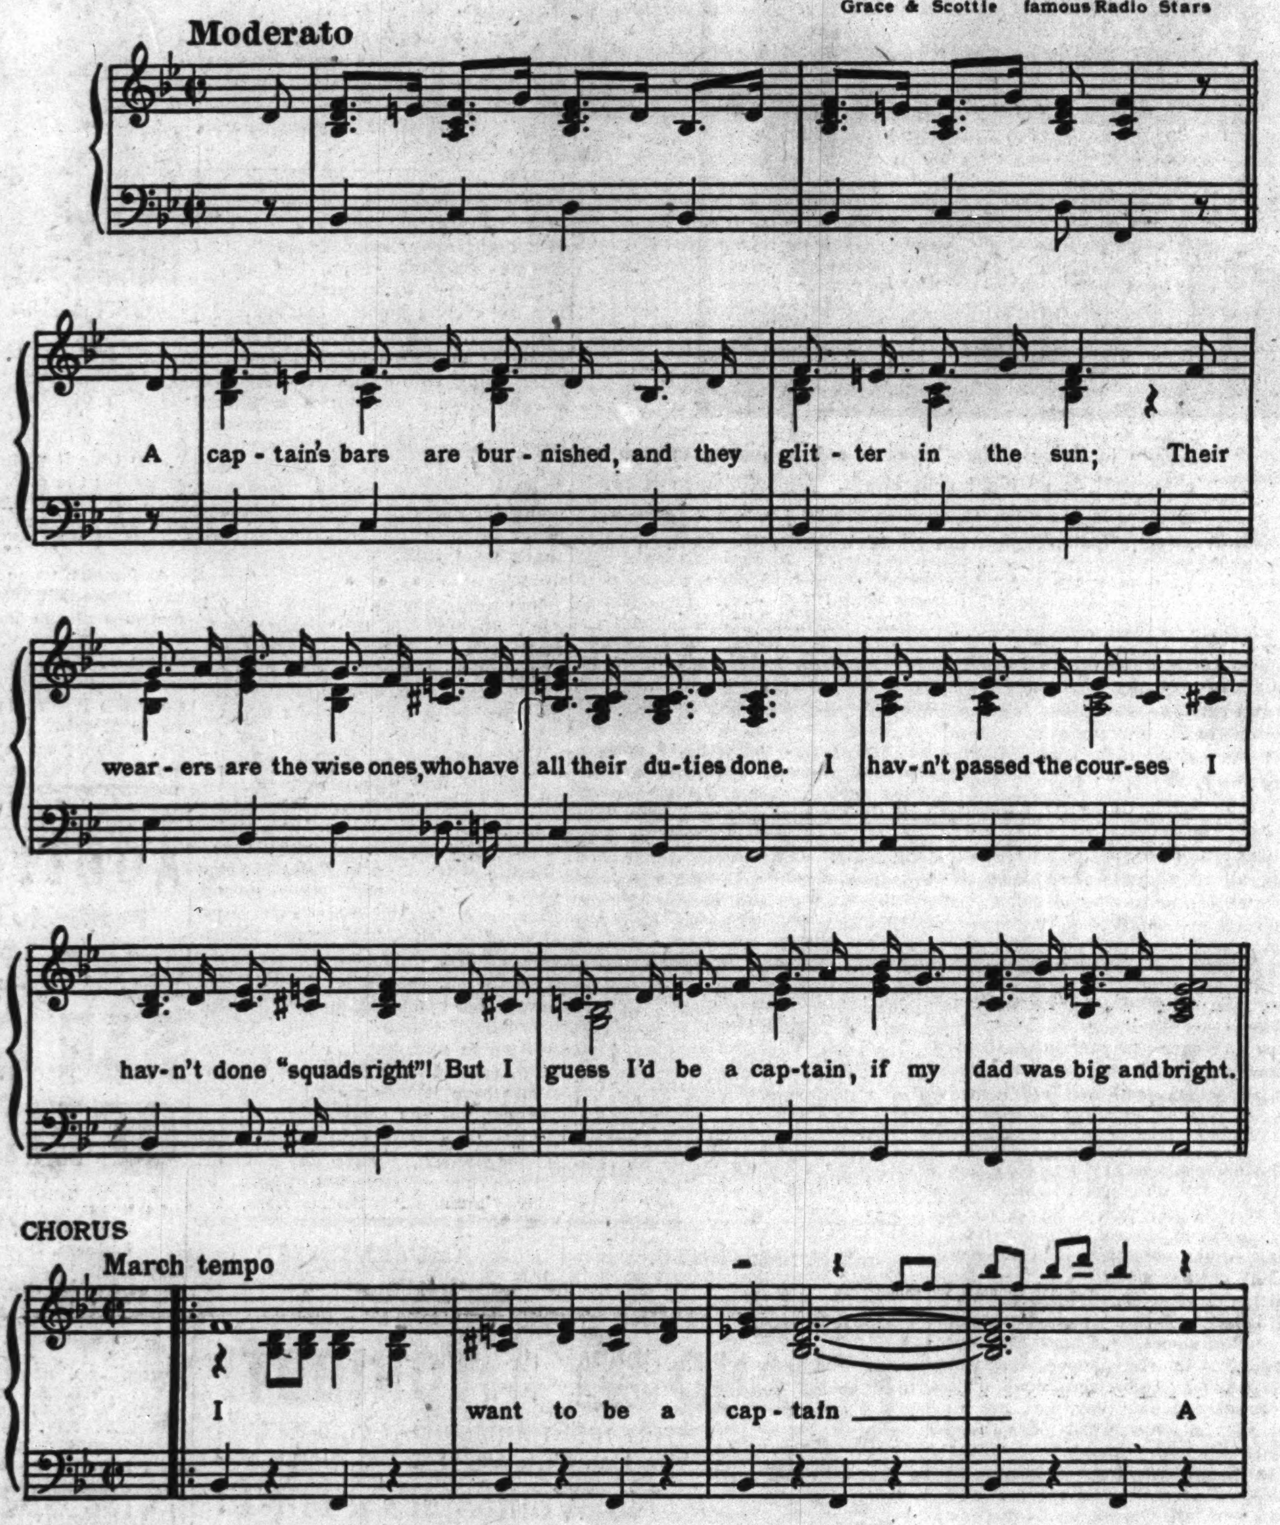
Elliott, I Wanna Be A Cap'n Too!

Arranged by C. R. Huff

Words and Music by
GRACE JUSTUS & JACK MACLEAN
Grace & Scottie famous Radio Stars



Moderato
A cap-tain's bars are bur-nished, and they glit-ter in the sun; Their wear-ers are the wise ones, who have all their du-ties done. I hav-n't passed the cour-ses I hav-n't done "squads right"! But I guess I'd be a cap-tain, if my dad was big and bright.
CHORUS
March tempo
I want to be a cap-tain A cap-tain in the U. S. Ar-my corps. I had my C. C. train-ing While El-li-ott spout-ed ra-di-o and I'm sore I have no friends in Wash-ing-ton, ain't got no par-ty pull But when it comes to com-mon sense, you bet I'm no darn fool! O-o-h! I want to be a cap-tain A cap-tain in the U. S. Ar-my Corps.

Elliott, I Wanna Be A Cap'n Too-2

RAYNER, DALHEIM & CO MUSIC PRINTERS CHICAGO

SECOND VERSE:
I haven't had the courses, and I haven't made the grade;
I can't shoot a pistol; I can't pass on parade,
But father was the Chief and he knew his stuff.
He just whispered to "my friends" and my friends made the bluff.
CHORUS: I want to be a, etc.

THIRD VERSE:
O, you may be the Captain, and your dad may be the chief,
You have got your radio, and you may not need relief;
The draft may not get you, and you have three sons,
But I'd like to be a Captain, if I knew the great big guns.
CHORUS: I want to be a, etc.

FOURTH VERSE:
I haven't been to Hyde Park, and I'm not known up there;
I have no pull in Washington, so a gun I'll have to bear.
My Congressman's not friendly; King Franklin doesn't care,
So I'll have to be a private, and the insult I must bear.
CHORUS: I want to be a, etc.

Scenes from "The Time of Your Life"

Leo Chalzel (left), Julie Haydon, and Eddie Dowling in "The Time of Your Life."

A Song and Dance Man Climbs Artistic Ladder

Eddie Dowling Comes Here in New Comedy

By Cecil Smith.

One of the fascinating qualities of the theater is its habit of enabling its gifted workers to climb from humble beginnings up to a high rung of the artistic ladder. No institution in American life operates upon a more truly democratic principle than the theater; in no vocation do sheer talent and merit, all by themselves, win more spontaneous recognition.

William Saroyan. [Vandamm Photo.]

Take the case of Eddie Dowling, who makes his first Chicago appearance in a nonmusical play when "The Time of Your Life" comes to the Erlanger theater a week from Monday. Mr. Dowling's professional history as an actor parallels, in a measure, that of Gertrude Lawrence. Both — Miss Lawrence in England and Mr. Dowling in this country — began as variety entertainers and rose speedily to featured positions in successful first-rank musical comedies. Both remained in the musical comedy field for a number of years, establishing themselves as top entertainers.

• • •

And then, in their separate ways, both Miss Lawrence and Mr. Dowling deserted the musical comedy arena for speaking parts of a nature generally considered more exacting, and both succeeded in winning audiences at the same time larger and more discriminating.

Whereas Miss Lawrence proceeded to establish her mastery of high comedy, Mr. Dowling turned himself into an actor-producer, with a sense of deep responsibility for the progress and meaningfulness of the American theater.

It was a far cry from "Thumbs Up" to "King Richard II.," yet Mr. Dowling was able to make the necessary mental transition in less than three years. In 1934 he had produced "Thumbs Up" as a musical, with himself as star. In 1937 the transformed Eddie Dowling was sinking his resources in a revival of a traditionally unsuccessful and neglected Shakespeare play, with Maurice Evans as star, and with no rôle whatever in it for himself.

Since 1937 Mr. Dowling has been busier as producer than as actor. He has appeared in only two of his own productions, Philip Barry's "Here Come the Clowns" and the present William Saroyan comedy, "The Time of Your Life." In the meantime he has also presented two Paul Vincent Carroll dramas, "Shadow and Substance" and "The White Steed," each of which, in its particular season, received the New York Drama Critics' Circle award for the best foreign play of the year. "Shadow and Substance" is called to mind again by the presence of its feminine lead, Julie Haydon, in the cast of "The Time of Your Life."

In "The Time of Your Life" Mr. Dowling has associated himself with one of America's most reputable and distinctive producing organizations, the Theater Guild. The comedy was produced coöperatively by the Guild and Mr. Dowling, with Mr. Dowling assuming responsibility for the direction.

While he does not promise that his song-and-dance days are conclusively over, Mr. Dowling's thoughts nowadays seem to run exclusively in the direction of more serious endeavors. He cannot, it is true, claim to have discovered William Saroyan, since the Group theater had broken the ice with "My Heart's in the Highlands," but he can at least exult in the incontrovertible fact that he has been the first to turn a Saroyan play into an accepted popular success. And, as a result of "The Time of Your Life," he can pin medals onto his chest from both the Pulitzer prize committee and the New York Drama Critics' Circle. No other producer's play ever won both awards.

He is not too clear as to his future. Already this year he has suffered one noble failure—the highbrow, super-intelligent musical piece called "The Little Dog Laughed," which, at its tryout, did not look right for a New York engagement. He is thinking about a new manuscript, "Lightning Before Death," by Hardwick Nevin, in which he might act a troubadour of 14th century France. But that is far ahead. "The Time of Your Life" is to have an extensive tour after it leaves Chicago.

DEADPAN TORCH SINGER

One of the hilarious moments in "Meet the People" is supplied by Marion Colby, who deadpans her way thru a couple of hot torch songs. The revue continues to flourish at the Grand Opera house.

Drama Notes

Last Tuesday was the first anniversary of "The Male Animal." On Oct. 16, 1939, the comedy was revealed to its first audience in San Diego, Cal. Six members of the present company participated in the première—Elliott Nugent, Leon Ames, Robert Scott, Julie Stevens, Ivan Simpson, and Richard Beckhard. The rôle of Ellen Turner, now played by Elizabeth Love, was originally taken by Mary Astor. Mr. and Mrs. Nugent celebrated the first birthday of "The Male Animal" last Tuesday with a party which took on added sentimental interest because the day was also the Nugents' 10th wedding anniversary.

At the San Diego opening, Mr. Nugent recalled, the laughter was so explosive and prolonged that the actors had difficulty riding past it. This difficulty may also have been heightened by the fact that both Mr. Nugent and Mr. Ames, for some time employés of the cinema, has been away from a living audience too long to feel instantly at ease. The engagement of "The Male Animal" in San Diego and subsequently in Los Angeles was short, for it was removed from the boards for revision, and was not restaged until January.

"Meet the People," the surprise success of the year, is dividing up into additional companies like an ameba—or is it a paramecium? The original cast, now at the Grand Opera house, is fixing to stay here quite a while, since folks are coming to see it in satisfying numbers. Meanwhile the second company, formed last July to keep the torch lighted in Hollywood, continues to attract both California natives and Iowa visitors in an undiminishing procession. And now the latest word concerns a company for Mexico, to begin its cultivation of Latin-American sympathies within a very few weeks.

The Hollywood Theater alliance, which produced "Meet the People," has a reassuring guarantee of an 18 week engagement in the capital city of Mexico. You may not know it, but there are four profitable theatrical stands en route from the Texas border to the city of Mexico. After the 18 weeks in the capital, plus whatever extention may be required, the company will move to Yucatan, sail to Havana, and finally reach New Orleans and the rest of the deep south—where, no doubt, the skit entitled "The Dear Old South" will be fiercely resented. Incidentally, Latin audiences demand that all United States chorus girls possess blonde hair. Nothing new about brunettes. The Mexican audience will understand the words of the show, for an interpreter will explain things from a spot beside the proscenium.

That revival of Millöcker's "The Du Barry," retitled "Unfaithfully Yours," has been withdrawn from the list of theatrical futures. Only the Grand Opera house, among available Shubert theaters, could meet its stage requirements. Other operettas and musical comedies are being tried out in Detroit, however, and some of them may be found worthy of a Chicago engagement. The production to follow "Unfaithfully Yours" in Detroit is "Too Many Girls," with a new cast. The Shuberts have bought the production from George Abbott. Another projected Detroit musical is "Higher and Higher," which the Shuberts have obtained from Dwight Deere Wiman.

This column has failed to note that Dorothy Raymond has permanently taken over the rôle of Nora in "Life with Father" at the Blackstone theater. After the untimely death of Shirley De Me, Nellie Burt, a member of the New York company, filled in for a time. Miss Raymond has previously appeared in Chicago in "Street Scene," "On Borrowed Time" and "Dodsworth." For two years she was leading woman at the Goodman theater. Miss Raymond also understudies Lillian Gish, tho [we hope Miss Raymond doesn't mind our saying this] it is hardly likely that the management would give a performance without Miss Gish.

The Milwaukee subscription season of the newly formed theater committee of the Society of Allied Arts is attracting an unprecedented response from Milwaukee theatergoers. Five plays will be presented at the Pabst theater, beginning with "The Time of Your Life" the week of Nov. 25.

⁂

Julian Thompson's "The Warrior's Husband" will open the 12th annual subscription season of the Northwestern University theater on Friday and Saturday nights. The production will also be the initial one in the new Cahn auditorium of Scott hall. During the remainder of the season probable plays to be staged will include Molière's "The Knavery of Scapin," Ayn Rand's "The Night of January 16," "The Taming of the Shrew"; Chekhoff's "The Three Sisters," and Anna Cora Mowatt's "Fashion." Lee Mitchell directs the theater.

New Ice Show Is Beautiful, but Too Bulky

By Burns Mantle.

New York [Special].—It really is a little unkind to drag the Rockefeller name into everything that is done in the Rockefeller Center theaters. The family has little more to do with the experiments, in all reasonable probability, than any other landlord has to do with the things that happen in the buildings he leases, so long as the terms of the lease are properly observed.

But it happens that everything that has been tried at the Rockefeller Center theaters has cost a lot of money, and when money is involved, what is more natural than to praise or blame the Rockefellers? They are supposed to have more money than anybody else.

The newest venture is an ice rink theater, producing what the press department calls an "icetravaganza." It cost $200,000 to raise the curtain. Norman Bel Geddes, who is expensive, has built an ice rink that takes in the stage, the orchestra pit, and eight rows of what were orchestra circle seats. It is 75 feet from the edge of the ice to the rear wall, and 100 feet across at the widest point. Which provides considerable ice.

The show has been sponsored by Sonja Henie, the world's favorite steel-shod heroine, and Arthur Wirtz, who got into the ice show business in Chicago when he had to take in a stadium by way of a foreclosed mortgage.

"It Happens On Ice" is the title of the icetravaganza. It is mostly a skating show, and its weakness is its bulk, as there are only so many things that can be done on skates when the rink surface is limited. After the skaters have performed all their tricks, thrilled the audience with their incredible grace, and startled it with leaps and pirouettings, there is nothing much left for them to do except repeat the show in different costumes. You know how that sort of thing begins to lose its charm along about 10 o'clock.

Sonja Henie.

There is, however, great beauty in the show, along with some novelty. Joe Cook appears in several comedy scenes, including a new animated Rube Goldberg cartoon in which a stooge is mashed in the face with property pies. I never could quite get the humor of that particular type of pleasantry, but many find it extremely diverting.

There are also singers of songs, and they are a help. One song that is threatened with a radio run is called "The Moon Fell in the River Last Night When I Kissed You." Imagine! The orchestra is banked at the side as it is at Billy Rose's Aquacade. In fact, you might call "It Happens On Ice" a frozen Aquacade, if you wanted to. But Rose is a showman. He crowds all his entertainment into 60 or 70 minutes, and sells it for 40 cents.

Most of the world's figure skating champions are in the bill. Hedi Stenuf, another of the Olympic ladies who can perform beautifully with one skate on the ice and the other pointed at the gallery, is a leader. So is handsome "Skippy" Baxter, who does remarkable things as a figure skater. The Caley Sisters, favorites of this department, perform as a duo, doing all the figures the others do and with fascinating precision.

There are a couple of beautiful ballets on skates, staged by the Radio City Music hall genius, Leon Leonidoff. It is the hope of the ice show sponsors, I have no doubt, that the ice rink theater will prove the talked-of novelty of the year. And it may. But it would be wise of them to hire a showman to restage the comedy.

The cinema really topped the drama in the offerings of the week. Walter Wanger, who used to be a play producer himself, released John Ford's screen version of four Eugene O'Neill dramas of the sea, grouped under the title of "The Long Voyage Home." These included "Moon of the Carribees," "Bound East for Cardiff," "In the Zone," and the title number. They were done once before as a stage play, but not in the order in which Ford plays them.

This is a powerful picture, strong on the men's side, more appealing to males than females, I'd say, but you never can tell. One of my lady deskmates came back from a view of it goggle-eyed with wonder and protesting vehemently that it was the greatest picture she had ever seen—greater than "The Informer," greater than "The Grapes of Wrath." How these former masterpieces sold to the feminine trade I do not know.

Certainly "The Long Voyage Home" should stir the heart of O'Neill himself. There is in its realism the kind of relentless hewing to the line of untamed nature that the younger O'Neill passionately approved. None of your stage prettiness for him. None of your romantic sentiment for him. Let life be as realistically told in story and shown in the theaters as it was lived. Then we would be getting some place.

Ford believes the same, I gather. There is precious little romance or sentiment in "The Long Voyage Home." Perhaps the sun came out once. If it did, I wasn't looking. Perhaps the boys had an occasional good time for themselves without a free-for-all fight and a gallon or two of grog. If they did, I missed that, too. But what I remember is a tale of the sea that throbs with the beat of a tramp steamer's engines and the hearts of roaring, fighting Irishmen; a picture of such a storm at sea as never was staged before; with such waves coming over the bow and off the for'ard deck as would have swamped any ordinary ship. And, most telling of all, a bombing attack from the air that brought an audience up on its seat-ends, shivering and excited.

"The Long Voyage Home" is indeed a great picture. Another study in dull grays that makes a fine art of photography and detaches the cinema definitely from the stage drama. It will be interesting to follow the buying public's reaction.

It was interesting for an old stage reviewer to note what Mr. Ford is after doing with several old friends of the drama—making a howling, fighting longshoreman of sometime gentle Thomas Mitchell, and a slinking kind of crimp of wholesome Jimmie Kerrigan, and a limehouse trollop of that simple character homebody, Mildred Natwick. It's nervy, that's what it is.

You remember St. John Ervine. Or don't you? He is the English dramatic critic who writes plays. Good plays, mostly. Which gives him an added distinction. Few dramatic critics, they being self-conscious fellows, ever write plays, and when they do the plays frequently give off an odor suggesting that they spoiled in transit.

St. John Ervine's good plays include "John Ferguson," which saved the life of the Theater Guild 20 years ago, and "Jane Clegg," which helped to prolong it. And "The First Mrs. Fraser," which Grace George played successfully.

St. John's poor plays include one now called "Boyd's Daughter," which was "Boyd's Shop" originally. It was written in 1935, but has just reached New York, after a fortnight in Boston, where it was staged as an experiment at the Copley theater.

This is a simple little character comedy which, I have an idea, Mr. Ervine never expected would be played outside the British Isles.

CHEZ MAESTRO HELD OVER

Ability to "play a show" well is not frequently enough a characteristic of night club bands. Emil Coleman is preeminent in this field, as artists appearing at Chez Paree will attest. Coleman has been held over for the Carmen Miranda-Paul Draper show at the Chez.

[Seymour Photo.]

Vaudeville

At the State Lake theater Ramon Novarro, a name to conjure with in the days of silent films, is singing songs, and J. Carrol Naish, a familiar movie villian, is offering his sinister characterizations. Besides all this the Dorothy Hild ballet is dancing two routines in support of the Jess Libonati Trio, the Three Arnolds, and Charlie Moore with Susie. Brian Aherne, and Rita Hayworth are starred in the film, "The Lady in Question."

"Marcia," Mimi Lynne, Mandle Kay, Ann Powell, Jai Leta, Johnnie Cook, Lew Black, and Ray Parsons are on the bill at the Rialto theater. On the screen is "The Return of Frank James," with Henry Fonda and Jackie Cooper.

Laurel and Hardy, veteran screen comedy team, make their Chicago stage debut as a pair in the Chicago theater's show for this week. They appear in a revue created around them on the west coast. In the company are some 30 performers, including Lew Parker, Syd Gold, Darlene Garner, Paul Remos, Gonzalo and Cristina, and a dancing chorus directed by Danny Dare, director for the current "Meet the People." On the screen is the held over "Knute Rockne—All American," starring Pat O'Brien. The show will play up thru 5 o'clock on Thursday afternoon, at which time it will give way to preparation for the gala world première of Cecil B. De Mille's "North West Mounted Police."

Laurel and Hardy.

A famous name in the world of jazz, Duke Ellington, brightens the marquee of the Oriental theater, for he and his orchestra are playing on its stage. Nothing more need be said. Additional entertainers on the stage show are Ivie Anderson, Billy Bailey, Marie Bryant, and the Jones Brothers. "Money and the Woman," is the movie.

Original Ballet Russe Revisits Chicago Next Week

Back in U. S. After 2 Years in Antipodes

By Edward Barry.

Col. Wasily de Basil's Original Ballet Russe will move into the Auditorium theater one week from tomorrow for a seven performance engagement. This column today is an attempt to explain the difference between De Basil's company and the troupe which will come here at Christmas time under Leonide Massine by sketching out their common background. After the difference has been made clear, or when the whole thing has become too confused to bother with any longer, there will be a little material on the new ballets in the De Basil répertoire.

In 1933 Col. de Basil brought his Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo to Chicago for the first time. There existed here then a whole new generation innocent of any acquaintance with Russian ballet of the more lavish sort, for not since Serge de Diaghileff's company had toured America during the first world war had anything of a similar character and a comparable scale been on view. The city surrendered to the new ballet's enchantment, and for the next several years—up until the beginning of 1938, in fact—the local visits of the De Basil company were among the most eagerly awaited events of the season.

• • •

The town became much exercised over the great spectacle ballet "Scheherazade," over the exquisitely wispy "Sylphides" and the lovely, unworldly "Swan Lake." It welcomed into the répertoire each year a reasonable number of novelties.

Irina Baronova.
[Seymour photo.]

The town became much exercised over the personalities of the dancers, also. The appearance of a favorite on the stage was the signal for a cordial round of applause. Many of the dancers were invited to private homes around the city for small jollifications. Those who made the deepest impression here were probably Massine, Alexandra Danilova, David Lichine and the three so-called "baby ballerinas"—Tatiana Riabouchinska, Tamara Toumanova, and Irina Baronova. These were extraordinarily attractive people—with their exotic air, their world background, and their artistic perfection.

In 1937 rumors of a splitup began to be heard. It was known that Leonide Massine was to head a new company financed by American money, but no one could say definitely who of the dancers would come with him and who would remain with De Basil.

There was an orgy of competitive contract signing. They say that some of the dancers, with true Russian nonchalance, signed contracts with both factions and reserved the right to decide which way to jump. Early in 1938 the De Basil company made its last appearance here. At the end of the same year Massine's group arrived.

It was found that this new company boasted the presence of Danilova, and of course Massine, but that the bulk of the principal dancers of the old group had elected either to stay with De Basil or to engage in other activities [the movies, for example]. However, Massine had strengthened the new company with many first rate dancers who had not previously been seen here, and his visits to Chicago began to repeat the De Basil pattern. The city became acquainted with the new dancers, learned to applaud their entrances, and to appreciate their fine points. And the flow of important novelties was not dammed.

Massine's group came here again in 1939 while De Basil's company busied itself in Europe and in Australia. Just this fall, after a long season in the antipodes, the De Basil ballet landed in Los Angeles to begin its reconquest of the United States. This is the tour which will bring it into Chicago next week.

A great many very distinguished dancers will be on view at the Auditorium during the troupe's all too short engagement. All of the men and women who were listed a few paragraphs ago as members of the original company [with the exception of Danilova and Massine, of course] are still [or in some cases, again] with Col. de Basil. There are also such familiar figures of the old régime as Nina Verchinina, Sono Osato, Roman Jasinsky, and Paul Petroff. Besides all these, there will be dancers whom Chicago has never seen—notably Igor Schwezoff, author of the prize winning autobiography, "Borzoi" [published in this country as "Russian Somersault"].

Besides a great many of the lovingly remembered standard items, the engagement will bring forth four pieces never before seen in Chicago. They are:

"Graduation Ball." Music adapted from Strauss by Antal Dorati. Décor by Alexandre Benois. Choregraphy by Lichine. A light hearted piece about what happens when the girls of a fashionable Viennese school invite the graduates of the military academy to their ball.

"Cinderella." Music by Frederic d' Erlanger. Décor by Nathalie Gontcharova. Choregraphy by Michel Fokine. The familiar Cinderella story, with minor additions and deletions.

"Paganini." Music by Sergei Rachmaninoff. Décor by Serge Soudeikine. Choregraphy by Michel Fokine. Based on the character and certain imagined incidents in the life of the violinist, Nicolo Paganini.

"Protée." Music by Claude Debussy. Décor by George de Chirico. Choreography by David Lichine. The god Proteus rises from the sea, dances with the temple maidens, and returns to the sea.

The schedule for the ballet's entire engagement follows:

Monday evening, Oct. 28: "Aurora's Wedding," "Le Coq d' Or," "Graduation Ball."
Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 30: "Les Sylphides," "Cinderella," "Aurora's Wedding."
Wednesday evening, Oct. 30: "The Hundred Kisses," "Paganini," "Aurora's Wedding."
Thursday evening, Oct. 31: "Les Sylphides," "Cinderella," "Graduation Ball."
Friday evening, Nov. 1: "Aurora's Wedding," "Paganini," "Protée," "Graduation Ball."
Saturday afternoon, Nov. 2: "The Hundred Kisses," "Le Coq d' Or," "Graduation Ball."
Saturday evening, Nov. 2: "Aurora's Wedding," "Paganini," "Le Coq d'Or."

SOPRANO SINGS TONIGHT

Virginia Haskins, soprano of the Chicago Opera company, will take part in tonight's performance of Cimarosa's "The Secret Marriage" in the Civic theater. During the opera season she will be heard as Nanetta in the revival of "Falstaff."

Current Music News

Fritz Kreisler will open the History and Enjoyment of Music series in the Auditorium theater this afternoon with a violin recital. In a sense this is the 40th anniversary of Mr. Kreisler's Chicago debut, for on Dec. 14, 1900, he made his first appearance here as a mature musician, playing the Beethoven concerto with the Chicago orchestra under Theodore Thomas in the Auditorium. However, in the season of 1888-'89, he had played here as assisting artist on a recital by Moriz Rosenthal, but at that time he was only 13, and he was described as nothing more than a "talented boy."

Today's program, which will have the services of the faithful Carl Lamson as accompanist, is as follows:

Suite, E minor........................Bach
Largo and allegro assai, from Sonata in C major for solo violin............Bach
Concerto, G major [Köchel 216].......Mozart
Impromptu, G major; Rondo, D major; ballet music from "Rosamunde" ....Schubert
Lotus Land...............Cyril Scott-Kreisler
Hungarian dance..............Brahms-Kreisler
Three Slavonic dances........Dvorak-Kreisler

Robert Sandy, winner of the Young Artist piano contest sponsored last season by the Society of American Musicians, will give the recital, which constitutes his award, in Kimball hall on Tuesday. His program schedules the Bach-Busoni chorale - prelude, "In Thee Is Joy"; Beethoven's Sonata, opus 111; the Rameau - Godowsky Tambourin, and the Loeilly-Godowsky Gigue; two Intermezzi and the E-flat Rhapsody of Brahms; and pieces by Chopin, Scriabin, Liszt, Griffes, Shostakovich, and Prokofieff.

For its first production the newly formed Opera theater will present Domenico Cimarosa's "The Secret Marriage" in the Civic theater tonight. This work dates from 1792 when it was first given in Vienna, and of the composer's many operas is the only one to be regularly revived in Europe and America. It first appeared in this country in the 1830's as part of the répertoire of an itinerant Italian company playing in New York. No record of a production in Chicago prior to tonight's exists.

The two act comic opera will be performed by Giacomo Rimini, Virginia Haskins, Shirley Sorrelle, Maria Data, Joseph Luporini, and Victor Carell under the direction of Ernesto Barbini. Spoken English dialog will replace the standard dry recitatives of 18th century Italian opera, but the arias will be sung in the original language.

Tomorrow night in Kimball hall the Musical guild will present two of last season's scholarship winners in a joint debut recital, Ruth Wilkins, pianist, and Stanley Evans, violist. Miss Wilkins will play Bach's Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue, Mozart's Rondo in D major, and several numbers by representative romantic and modern composers. The violist has been trained by his father, Clarence Evans, for many years principal viola player with the Chicago Symphony. His share in the program includes some exceptional items: Sonatas by Benedetto Marcello, Franz Xaver Hammer, and Paul Hindemith, and short pieces by Eric DeLamarter, Louise Evans, and Paul Creston.

Sibelius' Seventh and Brahms' Fourth symphonies are listed on the program of the Philadelphia orchestra, which will play under its director, Eugene Ormandy, in the Auditorium theater on Tuesday night, Oct. 29. The soloist will be Artur Rubinstein, the great Polish pianist, who will be heard in Chopin's Concerto in F minor.

Heimo Haitto, boy violinist of Finland, will make his deferred appearance in Chicago in a recital on Oct. 27 at the Finnish Community center, 4219 Lincoln avenue, for the benefit of the Help Finland fund at the center.

Chicago Opera Group Opens Season Nov. 2

By Cecil Smith.

The Chicago Opera company, beginning its 1940 season at the Civic Opera house on Saturday, Nov. 2, announces a brilliant schedule for the first week. After the gala nonsubscription opening performance of "Aïda" on Nov. 2, the first six subscription bills promise to attain a uniform level of unusual excellence. Verdi's "Falstaff," the first of this year's revivals, will be presented on Saturday afternoon, Nov. 9. Maurice Abravanel, an important addition to the roster of conductors, makes his debut on Tuesday, Nov. 5, directing "La Traviata," and also conducts "Manon" on Saturday evening, Nov. 9. Five leading singers are listed for their initial operatic appearances in Chicago during the week—Zinka Milanov and Enya Gonzalez, sopranos; Lydia Summers, mezzo-soprano; Richard Crooks, tenor, and Mack Harrell, baritone. On Saturday evening, Nov. 9, Helen Jepson sings the title part of "Manon" for the first time anywhere.

Verdi's "Aïda," the opening opera on Nov. 2, has started off six previous seasons in the 30 year history of resident opera in Chicago. Certainly no opera in the entire repertory occupies a more permanent and solid place in the affection of American operatic audiences. With this fact in mind, it is amusing to dig out the reaction of THE TRIBUNE's music critic to the first Chicago performance of "Aïda" on Jan. 16, 1874.

After describing the nature of the work, he sums up his impression in these terms: "It is doubtful, however, whether it is an opera which will long survive, notwithstanding its barbaric pomp and glitter, and the dazzling beauty of the spectacle. At the same time those who miss seeing it will regret it."

Nearly 67 years later it is still possible to borrow the critic's final observation, and to predict that those who miss the Nov. 2, 1940, performance may also regret it. The cast introduces to Chicago the Czech dramatic soprano, Zinka Milanov, a prominent member of the Metropolitan Opera company for two seasons past. Karin Branzell, a contralto of commanding gifts, sings Amneris, the rôle in which she made her impressive Chicago debut last fall. John Charles Thomas appears as Amonasro for the first time in this city. Giovanni Martinelli, Virgilio Lazzari, and Douglas Beattie are also prominent members of the cast, and Henry Weber conducts. The Ballet theater, a significant factor in the forthcoming opera season, will dance.

• • •

The regular subscription series begins on Monday, Nov. 4, with Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde." Lauritz Melchior and Kirsten Flagstad will sing the title rôles, and Edwin McArthur will appear as guest conductor. Operas and casts for the entire first week follow:

Saturday, Nov. 2, at 8—Verdi's "Aïda," with Zinka Milanov [début], Karin Branzell, Giovanni Martinelli, John Charles Thomas, Virgilio Lazzari, Doublas Beattie; conductor, Henry Weber.

Sunday, Nov. 3, at 8—All-ballet program by the Ballet theater; conductor, Alexander Smallens.

Monday, Nov. 4, at 8—Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde," with Kirsten Flagstad, Enid Szantho, Lauritz Melchior, George Czaplicki, Douglas Beattie; conductor, Edwin McArthur [guest].

Tuesday, Nov. 5, at 8—Verdi's "La Traviata," with Helen Jepson, James Melton, John Charles Thomas; conductor, Maurice Abravanel [début].

Wednesday, Nov. 6, at 8—Verdi's "Il Trovatore," with Rose Bampton, Karin Branzell, Giovanni Martinelli, Carlo Morelli, Virgilio Lazzari; conductor, Henry Weber.

Thursday, Nov. 7, at 8—All-ballet program by the Ballet theater; conductor, Alexander Smallens.

Friday, Nov. 8, at 8 [board of education series]—Puccini's "Madame Butterfly," with Enya Gonzalez [début], James Melton, Carlo Morelli; conductor, Angelo Canarutto.

Saturday, Nov. 9, at 2—Verdi's "Falstaff," with Dusolina Giannini, Virginia Haskins, Sonia Sharnova, Lydia Summers [début], José Mojica, John Charles Thomas, Mack Harrell [début]; conductor, Henry Weber.

Saturday, Nov. 9, at 8—Massenet's "Manon," with Helen Jepson, Richard Crooks [debut], George Czaplicki; conductor, Maurice Abravanel.

Over at Orchestra hall the Chicago Symphony orchestra continues into the third week of its golden jubilee season with no diminishing of interest. The opening Tuesday concert this week brings forward Sergei Rachmaninoff, the celebrated Russian pianist, as the first soloist of the season. He will play Beethoven's third concerto, in C minor, and his own "Rhapsody on a Theme of Paganini." This will be Mr. Rachmaninoff's only appearance with the orchestra this season in the capacity of assisting pianist. Next March he will return to conduct in a Thursday-Friday pair of concerts, the first performance of his freshly revised version of "The Bells," a large work for chorus, orchestra, and vocal soloists.

Sergi Rachmaninoff.

This week's Thursday evening and Friday afternoon subscription concerts are distinguished by the world première of a new symphony by John Alden Carpenter. The work is dedicated to the Chicago Symphony orchestra in recognition of its 50th year. While the composer has released no advance analysis or description of his symphony, it is safe to assume that the content will be interesting and valuable. Some index of Mr. Carpenter's stature as a composer is provided by the statistical record: In the past 25 seasons the Chicago Symphony orchestra has given 26 performances of 16 different works.

The Tuesday program is as follows:

[Frederick Stock, conductor.]
Academic Festival Overture............Brahms
Concerto for Piano, No. 3, C Minor... ....Beethoven
Sergei Rachmaninoff.
Tone poem, "Don Juan".............Strauss
Rhapsody on a theme of Paganini.... ....Rachmaninoff
Sergei Rachmaninoff.

The Thursday-Friday program lists the following works:

[Frederick Stock, conductor.]
Harvest Hymn..........................Grainger
[First time in Chicago.]
Suite No. 2, B Minor.....................Bach
[Flute obbligato by Ernest Liegl.]
Symphony No. 2, D Major........Beethoven
Symphony [in one movement]......Carpenter
[First performance.]
"Voices of the Forest," from "Siegfried"...........................Wagner
"Siegfried's Rhine Journey," from "Twilight of the Gods"........Wagner

A HIT AT COLONY CLUB

The current song hit that says "Latins Know How" tells the story of the Colony club's success with its south of the border policy in music. Sacasas, brilliant young Cuban composer and musician, heads his Royal Havana orchestra there nightly in a glittering display of authentic Latin music. Monchito, a Puerto Rican, carries on, in a smaller way, during Sacasas' rest periods.

Notes of Music and Musicians

The last week of the San Carlo Opera company's engagement in the Auditorium theater will bring the season's only scheduled performance of "La Bohème." In it Norina Greco will make her first Chicago appearance as Mimi, and Marjory Hess will make her Chicago debut as Musetta. In a repetition of "Cavalleria Rusticana" Mobley Lushanya will sing Santuzza for the first time in this city, and the rôle of Lola will serve Aileen Lonsdale for her Chicago debut. This is as good a time as any to note that Mario Valle, the excellent and dependable baritone, is now spending his 20th season with the organization.

Carlo Peroni.

Carlo Peroni will conduct all the performances herewith listed:

Tonight at 8:20—"Il Trovatore," with Mobley Lushanya, Marie Powers, Aroldo Lindi, Mostyn Thomas, and Harold Kravitt.
Monday at 8:20—"La Traviata," with Lucille Meusel, Charlotte Bruno, Dimitri Onofrei, and Ivan Petroff.
Tuesday at 8:20—"La Bohème," with Norina Greco, Marjory Hess, Sydney Rayner, Mario Valle, and Harold Kravitt.
Wednesday at 8:20—"Rigoletto," with Lucille Meusel, Charlotte Bruno, Rolf Gerard, Ivan Petroff, and Harold Kravitt.
Thursday at 8:20—"Faust," with Leola Turner, Charlotte Bruno, Sydney Rayner, Mostyn Thomas, and Harold Kravitt.
Friday at 8:20—"Cavalleria Rusticana," with Mobley Lushanya, Aileen Lonsdale, Rolf Gerard, and Stefan Kozakevich; followed by "Pagliacci," with Leola Turner, Aroldo Lindi, and Mostyn Thomas.
Saturday at 2:30—"Madame Butterfly," with Hizi Koyke, Charlotte Bruno, Dimitri Onofrei, Stefan Kozakevich, and Richard Wentworth.
Saturday at 8:20—"Carmen," with Hilda Kosta, Leola Turner, Sydney Rayner, Mario Valle, and Harold Kravitt.
Next Sunday at 8:20—Final performance, "Aïda," with Mobley Lushanya, Marie Powers, Aroldo Lindi, Mostyn Thomas, and Harold Kravitt.

Altho the Chicago Little Philharmonic orchestra has been in existence for some time and has made several tours, it will play for the first time in Chicago this afternoon at the Woman's Club theater. Eric Sorantin, Chicago violinist and teacher, directs the ensemble, and today's program will present Robert Elliott as violin soloist. The program:

Overture to "The Secret of Suzanne" ....Wolf-Ferrari
Symphony No. 1, C major.........Beethoven
Concerto for violin and orchestra, D major..........................Brahms
Robert Elliott.
Andante and Balalaika, from Second suite for small orchestra.....Stravinsky
Polka, from "The Golden Age"...... ....Shostakovich
Oriental, from "Kaleidoscope"..........Cui
Cortège, from "Khadijah"..........Sorantin
"Tales from the Vienna Woods"; Perpetuum Mobile.......Johann Strauss

Julius Hijman, eminent Dutch composer, will make his first appearance in Chicago on Thursday night, playing a recital of contemporary Dutch piano music in the Reynolds club lounge at the University of Chicago, 57th street and University avenue. The program will begin at 8:15 o'clock, and the admission is free. All the works to be played on the recital are new to Chicago: Dirk Schaefer's Sonate Inaugural, Willem Pijper's Sonata, Mr. Hijman's Sonata and Sonatina, and Henk Badings' Sonata. The concert is sponsored by the university's department of music.

Hugo Kolberg, concertmaster of the Pittsburgh Symphony orchestra, will give a recital in Kimball hall on Friday night, marking his Chicago debut. He was born in Warsaw, but his precocity took him to other European capitals for appearances when he was only six. Upon reaching the age of 20 he was appointed concertmaster of the Oslo Philharmonic and a few years later moved to a similar position with the Berlin Philharmonic. He has concertized extensively abroad and given sonata recitals with the eminent Wilhelm Furtwaengler. Two years ago he voluntarily resigned his position with the Berlin orchestra to come to America. On Friday's program he will present Bach's Second Partita for solo violin; Beethoven's Sonata, op. 30, No. 1, in A major; the Mendelssohn Concerto, and several shorter pieces.

The Illinois Symphony orchestra will begin its fifth season on Monday night, Oct. 28, at the Studebaker theater, with Ralph Rose conducting, and Lee Pattison as soloist in Beethoven's Fourth Piano Concerto. Concerts will be presented weekly at the popular price scale. Meanwhile the orchestra, conducted by Albert Goldberg, is making occasional short tours of southern Illinois and Iowa.

Margit Bokor, a new soprano with the Chicago Opera company, will tackle her first rôle in English when she does Concepcion in Ravel's "The Spanish Hour" during the coming season. She is also scheduled to sing Sophie in "Der Rosenkavalier" and may do Nedda in "Pagliacci."

The Kenosha [Wisconsin] Symphony orchestra has chosen Richard Czerwonky as its permanent conductor.

Dedicate New Library at Rockford Today

By the Rev. John Evans.

The John Hall Sherratt library, largest recent addition to the campus of Rockford College for Women, will be dedicated this afternoon. Mary Asby Cheek, president, will direct the ceremony, which begins with an academic procession of the trustees, faculty, and representatives from other colleges, and concludes with a reception in the new library. Archibald MacLeish, librarian of congress, will give the address.

Named in memory of a former president of the board of trustees, the Sherratt library has been built and furnished at a cost of $130,000, the accumulated gifts of students, alumnæ, and the numerous friends of Rockford. The architect is Willis Hubbard of Rockford, and the design is what is technically known as the divisional plan, affording informality and accessibility. Rockford is the first of the smaller liberal arts colleges to adopt this plan, which allows students the entire resources of the library thru open stacks.

The structure contains stack space for 80,000 volumes. How much shelving this implies may be visualized by recalling the rotunda of the British museum in London, which has exactly the same capacity. The individual rooms comprise 28 carrels, or small study stalls, a rare book room, committee room for a group of 12, conference rooms seating eight and ten, four smaller rooms, and a student typing room. Humanities and social science sections are on the first floor, and all other subjects on the second floor.

Jessica Treat, alumna, designed the interior decoration. The ordinary institutional appearance of a library has been avoided by the use of different size tables, among which are about 250 technical tables for the students placed near windows or adjacent to the subject matter being studied.

All the furniture is of maple and oak, with Windsor style chairs, except the science reading room, which is modern Swedish. Three of the rooms have fireplaces and are paneled in white birch with smoky water finish.

No special room has been set aside for leisure reading, because of the general informality of the whole library. Moreover, the college book program has developed dormitory libraries for recreational reading, which also may be pursued at the bookshop in Maddox house.

Jean MacNeill Sharpe, who contributed considerably to the layout and design of the building, is college librarian.

Saint Mary-of-the-Woods, Indiana's oldest Catholic college for women, will observe its centenary next Tuesday. The celebration opens with pontifical high mass at the church of the Immaculate Conception, preceded by an academic procession from Le Fer hall down to the campus to the church. The Most Rev. Joseph E. Ritter of Indianapolis, Ind., will be the celebrant, and the Most Rev. James H. Ryan of Omaha, Neb., will preach the anniversary sermon.

The Very Rev. Henry F. Dugan, former professor of philosophy at the college, will be toastmaster at the noon banquet after the mass. Among the speakers will be the Very Rev. Samuel Knox Wilson, president of Loyola university, and Mrs. Craigie Gunn Mitchell of Bedford, Ind., the oldest alumna.

The college was founded in 1840 by Mother Theodore Guerin and five Sisters of Providence, who came from Ruille sur Loire, France, at the request of the bishop of Vincennes, Ind., the Most Rev. Celestine de la Hailandiere, to found a school for the girls of his diocese. The charter was granted in 1846. Adjoining the campus is Providence convent, the mother house of the Sisters of Providence in the United States. The congregation numbers approximately 1,300. They conduct 85 grade schools, 21 secondary schools, Immaculata seminary in Washington, D. C., and St. Columbkille's day nursery in Chicago.

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

The nicest thing about this picture is the way it keeps you guessing. You really and truly have no idea as to how it will turn out.

The principal characters are a young bank vice president, a bank teller and the teller's wife. . . . The first, sent to investigate the remarkably successful savings department of a branch bank finds that the teller is by way of being the Little White Father of the depositors. . . . He knows all about their babies, their radios and cars which they can or can't afford and he hands out advice, smiles and admonitions with every book he passes back to them.

"Fine," thinks Dave Bennett. Here's the man the president, Mr. Nason has been looking for to fill a prominent post. BUT—

When Teller Patterson is called in to be offered his new job he refuses point blank to take it—and, withal looks and acts so strangely that Jerry Helm, president of the branch bank and Mr. Bennett are suspicious. . . .

That evening Mrs. Patterson calls upon Mr. Bennett. She looks at him out of her doe like eyes and informs him that her husband is a very sick man. And she appears to have spoken the truth for when she arrives home that night—there he is on the floor, with the Patterson baby daughter weeping over him. . . . WELL—

Mrs. Patterson begs to take her husband's place in the bank while he is operated on and recuperating. Mr. Bennett whose heart had turned to water at first sight of her, agrees to let her. . . . She knows the ropes, it seems, having been employed in the institution before her marriage. . . . She goes to work and is most efficient. . . . Goes to work OVER the protests of a certain Miss Church who, from the start has behaved QUEER-LY. . . .

And how things do happen. . . .! I think you'll like the finale.

Jeffrey Lynn and Brenda Marshall make a pleasing team. They both have a great deal of warmth and a beguiling manner. Lee Patrick makes your curiosity and suspicion bump tingle. John Litel, Henry O'Neill and Roger Pryor are attention compelling and other players come across in good shape.

The film's not too long and is nicely staged and directed.

See you tomorrow.

IN TECHNICOLOR FILM

Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

Meet the vamp, 1940 model, wearing sultry black, sequin jewelry, and a dramatic new nail enamel that is more black than red. The new polish makes hand skin look startlingly white and is a costume accent for sophisticates only.

Don't look now, but the "vamp" is on her way in! You've undoubtedly been conscious of some of the signs that herald her approach, the black, black clothes, the exotic jewelry, the slim slitheriness of the whole fashion picture. The beauty people, in hushed whispers, report, as one aspect of the trend, that lipstick shades and nail enamels are going to be darker! It's all considered very Significant.

One house is all set for the vamp's arrival. It has two new makeup and three nail enamel shades that will be echoed in bags, gloves, hats, even jewelry. Even the shade names are provocative.

Consider, for example, the newest nail enamel tone. It's more black than red. Hands seem startlingly white in contrast, and while it's so dramatic it makes your eyes pop, it's also unbelievably wearable on the right kind of hands. The long, slim kind, with perfectly shaped nails, of course. It's a stunning tone against metal cloth, pure white or dead black.

• • •

This red-black nail enamel isn't repeated in a rouge or lipstick, but there are two other nail polish shades that are. One is called "scarlet slipper," which pretty much tells its color story. Think of scarlet with the sheen that slipper satin has, and you can picture it at once, a vital color accent for a great many costume shades. Black, of course [all the newcomers are excellent with black, which is, after all, the backbone of vamp costuming] and many of the blues and taupes.

• • •

This shade is available in lipstick, just as exciting and vital as the nail enamel shade, and also in a brand new idea, cheek rouge in stick form. This last is a dandy little gadget. All combine to make a grand face-and-hand dressing.

The remaining shade, in both nail polish and makeup, is a blush rose tone. It's vampish in a ladylike way, a shade for sirens who feel that the scarlet is, after all, a wee bit too obvious for their purpose. This is a shade for the conservatives, or for those whose technique does not involve splash and dash.

In cheek rouge and lipstick this last sly shade is a beauty. The fair-skinned and the fair-haired, especially, should please note it!

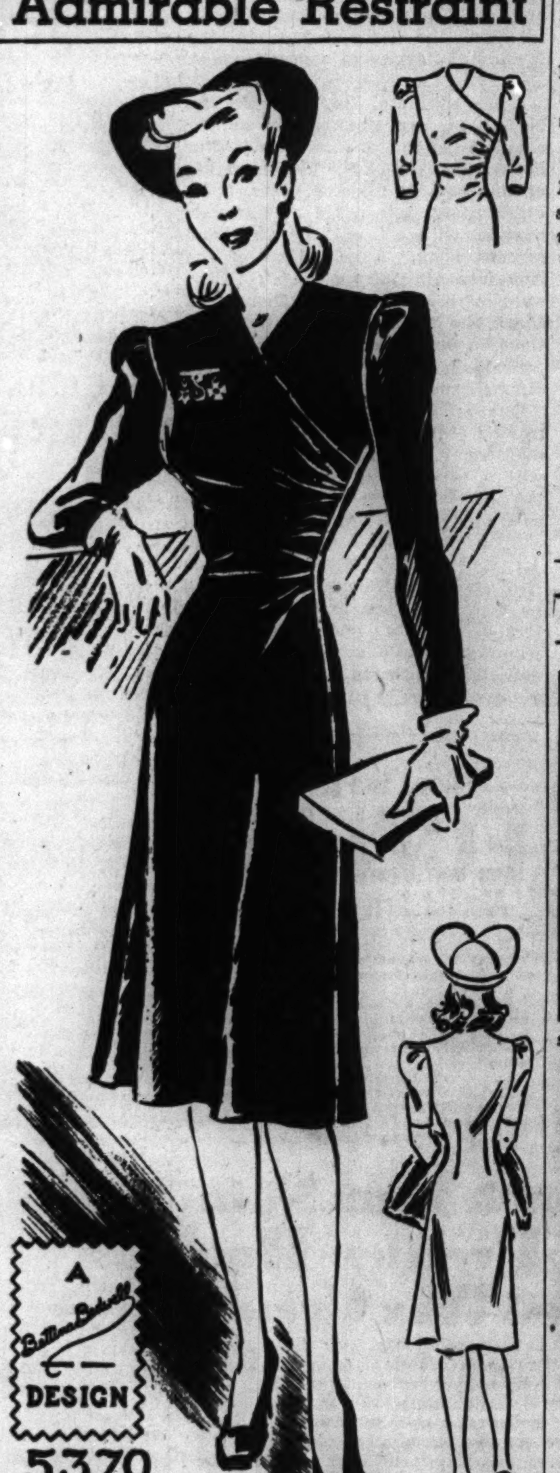
Fashion Elegance Achieved with Admirable Restraint

By Bettina Bedwell.



This season, particularly, elegance is achieved in fashion with bare essentials. The smartest designs from the leading couturiers scrupulously avoid overadornment, and style even the lines of the latest frocks with noteworthy restraint. A case in point is the dress from which today's pattern was made.

The neckline is surplice in character, forming a medium high V, collarless, and draping down to under the left arm. From that juncture to the lowest extremity of the waistline is shirring from left to right, swathing the simple bodice in graceful manner. The skirt is absolutely plain, unshirred, unplaited, with just enough flare for comfort and beauty. Sleeves this season are unexaggerated, and those in this frock follow the new dictum.

The original costume, in dull black and soft-textured crêpe, had for trimming only the mannequin's choice of costume jewelry, in that particular case a brilliantly jeweled pin which she wore over at the right on the bodice, quite high at the shoulder.

Style No. 5370 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inch bust measurements. Size 16 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material.

Address orders to Chicago Tribune Salon Patterns, 119 West 19th street, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred — wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

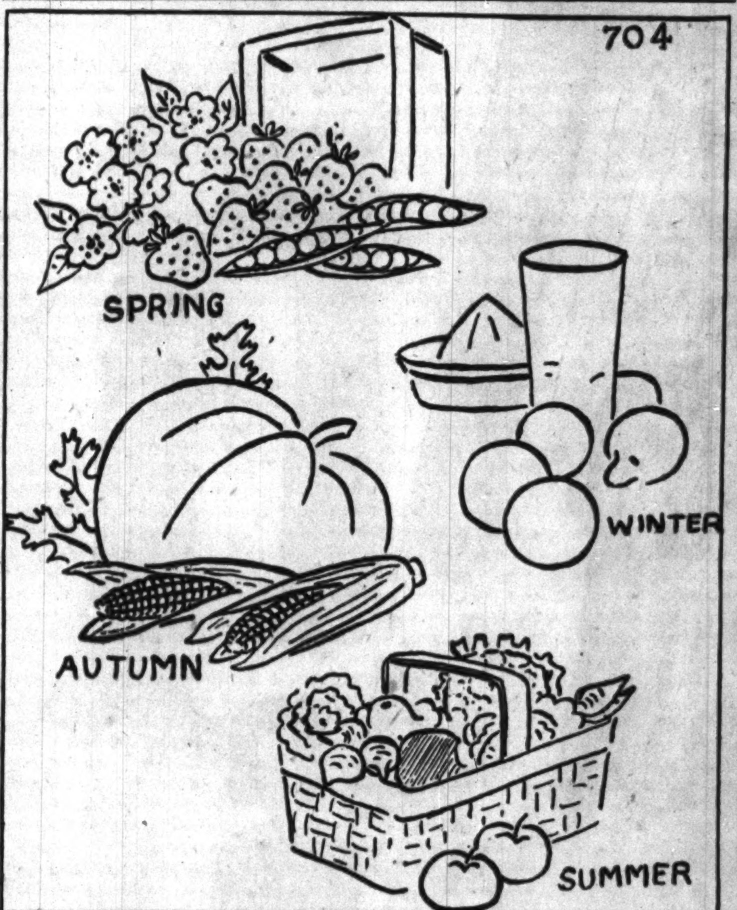
Motifs of Four Seasons



By Nancy Cabot.

You may have the four seasons on display in your kitchen at one time regardless of the weather. Fruits and vegetables in their natural colors are available for towels, curtains, pot holders or what-you-will. The motifs measure about 6 by 8 inches and there are four designs included in the transfer pattern. Detailed instructions and color suggestions accompany the pattern.

For the hot iron transfer pattern of the four seasons motifs, No. 704, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Radio Brings You Music as You Ride, Walk

By Edith Weigle.

"She shall have music wherever she goes" might well be inscribed on the cover of the new additions to the radio family. One of these items measures only 9 inches by 3 across and 3 deep and looks like a camera. As it weighs a mere four pounds you carry it about with you and turn on your favorite program while you're waiting for the football game to start, or while you're riding in car, plane or bus.

Like other portables, you can tune it down to a whisper or up to fill a room. No aerial is needed and a couple of tiny, inexpensive batteries furnish the power. You wouldn't mind that wait at the doctor's or dentist's office, would you, if you had a new personal radio with you? And while you're stirring up that cake in the kitchen or raking the leaves in the back yard you can have a musical accompaniment, if you wish.

Association of U. Women Plans Series of Studies

In line with its program for the year the Chicago branch of the American Association of University of Women is inaugurating three study groups: On consumer problems, international relations, and community art. Dr. Hazel Kyrk, professor of home economics of the University of Chicago, who is widely known for her knowledge of consumer problems, will conduct that study group, beginning next Wednesday afternoon, at her home. The international relations group will meet for the first time Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Paul M. Mitchell, president, with Miss Katherine E. Hunter in charge. Miss Helen Gardner will conduct the community art study group at her home, beginning Oct. 29. All study groups of the association this year are to be integrated with the organization's program to help maintain and strengthen the best elements in American civilization.

Household Forum

By Louise Bargelt

[Have you some household help that lightens labor and gets results; is there some comfort you could enjoy? Address Louise Bargelt, The Chicago Tribune. We'll be glad to pass on your ideas.]

Miss Lolita Smith, Chicago—Here's a "help" and a "why." I give our family phonograph records an occasional sponging with warm water and soap, and they give out nicer, clearer music. Seems to brace them up! And why won't some helpful inventor invent a rake with "taking ways"—a metal rake with magnet-value to help you pick up nails and wires and such like, on your lawn and driveway?

Eileen Waite, Oshkosh, Wis.—Wonder if there's any nonskid wax on market for floors? It would help!

Miss Kitty Doyle, Elgin, Ill.—I coat inside of catsup bottle cover with paraffin and it helps to keep away discoloration.

Mrs. Robert Smith, Chicago—I slip cork finger rests from penholders over a couple of automatic pencils on my desk. These are a help to family members whose fingers get easily cramped from writing.

Helen Hull, Chicago—Seems to me it would be a nice idea if all factory whistles blew cheerful tunes in the early morning, as a spurt to early workers.

Mrs. Edwina Kane, Chicago—For safety's sake, why aren't small chains fastened to inside of all car doors, so if door opens unexpectedly, no children will tumble out?

Mrs. Hazel Cummings, Chicago—Before storing away my children's light clothes for the winter I rip out hems which I'll have to change in the spring. Then I wash garments and find that folds left by hems are much easier to eliminate when it comes time for "spring alterations."

Miss Fanny Brush, Grand Rapids, Mich.—A nice shaded lamp in the instrument panel of a car would be a big comfort in reading maps, etc., when motoring.

And now—your idea—please!

Modes for the Frankly Forty Are Flattering

By Rea Seeger.

One of the most interesting fashion shows of the month was the parade of "lady" costumes. Frankly forty models, these costumes were fitted, fashioned, and achieved with a flair for flattery. Slenderizing outlines, soft gracious drapery, smooth hiplines, bodices with ingenious shirring, soft fullness, and fine handwork, the only decorations, gave even the veteran shoppers a welcome surprise.

While there were plenty of smart dull blacks, there also were some new street shades worthy of interested approval. Pine green, for instance, undeniably a long neglected color, now is being exploited for the silver coiffured sophisticates. Raspberry and burgundy, and a dark star sapphire blue, are other new street colors especially adaptable for wear with long or short fur coats. Beige continues its steady appeal, but beige this winter has definite life. It's not the drab beige of other seasons. Now you can find golden beige, deep caramel beige, and pinky beige, every flattering tint of this good background color.

What pleased every one in the audience was the revival of fine handwork in such important clothes. Embroidery and beaded trim, the sort of fine handwork that can be worked only by experts, was used with enough restraint so that the dresses were enlivened, not flashlighted into eye appeal. Down the front curve of a bodice closing, outlining the narrow shoulder seam, running around the curve of a hip drapery, or round a narrow belt, this ornamentation was attached with artistry.

All-silk is stressed in clothes of unquestioned quality. Such all-silk wears and wears and wears, returning after each trip to the cleaners in the same lustrous, perfect shade it was at the time of purchase. Seams do not sag or stretch out of original outlines when all-silk fabrics are used. Neither does the original color turn, weaken, or streak. All-silk assures seasons of wearing, assures the correct and liquid draping of the high fashion dresses, and has an inimitable way of making the wearer feel quality.

Especially in dinner dresses and the fine afternoon dresses is the necessity of all-silk stressed, and of course, all evening gowns need this superlative all-silk, the better to make them cling to the figurelines and flatter. Some of the most distinguished dinner and evening gowns ever on parade passed in review. Long skirts that miraculously swathed the hiplines, then broke into fullness well below the kneelines; long, flawlessly fitted sleeves and that new covered-up look to both front and back necklines marked these patrician clothes for the mature women, never once overdoing the accent on maturity.

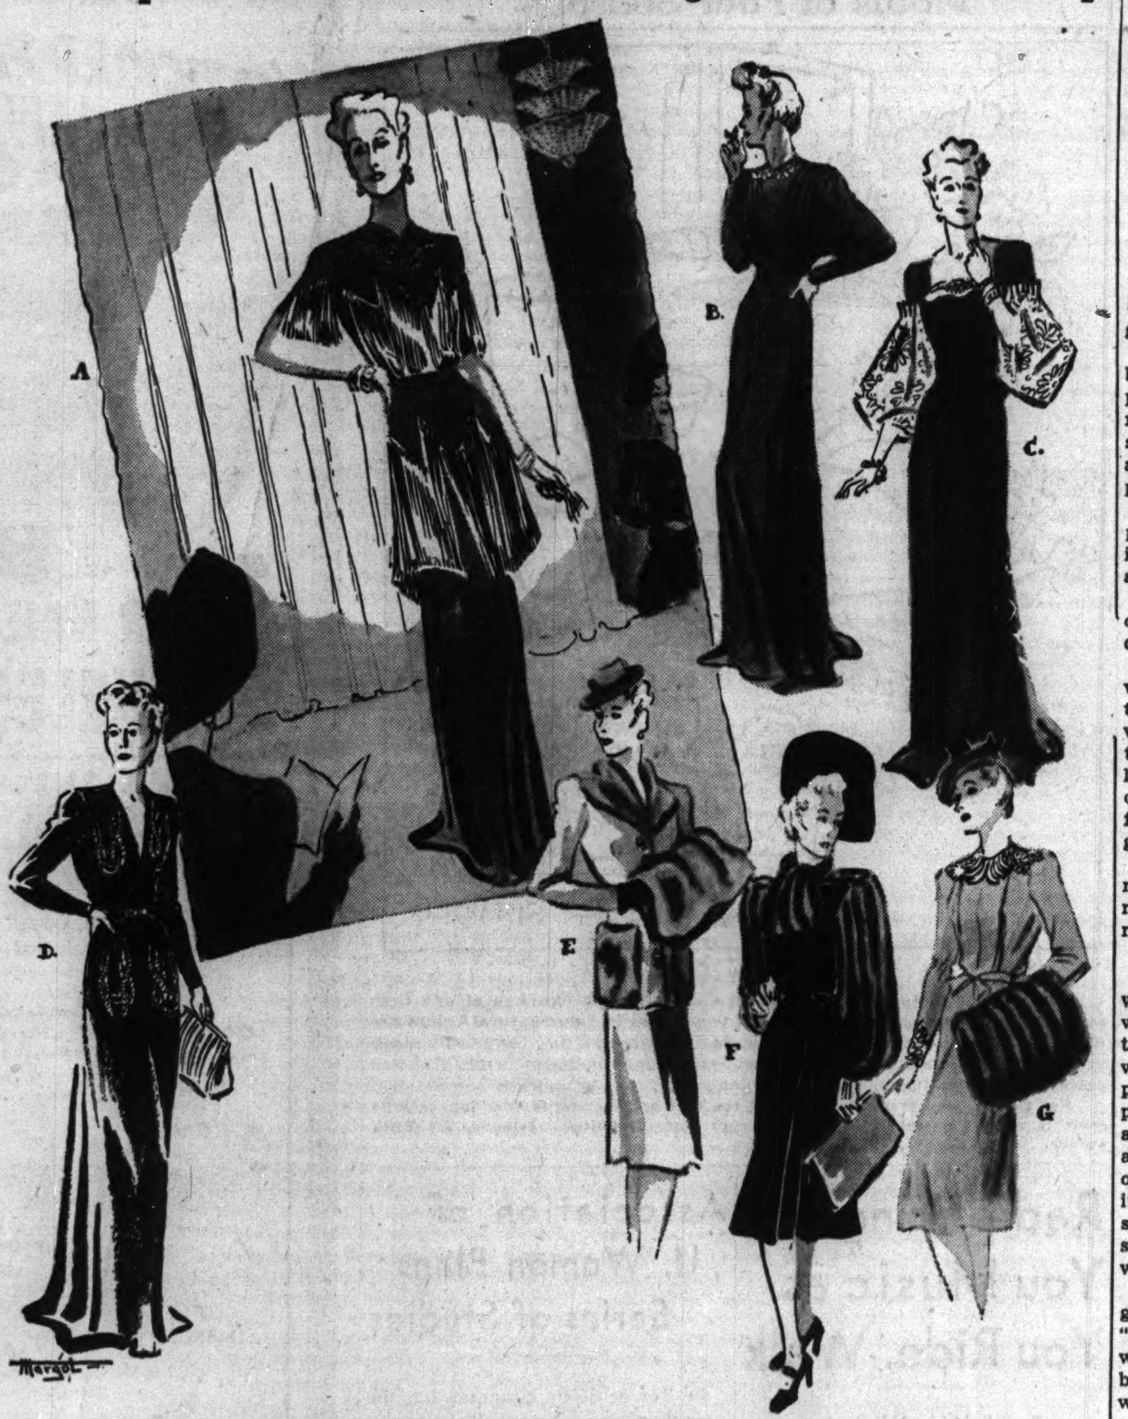
Handsome beadwork and embroidery make them festive. Perfect fitting and all the best ways of accentuating long, slender lines combined to give this collection the best in fashion rating plus exceedinly moderate prices for all the fine workmanship and quality materials.

Sketched are some of the highlights. Others equally handsome and patrician in outlines are obtainable in the same collection, now ready in a smart Chicago shop. For specific information call Superior 0200.

Keeping Ham Flat.

If bacon or thin slices of ham curl up at the edges during cooking, make tiny cuts in the edges of the meat about 2 inches apart. This helps keep the meat flat.

"Lady" Costumes Possessing Unusual Beauty



A...Fringed dress in dull black crepe that remains dateless because of perfect outline and classic appeal. ● B...Dull black bagheera as thin as plum skin is used for this striking dinner dress with long fitted sleeves and gold embroidery. ● C...Lame sleeves in wrist length accent superb outlines of this distinctive dinner dress that could double for formal wear with a lame jacket. ● D...Gold embroidered pockets mark this dull black gown in a different manner, for it's another example of fine handwork of the season. ● E...Suit of soft, dull wool in deep, star sapphire blue, trimmed with silky brown beaver skin. Deep hip accent of the fur and smart hat also of same blue wool. ● F...Smooth example of ideal black winter coat. Here it is in dull wool with insets for skirt fullness, with beltline neat and with slightly puffed, long sleeves. ● G...Color relief for all-purpose daytime dress is featured in deep green wool model made with infinite chic and attention to dressmaker traditions.

The Lady of the House

As my neighbor gathers the last things from her garden to put into cans for winter meals, I am reminded of the time when the getting of meals, at least in summer, began in the garden instead of the refrigerator or the corner market.

My introduction to the culinary art occurred about that time and I was taught early to take my part in the business of getting meals with such hated tasks as picking and washing [under the pump and in at least three fresh waters], leaf by leaf, the first fragile lettuce; pulling and cleaning tiny onions and radishes and carrots; top-and-tailing string beans; picking and shelling peas. Gathering berries for supper, or pitting cherries by hand without being totally obliterated by the juice. Other such tasks within the powers of small, unskilled fingers.

The reward came when, on the hottest summer days, the old oval table was moved onto the uncovered porch facing the orchard and a bountiful supper was eaten in the cool calm of early summer evening.

Goldfish for Tea.

Speaking of food [as we must several times a day], smart club and college women here are serving "goldfishes" at their teas. Not to revive the outmoded stunt of swallowing them alive, but in the shape of a novel, delicate pastry presented on the company china. Made after a recipe that came from old St. Louis years ago: Work ½ pound fine bread flour and ½ pound fresh butter as for fine pastry; then add 6 egg yolks, one at a time, and work dough until very smooth and even. Divide into 50 parts and roll each into a ball. Set in cold place overnight. In the morning beat eggs very stiff, adding sugar to taste [about 1½ cups] and 1 pound filbert meats ground fine. Beat until the whole mass is stiff. Roll out balls of dough very thin and put about a teaspoonful of the mixture on each; fold over and press edges together lightly. Bake in a quick oven until golden brown. Sprinkle with powdered sugar. Then watch your guests trying to eat them without dropping crumbs and sugar dust on their new fall costumes and your living room rug.

Vignettes of the Little Roads.

Serried ranks of corn shocks, but no pumpkins . . . blue morning glories on an old gray house . . . a bare legged man wading a water hole in a field to set out his decoys and duck blind . . . blue and pink of late chicory and bouncing Bet . . . animated hams and rashers of bacon rooting in a barnyard . . . blankets of marigold and azaleamums . . . white geese preening themselves . . . blue work shirts and overalls swinging on a line . . . yellow farmhouse under spreading golden willows . . . a gorgeous cock pheasant moving majestically across the road . . . a little clump of fat pink clover blooms . . . a thicket of purple elderberry . . . fat sheep cropping green grass . . . an old man bringing home the cows . . . a statuesque old crane standing in the water, watching for his supper . . . blue and purple dusk . . . lights pricking thru . . . home.

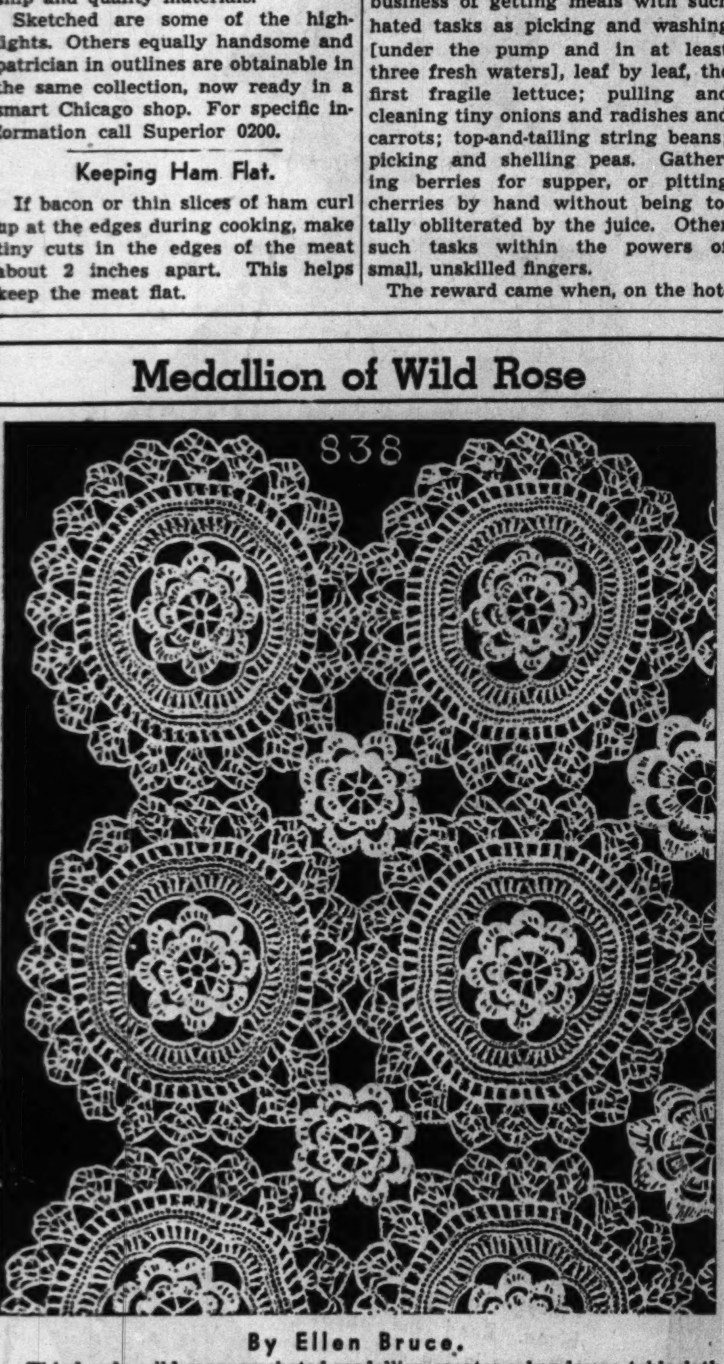
Lord of the Manor Horns In.

A recent letter addressed to this column says in part: "Altho the lady of our house tries to make the first grab for The Tribune each Sunday morning, she usually finds the man of the house has confiscated it, partly because of some ancient and entirely unfair tradition that the lord of the manor should have first whack at it, but mostly because the L. O. T. H. has to do up the breakfast dishes. And oddly enough, when the L. O. T. H. hunts for the section with THE LADY column, she hears satisfied chuckles emerging from behind it. . . ."

Now this pillar of prattle was originally intended for "us ladies," but far be it from any of us to begrudge the "dear man" a chuckle whenever he can find it in this sad world. He might even reward our generosity by sending us a laugh one of these days —who knows?—and thus contribute to the "gayety of nations" and several American households. M. M.

Medallion of Wild Rose

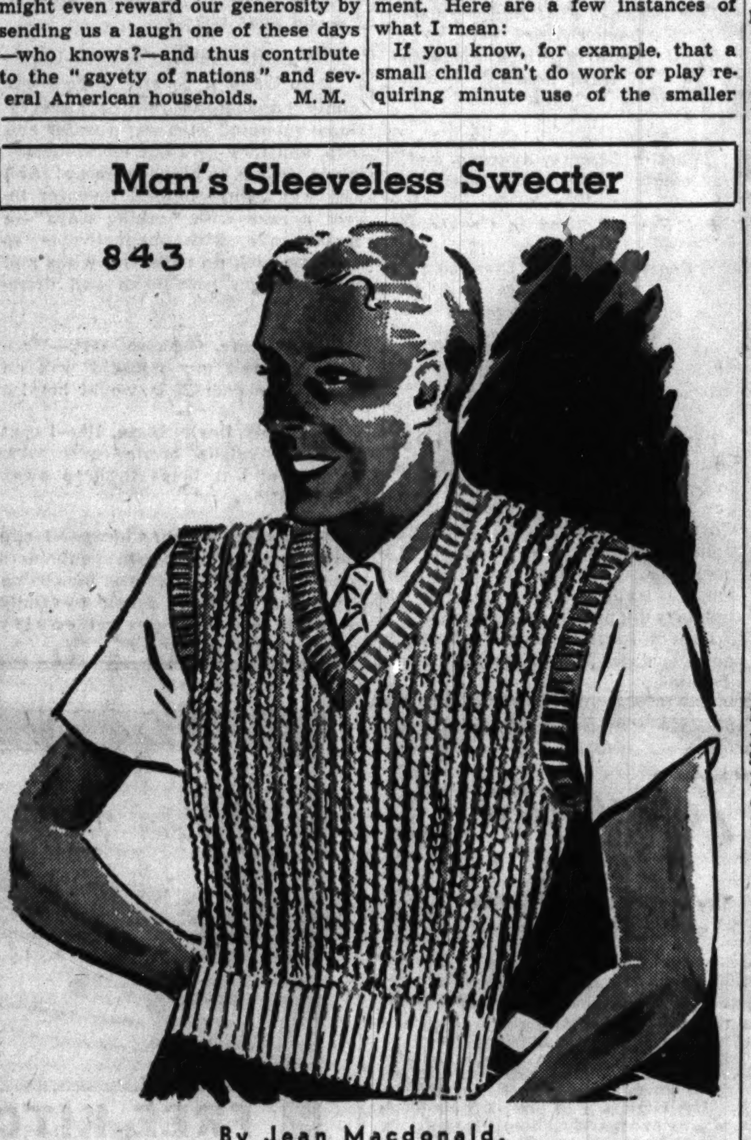


By Ellen Bruce,

This lovely wild rose, crocheted medallion creates a handsome tablecloth or an equally good looking bedspread. The tablecloth requires mercerized crochet cotton and the weight of the thread for a bedspread is slightly coarser and has no sheen. Extremely fine thread may be used to create a dresser scarf.

For instructions in crocheting the wild rose medallion for a tablecloth, No. 838, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Man's Sleeveless Sweater



By Jean Macdonald.

It is interesting to note how many well dressed men prefer to wear a knitted sleeveless sweater under their sports suits instead of the usual vest. This good looking and thoroly masculine sweater is knitted in the old-fashioned cardigan stitch. It is one of the easiest stitches and one which works up faster than average. Knitted in cashmere, 4 ply Scotch fingering or knitting worsted, it is guaranteed prevention against cold as well as a smart accessory to the masculine ensemble.

For instructions in knitting the man's sleeveless sweater in cardigan stitch, No. 843, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Adviser Lists Topics for Use of Club Women

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

As the weeks go by, we hear more and more often from child study groups.

Some of the letters are from members who have been asked to write papers on a certain subject, and want reading references. Or they ask for suggestions as to what to say, as they are uninformed and have had no experience to draw upon.

Other writers may be chairmen of parent associations and would like ideas for subjects that would be valuable to discuss.

And still others are members of a committee entrusted with the making of a year's program.

So far there are four angles of my work I have not been able to find time for. One is lecturing; another is writing the long-planned book; a third is a series of fully written leaflets from many angles for many ages on the subject of sex education; the fourth is program-making for study groups.

In regard to the last project, as I may never get around to program-making, I will take time today to make a few suggestions.

Taking our letters in order, first a word to the mothers who are asked to write a paper. Wherever possible, I think the subject should be one with which the writer has had some experience. I believe a good idea for part of a year's program would be to ask for volunteers to write a personal account of a successful working out of some problem in their family. And it need not be a "big" problem. It's some of the smaller difficulties which, spread out over each day, every day, wear mothers down, and often out.

Suppose, for example, you've gotten good results in your family of three "in-betweens," who have the nerve-wracking dawdling habit. It would be better for you to share this success with your study group than to tackle a problem which you've never been confronted with and have never thought about. If you want to make it a more complete job you could follow up your description of your own method by reading and giving a resumé of what several authorities have to say on this same subject. Or if another mother has been successful in coping with the nighttime wakeful period of young children, or the distressing habit of head-hanging, she can make a real contribution to her group by retailing her method. In these two cases, also, there might be an interesting general follow-up based on reading.

If a program committee does not care for this angle because they think it would result in miscellaneous talks, this approach could easily be worked out so that a coördinated program would result.

My next suggestion is in regard to a subject recommended for discussion that is so fundamental it could form the basis for a whole year's program.

That subject is growth. The growth of a child accounts for a large proportion of the things he does and the changes that take place in him as a young functioning personality. It is important for parents to understand something of the growth and development of their children. It is illuminating. It prevents trouble in management. Here are a few instances of what I mean:

If you know, for example, that a small child can't do work or play requiring minute use of the smaller muscles, you won't think he's ill-tempered if he cries over his futile efforts, nor will you think him lacking in character because he gives up doing something which is far beyond his muscular controls.

Or, if you know that at 18 months a baby must learn thru his sense of touch, you won't slap his hands and call him naughty. Then, use the 'teen age child as an example. If you know that at adolescence there is a sudden spurt of growth and that often it's very uneven, too, you'll be better able to handle your older boy or girl physically and emotionally.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning values. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Guam, an island in the Pacific ocean with an area of about 225 square miles, is a United States possession which was acquired during the Spanish-American war. Its importance to the United States has increased to a great extent during the last year on account of the unsettled conditions in the far east.

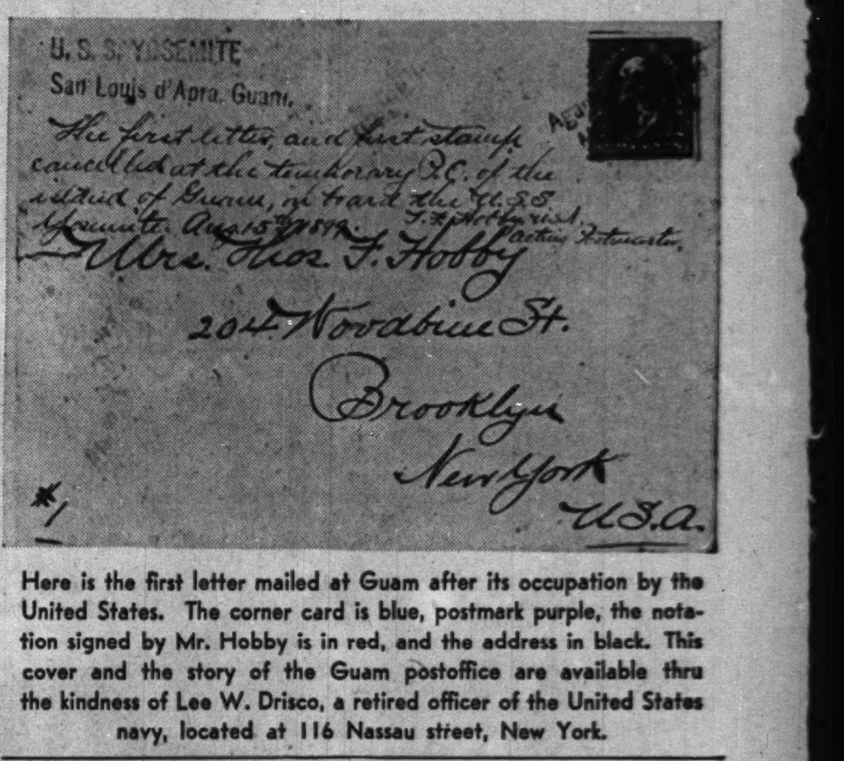
Postage stamps were made for Guam by overprinting several values of United States stamps of the period. These were in use for only a short time and form the rarest group of stamps of any of the United States possessions. When they were discontinued in 1900 ordinary United States stamps were placed in use.

The island of Guam was captured from Spain for the United States by the U. S. S. Charleston under command of Captain Henry Glass, United States Navy. Upon the arrival of the Charleston a salute was fired and shortly thereafter a small boat brought out the Spanish governor who wished to apologize for not returning the salute. He explained that there was nothing on the island with which a salute might be returned, and then was informed that his country was at war with the United States and was requested to surrender the island. This was gracefully done and at the end of the war the island was ceded to the United States.

For some time the vicinity was patrolled by the U. S. S. Charleston, then by the U. S. S. Brutus or U. S. S. Nashan, and finally the U. S. S. Yosemite arrived on Aug. 7, 1899, as a station ship and as temporary headquarters for Captain Richard P. Leary who was to become governor of Guam upon his arrival. Until the arrival of this vessel outgoing letters bore the stamps of Spain or of the Philippines and were picked up by the schooner Esmeralda on its circuit of the neighboring islands and eventually delivered to a Japanese port for routing to their various destinations.

On Aug. 7, 1899, a batallion of marines under Major A. C. Kelton, and a naval medical corps under Surgeon Philip Leach, landed at the village of Piti, and marched overland to Agana where possession was taken of the Spanish government buildings. On Aug. 10, a proclamation announcing the change in sovereignty was issued and posted in English, Spanish, and in Gomora, the native tongue.

On Aug. 15, Gov. Leary appointed Thomas F. Hobby acting postmaster at Guam and gave him full charge of all postal business at the island and turned over the safe containing the stamp stock which had been unopened since the departure of the U. S. S. Yosemite from New York. Hobby, chief yeoman, was detached from the U. S. S. Baltimore at Manila to join the Yosemite when the latter vessel was about to sail for Guam. The first postoffice was located on board ship in what had been the purser's office when the Yosemite was a merchant vessel owned by the Morgan Steamship company.



U. S. S. YOSEMITE
San Louis d'Apra, Guam.

The first letter, and first stamp cancelled at the temporary P.O. of the island of Guam, on board the U.S.S. Yosemite. Aug 15th 1899. T. F. Hobby, Acting Postmaster.

Mrs. Thos. F. Hobby
204 Novabine St.
Brooklyn
New York
U.S.A.

Here is the first letter mailed at Guam after its occupation by the United States. The corner card is blue, postmark purple, the notation signed by Mr. Hobby is in red, and the address in black. This cover and the story of the Guam postoffice are available thru the kindness of Lee W. Drisco, a retired officer of the United States navy, located at 116 Nassau street, New York.

Guam stamps were sold on a gold basis which required considerable exchange figuring as Mexican dollars were in use and the rate varied between 44 and 48 United States cents.

Five pieces of mail matter were postmarked on the first day at Guam. The first of these was a letter from the postmaster to his wife in Brooklyn, the others were addressed to Major Dixon, Roosevelt, N. Y.; John Precheur, Elizabeth, N. J.; Fred H. Hobby, Brooklyn, and a parcel bearing 16 cents postage to Mrs. Hobby. All stamps up to about Nov. 25, 1899, were canceled aboard the Yosemite, which makes it a contender for the title of the first floating postoffice. The postmark on such letters is rather a misnomer for it reads "Agana, Isle of Guam," when actually the postoffice was never nearer than four miles off shore.

During the period he was acting postmaster Mr. Hobby was promoted to the position of warrant machinist by the secretary of the navy and upon this appointment he was relieved of his duties in the postoffice and made public works officer of Guam. The postoffice after this time was in the hands of a native but Mr. Hobby had charge of the safe until he was invalided home after a severe illness.

Bearing in mind the present interest in the patriotic envelopes used during the civil war, Gimbel Brothers of New York have brought out a line of well designed pictorial or decorated envelopes for use with the new defense issue of stamps. It has been announced that this stamp issue will not be limited as has been the case with recent commemorative and propaganda stamps, but will be continued on sale as long as it is desirable to call attention to the defense program. The three values will likely supplant the same values in the Presidential series to a great extent.

A new edition of the Standard Catalog of Airpost stamps will appear about the middle of November. After licensing out the publication rights of this catalog for five years, Scott Publications, Inc., again resume publication with an entirely new and modern book. A committee of the American Air Mail society is collaborating with Hugh M. and Theresa M. Clark, the editors of all Scott publications, in making the catalog an indispensable handbook for the collector of air mail stamps.

One of the new features of the catalog will be the listing of all air-mail stamps on cover. This listing will refer to commercially used covers and not to first flight covers such as are listed in the American Air Mail catalog published by the American Air Mail society. It is not expected that the first edition of this book will be above criticism and the coöperation of collectors and dealers everywhere is desired so that succeeding editions will bring it to the high plane occupied by other Scott publications.

You Can Bleach Your Skin to a Lighter, Prettier Hue with Mercolized Wax Cream
FASHION indicates the return to favor of fairer, softer skin. Ever in stride with the latest mode, Mercolized Wax Cream lends its subtle bleaching and beautifying action to help you win a fashionable, lighter, lovelier complexion. Mercolized Wax Cream hastens the natural shedding of the dull, surface skin and uncovers the fairer, softer, smoother underskin. The action takes place so gradually that the actual flaking process is not visible. But soon you become aware of the improved appearance of your complexion. Start bleaching your skin tonight using Mercolized Wax Cream according to directions and you will be pleased.
REMOVE FACIAL HAIR WITH PHELACTINE DEPILATORY—Phelactine not only takes off the surface hair, but actually extracts the portion embedded under the skin, leaving no fuzz or stubble. It can be applied quickly and easily in a few seconds. Not a cream or powder. Has no obnoxious odor. You will like Phelactine.
TRY SAXOLITE ASTRINGENT, THE DELIGHTFUL SKIN FRESHENER. It is a quick acting, refreshing aid for daily care of the skin. Saxolite reduces excess oil on the surface skin; and its contracting action temporarily tightens the skin tissues. Simply dissolve Saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel and pat this lotion briskly on the skin several times daily.

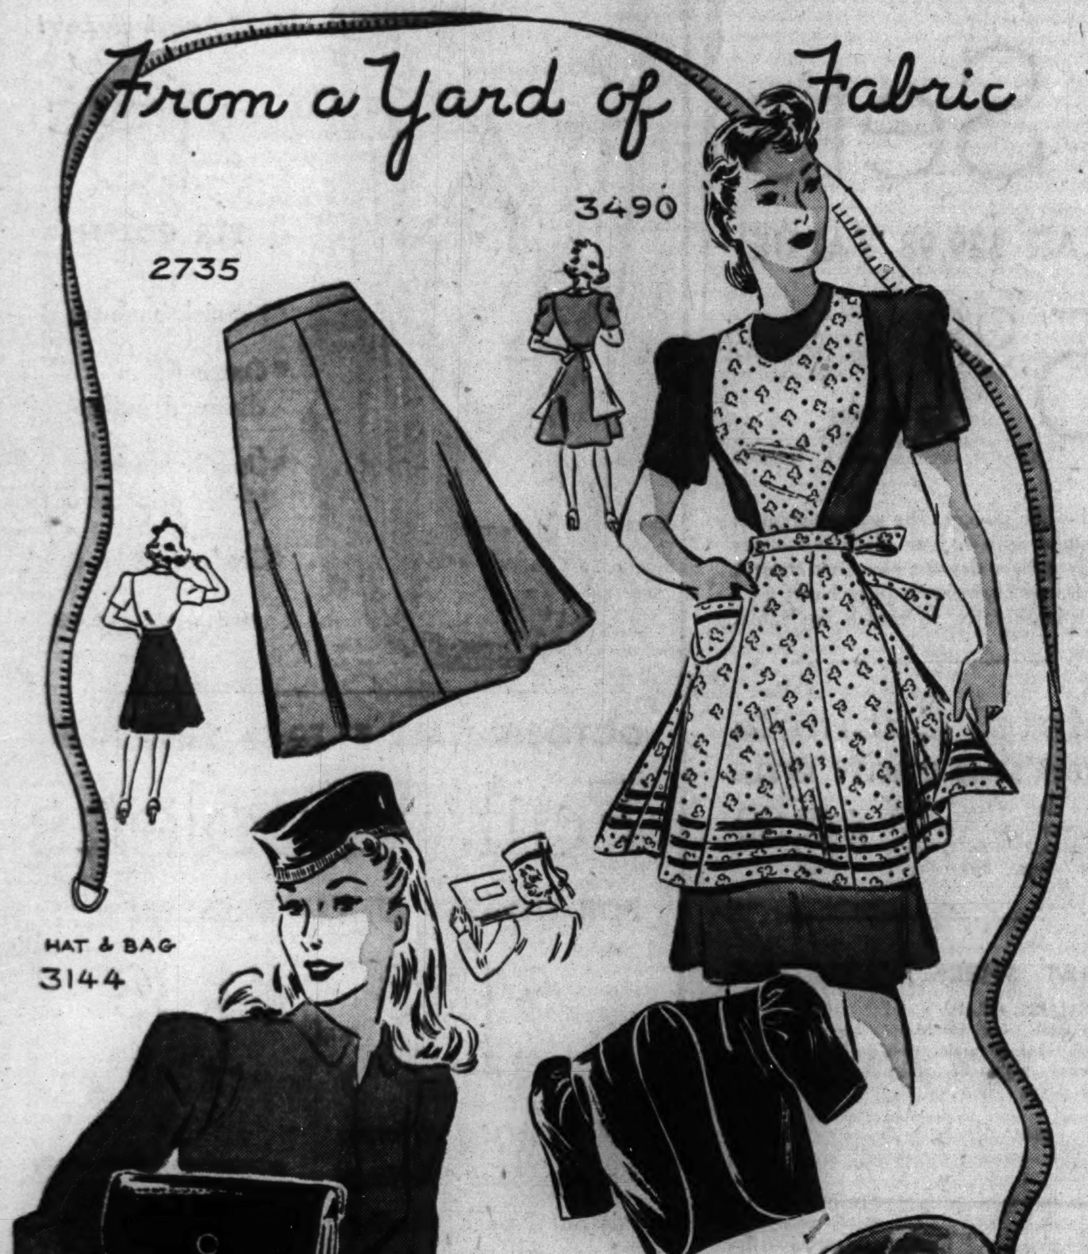
Patterns by Clotilde



By Clotilde.

Have you ever had just a yard of material left over from some sewing project and wondered what to do with it? Or have you ever been faced with the problem of making a really handsome gift on the basis of just a few pennies? Today's patterns are answers to both these questions.

No. 2735 creates a pretty skirt, a versatile model to wear with many blouses and sweaters, and requires just a yard of woolen or crêpe. It's a becoming model and easy to make.

No. 3490 makes that household indispensable, a cover-all apron. The bib style is especially favored by housewives who know what's practical. Simple bias tape or rickrack braid is used to trim this model.

No. 3144 fashions a twosome, a pillbox beret and matching handbag, beautiful accessories for yourself or a close friend.

No. 3137 is a helper in the wardrobe, since it makes a bolero to wear with one-piece dresses acquired last year or this, and to keep a skirt-and-blouse outfit company. Make it of woolen or silk.

Style No. 2735 is designed for sizes 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, and 36. Size 28 requires 1 yard of 54 inch material.

Style No. 3490 is designed for sizes small, medium, and large. Size medium requires 1 yard of 36 inch fabric.

Style No. 3144 is designed for one size, the hat adaptable to any head-size measurements. Hat requires ½ yard of 35 inch material; envelope bag calls for same.

Style No. 3137 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 1 yard of 39 inch material.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

For 15 cents buy the fall and winter Chicago Tribune Book of Clotilde Fashions, on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower; 10 cents if ordered with a pattern. Address mail orders to New York address in coupon.

Clotilde is a daily contributor to The Chicago Tribune, offering constructive information to women who make their own things, presenting a fascinating pattern every day of the week.

Termites are on the increase! Guard against them when you build. Check on the new copper termite shields for use on top surface of foundation walls under sills. And if you suspect existence of termites in an existing house, consult a competent termite control firm.

If you are drawn to the sparkling, lively beauty of maple, there's a colonial maple colored finish you can give your pine woodwork, paneling, etc. It is not hard to achieve. And at the end you rub finish with a mixture of pumice stone and oil, to obtain a dull effect, and then wax, to add soft shimmer and sheen.

Did you know that a nationally known washing machine is now on the market with a lamp inside the tub which acts as a sterilizing agent, and kills germs with concentrated violet rays? This same machine is streamlined in a square, flat topped cabinet which has been built at kitchen cabinet height to serve as a handy work table when not in use as a washer.

300 Gold Star Awards Made in Tribune Fashion Design Contest

Three hundred sketches that ran the gamut in women's apparel from wedgie shoes to ermine dresses were awarded gold star honorable mentions in the The Tribune's nationwide American Fashions contest for amateur and professional designers. The contest attracted the attention of the entire fashion world.

The gold star winning designs were on display in W-G-N's new Harmony hall during the three style revues that climaxed the contest Oct. 2 in W-G-N's theater studio. The hall was crowded with spectators after all three showings of the 48 glamorous growns, wraps, and ensembles which were selected from more than 12,000 entries. Of the 48 sketches made up for the revues, 25 won prizes totaling $7,500.

The American woman's love of freedom combined with grace was revealed not only in the prize winning designs but also in the lovely, often breathtaking gold star sketches. Daytime dresses, winning honorable mentions, were as expertly tailored or ingeniously draped as any that formerly flaunted Paris labels.

Evening gowns spared no detail that would heighten a woman's beauty and proved that American designers know the meaning of elegance. A patriotic and military influence was obvious in evening coats, and daytime wraps were freehanded in their use of luxurious furs. Ingenuity, color, and comfort were the ingredients used in the sketches of sports clothes.

More than 200 designers shared the 300 honorable mentions. Many entrants submitted more than one sketch.

According to the contest regulations, sketches sent with postage would be returned by mail after the revues or kept on file at Tribune Tower awaiting personal calls by designers.

Cutting the Cake.

Angel food and sponge cakes should be cut carefully since they are so delicate in texture. Use a regular cake breaker or try two forks for separating it into serving pieces.

Your Stars ★ Today ★

By WYNN

Sunday, Oct. 20.

There may be a jarring note of discord today, tempting us to say or do more than we should along negative lines—postpone it, hold back. Week ahead is very active, with problems of choice all the way; take nothing for granted; ponder.

Our Great Duty.

There is a large fate in the sense that opportunity is fate. There is no fate in the sense that we are chips on the stream of life and have nothing to say about where we are going. America today is definitely charged by the higher laws of life, as seen by a study of celestial vibrations in comparison with past similar vibrations, with the opportunity to preserve and improve civilization.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead contains stresses and strains with other folks, if born on this date. Any climaxes will show the way to new, better conditions. Proceed wisely with loved ones, home folks. Danger: Nov. 1-20; March 21-29.

Tomorrow.

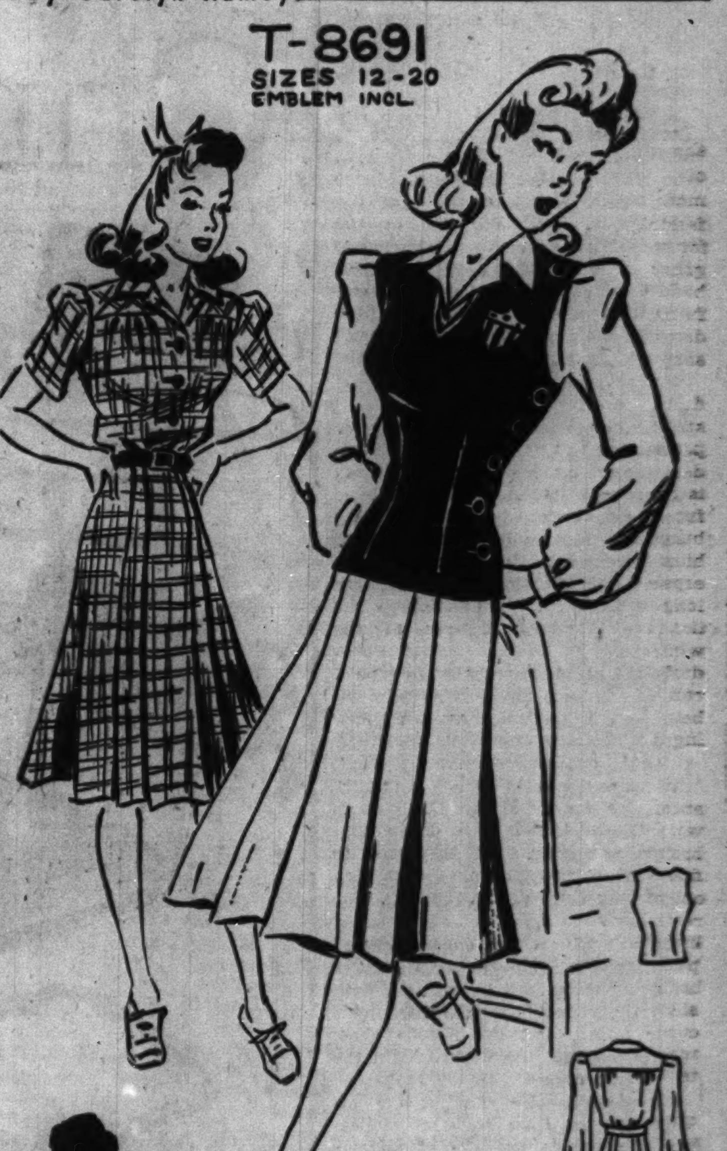
Campus Modes by a Co-ed

By Carolyn Ramey



Dear Judy:

News!

First, and most important, to me, I received a bid to THE big game from THE divine man. I am so excited that I can hardly keep my mind on my work. Naturally, the first consideration was the right costume for the momentous event, and I decided that this one would make the desired favorable impression.

It's a smooth shirtwaist dress with a contrasting jumperette, and I have my outfit "on the fire" right now.

Don't you agree that this costume would be a knockout in soft, green silk with a darker green flannel jerkin? Just for a patriotic touch, and to add that devastating note of red [almost a fashion "must" this season] I am going to add a tiny red, white, and blue shield.

The jerkin will keep me warm all during the game, and afterward I can take it off without mussing my hairdo, because it buttons on the shoulder and down the left side. This would be a grand dress for you, too, to wear in the office. Plaid is grand, with a plain jumperette, in case you want a lot of color.

You'll need 4½ yards of 39 inch material for the dress with long sleeves, and ⅞ yard of 54 inch material for jerkin. [These requirements for size 16.] No. T-8691 comes in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20.

Carolyn.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

As every one knows, there are good bids and bad bids, overbids and underbids. But the bid that leads all the others for sheer silliness is the bid that cannot possibly be understood by partner, even though its sole intention is to invite his coöperation. Let's consider this hand:

Match-point duplicate.
South dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♥ K 10 5 2
♦ None
♣ A Q J 10 7 6 4

WEST
♠ Q 9 3
♥ Q 8 4 3
♦ Q 10 9 6
♣ K 8

EAST
♠ K J 10 8 6 4
♥ J 9 6
♦ K 8 3 2
♣ None

SOUTH
♠ A 5
♥ A 7
♦ A J 7 5 4
♣ 9 5 3 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
3 clubs	Pass	3 Spades	Double
Pass	Pass	4 clubs	Pass
5 clubs	Pass	Pass	Pass

South's one diamond opening, North's two club response, and South's club raise were normal and accurate, but the bidding went into an acute decline when North tossed his three spade bid into the arena. East's double put South in the unenviable position of not being able to take thoroly appropriate action.

Let us put ourselves in South's position and forget that we know North's actual holding. From our point of view the three spade bid means exactly what it says—that North has clubs and spades and is merely attempting to find the best game contract. Nothing in North's bidding has so far suggested that he is after a slam; he may have such a hand as

♠ K J 9 5 ♥ x ♦ x x x ♣ A K x x x

Now, tho this is a good hand and would warrant the two club and three spade bids, we should scarcely like to reach a slam with our combined holdings.

This, however, is not our present consideration; our pressing need is to make the most intelligent possible call over East's double of three spades. Well, we have several conceivable courses available. We can pass; we can redouble; we can bid three no trump; we can go back to clubs.

A redouble, we decide, is no good. We are not prepared to play three spades, with North indicating a four card suit, and there is great danger in saying that we like the double.

A three no trump bid, we feel, would deny rather than announce the holding of a high spade honor. It would sound as tho we had only been waiting for the announcement of a spade stopper from North to contract for game in no trump.

To go back to clubs, we realize, would show too much dislike of the spade bid.

Hence we settle on a simple pass as the action most in keeping with our holding.

But what good does this pass do North? He had clumsily tried to find out something about the spade suit—whether or not he would have to lose two spade tricks at a slam contract—and now knows less than before! Of course, he should jump to five clubs and leave further decision to South, but he has probably become discouraged by East's prompt double of spades. Now he is afraid to offer us any encouragement, feeling that if he bids five clubs we may have such a hand as and, figuring that North has shown spade control, go to a slam in clubs.

♠ x x x ♥ A Q ♦ A J 10 x ♣ K x x x

In short, the three spade bid and its inevitable repercussions have totally disrupted partnership coöperation. North doesn't know about our controls and we, not recognizing his problems, cannot help him solve them. Hence, a sure small slam [not to mention a very fair play for a grand slam] has been mangled by the steamroller of misunderstanding.

Could this misunderstanding have been avoided? And how! All North had to do was bid his cards normally, showing what he actually had instead of what he didn't have.

After our three club bid North should have bid three hearts. There are two separate and distinct reasons for this call. First, North has a heart suit of sorts. Second, hearts are lower ranking than spades. If, over three hearts, we have the control of spades and a good enough hand to warrant showing that control, we can bid three spades, and without misleading North into thinking we have a spade suit. [If we had a spade suit worth bidding at the three level we certainly would have shown it at the two level rather than raise our partner's minor suit.]

As a matter of fact, we would bid three spades in response to three hearts. Our distribution and possession of three aces, rather than lesser honors, would justify that call. And note how revealing and encouraging a voluntary spade bid on our part would be to North. He would stop worrying about two spade losers on the opening lead; he would assume that we could control spades and afford him a discarding opportunity for his second spade on our announced diamond suit; he would not fear a heart lead because it would have to come up to his king; he would count the club suit as solid because of our raise—unless we had the heart ace, which would permit a loser in the trump suit. In brief, after a three heart bid by North and an answering three spade bid by South, it would be the simplest and safest possible matter to contract for at least a small slam in clubs.

The only time a player should bid what he hasn't is when he is making a conventional, hence recognizable, asking bid. Unfortunately, these handy little gadgets did not meet with wide public favor, due to their complications and the unwillingness of most players to study a system. Hence I was forced to demote asking bids from an official place in the Culbertson System to a sort of optional department. I have not, however, abandoned the idea of asking bids. It is my earnest hope that in the near future I will be able to present a simplified system of asking bids—one that will be highly effective, yet easily absorbed by the average player with the average amount of time to devote to bridge. One thing is certain: Slam bidding is not the scientific matter it should and can be.

Hearts are trumps and South leads. North and South are to win all the tricks against any defense.

Solution: South leads a trump. If West ducks, the ten holds. South then leads the winning club and spade. If West trumps the spade, North overtrumps, pulls West's trump, and leads the last trump. South's first discard is the ten of diamonds; then he discards according to East's discards. West's hand is already ruined.

If West covers the initial heart lead North wins and leads the club, South returning the spade ace. If West trumps, North overtrumps as before.

If West discards a diamond on the spade South must let North trump a club to prevent a second diamond discard. Then the king and another diamond put South in and West's trumps are killed.

Pull the Trigger on Constipation with herb laxative, combined with syrup pepsin to make it agreeable and easy to take

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste and bad breath, your stomach is probably "crying the blues" because your bowels don't move. It calls for Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels, combined with good old Syrup Pepsin to make your laxative more agreeable and easier to take. For years many Doctors have used pepsin compounds, as agreeable carriers to make other medicines more palatable when your "taster" feels easily upset. So be sure your laxative contains Syrup Pepsin. Insist on Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna, combined with Syrup Pepsin. See how wonderfully its herb Laxative Senna wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your intestines, to bring welcome relief from constipation. And see how its Syrup Pepsin makes Dr. Caldwell's medicine so smooth and agreeable to a touchy gullet. Even finicky children love the taste of this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna at your druggist's today. Try one laxative that won't bring on a griping shock — even when you take it after a full meal.

The Night Club Headliners Win by a Landslide

Chicago casts its straw votes for topnotch entertainment. With wars and rumors of wars, candidates and near-candidates demanding attention, all the polls indicate that the people prefer the rulers of the amusement world. It's a landslide for divertissement.

The newcomers could scarcely be called new to Chicago. Some of them already are serving their third terms, if not their fourth or fifth. Wayne King was crowned the waltz king long ago in this city, Paul Draper has become a hardy perennial at the Chez Paree, Hildegarde has been here before, and Griff Williams is now one of the standard fixtures at the Stevens.

So the people know what to expect. There will be little or no experimenting with hitherto untried and therefore potentially dangerous doctrines. If there are any dictators present, they are the ones who sit nightly around the edge of the dance floors and dictate what is to be danced and played and sung. And they stick to the headliners with whose work they have long since grown familiar.

• • •

This is King's first engagement at the Edgewater, and he gives promise of doing right well by himself, with both the youngsters, who must have their swing, and the middle aged, who know that the waltz is still the world's finest music. He aims to please both classes. He can provide his three-quarter time radio specialties and the warm tunes with equal facility. He says he has two arrangements—one for airing and one for dancing—of almost every number in his music library.

Appearing with him in the new Marine room are the Maurice St. Clair and Gloria Day dance team, the Three Rose Sisters, acrobats, and the Dorothy Durben dancers, now in their fourth year at the north side hotel.

Since his departure from Chicago last August Griff Williams has been on a road tour, embracing theaters and ballrooms in Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Indiana, and Texas. He has made few changes in his aggregation. Buddy Moreno's vocal duties have been taken over by Walt King, but Bob Kirk is still doing ballads in baritone, and Griff himself is again starring on the keyboard. In the Continental room his band last night replaced Eddie Oliver's orchestra, which will move to the west coast for the fall and winter.

When the crowd gathered for Raymond Scott's opening at the Blackhawk Wednesday night it found everything — except the band— in a brand new attire. Bright colors, natural color photo murals, and scaling down of the posts to toothpick size, so that every table had a good view of the proceedings, were among the revelations. Scott's 15 piece organization is only about four months old, but it already has earned a name for unusual interpretations of modern music. With him are his quintet, the Six Dancing Co-eds, and Johnny Duffy, who plays the electric organ and the piano simultaneously.

Harry James made his Chicago debut last year, and Friday night he and his men began jamming it again at the College Inn's Panther room. His current répertoire includes his own compositions, "Concerto for Trumpet" and "Tempo De Luxe"; his version of "Flight of the Bumblebee," and new arrangements of "Come and Get It" and "Swanee River." He has been doing such things ever since he began directing an orchestra at the ripe age of 9 years.

Of the new show at the Chez Paree, and of the lovely Hildegarde, who started performing at the Drake hotel's enchanting new Camellia House last night, and of the current revue at Harry's New Yorker, more next week.

• • •

Col. W. W. Yashenko's new Yar, in the Lake Shore Drive hotel, is practically an old, established rendezvous now. The Fairy Tales bar, with its elaborate and entertaining murals illustrating Pushkin stories and its rough hewn log walls, is an amusing mecca, especially during the cocktail hour. Across the lobby the Boyar dining room is a serene monument to the decorating skill of Roman Chatov. Murals depicting 16th century pastimes, gypsy music by George Scherban and his ensemble, delicious food by Mitchell Thompson, and precise, unobtrusive service under the direction of Louis Steffan, make this one of the more attractive of the town's dining rooms.

Another "Life with Father."

The third company of "Life with Father" has embarked on an indefinite run at the Civic Repertory theater in Boston. Dorothy Gish and Louis Calhern have the rôles played here by Lillian Gish and Percy Waram.

Factions Battle Over Issue of Equal Rights

By Betty Browning

BACKERS of the proposed equal rights amendment and those who oppose it are agreed on one point, and on virtually one point only: Women do not enjoy the legal status they should have.

It has been estimated that some 68 discriminations against women still remain on the statute books of the several states.

How would the equal rights amendment affect this situation?

The proposed amendment reads: "Men and women shall have equal rights thruout the United States and every place subject to its jurisdiction. Congress shall have the power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation."

Were the amendment enacted, its opponents believe, the result would be "confusion worse confounded." The quotation was cited by one L. T. S. in a spirited attack on the amendment last February in the American Bar Association Journal.

In no less spirited fashion Helen Elizabeth Brown of the Baltimore Women's Bar association has called L. T. S. to task for "levity and bias."

The association's legislative chairman emphasizes the "astounding fact that citizens who are also women have been excluded from the protection and benefits of the constitution by judicial decree in many states and very definitely by the Supreme court of the United States. . . . The constitution . . . is now a document for men only."

Opponents of the amendment have two principal lines of attack. The meaning of the amendment, they contend, is uncertain, and its enactment would result in confusion and a vast amount of litigation, with uncertain consequences.

Ambassador Will Give Address at Council

By Cousin Eve

THIS is an open season for ambassadors. Following its precedent since Donald McPherson has been chairman of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations, an ambassador, William Bullitt, will address a dinner meeting of that large debating society tomorrow night.

Last year we heard at dinner the marquess of Lothian's advice that England thought it well we should keep our fleet in the Pacific ocean. And we also attended a dinner for Count René Robert de Saint-Quentin, now French envoy to the Argentine, and didn't quite know what it was all about.

Mr. Bullitt is by birth a Philadelphian and is a wealthy widower who figured in Paris as American ambassador and was extremely popular with the Daladier government. His palatial embassy, 2 Avenue d'Iena, was set in beautiful gardens and furnished in the best of taste, and as for his country house at Chantilly, on which he had a 10-year lease, that was something! Mr. Bullitt's lovely Gothic chateau deep in the forest of Chantilly is the ci-devant royal lodge that belonged to the late royal Duchesse de Chartres. St. Firmin the estate is called, and one hears that it was bombed by Germans en passant as they swarmed on Paris.

The dinner will take place in the large ballroom of the Palmer house, and the speaker's topic will be "Our Foreign Policy." He ought to know. Having lived for a quarter of a century in France, and for a period at Moscow as American envoy, his address should have color.

Another diplomat whizzing back to Washington is Alexander Kirk, chargé d'affaires in Berlin. He was in Washington last May but was unable to come home to Chicago because of conferences at the state department.

When Mr. Kirk goes back to Europe it will be to Rome, where he will act in the absence of Ambassador William Phillips, as he did before during the long absences of Breckinridge Long and John W. Garrett. He is ultrapopular in Rome. Alexander Kirk was the outstanding rich, glamorous bachelor of Rome 10 years ago. Of his two palaces, Villa Spada stood on the Janiculum overlooking the Eternal City, a historic place. Garibaldi made his last stand in the gardens, and the view at night in peacetime of the gleaming Tiber and twinkling lights of Rome was lovely beyond words.

His last house was Villa Blanc in Via Nomentana, imposing with its stone interior and white silk draperies, and the scene of much splendid entertaining. Royalty was likely to meet commoner or peasant Chez Alexander, and his queenly mother, the late Mrs. James Kirk, was his hostess as long as she lived. But really most thrilling of all was his temple in the western hills outside Peking. When he was a young secretary of embassy in China they called him "Tubby," for obvious reasons. He now is a tall, slender man, extremely charming, able, and of much distinction.

Exceedingly exciting people are bursting thru town these days, like rockets and Roman candles. There was "Tish," for instance, the dynamic Mrs. Charles Bromwell, on her way to Washington for the winter. She was looking soignée and lovely in last year's knits from Paris, and handsome as always. Her daughter, Milly, more widely known as Lady Bailey, wife of Admiral Sir Sidney Bailey, has been in America for three months, placing David in school in Canada and tall young Patricia, aged 15, at Foxcroft in Virginia, where they ride and become accomplished horsewomen.

It's a chic school all right. A woman I know well, who went there to place her daughter, said they showed her how nice the stables were and never offered to take her over the classrooms.

Tish was telling me how vague everything is in England these days. Admiral Bailey is working like a beaver somewhere, nobody knows where, and Lord Gort, after being heavily decorated by King George, has vanished into thin air. We were lunching one day a year ago in London with Betty Dugdale, a divinely lovely creature, daughter of Lady Coventry, not one of those English beauties who look like a horse, but really lovely, and Tish was saying she had had a romantic war wedding in London in May with an earl, and they had a fortnight's honeymoon before her husband left for Flanders. He, too, member of a great family, has vanished. There's the most utter mystery about individuals these days as to whether or not they are alive.

Mme. Elsa Schiaparelli was another rocket to go thru town last week. There's another dynamic creature giving only a passing thought to her lovely Paris house in the Rue de Berri, and her "affaires," moved to Biarritz. The distinguished Franco-Italo designer is a slight, pale woman with black hair folded under a purple woolen scarf. Her frock was a green and purple striped knit, the gloves and scarf of purple. She lunched Sunday at the Saddle and Cycle club, and brought her young daughter Gogo. This girl, who is about to fly to the Argentine on a visit, wore a tailleur and a fur hat designed by her mother. It was a whole animal, like a fisher, folded round her head, with the tail dangling over one ear a la Daniel Boone, among her pretty curls.

Mme. Schiaparelli belongs to a huge committee in New York, "Funds for France, Inc." Among its members are Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, the Louis Bromfields, Mrs. Margaret Emerson, Joan Crawford, Oliver Jennings, Miss Marion Kemp, Mrs. Paul Mellon, Mortimer Singer, the Louis Reynals, the Sigourney Thayers, Mrs. Cameron Tiffany, and Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Wiman.

The insignia is a French blue enamel bow, holding a gold cage in which is a red, white, and blue heart, the heart of France. Crystal tears depend from the bars of the cage. Schiaparelli designed it.

The Chicago Symphony has been going 50 years, and last week's opening concert was very fine—Beethoven, Strauss, Rimsky-Korsakoff, and Stock. There were mammoth bunches of gold chrysanthemums, with purple orchids sprouting out of the central bouquet, and a new instrument that looked like a gold Christmas tree out of Africa—the schellenbaum. We have in Chicago the only schellenbaum owned by a symphony orchestra, and ours was given us by Camillie Saint-Saens, who made a gift years ago to Theodore Thomas. The schellenbaum is in the percussion class, used abroad in military bands to make a big noise, and this instrument came from Senegal, where it had seen service with France's black troops.

The very look of it gave one a warm feeling for Frederick Stock's new Festival Fanfare, which has a fascinating old English motif and was written in August and dedicated to our symphony. In the lobby during intermission it was gay indeed. Mrs. John W. Gary had a nosegay of camellias, and Countess Cardelli a white chrysanthemum in the lapel of her neat black tailleur that looked artificial but was really real.

The St. Luke's Fashion show Tuesday afternoon nearly burst the Stevens ballroom asunder. It was such a success that many who bought afternoon tickets had to be accommodated at night. Once in, it was almost impossible to get out. Nathaniel Owings designed the setting, which was superlative—a vast black velvet curtain with a sparkling grotto in the upper right hand corner, from which spiraled a runway. Down this fantastic walk the mannequins tripped in all the panoply of winter wear, pirouetting daintily at the far end the better to display shoes, hats, jewels, furs, or frocks.

One modiste sent her six smart stylists in black sateen smocks and black cotton stockings—a real blackout, the better to dazzle with her remarkably pretty hats. In this group were Mrs. Robert Adams, Mrs. Chauncey Hutchins, Denise Root, Suzette Hamill, Mrs. Perry Pennington, and Mrs. Winfield Durbin.

There were many features. Schiaparelli made a little speech over the microphone—some apt and clever words about the Garden of Eden and those fig leaves. The rainy day parade, with pretty debbies in lovely little bright raincoats, was the smashingest hit of all. Sally Perry, Carol Harrison, and Adrienne Ely one recognized in their charming little outfits, umbrellas, hoods, and coats as they danced down the runway.

Princess Rostislav, our slim Chicago Russian, charming in black dinner frock, modeled one of these big modern diamonds that look like chunks of glass. It was a pendant from a necklace of diamonds and said to be highly expensive.

• • •

There's one odd feature about the afternoon show, the audience wholly of women gives only an occasional patter of applause. While at night the men patrons at the dinner-dance give all the delightful mannequins a big hand.

The "fair sex" is often unfair.

The French wedding was highly amusing and done by Schiaparelli from the French point of view of weddings, which has always been more practical than sentimental. The bridesmaids in rigid little frocks and hats of bright blue with top knots of cerise were followed by the bride [Mrs. Eugene du Pont III., formerly Margaret Chapman], so submerged in train and tulle veil she could scarcely navigate. The lace ruffles caught on everything. I asked my neighbor in the box did she know that a French wedding began with the bridesmaids taking up a collection? And the amusingly witty reply was "who gets the money, the bridegroom?" I never thought of that before. All told, I was charmed by the St. Luke's show, which was bigger and better than ever.

Well, what do you think? Another benefit! And this one for British war relief—and also for "ballet relief," I opine, for an absolutely new ballet starts here in a fortnight with our Grand Opera. And there's nothing like a modish benefit to make us acquainted with something. The hookup between ballet and Britain suggests Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, and sure enough the dynamic and charming Ellen is chairman of British war relief in Chicago and also interested in bringing this new ballet to our opera.

Mrs. Clarence Prentice is chairman of the benefit, and working with her on the committee are Mrs. Robert Gardner, Mrs. Julian Soames, Mrs. James Cooke, Mrs. Arthur Cable, Mrs. James H. Winston, Mrs. Howard Linn, and Katharine Rodman. The program includes "The Great American Goof," a Chicago première and very exciting news to all professional dancers. Another number, the Italian Suite, with choregraphy by Anton Dolan, will have its world première that night. The date of the benefit is Nov. 3 at the Chicago Civic Opera house.

The Fourth Presbyterian church was the scene of a beautiful wedding Saturday afternoon. Its Gothic nave was ablaze with candles, and four huge cones of massed white carnations in the chancel fascinated the congregation waiting for the bridal cortège. It was Margaret Hutchins' and Anthony Ryerson's wedding day. The bridesmaids wore delightful costumes, dark red velvet jackets over full taffeta skirts, with bouquets of pink roses.

The bride, tall and beautifully fair, wore white satin, but white almost parchment in tone under a cloud of white tulle. And the maid of honor shattered all precedents by wearing gray. She was Mrs. Chauncey Borland, the bride's pretty sister. Mrs. James Hutchins, her mother, was very handsome in dark ruby velvet with sables as she sailed down the long aisle after the ceremony. The organist played the good old wedding music at such a fast gallop that the wedding party was all outside under the awning when the rest of the congregation poured out of the church. Velvet seemed to be the rage in spite of the warm day. Mrs. Richard Danielson of Boston wore black velvet and sables, and so did her sister, Mrs. Chauncey McCormick. Mrs. Donald Ryerson wore black velvet with a gay little hat of pink flowers.

James B. Forgan presided at the Gray Lady party Monday afternoon at the Stevens hotel, when Mrs. Irene Sidley was graduating a class of 46 new ministering angels. The costume of these women, whose course in hospital work is preparatory, is dove gray with a gray veil and white accessories. Seated in state with Mr. Forgan on the dais were Mr. and Mrs. James Nicholson of Washington, Roger Holden, and Mrs. Melvin Traylor. Mrs. Forgan was also present, and afterward in her charming little pale blue Red Cross uniform was one of the charming hostesses at tea.

Mrs. Sidley made a short talk to her class, and James Nicholson gave a brief résumé of his six months' survey of conditions in Poland after the German occupation.

The musical appreciation people are here again in all their glory, and one simply can't believe all these things are true. Lawrence Scudder is Chicago chairman of the appreciators, who seem to meet at luxurious dinners in gala surroundings. They give marvelous concerts where sing the world's greatest stars. They distribute beautiful records at low cost, records symphonic and vocal. They distribute cash out of a clear sky to our symphony, our opera, and our woman's symphony.

One dined Wednesday night at the Blackstone in the Grand ballroom—a beautiful party. Many of my friends were present in charming clothes. There was a speaker's table, autumn flowers—an orchestra playing enchanting music. The guest of honor was John Erskine, witty literary man, with a long, long speech full of drollery. Reinald Werrenrath was toastmaster. Walter R. Kirk was heard, briefly and wittily, on our forthcoming weeks of opera, he being president. Many stood up and spoke their piece. It was all with the end in view of putting music over to charm the savage human breast.

By Sally Joy Brown.

Many of the elderly people of the city are not equipped to meet the coming winter, and since, in most instances, they are unable to help themselves, numerous aged men and women who are alone in the world have come to us for aid.

Mrs. A. tells her own story in her letter:

"Dear Miss Brown: I am an elderly woman, 64, and handicapped by deafness. As I am obliged to attend a clinic regularly for a checkup on a lung condition, I greatly dread the coming winter. I am badly in need of a coat or warm sweater, size 18 or 20. Since my husband's death, three years ago, I have been forced to ask for relief but, as you know, clothing of that kind cannot be provided in the budget.

• • •

"Aside from the relief, this is my first request for aid of any kind in all my life, but as it is such a real need, I thought perhaps one of the readers who had a discarded coat would pass it on to me.

"I can call at any time except the first day of the month, but I cannot hear over the phone, and as I live alone, it is difficult to take messages in that way. I have no family or relatives.

"You may be sure, Miss Brown, that I shall appreciate any garment, as the coat I now have is in its 10th year. It was purchased when the price of a good coat meant nothing to me, and it isn't easy at all for me to ask this."

This address is on the south side.

Mr. and Mrs. S. are an elderly couple living on a small pension, which is not sufficient to provide clothing. We have been able to give them some assistance with wearing apparel, but all their needs have not been filled. A recent letter from Mr. S. reads:

"Dear Miss Brown: I am writing this to let you know that we have moved, and to give you our new address. Some time ago, I wrote you about my wife, who is much in need of a winter coat, size 44. I hope that you have not forgotten her. You are the only one we can come to, and you have been so kind in the past I know you will help us if it is possible.

"I am sorry to have to trouble you so much, but I can't help myself. Thanking you for all you have done for us. . . ."

This address is on the north side of the city.

• • •

Mrs. M., a case worker, appeals for assistance for a dauntless old man, handicapped by blindness.

"Dear Miss Brown: I would like to appeal to your readers for a garbage burner for Mr. X.

"Two years ago he started to build a house for himself, in spite of the fact that he is 70 years old and totally blind, and now has almost completed a four room structure. All of his furniture was donated, but the large old heating stove he now has is falling apart. He cooks on a gasoline stove, but a garbage burner would serve for both cooking and heating purposes.

"Mr. X. has no relatives to assist him, and his only income is his small monthly pension. This agency will arrange to pick up and deliver a stove if you can obtain one."

This elderly man certainly is an example of bravery and tenacity and we would like very much to supply a heating and cooking unit for the home which he built for himself, in spite of the handicaps of old age and sightlessness. The address is on the northwest side of the city.

Clever Tricks Add Apparent Size to Room

"Color Schemes for the Living Room," a booklet by Claire Winslow, gives six complete furnishings plans and was written to aid the woman who is her own interior decorator. Price, 5 cents by mail, 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Claire Winslow.

Now that the dining room has moved into the living room, the question in hundreds of small homes and apartments is: How shall it be furnished?

Shall it be made to look like the living room, turning into a dining room suddenly at meal times, or shall it have a dining table and chairs, a sideboard and a china cabinet? The answer seems to be a compromise, smart decorators keeping to the living room wall and window treatments, but placing a small dining table and chairs at the end of the room reserved for dining.

One of the most beautiful arrangements we've seen, an ideal solution to this problem of interior decoration, is in a new apartment, recently furnished. The living room is carried out in fresh, clear, spring-like tones; pale leaf green, gray, dusty rose, with one or two notes of vivid crimson and yellow.

The dining end of this room is in an alcove and here the difficulty was to create a feeling of space in a small area. By keeping the walls absolutely plain and in the same light green tint as the rest of the room, and by the avoidance of moldings this was partially accomplished.

But the stroke of genius was the covering of the rear wall with mirror glass and having it relieved at either side by charming murals, paintings of tropical foliage and flowers which rise in curving, graceful lines to the ceiling. The apparent size of the alcove is doubled by this clever trick, and the whole room is given beauty and individuality by the paintings.

The furniture is quite simple—mahogany in a harvest finish, its lines frankly modern.

The pieces in the foreground of the picture are in the living room proper, and the object at the right, next the chair, is a new radio, with top like a table.

This model home is in the Chatham Park apartments at 83d street and Cottage Grove avenue and was furnished by a Chicago store.

True Sisters to Conduct Conference on Thursday

The western conference of the United Order of True Sisters will be held Thursday and Friday in Chicago, with Johanna No. 9, Sarah Greenebaum No. 16, and Lincoln No. 22 as the hostess lodges. Mrs. Martin Barbe, dean of the Chicago Grand Lodge group, will preside at the opening round table Thursday evening at the Chicago Beach hotel. A program written and presented by members of the order will be a feature of an all day session Friday at the Windermere hotel. Delegates from as far away as Memphis, Tenn., and Los Angeles, Cal., will attend the meeting.

Factions Wage Battle Over Equal Rights

Perhaps more important, they hold that the amendment would endanger, if not invalidate, legislation designed to protect women in the home and industry.

It also is contended that the amendment would constitute an infringement of states' rights. Congress, by the terms of the amendment, would be empowered to make laws superseding existing state laws.

Likewise the amendment is held to be superfluous on the ground that there is virtually no constitutional obstacle to removing the discriminations the admentment is designed to eliminate. Exceptions include the Oklahoma and Wisconsin constitutions, which limit certain public offices to men, and a few state constitutions which bar women from jury service.

Arguments in favor of the amendment will be discussed in a subsequent issue.

As substitutes to the amendment, its critics recommend public education and specific action to remove specific discriminations.

In the last 20 years the League of Women Voters, a leading opponent, has been instrumental in obtaining 159 enactments for the removal of legal discriminations in the 48 states, involving jury service, office holding, equal guardianship, property rights, and domicile, among others.

The Cable act, providing for independent citizenship of married women, was passed in 1922, and the principle of "equal pay for equal work" was written into the federal civil service act in 1923, also in large part thru league efforts.

Mrs. Raymond Simons
[Corboy Photo.]

"What is meant by equality?" is the first of a series of challenging questions raised by Mrs. Raymond Simons anent the amendment. This Chicago attorney is vice president of the Illinois League of Women Voters, and frequently has been its spokesman on this subject.

"Is identical laws meant?" Mrs. Simons asks. "If so, which set of laws should we hold to, those now applying to men or those applying to women?

"Does equal rights thruout the United States and every place subject to its jurisdiction mean that laws shall be uniform thruout the whole country? Could a wife in Illinois claim her husband's wages because a man in Georgia owns his wife's wages?

"What is the meaning of the second sentence? States up to now have not yielded the power to control rights, duties and relations of men and women to legislation by congress.

"Or would it still be up to the state legislature to bring laws into conformity? How could legislatures reluctant to act be coerced into action? What would be the status of existing laws until the changes had been established? Would existing laws be suspended, and, if so, which one?"

Mrs. Simons disputes the very theory of equal rights for men and women. She quotes a statement made by Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter when he was a professor at Harvard law school:

"Only those who are ignorant of the nature of law and of its enforcement, or indifferent to the exacting aspects of woman's life, can have the naïveté or the recklessness to sum up woman's whole legal position in a meaningless and mischievous phrase about 'equal rights.'

"For some purposes men and women are persons, and the law should for these purposes treat them as persons, subjecting them to the same duties and conferring upon them the same rights.

"But for other and vital purposes men and women are men and women, and the law must subject them to different rules of legal conduct."

Most women, Mrs. Simons has found, want social and economic equality, rather than legal equality, which, she believes, in many cases, is something quite different.

Mrs. Simons contends, and quotes the deans of leading midwestern law schools to reinforce her opinion, that the equal rights amendment would throw into the discard "certain benefits women now enjoy because they are women, and other benefits women have gained thru law to equalize their position economically or socially with men."

A case in point would be protective legislation for women workers. The League of Women Voters has worked in behalf of this legislation side by side with the Women's Trade Union league.

• • •

Miss Agnes Nestor.

Miss Agnes Nestor, president of the Women's Trade Union League of Chicago, explains her organization's point of view thus:

"It has taken years of struggle and effort to obtain certain labor laws for women, and gradually these laws have been sustained, first by the state courts, and finally by the United States Supreme court, on the ground of health. The court recognized the need for protecting women against long and excessive working hours, and the effect of fatigue on the health, not only of the working women of today but of the future generation.

"This proposed amendment would wipe out protective legislation that applies only to women, such as limitation of working hours and minimum wage laws. It would also endanger mothers' pension laws and other laws for the protection of mothers and wives."

Mrs. Simons indorses the principle of protective legislation for men and women workers alike, but underscores the need of women workers for special protective laws. Men, for the most part, have obtained what hour legislation and wage rates they have sought thru their unions, she argues, whereas the majority of women workers, expecting to remain in industry only until marriage, is not unionized, and requires the additional protection of the law.

Another argument is that the amendment would endanger, if not nullify, mothers' pensions, support laws, and widows' awards, and would further confuse rather than clarify property laws.

"Would legal equality demand that a wife who has lost her skill in industry go out years later to support herself? Would it make wives liable for their husbands' support? Or would neither be liable for the other's support?" Mrs. Simons asks. "Since 85 per cent of the women are homemakers after marriage and thus make their economic contribution in the home, it seems only just to ask that their husbands support them."

• • •

Under the amendment the administration of mothers' pension laws, Mrs. Simons holds, would be stopped "until congress or the state legislatures and courts had decided whether they would apply to fathers as well or not to either."

Miss Nestor summarizes in a few words the case of those who, like the League of Women Voters and the Women's Trade Union league, believe that specific legislation rather than a "blanket" amendment will best correct discriminations against women.

"The trade union women and other groups opposing this proposed amendment ask that separate laws, either state or federal, be passed to remove particular discriminations. By this method specific laws will correct specific wrongs. Conditions should be studied and remedies applied where needed. Progress has been made, and can be made, in this way."

American Jewish Congress Aiding Alien Registration

Registration of aliens under the alien registration act is being conducted in the offices of the American Jewish congress, Chicago division, at 8 South Dearborn street, from Monday thru Friday. Government officials direct the registration and the congress supplies interpreters. A special committee of the Chicago woman's division, headed by Mrs. Margaret Benjamin and Mrs. Rose Levinson, is in charge, with Mrs. Mae Ticktin, Mrs. Shirley Dulkin, Mrs. Goldie Lubin, Mrs. Bessie Rees and Mrs. Rose Price, each chairman of a day during the week.

Musical Society Chooses Four Ways to Use Funds

The Lake View Musical society will distribute funds raised thru its summer concerts in four ways, Hilda P. Engle, publicity chairman, announced last week. The society will sponsor a member of the Women's Symphony orchestra this season. An entrance scholarship has been awarded to a member of the Civic orchestra, preferably to a woman musician. A subscription has been made to the children's chorus department of the Civic Music association. A donation has been given to the Red Cross. Mrs. Hiram B. Kadish heads the society.

Eleven Units of National Needlecraft Guild Formed

Eleven units of the National Needlecraft Guild in and about Chicago have been organized as the central district of the organization. The guild's purpose is to raise the standard of needlecraft among amateurs. Instruction is given in the various units, and materials, designs and samplers are loaned to members. Prizes are awarded outstanding pieces of work. Members also give part of their time to Red Cross sewing. Mrs. Raymond F. Galpin of River Forest has been elected district president.

Youth Problem Topics on Two Club Programs

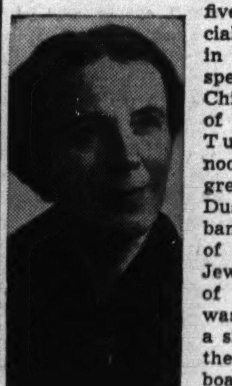
Problems confronting the youth of the nation will be discussed at meetings of two of the largest aggregations of women's organizations this week.

The coöperative plan of the Chicago Association of Commerce and the Rotary club to keep young people constructively occupied outside of school hours will be described by William Bachrach, chairman of the association's educational committee, before both the Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs, meeting tomorrow at the Auditorium hotel, and before the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's Organizations, meeting Friday at 209 South State street.

George L. Hayes, director of the Junior Achievement movement to give young people first hand business experience in corporations formed and managed by themselves, also will address tomorrow's meeting, as will Mary Stuart Anderson, state director of the National Youth administration, and Victor K. Brown, recreation director of the Chicago park district. Mrs. Park Q. Wray is the Cook County federation's new president.

• • •

J. J. O'Neill, secretary of the Kenwood Taxpayers' association, also will discuss housing at the Chicago and Cook County federation's meeting. Mrs. Henry W. Hartough heads this organization.



Mrs. Alexander M. Dushkin.

Mrs. Alexander Dushkin, who recently returned to this country after five years of social service work in Palestine, will speak before the Chicago chapter of Hadassah Tuesday afternoon at the Congress hotel. Mrs. Dushkin's husband, now head of the board of Jewish education of New York, was called from a similar post on the Chicago board to establish and head the department of education at the Hebrew university in Jerusalem. His wife has been closely associated with Henrietta Szold, founder of Hadassah, in her public health and child welfare projects in Palestine.

The Geographic Society of Chicago will open a series of five illustrated lectures on "The Story of Man" tomorrow evening at the Goodman theater, with a discussion of "The Melanesians," black settlers of the South Seas, by Matthew W. Stirling, chief of the bureau of American ethnology of the Smithsonian institution. Mr. Stirling will present a pictorial record of the lives of Pygmies and Papuans of New Guinea.

Mrs. E. Guzman Barron, who recently has returned from South America, will describe Peru for fellow members of the Chicago Mount Holyoke club at a dinner Saturday at the Chicago College club. Miss Gertrude Bruyn, field secretary, and Miss Harriet Newhall, secretary of the college board of admissions, will be special guests. Next Sunday Miss Newhall will show pictures of the college to prospective students and their parents at a tea at the Skokie Country club.

Congressman Martin Dies, chairman of the house committee on un-American activities, will address the Woman's Athletic club Friday morning. "The Subversive American Front" will be his topic.

"American Women in the Isms" will be discussed by Mrs. Vinton E. Sisson, librarian general of the National Daughters of the American Revolution, at a dinner of Pi Omicron national sorority Friday evening at 185 North Wabash avenue.

Mrs. Helen Pence Wace, former Chicagoan and wife of a British archeologist, who recently brought her 9 year old daughter to America for safety, will describe her recent experiences while excavating in Greece with her husband in a talk, "Wartime Conditions in the Mediterranean," before the Chicago College club Friday evening.

The Friends of American Writers will have another war refugee, Jan Struther, English author of the best seller, "Mrs. Miniver," as speaker at their luncheon Wednesday at the Chicago Athletic club.

Chicago Society Auxiliary Party to Be a Benefit

Mrs. P. Tomchelk.

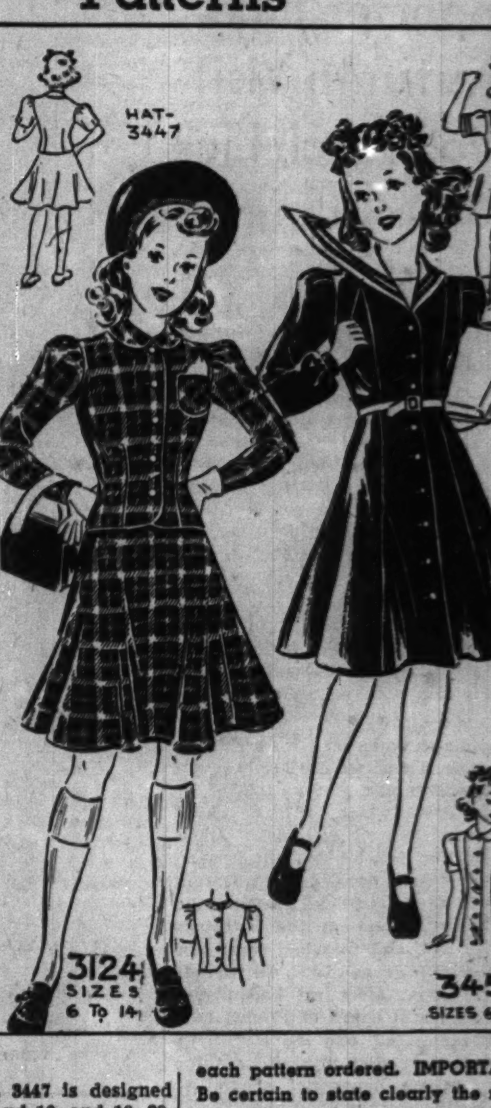
The Chicago society auxiliary's work in behalf of underprivileged children will be advanced thru proceeds of its annual benefit card party Wednesday evening at the Morrison hotel. Since its organization in 1924, the auxiliary has helped children recommended by the Juvenile court, and has provided boys and girls with vocational guidance and scholarships.

Mrs. Peter Tomchek heads the auxiliary. In charge of arrangements for the party are Mrs. Joseph N. Kaszeski and Mrs. Casimir Griglik, cochairmen; Miss Helen Sadowski, Mrs. Joseph Kostanski, Mrs. Frank Gordon, Mrs. Peter S. Richlowski, Mrs. Frank V. Zintak, Mrs. B. J. Stanke, Mrs. Mitchell A. Osuchowski, and Mrs. S. Charles Bubacz.

Radio Commentator Is to Address Youth Aid

Capt. E. D. C. Herne, radio commentator, world war flyer, and lecturer will be the guest speaker at a tea to be given by the Youth Aid at Woodlawn hall, 6208 Drexel avenue, on Tuesday afternoon. Capt. Herne will speak on the foreign situation. The tea is part of a drive to interest prospective members in the work of Youth Aid formerly the Juvenile Welfare club.

Clotilde Children's Patterns



Young scholars, especially, will like these two styles. Both are tailored and girlish, but one fashions a two-piece suit, which is simply stunning in checked woolen, while the other creates a one-piece, princess line sailor frock, complete with traditional "gob" collar.

While the subdeb wearer will delight in these styles for purely fashion reasons, her mother will take pleasure in them because they are practical, versatile, and easy to make.

Style No. 3124 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14. Size 8 requires 1¼ yards of 39 inch material for jacket; 1⅛ yards for skirt.

Style No. 3456 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14. Size 8 requires 1¾ yards of 54 inch material, with ½ yard of contrasting and 2 yards of braid.

Hat pattern No. 3447 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, 8, and 10, and 10, 20, 20½, 21, and 21¼ headsizes.

Each pattern costs ten cents.

Address orders for Clotilde Children's Fashions to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

FRENCH LICK SPRINGS, IND. Those who know French Lick Springs, Ind., in the spring as well as in the autumn insist that the spa is even more beautiful when the hills that surround the resort are painted with the fresh, young green that nature uses at the end of winter instead of with the rich, warm reds and yellows that make the hillsides ablaze with color just before winter comes. This we doubt, however, for we cannot imagine that French Lick could be any lovelier, or even as lovely, as it was when we saw it last week. It was our first visit to the resort in spite of the fact that we have lived less than 300 miles from it all our life.

Years ago, when we were a child in Nashville, Tenn., we used to hear our grandparents and parents talk of going to French Lick for "the cure." Just what that was we did not know, nor wonder, but we thought it must be something decidedly unpleasant because of the red devil on the Pluto bottle that stood on the bathroom window sill, and that had some connection with French Lick, we vaguely knew. Later, after we had moved north, we still heard of French Lick and "the cure" and we eventually learned what that mysterious thing was; but we never got around to visiting the springs until now. Which is something we regret exceedingly, for the resort is so near Chicago that we might have spent many restful week-ends there during the course of the many years we have lived here.

• • •

"The cure" still may be taken at French Lick, but we did not take it—not even a sample of it—so we will leave that phase of the benefits to be obtained at the spa to other chroniclers. We will concentrate on the beauty and peace of the countryside. "Rediscovering your Lost Horizon" is the title of a booklet we found in our room, and it fitted so well our mood after a day there that we opened the booklet. "It is a prospect of much charm that I unfold for you; tranquilities, calmness, and the clear enchantment of memory. And, most precious of all, you will have time, that rare and lovely gift that your western countries have lost the more they pursued it; time unruffled and unmeasured, to give you its richest savor." This is the quotation from James Hilton's "Lost Horizon," that some one connected with the hotel has chosen to describe French Lick. An apt quotation, we decided, for it does seem far away from the busy life and cares of urban living. That it really is not is one of its chief charms.

French Lick combines the efficiency of the north and the gracious atmosphere of the old south. The negro servants seem to belong to a bygone era. Some of them cannot be very old, but they all seem to have been there for years. Some have been, as a matter of fact, for we talked to one old man at the Pluto bar who had been serving glasses of the hot or cold water to guests for over fifty years. Every day started cheerily because of the room waiter whose response to our question of who was there when he knocked, invariably was, "'Tis, I, William," and then in he would come, a huge tray balanced on his head and a table in his hand. "No, m'am, I never have dropped a tray," he reassured us, "and I never will have curvature of the spine while I carry these trays on my crown" [a napkin deftly made into a base for the tray], he added.

The French Lick hotel is noted for its food, but it seemed to us that which William brought on his tray was the best of all. Country ham or homemade sausage, old-fashioned buckwheat cakes, southern coffee [southerners like their coffee strong enough to stand alone, practically], and products from the dairy on top of a nearby hill, made dieting impossible. The hotel owns not only a model dairy farm but several other farms from which comes a large portion of the pork, veal, vegetables, and eggs used, as well as the creamery products.

THE VOICE OF THE TRAVELER

Letters regarding travel conditions and experiences are welcome. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

ON WISCONSIN.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—To the Travel Editor: Some weeks ago you published an article under the heading: "Autumn Lures Sightseers on Color Tours." I saved it for future use.

Last week-end some friends and I made use of my clipping, and if all other trips prove as satisfactory as the one we took, your recommendations must be very much worth while.

The article suggested various tours thru Wisconsin at this time of the year. We followed tour No. 5, and it was all that it was said to be, and more. One little omission sent us a mile or so out of our way [the last paragraph did not give the direction in turning on to route 39 from 69], but that was a minor matter.

To any one who wants to see gorgeous coloring and to view the landscape from the high points, I wish to recommend that part of the trip from Madison out toward Tower Hill State park and then on, exactly as routed in your paper.

This is a valuable service. Why not do the same for Michigan? Right now the coloring is at its height on the Dunes highway out from Gary, Ind., and on up into Michigan.

Aurora Celebrates 90th Anniversary of Railroad Service

A special train, carrying members of the Chicago Association of Commerce, Burlington officials, and newspaper men, will leave at 10:35 a. m. tomorrow for Aurora, Ill., there to help celebrate the ninetieth anniversary of daily railroad service between Aurora and Chicago.

The delegation will be met by an old time train, consisting of Pioneer locomotive No. 440 and a replica of the first Pullman car, and will be escorted into the city by a crew and passengers wearing costumes of a century ago.

A parade, a pageant, a fashion show, a hand car derby, spike driving contests, and baggage carrying races are on the program. The observance is sponsored by the Aurora chamber of commerce.

So. California Sun Festival Opens Nov. 1

By Alden Powell.

LOS ANGELES, CAL. On Nov. 1 southern California will open its All-Winter Sun festival with the first of the 300 fiestas, flower festivals, foreign celebrations, athletic games, and cultural programs to be provided for the diversion of visitors for the next five months.

The festival is a community-wide, winter-long party designed to take the southland's guests out to the deserts, the beaches, the mountains, and the valleys.

Most of the events are to be held out of doors, where the average daytime winter temperature is 68.2 degrees.

Many visitors will arrive early, for some of the choice events of the festival will take place in the first half of the season.

Sightseers seldom have an opportunity to go inside a movie star's home. The late Will Rogers' ranch home in the Hollywood-Beverly Hills movie colony is open for public exhibit until December.

With prize chrysanthemums as big as a man's head, the Southern California Flower show is held from the last of October until Nov. 3. There is to be an unusual exhibit of cascade 'mums, in waterfall, carpet, and wall effects, a few weeks later. San Diego holds the Thanksgiving Rose show Nov. 23 and 24.

Out on the desert, with its crooked jointed cacti, sand dunes, and rainbow tinted walls of rock, the oasis spa of Palm Springs holds the Vaqueros ride up Palm canyon from Oct. 30 to Nov. 2.

Southern California celebrates yuletide out of doors—and starts the observance early. On Nov. 22 or thereabouts Hollywood transforms its Hollywood boulevard into Santa Claus lane with giant dolltown Christmas trees, and Santa Claus begins his nightly sleigh rides with a movie or radio star by his side. Later the miles of living Christmas trees are hung with colored lights.

• • •

On thru the winter there are Pasadena's Tournament of Roses, with tons of fresh cut flowers; the Chinese New Year and Lantern feast in Los Angeles' three Chinatowns; the date festival on a palm oasis in the desert; the National Orange show, in the heart of the fruit and blossom country; the intersectional football games, the Santa Anita horse races, and the golf tournaments.

ONE LITTLE SLIP

By WILLIAM C. WHITE

(Copyright: 1940: By William C. White)

"Don't be surprised at what I am about to do. It is all for the best."

THOSE who were in the British passport office in Constantinople in 1919 will remember the young half-Irish, half-Russian woman who was married to one of the officers. They may remember her strange name, Nalya O'Coign.

Her husband was Capt. Macroner, a passport officer. The activities of the passport office itself were something of a mystery, "Checking citizenship and issuing passports," its officers said. But a surprising lot of people in it were connected with British Intelligence. Most of them were expert intelligence agents, many of them specialists in the language and the peculiarities of one people or another. There was Nalya O'Coign, whose Irish brogue was as fine as you'd hear on a Dublin stage; yet, because she was born in Russia of Irish parents, she knew Russia and Russian as if she came from a family of boyari.

In 1919 the passport office wanted to know something first hand about Russian conditions and particularly of Kolchak's situation in Siberia, 6,000 miles away. Six lines of troops were between him and Constantinople. Nalya went thru those lines, not once, but once again on the return journey. She came back, her black hair slightly gray, her face a little marked, a little older. At last, she could settle down now with her husband in some quiet Irish town.

She came back to find that he had been killed while on some intelligence mission in Syria. "Something went wrong," they told her. "He probably made some small slip."

She resigned from the intelligence service at once. Other assignments were offered. She turned them down.

On a rainy Sunday afternoon last spring, Fraulein Henriette Myer, the teacher of German at a private school in the suburbs of Paris, was giving a tea. She was a woman of 50, sharp faced and mannish, just completing her first year on the faculty.

A woman of 40 entered the room, a woman with lovely black hair slightly grayed, with a face that showed patience and a kind a wistful wishing.

"Miss O'Coign!" Henriette went to her. "I am so glad you could come."

Two men came into the room and Henriette welcomed them. A moment later she was introducing one of them. "This is Herr Doctor Bergner," she said. "Herr Doctor Bergner is a journalist, the Paris correspondent of a Berlin newspaper."

Bergner was a fair-haired man, 45, tall and attractive. He acknowledged introductions in a soft musical German, then stood at ease, nearby. A close cropped haircut, a slight heaviness in his gestures, his Berlin-cut clothes—Nalya would not have mistaken his nationality anywhere.

It may have been what he said, it may have been the angle at which he was standing or the profile that Nalya saw which would change less than a full face view. More probably, she told herself, it might be imagination that this man could be any person other than the German he obviously was, the correspondent he was supposed to be. She glanced at him again and he noticed it.

Then he spoke to her. "You also teach in the school with Fraulein Myer?" he asked. His English had a heavy German accent.

"I teach English." She wondered why he had singled her out.

Everything about him convinced her that she was wrong. A man could not change so completely in every mannerism, gesture, tone of voice. There was one simple test. Impulsively she said, "You have changed, Capt. Apling."

He leaned forward slightly as if hard of hearing and asked, "I beg pardon? My English is not so good!"

She realized at once how ridiculous her impulse had been and she was angry at herself. A moment later Bergner walked away and she was glad. As quickly as she could she said good-by to Fraulein Myer and left.

Yet that curiosity about Bergner stayed with her as she walked home. Bergner did look like a Capt. Apling who had also spent that year in Constantinople, 20 years ago. A good friend of her husband, he came to their house frequently. And he was an officer in the British Intelligence Service.

Fifteen years of teaching school, with nothing to look forward to but new classes each autumn! Memories, 20 years old, now stirred up afresh, made life so barren. She thought of Apling again, altho she had little to remember him by. He was at their home frequently. He was skillful and her husband had always liked him.

A sound disturbed her and she was startled, as if afraid that some one outside had read her thoughts. She listened carefully. Some one was knocking at her door. She went to it nervously and saw Herr Doctor Bergner.

He was smiling at her. "You give English lessons?" he asked in perfect English.

"Michael Apling! I knew it!"

"Of course. I came as quickly as I could."

"Today when I recognized you—" she began. She could see heavy strain in his face, in the nervousness of every gesture.

"I had to pretend today," he told her. "I was thankful that no one overheard you."

That remark, the worry in his face, the way he fumbled for a cigaret, assured her that she knew what he was doing in Paris. Still in intelligence!

He talked about her husband, about Constantinople for a little while. Then he jumped from his chair. "Do you know what I should like? It's raining outside, but supposing we go out."

It was a grayish purple night and the world had the theatricality of a poorly lit stage set. They walked along deserted streets, hand in hand, until they tired. Then Michael called a cab and said: "To the Trois Lapins!"

They entered a little café on a hilly street in Montmarte.

"I think we'll be safe here," Michael said. And after they were seated he continued. "I have thought of you so often, I heard in London that you refused to continue in the service."

"I did," Nalya said simply. "There comes a time when you hate a life that hangs on one small slip."

"I remember Constantinople so well," he said, after a pause. "We were all so young. We never thought of slips then. Do you remember?"

"I remember the pleasant things."

"And am I one of them?"

Nalya smiled. "I remembered you this afternoon, didn't I?"

Nalya and Michael Make Rounds of Cafes

They went to another small café. Fifteen minutes there, then to another, then another. Later, Nalya could not remember all the places they visited, but she noticed that all were out of the way. After midnight they walked again thru the rain high on Montmarte, until they came to the plaza in front of Sacre Cœur. The city lay below them in gray and yellow fog.

Michael looked down on the wisps of saffron light below. "Time itself seems confused tonight."

"Not confused. Just not counting for a while."

"That's it," he nodded. "I feel as if I were in Paris for the first time. At least, it's the first time we've been together." Then he asked, "You never married again?"

"Never. And you?"

"I never married."

He put his arm around her. "Were we youngsters in Paris for the first time and here together, I suppose I should promise to get all this for you." He waved to the horizon. "The disadvantage of the years is that you learn that you can't."

"I wouldn't want it if you could get it."

"I'm so glad I found you, Nalya."

"I'm glad to have been found."

"I shall remember this many times," he said, "these minutes here, together." As if he had forced himself to say something unpleasant, he said, "I shall have to return to Berlin in a day or so."

She knew that time had come back and that he was thinking of the future. The mood was broken.

"We better go down now," he said.

It was difficult to hold back questions, but she said nothing. They took the first cab. After a moment's silence Michael said, "I must ask you something, Nalya. Supposing I told you that I needed help. Would you help me?"

"In intelligence?" She could feel her anger rise. "Is that why you were so nice to me just a few minutes ago?" As soon as she had spoken the sentence, she wished she could recall it, but it was said.

"O, I say, I didn't think you'd think that," he said. "I didn't mean it that way."

"My answer is 'no,'" she said, still angry at letting herself be trapped and thrown off guard by her emotions. "I wish you'd take me home now!"

They drove on in a gluey silence.

"I didn't realize how brutal and crude that question would sound," Michael said, plainly embarrassed.

"I didn't mean it as you understood it." They were passing a large café, and he said, "Please! Let's go in there and let me talk to you."

She agreed. Perhaps she had misunderstood; certainly, the evening should not end this way.

"I meant what I said up there, my dear." Michael began as they were seated at a table. "Probably I was feeling young and talking of impossible things, but I meant them, honestly. Then, all at once, that very real present came right at me. Impulsively, I shouted for help."

"Forget my reaction, too," Nayla said, smiling. "Let's start again. First, I want to hear about your going to Berlin. You are still in British intelligence?"

He nodded and added, "And in German intelligence as well." Then his face went gray. "I'll tell you." He glanced toward the door as a man came in, and turned quickly to Nayla. "Don't be surprised at what I am about to do. It is all for the best." Before she could say anything, he had his coat on and he was hurrying to the door. His collar was around his face as he passed the man who had just entered, an unimportant looking man of 50.

At the school the next day Nalya went thru motions mechanically, said the usual things, but never once stopped thinking of Michael. Pretending to work for the Germans while really serving the British was the most precariously dangerous work of all.

She hurried home from school, hoping for some word from Michael. The apartment seemed emptier. She went about her housework, her mind set on him.

The doorbell rang. A messenger handed her a note. It read: "I am leaving for Berlin tomorrow. It is best for you that we do not meet again. Good-by!"

She was furious at the presumption that he could decide what was best for her. The note gave the address of an office off Rue Strasbourg. She went to it, telling herself that she was being foolish and sentimental, that she was coming close again to the business that had taken one man from her. But this was bringing her closer to Michael and, at the moment, that was what mattered.

The name of his paper was on the door of a one room office on the third floor of an old building. She knocked and no one answered. She knocked again and Michael opened the door. "Nalya!" he said.

"We can't talk here." He was anxious and distraught. "Meet me in an hour at the Trois Lapins."

Michael Explains Reasons for His Fears

She was there on time, unable to forget the harassed look on his face. When he was a half hour late she was desperate. If anything happened to him she would not know what to do, where to look.

Then he appeared, breathless, trying a little too hard to be untroubled. "I'm sorry I'm late. It took me a short time to avoid some gentlemen who tried to follow to see where I was going."

"Today I ask questions, Michael."

He nodded. "I'll tell you everything. I'm so glad to talk to some one. So glad!"

"And you wanted to go to Berlin without seeing me!"

He smiled at her. "I'm glad you came. Secretly, I hoped you would. But don't say I didn't warn you.

"You see, I've always worked for the British intelligence, pretending to be a German. That's my profession, as it were. I spent my boyhood in Germany. I've lived there more than in England. A year before Hitler came to power I went to Berlin.

"I got a job on a Berlin newspaper there," he continued. "A perfectly fine front for sending information to London. Six months ago some of Hitler's friends came to me and told me bluntly that unless I agreed to work for the German secret service, my newspaper job was finished. Seems as if it was a requirement for most German journalists. I tried to duck it, but I couldn't. I was ordered to come to Paris, as a foreign correspondent. Here I am, just an unimportant middleman in the German system here. Men bring me information and I pass it on to my superior."

"And to London, too, I suppose?"

"And to London."

She asked suddenly, "What are you afraid of, Michael?"

He started. "Am I still staring at the door? I'm uneasy about the Germans I work with. I think they mistrust me."

Eagerly she asked, "Why not quit the whole business, British and German?"

"I'd like to, my dear," Michael said wearily, "but I came to Paris to find the identity of the head of the German system here. I haven't succeeded yet. It's a person of great experience whom the British and the French are particularly eager to identify."

"Why do your German friends here suspect you?"

"For one thing, several German agents here have been arrested," he explained, "altho I had nothing to do with that. The underlings in the German system drive the chiefs in Berlin to madness. The underlings go along, so carefully, so accurately, so methodically, following their routine intelligently and brilliantly. Then, when you least expect it, they make some silly dreadful mistake and all their routine work goes for nothing.

"Berlin would like to blame some one for the arrests here," Michael said grimly. "Then, last week a Frenchman sold a fine collection of aviation secrets to the Germans, thanks to me. I advised the French to do nothing but to watch the man and see where he was getting his material. Instead, the French arrested him."

"And the Germans suspect you for that?"

"I rather think so."

Nalya shrugged her shoulders. "You're in Paris. What can they do to you?"

"A shot in the dark or something similarly melodramatic." Michael's face became grayer. "Or something undramatic but coldly brutal."

Nalya saw that her hands were cold and white and bloodless. "What is that?"

"They can request that you come to Berlin," he said quietly. "They've summoned me."

"You?" She knew her face must be cold and white, too. "But you don't have to go."

Michael shook his head slowly. "If I want to finish my work here, I must chance going to Berlin and coming back. I can hope for a routine questioning and a speedy return."

"I won't let you go. You haven't been out of my mind for a moment since we met."

"I'm sorry, my dear. I should not have come to you."

"I'm not sorry. I've been glad, very glad." She hesitated. He would not overemphasize his predicament. He would go to Berlin and no argument would deter him. Then she remembered his request for help last night. That must have slipped out from a desperately worried man. "You asked me to help you last night. Was it help so that you would not have to return to Berlin?"

Michael shook his head. "You got out of the business once, Nalya. I'm not going to involve you again."

He could be stubborn and she needed something to beat down his stubbornness. "I'm already mixed up in it, silly. Don't you understand, I—" Then she hesitated.

INSTALMENT III.

JUNE heard some one beside her say: "Stand over here, please, Miss Stranton."

She looked about and faced a short, stocky middle-aged man whom she had not seen, or had not noticed, before. He was in ordinary dark clothes but he had a confident, official bearing; and he was solemn, like everybody else. [Later she was to learn that he was the county clerk.]

He escorted her to a position nearer the judge and up a single step to a low platform below the judge's bench but above the courtroom floor. She found herself nearer to and more directly in front of the prisoner; she felt herself in front of everybody in the courtroom, except the judge who sat at her right and a little above her and except for two short rows of people seated apart from the others and behind a low railing at her left.

"Raise your right hand," commanded the same man who had spoken to her before. June lifted her right hand and he began reciting something to her slowly and impressively.

"You do solemnly swear," he was saying, "that the answers you shall make to such questions as may be put to you touching upon your qualifications as a juror in the trial in the indictment against Geoffrey Ledyard Wardlan shall be true, to the best of your knowledge and understanding, so help you God?"

"I do," June heard her voice say.

She heard the judge speaking to her. "You may sit down—you had better sit down," he suggested in a quiet, kindly tone. "There is a chair just behind you."

June turned and touched it—a severe, heavy chair of dull, dark oak placed to face the courtroom. She settled herself upon it, stiffly and uncomfortably; and she felt no less conspicuous than before. The rows of faces in the back of the room were a blur to her but she found Geoffrey Ledyard Wardlan's face in the focus of her eyes and she gazed at him.

Attorney Begins His Questioning of June

He had ceased to stare at her; he had turned his head a little to listen to a tall man—one of his attorneys, evidently—who leaned close to him, whispering. The prisoner made no response that June could see; and the lawyer straightened as a man arose from another table a few feet away.

This was a stern, stout man with black hair brushed so severely that not a strand was out of place. He was about the same age as her father, June thought [her father was 48]; he had the good height of her father but he was heavier and he was ponderous in his manner; also, he was too meticulous, too immaculate in his attire. He wore a dark grey suit, perfectly tailored to him; and his light grey tie was precisely in place.

"What is your name?" he asked June.

She told him.

"And your age?" he inquired.

"I will be 22 next month."

"Where do you live?"

"On Casford road."

"Casford road?" he repeated, emphasizing it. "Then you know the defendant?"

"You mean Mr. Wardlan?" June said. "I have never seen him until I came into this room. I am not sure now which one is he; but I suppose that is Mr. Wardlan there," she went on, breathlessly, her eyes again going to the prisoner.

"Yes; that is Mr. Wardlan," the precise man said, betraying some displeasure. "You say you never saw him before?"

"No. Never."

"Have you mutual friends?"

"Not to my knowledge."

"Were you acquainted with your late neighbor who was known as Lily Leam?"

"I saw her once upon the stage. I think it was about two years ago."

"Did you have any personal acquaintance with her?"

"No," said June. "None."

"You are married?" the heavy voice proceeded without pause.

"No. I live at home with my parents. But I have not been at home recently." June added quickly, recollecting what Tano had told her. "I just got home today; that is why it was impossible for me to come here before."

"Have you formed any opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant in this case?"

"I know nothing whatever about this case," June replied.

What Has Gone Before

After thinking it over for three months in Europe, June Stranton has practically made up her mind to marry Ned Melbourke, wealthy young man about town. One of his love letters, in which he said, "One alone lives for another," touched her so deeply that all doubts vanished. But instead of driving her home from the docks, in a high-handed manner he tries to force her to elope with him. He seems excited when she tells of his letter that moved her and demands she return it. They quarrel, and her doubts of her love for him rise again. She goes home to find that she has been called for jury duty in a murder case. She welcomes this chance to escape Ned and be sure of her decision to marry him.

"Nothing whatever?" he repeated, emphasizing her words again. "You have not read of it in the newspapers?"

"I have been away for more than three months," June told him, and felt more confidence in herself as she faced him.

"Where have you been?"

"In Europe with my mother. I heard there—that is, I did read in American newspapers in Paris early in the summer that Lily Leam had been—had been killed; and I remember that some one—but I did not even remember his name—had been arrested for it. Tano told me they both lived near us at home; or I would not have remembered even that."

"Who is Tano?"

"Oh, she is a Welsh girl who was traveling with us."

"In your employ?"

"In my mother's employ; yes."

"So you discussed the murder of Lily Leam with her, did you?"

"No, I never discussed it at all; with Tano or with any one. Tano merely called my attention to it months ago; I do not believe that I even thought about it again until we returned to New York and saw it in the papers again. And of course when I got home and found I was summoned to the jury, I thought about it."

"Then did you discuss the case?"

"No. There was no one to discuss it with except Tano; and she told me I should not ask about it, since I was summoned to jury. So I do not know now how Lily Leam was killed. You see, I have no opinion at all about it. I couldn't have."

"You appreciate that this is a capital case," he said to her slowly and solemnly, "in which the state will demand the death penalty, if guilt is established?"

"Yes; I understand that," June said.

"Have you any conscientious or religious scruples against capital punishment in a proper case?"

"No," June said. "None."

She looked at the man before her and saw only him as she spoke. She realized that, if she were to get upon the jury, she must satisfy this man. She was not sure exactly who he was; obviously he was some sort of an examiner for the court. She was so ignorant of procedure that she did not know that he was examining her only on behalf of the prosecution—the state. She had no idea that, after she had satisfied him, she had to gain the approval also of the counsel for the defense.

"You will be able," the man was requiring of her, "to decide what your verdict shall be solely on the evidence and on the law as charged to you by the court, if you are chosen as a juror?"

"Yes," June replied. Vaguely within her she realized what the consequences of these promises of hers might be; she was swearing that—if the evidence declared that that man over there had killed Lily Leam—she, June Stranton, would have to vote to put him to death.

"You said you lived with your parents on Casford road. Who is your father?"

"He is Emory Stranton."

"Mr. Emory Stranton," the man repeated with impressive satisfaction and June felt her family's, and particularly her father's, honor pledged with her own in the oath she had taken.

After a few more questions, the man stepped back and said something to the judge and the tall attorney who had been seated beside the prisoner, arose and approached her.

He was much taller than the man whom he had replaced; and he resembled that other in no characteristic. This lawyer looked amiable and the very opposite of severe.

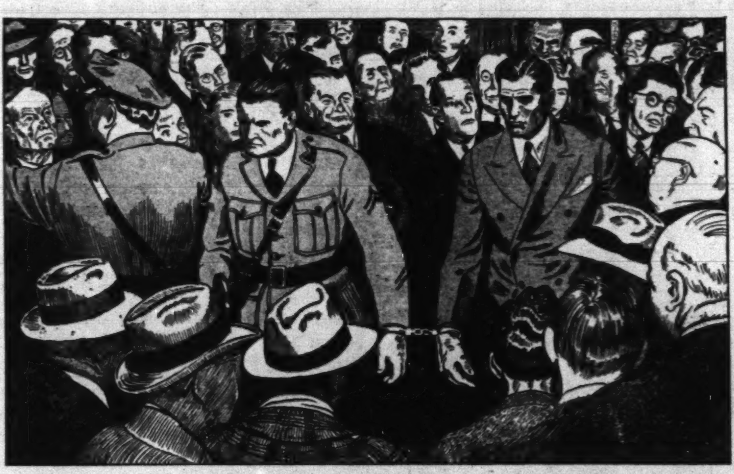
"The gentleman who has just finished questioning you, is an attorney for the state," he said and June realized that, thruout the examination, this man had comprehended her confusion. "I appear for the defense; and I have the duty of questioning you in behalf of my client.

"What I ask you is this: Assume the friendship and the frequent companionship of a young man and an admittedly attractive young woman; assume that, thru a number of weeks they were much in each other's company and usually with no third person present; assume that the man called often at the young woman's home where there was no chaperonage; and assume also that it could be proved that on several occasions she visited him at his dwelling where, also, there was no chaperonage; assume that these visits might have been made—or were made—at any hour of the day or in the evenings; assume also that it is possible that they could have extended into the night, or even thru the night, without any third person being advised; now, under these conditions, would or would you not require definite proof of misconduct between these two young people, before you would assume that actual misconduct existed?"

"I am not sure I understand."

"More briefly," the tall man said, "are you willing to credit a fine and innocent friendship between two people of opposite sexes and that their relation could have continued Platonic—to use an expression quite unfashionable today—even under the conditions described; or are you bound to believe that—human nature being what it is—the two persons must have been having what is fashionably termed 'an affair?'"

"My belief would depend upon the individual in each case," June replied in a low voice and very slowly. "I would believe that one man might do, under the same circumstances—and with the same opportunity—exactly the opposite of another. It would depend also, of course, very largely upon the woman."



Handcuffed, he was led from the courtroom.

"Naturally," the tall man said; and seemed to be about to start another question; but instead he merely studied her for a moment before he faced about to the shorter, stouter man who had questioned her for the state.

"Mr. Netley," the tall man deferred to him.

"Your honor," Mr. Netley said, rising and standing before June again, "the state," he added the two words impressively and stopped as if finally having to make up his mind, "does not challenge. We accept Miss Stranton."

"The defense accepts her, your honor," the tall man pronounced, promptly.

June Stammers Out Oath as Juror

Some one else, suddenly beside June, said: "Stand up, please, Miss Stranton; and please raise your right hand."

June had difficulty in getting to her feet. Something very final had happened to her. She was to be on the jury. She had subjected herself to confinement and to restraints vague and strange to her and terrifying, when now she faced them. And in addition to the restraints, she had subjected herself to the duty—to a solemn obligation which she already had accepted under oath and to which she now made sworn acknowledgment the second time—"to well and truly try this issue of traverse joined between the state of New Jersey and Geoffrey Ledyard Wardlan. . . . and a true verdict given according to the evidence."

She choked and, for an instant, failed to take the oath. Then, she heard herself stammering it out.

She walked very uncertainly, beside a man who was leading her to the low railing of the jury enclosure. The people within it sat in two uneven, straight rows; and June realized that the rows were uneven because, before her, 11 jurors had been selected and when she took her place the rows would be complete. The back row already was complete, with four men and two women; in the front row were four men and one woman; and one empty chair.

It was an arm chair of dark wood with a low, curved back. It was next to the end on the right. At the very end sat a man younger than the others on the jury and he was the only one who was not staring at June as she approached.

June had to go around the railing and almost to the wall at the rear of the enclosure where was a little gate which her guide opened. He did not enter, but she stepped in and the young man at the end of the front row arose to let her past him to the chair which was to be hers.

She sat down; and the young man resumed his seat. Still he did not gaze at her. On her right, with the arms of their chairs almost touching, was a tall, thin woman in a tan dress. She made no attempt whatever to cover her curious inspection of June Stranton.

Between her hands clasped in her lap, June held her handbag which contained, besides handkerchief and compact and money, that letter of Ned's—that strangely troublesome love letter.

Well; here she was on the jury, safe from Ned; safe from her mother's importunings. Away from them and from everything else of her own life—until the end of the trial; until after she had freed Geoffrey Ledyard Wardlan or had voted to send him to the electric chair.

Was Ned at this moment in Paignton some where? Perhaps even in the courtroom? June began to gaze about, searching faces. She soon gave that up.

There was some brief business going on which she did not follow. She learned from it that the man seated just beyond the middle of the first row was the foreman of the jury. He was Mr. Ristine.

A loud, clear voice claimed attention: "May it please your honor!"

Mr. Netley, the prosecuting attorney, had placed himself almost directly in front of June but facing the judge. Now he turned to the jury: "Mr. Foreman, men, and women of the jury.

"A grand jury that was composed of citizens of this county has returned an indictment charging that Helen Janney Verberry—generally known by her stage name, Lily Leam—was murdered; and the grand jury ordered held for trial, for that murder, the defendant who now is before you. The duty which has been imposed upon you by the law, and by the choice of the defendant, is one involving the gravest consequences. By the humane provisions of our law, the presumption of innocence still protects the defendant; but against that presumption, the state expects to lay before you an array of competent legal evidence which will convince you, beyond a shadow of a doubt:

"First. That a homicide was committed—that is, that Helen Verberry, or Lily Leam, was deprived of life by violence done upon her by another.

"Second. That the act of violence, which deprived her of life, was performed by Geoffrey Wardlan, the defendant at the bar; and that the act was deliberately planned and premeditated by him to end her existence.

"We will show the motive for this crime. Every murder—and especially one marked by such cold and cruel violence as this one was—must have a compelling motive; and, in this case, the compulsion which possessed the perpetrator of the crime will be made perfectly clear.

"The state will make no attempt to show that, before the hour of his embarrassing involvement with Lily Leam, the defendant bore a low or evil character. The fact is, indeed, precisely the opposite. Geoffrey Wardlan enjoyed and evidently at the time he deserved the highest reputation and respect, both in his personal and professional life.

"He was—he is, I should say—a chemist, having devoted himself to certain important and highly technical researches in organic chemistry. He has made chemical investigations for some of the foremost biologists and men of medicine on the eastern seaboard. All who came in contact with him, professionally, referred to him in the highest terms. He had brilliant ability and bore an excellent character.

"The state is happy to admit his eminence in his profession; it was highly exceptional and most creditable for so young a man; the state is happy to admit, also, that before his infatuation for Lily Leam, there is no scandal to be connected with him. Indeed, if it were necessary to establish that he enjoyed a good name, the state would go to some pains to prove it; for it is an essential element in our case. We will show you that, precisely because of his enviable position, he was moved to the murder of Lily Leam.

Prosecutor Describes Scene of the Murder

"The scene of the murder, as most of you may know, is the manor known as the Fennister estate or Kendall Hill on Casford road about three miles out from this town. It is a considerable property with the buildings upon it somewhat peculiarly arranged and with one of them, in particular, very singularly situated. A little later, I will supply you with plots and photographs of the grounds showing the circumstances of Lily Leam's violent destruction.

"The manor comprises more than 50 acres left largely in natural woodlands and groves of pine, birch and maples with heavy growth of bush and brush serving as an additional screen. There are but two large clearings—one, the lawn and garden before the main residence or manor house, the other is the kitchen gardens beside the garage and the gardener's cottage and the greenhouses, which are grouped together nearly a quarter of a mile away from and east of the manor house.

"In the opposite direction lies the lodge; it is about 200 yards from the main house and 50 from the road to Casford. It is placed somewhat like a gatehouse, but it is nc mere gatekeeper's dwelling; it is a handsome little building much more modest than the manor house, but of the same character. When the Fennister family was in residence, they used it for a guest house. There is no clearing about the lodge which is placed in a grove of trees almost concealing it. No other residence—or indeed, no other building of any sort is within a quarter mile as the adjoining acreage is held unimproved; the lodge and the manor house, about 200 yards apart, are remote and isolated and have no neighbors to oversee comings and going between them.

Like many large estates, in these days, the Fennister manor passed out of the hands of its original owners, a year or so ago. A bank took title and tried to rent it, offering the manor house and the lodge, separately.

"Geoffrey Wardlan, who was residing in another part of the state, happened to be inquiring for an establishment in which he could reside and, also, have his laboratory. The lodge suited him; it was cheap and spacious; and, for his work, its loneliness was not a disadvantage. He moved in last October, and thruout the winter and spring he seems to have devoted himself to his researches. Certainly he disturbed nobody; indeed, he seldom was seen outside his house; he lived almost as a recluse.

"Then, late in May, Lily Leam ended a long road tour; her play closed and she returned to New York.

She inquired for a country place, accessible from New York and yet out of the way and quiet—and reasonable in rental. The manor house suited her; and she moved in.

"Thus, early in June, the romantic month of the year, the recluse of the lodge acquired a neighbor, and no ordinary neighbor. He found living beside him—and with all others held at a distance—one of the most talented and fascinating young women of our time. It is not strange that he became infatuated with her. That she, on her part, fell in love with him is perhaps comprehensible also."

The attorney, as he spoke, stepped back and swung about to the prisoner and made a gesture to indicate him and display him. This was needless. Every one was staring at him. June tried to stop herself from gazing at him, but she could not help it. Geoffrey Wardlan, however, had protected himself by the only means available to him; he sat, not staring back nor even aware of the eyes upon him; he sat lost, as he had been when June first saw him—lost in some awful, mumbling recollection of his own.

What image out of his memory so held him and appalled him, June wondered? Was it the moment of the murder—if he had killed her whom he had loved? And if he had not killed Lily Leam—if it were true only that he had loved her and been loved by her, but untrue that he had taken her life—what moment with her haunted him now?

June Discovers Ned Watching Her in Crowd

June looked at his lips, thin-drawn in this intensity; she looked at his brow, broad and white under his dark hair, and she noticed again the strong clear-cut lines of his features; and she thought that she had never seen so intelligent a face marked by so much trouble.

He aroused himself from his recollection, whatever it had been, but he returned to no complete awareness of those about him. He raised a hand to his head and, like a little boy blamed and bewildered, he thrust his fingers thru his hair and tugged at it.

June found no difficulty in believing that Lily Leam had loved this man.

June turned away again and suddenly she saw Ned. He sat at the end of a row of staring spectators; he was next to the aisle, less than a dozen rows back. She felt herself without breath as she recognized him for she found him with his eyes fixed upon her, watching her, waiting for her to notice him, and when he saw that she did, he nodded to her in a sharp, startling way.

He was very, very angry. He became pale, not flushed, when he was angry; and she never had seen him as pale as this. He was as white, almost, as the prisoner. She could see that his lips parted and moved as tho he was speaking to her. She knew that he was uttering no sound, not even a whisper, but he was signalling to her—something.

She lowered her head so as not to see him and she brought herself back to attention to the prosecuting attorney.

". . . in this seclusion," he was saying, when she caught his words again, "in this carefully planned and studied seclusion—the defendant undoubtedly considered himself safe from scandal; but naturally the servants whispered among themselves and to their friends and, inevitably, the neighbors—tho held at a distance—interested themselves in the close friendship of the tenant of the manor house and the tenant of the lodge. Gossip began and sensational reports were spread.

"At first they made no difference to the defendant. He imagined himself immune to the penalties that another man, so talked about, would have to pay; and he had some good grounds for believing this about himself. He held no official position which made him responsible to public opinion and he was not dependent, for his income, upon any one's approval of his moral character. He was engaged, you will remember, upon abstruse chemical researches which he conducted by himself and he was supported by an endowment fund which was assured to him for several years and which could not be withdrawn from him. But suddenly, by one of those strokes of fate which confuse the most careful calculations, an unforeseen event occurred; a wholly unpredictable complication presented itself and changed the aspect of affairs for Mr. Geoffrey Wardlan.

"In the southwest, more than a thousand miles away, an old man—the president of a university—died and the trustees began looking around for a successor. It is the custom to find a young man and they wanted one, but he would have to have considerable reputation professionally and, of course, possess an unexceptionable character. They knew Geoffrey Wardlan; only last year he had given a course of lectures at the college; they knew his high standing as a chemist; and they liked him. They wrote him, inviting him to visit them at the university. I will show you, men and women of the jury, a copy of that letter.

"Geoffrey Wardlan was advised, by a friend of his, that the trustees actually had decided to proffer him the presidency, but the friend warned Wardlan against the 'danger' to him of his 'friendship' with Lily Leam.

"I shall show you that the defendant received other emphatic and specific warning that he must break with Lily Leam—and make the break at once—if he hoped to become president of Lamont university.

"If he had not received the warning, the defendant was intelligent enough to realize it; the trouble was that he did not know how to break off with Lily Leam. You see, he had gone very far in his infatuation; he had committed himself to her; and, as I have told you, she had fallen in love with him; he interested her and intrigued her; she was by no means ready to let him go.

"There is no man more dangerous—ladies and gentlemen of the jury—than one who suddenly realizes that he has made a very great fool of himself. The defendant found himself in such case. His infatuation did not completely fall from him; but enough of it disappeared to permit him to feel the fool. Here he had an opportunity—an honor and an eminence—which he might have dreamed of being offered to him some time in the future; and now he had it; he had merely to reach out his hand to take it—and he could not reach out his hand.

"If he were stronger, he might merely have shaken her off; if he had been braver or more brutal, he would not have been driven to murder at all; he would merely have fled from her and forgotten her feelings. But this man was of too sensitive feelings himself; it would have involved him in too many difficulties to do that.

"It is clear that he made a half-hearted attempt at a break with her; but, by evening, he was with her again; and at last, late toward midnight, their meeting climaxed in a quarrel. Exactly what passed between them, during those last hours that they spent alone together, we can not say; but we are perfectly sure of the outcome. He killed her—perhaps only stunned her, at first, by his blow. When she was dead—or lying stunned before him—he saw the perfect way to make her death appear an accident. He took that way; and he made sure beyond doubt that she was dead and never could accuse him. Then he went off and left her to be discovered by others.

"His presence, at the time of her death, might never have been suspected; it might have seemed not only that Lily Leam died as a result of an accident, but that she was alone. With a little luck—only a very little luck to round out the perfection of his plan, Geoffrey Wardlan might have been delayed at the lodge only to show decent respect to the memory of his neighbor and to attend the last rites; then he might have proceeded to accept the honorable and eminent post offered him in the west and go unencumbered by any consequences of his infatuation for Lily Leam and without any one connecting him with her death.

"But, men and women of the jury, providence—or whatever conscience or intelligence overlooks human affairs—decided to deny the murderer such safe conduct to his ambition; so I am here to lay before you, and you are here to examine, the strange facts and circumstances of this case of deliberate, premeditated murder—that is, murder of the first degree—for which the penalty required by the law is death."

Both Sides Agree to an Adjournment

The voice stopped; and June, watching the prosecuting attorney, saw him step back and face about to the judge.

"Your honor," he announced, "we are ready with our witnesses. If it is your honor's wish or if it is the wish of the defense that we proceed, I will call a witness to the stand. On the other hand, it is already late in the day and I respectfully suggest an adjournment until tomorrow morning."

June, looking at the judge, saw him consult the tall, stoop-shouldered attorney who had risen from beside the prisoner.

"The defense agrees to an adjournment," he calmly said.

Rustling, scraping sounds and whispers spread over the courtroom, but nobody arose. June glanced about, searching for the bench where Ned had been sitting; she located it, but he was gone from it; his place, next the aisle, was empty.

The prisoner had arisen and somebody was doing something with his wrist; he was being handcuffed, June saw, to a big, burly guard and now, handcuffed, he was being led from the courtroom. Meanwhile the judge had been talking; June had no idea what he said, but he was satisfied with it and was stepping down from his bench, lifting his black robe so as not to step on it.

June got up; the jury people all were standing.

"We go out now," the tall, thin woman on June's right said to her. "I saw you weren't listening; and of course you weren't chosen yesterday. I was; so I'll tell you what you do, and what you don't do, when you're on a jury."

Four constables—two men and two women—guided the jury into the passage to the side door and, outside, special deputies pushed back the crowd keeping everybody else back.

"Back! Back!" the deputies commanded, as they cleared the walk.

But just ahead, a single man stood stubbornly, refusing to be forced back.

He was Ned, June saw; and she knew that he had left his seat in the courtroom, some minutes earlier, to find this place outside where she must pass him.

One Little Slip

"I know, my dear," he said slowly. "I love you, too."

For a long moment Michael said nothing. Then, "Of course I don't want to visit Berlin. I have few illusions about what would happen to me there. I'd risk it tho, but after finding you! I do have a scheme to find that identity of higherup in the German network here but I need help."

"I'll do anything, Michael." She knew that for the truth.

"I have my suspicions and the French police have been keeping watch on one person for me. But I have no proof.

"I want some one not French to go to an address I know and say to a man there, 'I am a friend of Jules Sashon!'"

"That does not sound dangerous. Who is Sashon?"

"He was a Frenchman, employed until last week in the air ministry. Tonight he's in jail here." He was serious again. "That's only the beginning of the scheme."

"And if it is successful," she asked gently, "You will not have to return to Berlin?"

"I shall not even have to remain in the British service any longer."

She smiled happily. "Give me that address!"

At 5 o'clock the next day she walked down Rue Haussman, ready to do what she had sworn never to do again.

The address which Michael had given her was that of an apartment house. She asked for a M. Dubois, Michael's immediate superior in the German service. Dubois came to the door.

"I am a friend of Jules Sashon," Nalya said, without nervousness.

"Wie? I don't know him." Dubois, a middle aged man, spoke with a heavy German accent.

"I think you knew him once." Nalya took a cigaret from her bag and handed it to Dubois, a purple cigaret with a crimson tip which Michael had given her. That, he had said, would make Dubois listen.

"Excuse me, Mademoiselle." Dubois said, eying the cigaret. His round face became friendly. "One must always be suspicious."

"Jules gave me the cigaret and your address," Nalya said, without any sense of nervousness.

"May I ask who you are?"

"I am a Russian living in Paris. I have some of the same information that Jules gave you and I can get more. I know many of his friends in the air ministry."

"Have you any information with you?" Dubois asked eagerly.

"Here." Nalya handed him several genuine papers that Michael had provided. They would interest Dubois.

They did. "Let me see what else you have," he said quickly.

"Plenty more," Nalya smiled. "But, unless we discuss payment, I can show you nothing."

"Aber—how can we discuss payment without knowing?"

Here was the climax, the place to go carefully. "I will be pleased to bring more material to any of your superiors and let them see it. Naturally, I shall expect to be there. If they approve, then we can discuss payment."

"I shall have to consult my colleagues," Dubois answered. "Will tomorrow, at 3 o'clock—?"

Nalya called the school the next morning and told them that she was ill. Then she met Michael on a bench along the Seine.

"Dubois will take you to meet his superior," he said, "and that, I hope, will be the person I want. I shall follow wherever he takes you, with French detectives."

He kissed her. "I'll be outside Dubois' house with the police and we'll follow wherever you go. There is no chance of a slip up."

She took a package which Michael had given her and started out.

Dubois opened the door for her.

As they went down to the street, Dubois was completely at ease, completely unconcerned. "We'll get a cab," he said, but he passed five or six available ones before he said, "Here, this one!"

Dubois knew the cab driver. He called him Jacques and did not give him directions, as if this were all arranged. That upset Nalya and she wished she could turn around and see that Michael was following. The cab went into the center of Paris, weaving quickly thru thick traffic. Dubois talked cheerfully about the weather and seemed to be enjoying the ride. Then the cab turned sharply down a little side street and stopped at the rear entrance to a department store.

"Come on, hurry out," Dubois said sharply, taking her by the arm. He almost dragged her into the store. They cut thru it, down one aisle, then across, then to the front entrance. Dubois smiled pleasantly. "I never know when some one might be following and with the valuable material you have—! This ought to discourage them."

"Yes," Nalya looked around quickly. There was no sign of Michael, no sign of any one following. There was the slip! Without Michael arriving with the police, the meeting ahead could mean only danger for her, without any chance of success. She thought of turning back now, but Dubois had her by the elbow.

"We'll take this cab," he said.

They drove on in silence, Nalya knew that she ought not to show her confusion but she could think of nothing to say. They changed cabs three times in the next half hour, as if all Dubois was trying to do was to ride around town. The last cab went down a quiet empty street in the outskirts of the city.

The cab stopped at a street corner and a small round shouldered man appeared.

"Come in," Dubois said. Then, to Nalya, "This is Herr Schmidt."

Conversation of Her Escorts Confuses Nalya

This man with the shrewd pointed face, this little man, so much like a bookkeeper out for a noonday airing, was the person Michael wanted! Yet, as Nalya watched him enter the cab, she was not sure.

"You are on time," Schmidt said, as he ordered the driver to go on. "We must always follow our orders precisely. You went thru the department store?"

"Yes, Heinrich."

"You changed cabs three times?"

"Three times, Heinrich."

"Had there been any slip up, we should both have been reprimanded," Schmidt added.

That sounded as if Schmidt and Dubois both took orders from some one higher up. Nalya felt confused and more uncertain than ever.

For 20 minutes more the cab drove out into the suburbs, then stopped in front of a little house.

"Here we are," Schmidt said, "at the usual place."

As Nalya stepped from the cab she looked up and down the street. No other car, no other person was in sight. For her it was like some bad dream from which she could not awaken. Uncertain about Schmidt's real importance, sure that Michael could not possibly follow now, she thought of pretending to be sick and unable to go thru with the conversation, but that would end any chance of ever repeating this scheme. The only choice for Michael, then, would be Berlin.

She followed the men along a walk to a small house. The lawn in front showed no sign of any care and little garden beds were filled with weeds. The porch was unpainted. Schmidt used two keys to open the door. Nalya followed him into the house, hoping desperately but certain that she was walking to failure. The rooms inside were shuttered and closed but there was no damp unoccupied odor in the house. Schmidt led the way into a poorly furnished living room. He left the shutters closed but turned on a weak electric light. Dubois locked the door.

Schmidt began at once. "We are ready to consider your material, Mademoiselle."

As far as Nalya could see, she was completely trapped. But she said sharply, "I would like to know that I am talking to people able to make decisions." Pretending to be dissatisfied with the status of the two men might give her an excuse for impatience and a reason for going now, without having to reveal what was in her parcel. By this time Michael should have been here but there was no hope of his coming. "I am certainly not going to discuss my material with underlings who will perhaps forget to tell their superiors and take the credit—and the payment."

"Our superiors have given us orders," Schmidt said. "We shall follow them and you can trust us."

"Trust you?" Nalya tried to laugh. "I refuse to show this material to underlings. If you'll be good enough to open the door, please."

Schmidt walked up to her. "Give me that parcel." With a rough push he had it in his hands and tore off the wrappings. Old newspapers fell out. "So these are important documents," he shouted. "Very clever!" He laughed in Nalya's face. "And at this moment, I suppose, the police were to have come in and arrested us."

"We must find out who put her up to this," Dubois said heavily.

"That will be easy," Schmidt said coldly, his face darker. He took an automatic from his pocket. "I think we shall find out in a few minutes, if Mademoiselle will have enough sense to tell us. Come Mademoiselle, was sagen Sie?"

The automatic was pointed at Nayla. It did not waver.

Then, in the silence, Nayla was startled. The doorbell rang, not one ring, but several short ones, as if it were an agreed signal. Schmidt and Dubois were more surprised than startled. Schmidt frowned. "Who comes here now?"

"Perhaps the police," Dubois said nervously.

Schmidt was not frightened. "They would not use that ring," he snapped. "Hurry, get this woman upstairs. Lock her in a room."

Dubois took the automatic from Schmidt and forced Nayla up the stairs and into a dark room. He locked the door.

Schmidt had opened the front door and admitted some one, without any sound of confusion or alarm. By pressing against the door Nalya could hear the voice of the newcomer. The words did not matter. The voice was everything. It was a woman's voice.

"I had to come," the woman said. "After the number of mistakes made by men as you and Dubois, how can I trust you when something as important as this aviation business is concerned. I cannot chance any more mistakes. I decided to come myself."

Dubois said something but Nalya could not hear clearly. Then she heard Schmidt laugh. "Entschuldigen Sie, excuse, Fraulein, but the mistake is yours."

"Mine?"

"In assuming that this is important."

"But this concerns important aviation documents."

"Nein, Fraulein, nein! The mistake is yours in bothering to come here, Fraulein, if you will pardon me. The whole thing was a trap which did not work."

Something else was said but Nalya could not hear it. That did not matter. She had heard that woman's voice and she knew that voice now. It was the voice of Fraulein Myer, the German teacher at the same school.

Then the doorbell rang, one loud ring, and at the same time there was a violent banging at the door. Nalya heard people running about, then the sounds of other men's voices, but they spoke French.

Then one man shouted. "Get the three, particularly the woman."

That was Michael's voice.

From Sacre Coeur the city lights were clear. There was no fog this night.

"For a long time we suspected Fraulein Myer and watched her," Michael said. He was not nervous now. "I expected she would meet you today but I needed proof."

"And when you lost my trail this afternoon?"

"I called the police at once. They told me that the Fraulein was starting out on a trip somewhere. I joined the men who were following her, right to where you were, thank God."

Michael smiled at her. "It is strange that people who are clever enough to conceal an important cog in their system under the magnificent disguise of a little school teacher in an unimportant school aren't lucky enough to avoid that one inevitable little slip!"

Art Institute Exhibits Rare Old Tapestry

By Eleanor Jewett.

The masterpiece for the month of October at the Art institute is a beautiful embroidered altar piece and frontal, the gift of Mrs. Chauncey McCormick and Mrs. Richard Ely Danielson. The cloth is Spanish and dates from the third quarter of the 15th century; the embroidery is in silk and gold thread. An interesting history is attached to it.

The ecclesiastical embroidery was made to the order of Pedro de Montoya, bishop of Osma [1454-1475], who apparently gave or bequeathed it to the cathedral of Burgo de Osma, his ecclesiastical see in the province of Soria. The bishop was a wealthy man, for he not only gave this superb gift to the church, and more gifts besides, but also he was able to provide his town with a city wall.

From the size of the embroidery one may deduce that it was intended for rather a small altar, probably in a private chapel, possibly even for portable use for which its material makes it eminently suitable. Tho now shown as a continuous unit, it was originally made in two sections, the upper with its central representation of the Madonna and Child Enthroned serving as a retable and the lower serving as an altar frontal or antependium. Both altar piece and frontal are concerned with the depiction of events in the life and passion of Christ.

The embroidery is unusually beautiful and detailed. The flesh passages are exceptionally well wrought, for the most part in a chain stitch so fine as to be hardly visible to the naked eye. A great variety of textures is given to the embroidered backgrounds by various types of couching and the introduction of a knot stitch, giving a sort of carpetlike pile. The craftsmanship thruout is of extraordinary quality and a minute inspection of the piece is well worth while. The piece represents a vast amount of meticulous and exquisite work. It is the sort of thing that our day could never emulate; this embroidery is the fruit of an age when time and speed were not synonymous.

Be sure to note the detail—the little cherubs ["putti"], for instance, who are busy with tight rope walking and gymnastics to amuse the Christ Child, and the tiny portrait heads which frame the central motifs. The embroideries were formerly part of the Charles Deering collection; they now belong thru gift to the Art institute.

The Goodman theater has opened with vigor what promises to be an interesting and successful winter. The first play is "This Fine Pretty World" by Percy MacKaye. Dr. Gnesin, head of the dramatic school, reports an enrollment of 145 students. Last year the Goodman put on eight plays, each running two weeks. This season Dr. Gnesin hopes to stage 10 plays, each to run for two and a half weeks. The next play, now in rehearsal, will be J. B. Priestley's "Time and the Conways," which will open Nov. 6 and run thru Nov. 23.

Illinois will celebrate National Art week from Nov. 25 to Dec. 1. The movement has taken for its slogan words which are very like those used by the All Illinois Society of the Fine Arts: "A work of American art in every American home." Substitute Illinois for American and you have our society's slogan, one that the All Illinois has tried to make come true thru years of activity.

Various sales exhibits are to be arranged during the week with the hope that there will be many buyers.

The Chicago Society of Etchers has an interesting exhibit of prints by members at the Roullier galleries, Fine Arts building. No one with a fondness for etching can afford to miss this exhibit; the English prints are particularly fine. A small etching, "Evening Storm," by Reynold Weidener, introduces a new member of the society and one whom we will follow with interest. He seems to be another of that small band of young conservative American artists who give us hope for a future great American art, free from mannerisms and ignorance.

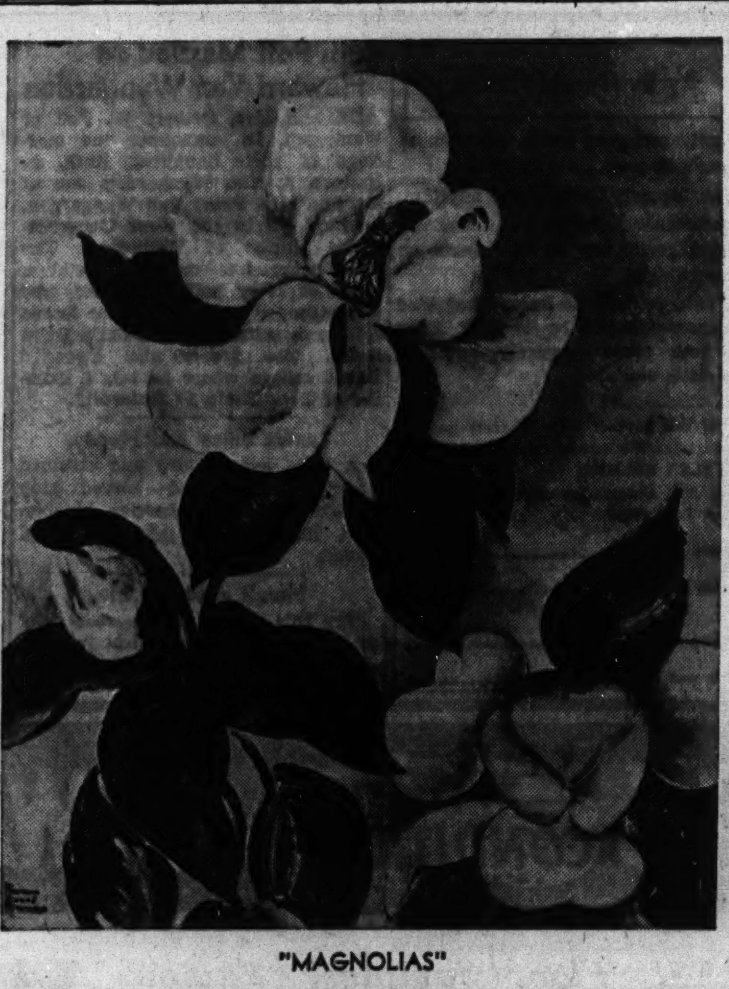
Ethel Crouch Brown is enjoying a one man show of her vigorous water colors at the Tudor gallery, Chicago Woman's club, thru October. The exhibit is diversified and lively.



"MAGNOLIAS"

This characteristic painting by Florence Ezzell Stevenson has been shown in Chicago and Washington, D. C. Mrs. Stevenson has recently presented it to her home town, Bressellville, Ala.

Fault of Round Shoulders Is Beauty Enemy

By Antoinette Donnelly.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"All motorists know that soft shoulders on the road are extremely dangerous, and all women should know that round shoulders can be equally damaging to the feminine figure," says chic Ellen Ballon, pianist, who stands at only the five foot mark. And Miss Ballon should know, for when she is seen on the concert stage or on the street, her erect posture lends the impression of a much taller individual.

Miss Ballon has been playing the piano since she was 3 years old, and, with a daily average of four hour rehearsals, she finds that only repeated performance of a corrective exercise series staves off the dreaded shadow of stooped shoulders. Miss Ballon sincerely believes that her beauty program can easily be put to use by women who sit at desks during the day, work at the typewriter, or who can often be found over the pots and pans.

"If Columbus derived his theory that the earth is round from being round-shouldered, as one biographer claims, then he probably is the only one who ever had a scientific excuse for this disfiguring feature," says Miss Ballon, who proposes these exercises for all others. And these are not staid movements, but allow a real dramatic touch.

First, Miss Ballon stands against a wall and, while keeping the rest of the body immovable, she does her best to shake with her shoulders. This loosens up the shoulder muscles, and then, standing near a wall, she places a pillow behind her which runs from the neck to the small of her back. She draws her shoulders back, gripping the pillow with her shoulder blades, then relaxes her shoulders to a normal position. Miss Ballon aptly hails this as the "feather squeeze." When the exercise is repeated about 20 times, Miss Ballon finds there is a natural tendency to pull droopy shoulders back.

Next Miss Ballon takes a tip from the wrestlers, and lies down with her back "pinned" to the floor. As she slowly raises her legs, she makes every effort to keep her shoulders against the floor. Since most people's abdominal muscles are not as strong as they should be, it becomes a terrific battle between the shoulders and the legs, and the winner is always YOU, for both parts of the body benefit greatly.

Another novel exercise that Miss Ballon finds is a good one is the "vertebrae counter." The pianist places her fingers on her top vertebra, which are a few inches above the top of the neck, and moves slowly down, touching each vertebrae as she goes along. When she is unable to continue any further in this position, she switches to placing the elbows parallel to the ground and continues the count until the base of the spine is reached. Of the 33 vertebra in the vertebral column, over 20 may be tallied by the fingers.

The easiest movements to prevent round shoulders, Miss Ballon finds, are deep breathing exercises. By breathing in deeply, the shoulders automatically straighten up, the abdomen flattens, and the correct stance for the upper level of the body is taken.

To Relieve Bad Cough, Mix This Recipe, at Home

Big Saving. No Cooking. So Easy.

You'll be surprised how quickly and easily you can relieve coughs due to colds, when you try this splendid recipe. It gives you about four times as much cough medicine for your money, and you'll find it truly wonderful.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's no trouble at all. Then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a pint bottle. Add your syrup and you have a full pint of medicine that will amaze you by its quick action. It never spoils, lasts a family a long time, and tastes fine—children love it.

This simple mixture takes right hold of a cough. For real results, you've never seen anything better. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

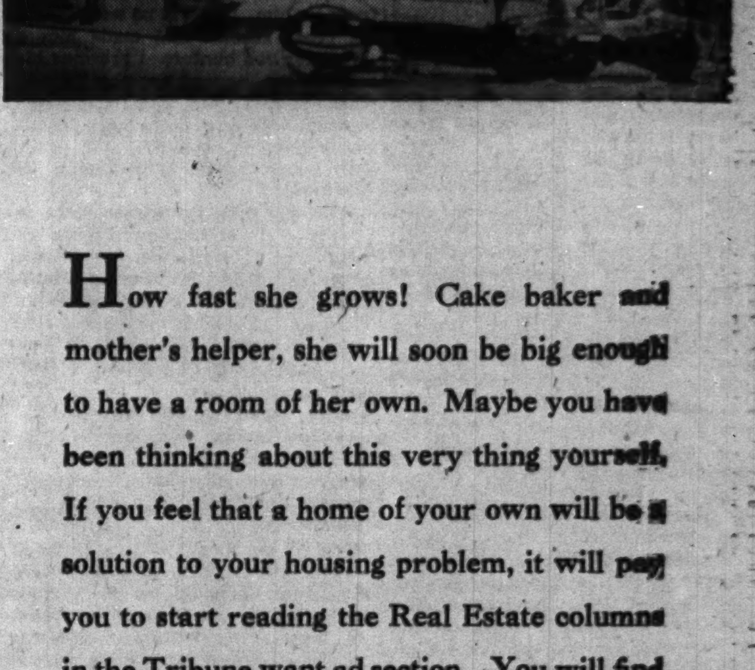
DOES MOTHER'S HELPER DESERVE A ROOM OF HER OWN?



How fast she grows! Cake baker and mother's helper, she will soon be big enough to have a room of her own. Maybe you have been thinking about this very thing yourself. If you feel that a home of your own will be a solution to your housing problem, it will pay you to start reading the Real Estate columns in the Tribune want ad section. You will find a large selection of homes located in desirable city neighborhoods and the suburbs, offered at attractive prices.

Because they get better results, want ad users place more total want advertising in the Tribune than in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

SERVING CHICAGO FOR 93 YEARS

League Plans Observance of Hearing Week

Since a teacher of lip reading and a young woman who herself was hard of hearing founded the Chicago League for the Hard of Hearing 25 years ago, it has helped thousands of deafened persons to overcome their handicap. In observance of National Hearing Week the league will demonstrate its work with public programs daily thru next Saturday at its headquarters, 410 South Michigan avenue.

Free lip reading instruction, classes in voice placement and home crafts, vocational and social guidance, and a variety of social activities are offered by the league, frequently to as many as 200 persons in a single week.

Preventive work among school children, research into the most reliable hearing aids, and constant warfare against quackery of all forms are other phases of the league's program.

Miss Rose L. Dickinson and Miss Gertrude Torrey are the league's founders, and still are active members. Miss Irene Hubbell is president, and Mrs. Donald S. Boynton, chairman of the board.

The Big Sisters will open their 24th year of activity in behalf of underprivileged girls with a luncheon meeting tomorrow at the House of Biggs, 50 E. Huron street. Clothing, scholarships and other welfare activities of the organization will be discussed, and Florence Bourke Ellis will give a travelog, "Wings Over the Andes."

Recently the Big Sisters have undertaken to organize two Red Cross units which will meet weekly. Mrs. George V. McIntyre is president.

• • •

Thirty-two women's organizations jointly will sponsor a bridge party and fashion forecast Saturday afternoon at the Stevens hotel in order to raise money for the Sarah Hackett Stevenson Memorial. This emergency refuge for homeless women and children has "Help first, investigate afterward" as its slogan. Miss Mary H. Burris is general chairman of the party.

The Service Council for Girls, Protestant Big Sister organization, will sponsor a book review Friday afternoon at the First Congregational church in Evanston, in order to raise money for its work. Mrs. Horace Dawson will discuss the prize winning novel, "The Family." Mrs. J. L. Kincaid is in charge.

Council shop, a new enterprise to help the National Council of Jewish Women, Chicago section, finance its extensive philanthropic program, will be opened formally with a tea and reception Friday afternoon at the club headquarters, 185 North Wabash avenue. This combined gift shop and rental library will be sponsored by a committee headed by Mrs. Philip L. Seman. Otto Eisenschiml, author and expert on Lincoln, will discuss "The Drama of Lincoln's Assassination" at the tea.

In order to complete payment on the hospital unit built by the Mothers' Relief Association for the Aged at the Illinois Colony Club Home for the Aged, the association will give a fall card party Tuesday afternoon at the Revere clubhouse, 1531 Wilson avenue. Mrs. Albert F. Alles is chairman.

As their annual musical review, "South of the Border" will be presented jointly by Ruth Lodge, Free Sons of Israel, and the Ruth League for Crippled Children next Sunday evening at the Civic opera house. Mexican atmosphere will distinguish the production, proceeds of which will be shared by the Sarah Morris hospital, the Mount Sinai hospital, the Martha Washington Home for Crippled Children, the Jesse Spalding School for Crippled Children, and the Outing Association Camp for Crippled Children. Mrs. Nathan Golden and Miss Maria Sezon are chairmen for the lodge and the league respectively.

A BARRINGTON BRIDE

Mrs. Lyman Smith, the former Doris Caesar, whose marriage to Dr. Smith, son of Mrs. William Dayton Smith of Dundee, took place on Sept. 7 at the Barrington home of the bride's father, Orville S. Caesar. Dr. Smith and his bride will be at home in Barrington for a year.

Autumn Lures Chicagoans to the White Mts.

WHITE MOUNTAINS, N. H.

The pageant of the autumn leaf has brought many to the White Mountains this week, among them Mrs. W. F. Hypes and Miss Muriel Hypes of Evanston, Mrs. W. L. Hypes and Miss Ruth Hypes of Glencoe, who are making a late tour of the hills. They were at Peckett's on Sugar Hill, where Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Ruggles of Oak Park also arrived this week for a few days' sojourn.

Spending a few days there also are Mrs. E. D. Mower and Miss Katherine Mower of Chicago.

Shepard Vogelgesang of Chicago, who was color technician at the Chicago World's Fair, has done some important work in the mountains, including a beautiful music room for Mrs. Davis Sparks of Alton, Ill., which this summer was headquarters for her music school. He also has been building a new summer home at Wit's End, his place on Dalton Mountain, Whitefield, where on Sunday he gave a reception and kaffee klatsch for 200 guests.

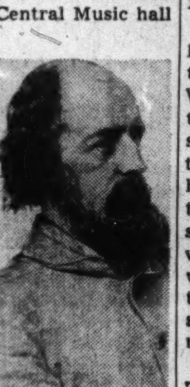
When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Oct, 12, 1892.

Dear Julia: Will and I attended church services at Central Music hall on Sunday to hear Prof. David Swing speak on three writers who have died recently in three different countries — Ernest Renan, French philosopher; our own Whittier, and Lord Tennyson, whose death occurred only a few days ago.



Alfred Lord Tennyson.

Tennyson's passing touched me deeply, for I love his poetry. I was interested to see in London dispatches that the last thing he read was the Dirge from Shakespeare's "Cymbeline:"

"Fear no more the heat of the sun,
Nor the furious winter's rages;
Thou thy worldly task hast done,
Home art gone and ta'en thy wages;
Golden girls and lads all must,
As chimney-sweepers, come t dust."

Comparing Whittier and Tennyson, Prof. Swing called the latter greater, in a literary sense, than the Quaker poet, but said that Whittier excelled in his character and teachings. Whittier might be compared to a great and noble tree; Tennyson to a whole forest of trees. He went on:

"When man reflects on his mortality, he may read 'In Memoriam' and ask what is the teaching of that poem concerning the grave into which each must sink, but if he finds the poem too long and complicated, he will turn, with a sigh of relief, to Whittier's simpler lines:

"Yet love will dream, and faith will trust,
Since He who knows our needs is just,
That somehow, somewhere, meet we must."

The lines end, you know, with the comforting assurance that

"Life is ever lord of death,
And love can never lose its own.

Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, being asked for his opinion as to Tennyson's greatest poem, replied that his own favorite was "In Memoriam," tho he admitted that many would declare for "Maud." I love the poet's description of "Maud"—"queen rose of the rosebud garden of girls" . . . "She is but 17, but she is tall and stately."

Dr. Holmes said he had spent a delightful 24 hours with Tennyson in the Tennyson home on the Isle of Wight. The English laureate was taciturn with most people and almost savage with those who tried to intrude on him. But it is no wonder, for his great success had made him a target for lion hunters. I presume his son, Hallam, named for the man in whose memory "In Memoriam" was written, will consent to have his father's remains interred in Westminster Abbey, as the government has requested.

Who will take Tennyson's place as poet laureate of England, I wonder? Swinburne is suggested, but I have never cared for his work. Nor is Alfred Austin a worthy successor. Tennyson had held the post for 42 years, I think, succeeding Wordsworth. One doesn't like to see a lesser man occupy that place. I remember hearing it said that Wordsworth stipulated, on taking the honor, that he should not be expected to write formal effusions on royal birthdays and other events. But Tennyson has been particularly happy in doing this. His "Ode of the Death of the Duke of Wellington," written in 1852, stirred the country. Then his welcome to Alexandra, as wife of the prince of Wales, was another lovely thing; while his "To the Queen" must have pleased Victoria greatly.

A beautiful wedding the past week in Chicago was that of Elizabeth Mattocks, daughter of Mrs. John B. Mattocks of the Metropole hotel, to Mr. Simeon B. Chapin. It was a small affair, and we were not invited, but Mrs. Mattocks invited us down next day to see the presents and hear about it. The bride's gown was a copy of a dress of Mary, Queen of Scots. The groom is a successful young business man of Chicago, and the marriage seems like one of those which are made in heaven. Ever with love,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES.

Alfred, Lord Tennyson, [1809-1892] was made laureate in 1850. His great poem, "In Memoriam," was published in that year. Tennyson was made a baron in 1884 and on his death was buried in Westminster Abbey.

Gilmore's Band Again.

Letters continue to come in about thi famous band. Emily L. Hiestand. Maywood, writes: "My sister and I, chosen from other school girls, sang with that wonderful band in a concert at the Rock Island depot, then unfinished. I can never forget the thrill of singing with the great chorus, and the band, which fairly lifted us off our feet. We couldn't help singing when we looked into Mr. Gilmore's happy face." . . . B. F. Turner, 2867 East 77th street, Chicago, tells of hearing Gilmore's band during the last summer of the bandmaster's life, at Sheepshead Bay. "One selection I remember was 'The Advance and Retreat of the Salvation Army,' a nightly request from the enthusiastic assemblage. The closing number, 'Star Spangled Banner,' was preceded by the en massé colors, Old Glory at center front, the entire band standing as they played, and the audience at 'attention.'" . . . Charles A. Laurance, Cedar Rapids, Ia., writes: "Nearly all programs included at least one novelty. One year it was the 'Anvil Chorus' from 'Trovatore,' with the theater in complete darkness, an electric hookup with a battery of anvils producing sparks, when struck with hammers. On another occasion, a novel effect was produced when a number of small cannon were fired at intervals, in time with the music, contact being controled by a keyboard on the stage, operated by a member of the band."

Four Score and Ten.

Two friends of this column are October birthday children. Mrs. Emanuel Mandel, Highland Park, celebrates her 92d birthday on the 25th; Albert Cotsworth, 5804 Race street, attained the age of 90 on Oct. 9. Mrs. Mandel has been a good angel to Michael Reese hospital, to the Maxwell Street Y. M. C. A., and the Chicago Woman's club. Mr. Cotsworth's contribution to the cause of music in Chicago is noteworthy.

Sad Ballads of Yesterday.

Where Is My Wandering Boy?

Where is my wandering boy tonight,
The boy of my tenderest care,
The boy who was once my joy and light
The child of my love and prayer?

Outdoor Life Spotlighted at Beverly, Mass.

BEVERLY, MASS.

With the tang of autumn in the air the countryside in its scarlet and gold, the late season is one of delight for north shore sojourners. There is a quickening of the outdoor activities with the meets of the Myopia Hunt club attracting the largest fields in many seasons and the golf at the country clubs at its autumn best.

The season has developed a new sport at Myopia, bicycle polo. The game is proving alluring to the younger set, the girls as well as the boys. Matches are being played on the Myopia polo field and are fast and exciting.

There has been much going on in the way of debutante affairs since the arrival of the late season. The clubs, as well as the shore and country homes, have been the scenes of many teas, dinners, and dances, and many others are being planned. This year there has been a decided increase in the number of all-the-year-round colonists and many of the estates will not be closed this winter.

For Chicagoans it has been interesting to note how active the north shore communities have been in war relief work and in the raising of funds for the defense of the allies. Since the change of conditions in France, most of the activities have been for the British. Funds have been raised for the purchase of an ambulance thru the Red Cross for service in England as a gift from the residents of Pride's Crossing and Beverly Farms.

Gloucester residents have purchased an ambulance and Ipswich residents are to furnish one as a gift from that town. In Beverly, whose own history dates back more than 300 years, funds are to be raised for a fighting plane in which residents of Beverley, England, are interested. The Massachusetts city also has raised a fund for the purchase of an ambulance to go to England. Many of these old Massachusetts cities and towns were named for English cities and towns from which the early settlers came. In Beverley in England, where Beverly is spelled with an added "e" in the last syllable, the fighting plane fund is named in honor of the mayoress and the mayor.

• • •

Mrs. William Kennard Kenly of Chicago, whose north shore home is in attractive West Manchester, is giving a tea at the Fortnightly club in Chicago for her granddaughter, Miss Mary Ann Wyman, on Nov. 15. Miss Kenly is to give a supper dance at the Casino in Chicago on Monday, Dec. 23, for Miss Wyman. The affair will be attended by a number of the debutante group from the north shore where Miss Wyman spent the summer and early autumn, and was a favorite in the younger set.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Robinson [Florence Crane], have been enjoying a cruise to the Caribbean. Mrs. Robinson is the daughter of Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr. of Chicago and Castle Hill at Ipswich, one of the largest estates on the north shore.

Thomas Leiter of Chicago has joined the ever growing list of Chicago property owners along the north shore. He has acquired an attractive estate on the famous Haven properties in the West Beach district at the Farms. This estate passed into the control of the trustees of Harvard university some years ago and is to be developed into smaller estates. The plan is to sell these estates to Harvard men with a community interest formed in college days. Houses to be erected are smaller than the great mansions once so common on the shore, and they will mean more of a "home" to the owners.

Mr. Leiter is a Harvard man and lives with his mother, Mrs. Joseph Leiter, and his sister, Miss Nancy Leiter, at Edgewater House, the attractive place fronting on the Atlantic. The property which Mr. Leiter purchased is only a short distance away from that of his mother. Mrs. Leiter plans to be on the north shore until after the holidays, and will pass much of the winter at her Dupont circle home in Washington, as has been her custom for many years.

Miss Evelyn Lilly has returned to Beverly Cove after a visit with relatives in Indianapolis, and will be with her mother, Mrs. Frederic Clay Bartlett of Chicago, at her Chapman's Corner home for the late season. The Bartletts, who will be at the cove for the late season, will spend the winter as usual at Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Miss Helen C. Frick of New York City is at Eagle Rock, her Pride's Crossing estate, for a late season stay. Miss Frick came to the north shore to look over the work on the new gymnasium and community hall she is having built at "The House with the Iron Railing," the vacation home for working girls she maintains at Wenham. Miss Frick is providing a home for nearly a score of British refugees, many not yet in their teens, at her Pride's Crossing place.

Universal day—You have to handle things masterfully today or they may handle you to your disadvantage. Assert your power.

Universal year—Whenever the universal year is the same as your personal year you will find that you are moving with the tide of events that are happening in the outside world. You will be more directly influenced by world events than otherwise. If your personal year and the universal year are not in harmony then you will have to be more aware of the outside forces which might hinder you from carrying out the purpose of your own year. Next year is going to be a six year and so those who have a five year, for instance, will not have as much personal freedom as if they had had a five year when the universal year was a five year as it was this year.

Year ahead—Don't start anything new because it won't last. You are getting ready to end and finish up many things.

Ruth Poff Married to Howard Van Wyngarden

Dr. and Mrs. Delbert W. Poff of Waukegan, Ill., announce the marriage of their daughter, Ruth, to Howard A. Van Wyngarden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Van Wyngarden, on Sept. 28 in the First Congregational church of Waukegan. The bride wore her mother's wedding gown of ivory satin and lace, and was attended by three of her Beloit college sorority sisters in Delta Delta Delta. The groom also attended Beloit college where he was a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity.

B-U-S-I-N-E-S-S

Would you be interested in starting a business for yourself without 1 cent of investment on your part?

Well, that is exactly what we have done for many men in this territory.

These men are previous storekeepers, doctors, lawyers, shopworkers, mechanics, etc., and are now earning and receiving in percentage as much as $50 in a single day.

We are an old line, nationally known manufacturer of electrical units that defy competition and for which there is a constantly increasing demand.

Now, here are the arrangements: You must be between 24 and 54, preferably married, honest, reliable, possess a neat appearance and possess at least a grammar school education.

At this time we will only interview men living on the South Side and southern Cook county.

Every man answering this advertisement will be given a confidential interview and if selected will be trained at our expense in our methods, which are successful.

There are no strings attached to the offer, as we even can pay rent, light, heat, telephone girl hire, consign your merchandise and finance your account.

Apply Monday at 11 a. m. sharp. Ask for Mr. Eckman, 2d flr., Standard National Bank Building, 7919 S. Ashland-av.

Mr. & Mrs. EXECUTIVE

Consider a beautiful modern building within 15 minutes' drive from your office. Approaching the entrance, you pass a landscaped parkway leading you to a DOORMAN who ushers you into the vestibule which precedes a delightfully appointed lobby with an AUTOMATIC ELEVATOR on each side.

When you leave the elevator you walk down an artistically decorated corridor to your 2½ or 3½ room apartment. You enter and there—Unbelievable large rooms with restful colors, plenty of closet and cupboard space. ELECTRIC KITCHENS, built-in tub and shower [perhaps you selected an apartment with a wood burning fireplace], excellent light and ventilation.

All this is yours at

NEAR NORTH SIDE
Why not live down here where there is so much doing and where you can enjoy it all and still get home in time for a full night's sleep? Just a few blocks north of the river, so near you can keep fit walking to and from your office. Some very commodious apartments, with nice old white marble fireplaces and loads of wardrobe space. You'd get a real thrill out of some of our living rooms. There's a real satisfaction in living where it's so easy to do things. Also places for groups of 2 to 4; very few are furnished.

Day by Day on the Farm

by BOB BECKER

Meadow Larks Stay

—October 19, 1940.

A FEW meadow larks still are on the farm. This species is one of the few that haven't been intimidated by the recent cool weather. On a walk thru the fields this week we saw several of these beautiful songsters which come north early in the spring and are reluctant to leave when autumn comes. Last winter several meadow larks stayed in Chicagoland all winter. As a rule a few of these hardy birds will stay north if food is available and the winter isn't too severe.

Altho we saw no meadow larks, blue jays, chickadees, one cardinal, and a flock of juncos during our walk over part of the farm, these birds do not fill the void created by the autumn departure of hundreds of feathered summer residents that are on their way south. The continuous rustling of the dried leaves as the wind blows thru the woodlots this week tells the story of what has happened to the birds. When you hear this sound in the woods you know that the autumn migration has occurred.

Chicks Outgrow Hen.

The unhappiest resident on the Du Page county farm this week is a bantam hen. The men were saying the other day that there seems to be no way to console this mournful little white hen about her family troubles.

The bantam was used this spring to hatch three peafowl eggs, so for several months she has been leading these handsome chicks around the yard and showing them how to get along in the world. The chicks have grown into full fledged peacocks and are twice as large as the smart little "mother," but nevertheless Mrs. Bantam has been the family boss.

One of the three peacocks died recently. The veterinarian found the cause of death was blackhead. It was his opinion that the bantam might have been the carrier even tho she wasn't affected with the disease. His recommendation was that the bantam should be separated from the remaining two peacocks.

Now the bantam has been exiled to the chickenhouse and she doesn't like the idea at all. The flockmaster reports that she's anything but happy about it.

Pheasants Get Seeds.

A good sized flock of pheasants has been helping to harvest the crop of sunflower seeds on the farm. Each afternoon around 5:30 the gardener sees the ringnecks sail down into the triangular shaped patch to feed on the seeds. This little section of the farm belongs to the pheasants now that the gardener has erected a scarecrow to keep the pesky crows out of the patch. The men aren't overly optimistic, however, as they're pretty sure the smart crows will catch on to the trick pretty soon.

One of the main projects for the farm workers recently has been that of preparing winter quarters for the steers, again calling attention to the fact that farmers have to be jacks of all trades. Several of the men had to be carpenters during alterations of one of the barns to make room for the steers. The main part of the job was the building of new feed bunks and racks along the walls.

The men also have been using their carpenter tools to build fence gates this week. They were completing nine new three-bar gates and also a large entrance gate the other day in the big tool shed.

CHICAGO'S 41ST AUTO SHOW WILL OPEN SATURDAY

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Chicago's 41st annual automobile show, featuring the 1941 automobiles, but including an elaborate stage production and army exhibit, will be opened next Saturday in the International Amphitheater, Halsted and 41st streets. It will run nine days, extending thru Sunday, Nov. 3.

Altho New York's show is called the National Automobile show, being sponsored by the manufacturers while Chicago's show is run by its dealer association, it is the Chicago event that the industry watches with the closest attention. For Chicago's show gives the best cue as to how sales are going, and that is the big news for the industry.

M. J. Lanahan, chairman of the executive show committee of the Chicago Automobile Trade association, which conducts the annual event, said yesterday that the coming week will see great activity in the amphitheater. Rehearsals will be held of "Non-Stop America," the arena spectacle. Stage, scenic effects, decorations and lighting will be installed and about 180 elaborate exhibits will be given their proper location.

Executives to Assemble.

During show week, Chicago will be the assembling place for the automobile industry. Executives and their assistants take over hotel suites. Many will join with their dealers Friday night for a pre-view of the show. And during the week several of the manufacturers will hold receptions for dealers and others.

Among the brass hats of the automobile industry expected in Chicago during show week are Alfred P. Sloan Jr., chairman of the board of General Motors; K. T. Keller, president of the Chrysler corporation; heads of the manufacturing divisions of two corporations; Ford officials and the presidents of so-called independent companies, including George W. Mason of Nash, M. M. Gilman of Packard, A. E. Barit of Hudson, and Paul G. Hoffman of Studebaker.

Show officials look for the largest attendance in history this year, with business on the upturn and the automobile companies producing what have been called "the most beautiful cars in years." Of course, automobile enthusiasts and buyers from thruout the middle west will provide the greater part of the crowds, but there will be a large representation of dealers from the area and from places as far as the Atlantic and Pacific seaboards.

America's Largest Stage.

Edward Beck, producer of "Non-Stop America," and John C. Becker, whose studios built the scenery, disclosed that the stage and front curtain will be the largest ever constructed in America. It was explained that they must be unusually large to handle the big cast in the revue, and to provide space for the presentation of the 1941 automobiles.

Among the aspects of the show that will be more pleasing to the eye, will be a group of "community queens," young ladies chosen as being the most beautiful in their respective communities. They will take part in the spectacle.

National defense will play an important part in the show because of the fact that the automobile industry itself is one of the most important bulwarks in the nation's preparedness program. The United States army promises to hold an unusually interesting exhibition of some of its most modern equipment. There will be displays of scout cars, tanks, reconnaissance cars, antiaircraft guns, antitank guns, machine guns, searchlights, and other modern military equipment.

Prep Safety Competition.

Safety will be stressed thru a competition to be conducted among high school students sponsored by the Keep Chicago Safe committee in coöperation with show officials. Prize winning posters and slogans will be exhibited.

Station wagons, a species of automobile that has been growing in popularity, will be exhibited in the truck section occupying the south wing of the main floor. Station wagons are now being used by "vagabond" tourists and hunters, in addition to those for whom they were originally built—owners of country estates.

Because of the success of the used car sales department last year, this division will be repeated. There will be 96 used car spaces in the north wing. Passenger cars will occupy the entire second floor. Parts, accessories, and other exhibits will be found in both the north and south wings of the main floor.

Death Rate Per Vehicle Mile Reduced Thru Safety Measures

Altho the accident rate continues high, progress has been made toward greater safety on the highways, Paul G. Hoffman, president of the Automotive Safety Foundation, last week told the organization at its annual meeting in New York. Hoffman, who also is president of the Studebaker corporation, for years has been active in promoting safety.

He told the group that the reduction in the rate of highway fatalities in proportion to the increased use of the roads has meant the saving of 48,000 lives, of 1,700,000 injuries, and of $1,700,000,000 in cash in the years 1935 and 1940.

Rate of deaths on roads and streets, which was 17.4 for each 100,000,000 vehicle miles in 1935, will be under 12 this year, Hoffman predicted.

Warns Auto Executives.

Hoffman, however, warned the executives of the automobile and allied industries—who in five years have spent $2,000,000 for highway safety—and representatives of the 15 national organizations to coöperate with the foundation in this work, that there was no cause to feel smug or complacent over the record.

He predicted that total fatalities would increase this year over last year, altho this will be offset by the fact that in 1940 vehicle miles in the United States are expected to reach the unprecedented total of 300,000,000,000.

Technique Needs Application.

Holding out the possibility of reducing the rate of fatalities from 12 to 6 per 100,000,000 vehicle miles, Hoffman said: "It is only a question of applying the techniques which are now well known. Thanks to the great work of research which has been done by some of these organizations, there is no longer the slightest mystery in accident reduction. We have the 'know how'. It is only a question of applying it."

Public support of public officials who strive to reduce the accident toll was another factor in the safety gains made, Hoffman said. He added that credit also must go to agencies which are "engineering inherent safety into roads."

Hoffman pointed out that from 1920 to 1929 there had been 22,000 fatalities at grade crossings in the United States, altho the average of motor vehicle registrations in the same period was 18,000,000. In the years 1930 to 1939, however, Hoffman said, fatalities totaled only 18,000, while registrations averaged 28,000,000.

Considerable credit for this progress in safety belonged to the bureau of public roads, Hoffman said.

VOICE OF TRAFFIC

FROM A SAFETY LANE WORKER.

Chicago, Sept. 25.—This is from an operator at a safety lane who would like to give motorists a few tips on how to avoid unnecessary return trips.

Some motorists take the attitude that we reject them for some minor violation because we like to see them come back. But every motorist who has to come back means extra work for us. And when a crew of six has to put thru 300 cars in five hours, we don't want extra work.

Before coming to the lane, motorists should see that all of their lights are in order and that the horn, handbrake, and windshield wiper are functioning. If they will do this, it will help them and help us.

Also, have your state license card with you, and if your vehicle tag is defaced have your receipt to show us.

WILLIAM HERM.

FOSTER AVENUE PARKING.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—The south side of Foster avenue, between Clark street and Sheridan road, is posted by the police department prohibiting parking from 7 to 9 a. m., while the north side of the street is posted prohibiting parking from 4 until 6:30 p. m. Either the police department should enforce these laws or remove the signs, for they apparently frighten no one. It always has been my contention that the police department, by their laxity in matters such as this particular case, succeeds in breeding only contempt for the law. It should not be necessary to point out that the largest number of motorists can be benefited by depriving only a few of their unlawful parking privileges. Now—how about some action.

ALLAN BURKHART.

Carbon Monoxide Gas Hazard Calls for Warning Note

The arrival of the first chilly days brings danger of carbon monoxide poisoning from deadly exhaust fumes to all motorists and occupants of cars, Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, warned yesterday.

"The hazard of this gas is particularly bad since the gas is odorless, colorless, and tasteless," he warned, "and an amount sufficient to be dangerous can be accumulated within a few moments under the right conditions. Even when the poison doesn't prove fatal it has been found to cause accidents as a result of the lowered vitality and sluggishness it produces."

Five precautions to prevent the carbon monoxide hazard are:

1. Never run the engine in the garage with the doors closed. Even when doors are open, run the motor sparingly.
2. Never have all the windows in the car completely closed. It is even better to be a little cold than to have an occupant asphyxiated. This is particularly important when children are in the car.
3. Never idle the motor for long when the car is standing still.
4. Never begin the winter without a complete inspection of the exhaust system and the "seal" between the body of the car and the engine section to discover leaks.
5. Always warn all members of the family of the danger of carbon monoxide.

"If persons are found to be suffering from some degree of poisoning from the gas the first thing to do is to get him to fresh air," Hayes said. "Begin applying artificial respiration, and send for a doctor immediately."

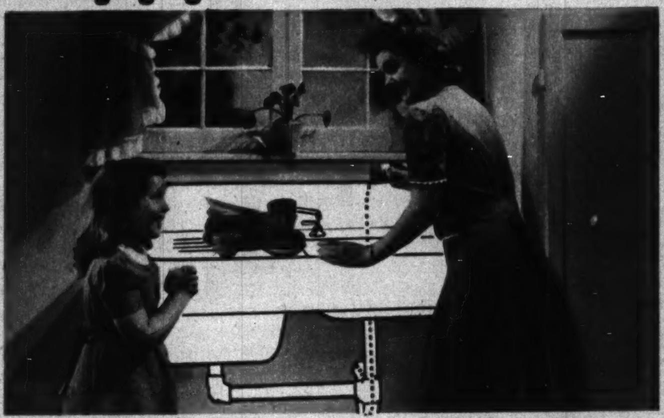
Stop doing this!

Keep pipes clear with Drāno



QUICK, EASY, SANITARY. Just pour Drāno down the pipes. Drāno's exclusive formula causes a churning, chemical boiling action down where pipes are stopped up. In a jiffy, it loosens, clears away grease, dirt, and grounds that cause kitchen-pipe stoppage, hair that stops up bathroom pipes. A teaspoonful after dinner dishes guards against stopped-up pipes. Drāno won't harm pipes—no objectionable fumes. Never over 25¢ at grocery, drug, hardware stores.

GLORIA JEAN sings

"When my sugar takes me to tea
It's ROYAL PUDDING for him and me!"

CHORUS: If your youngsters sweet things wish, thrill them with a luscious dish...of Royal Pudding!

Hard to make? Only a few spoon-stirs harder than boiling water! Actually—Royal Pudding is just a no-trouble-at-all dessert. You simply add milk, bring to a boil...and it's done!

(Note to strict budget-watchers): You can make a whole pint of Royal Pudding for about a nickel more than the cost of the milk you use!

For variety, there are three glorious flavors—Chocolate, Vanilla, and Butterscotch. And for your peace-of-mind—they are all grand for children. These famous Royal Puddings contain Arrowroot—the starch so widely favored for child nutrition.

So treat your family to a big, mouth-watering mountain of luscious, creamy-smooth Royal Pudding tonight—(the bigger the portions the louder the praise for you!) And therefore . . . better tell your grocer you want two or three packages when you say "Royal" Pudding!

● $50 prizes were awarded to all of the modes shown here with the exception of the wedding dress; the judges originally designated this for a prize but canceled the selection when second prize of $2,000 was awarded to the designer for another mode. The six fashions at left were particularly admired by the judges.

Right: By Julie Kolb of 1127 North Dearborn street: Town costume of mustard and black wool; simulating a jacket and a skirt, the dress is topped with the mustard, whose only trim is an appliqued scroll of black wool.

By Robert Finney of El Paso, Tex.: Coat dress of ebony black wool and Persian lamb; a tiny Persian lamb collar ties into a bow at the neck; inserts of russet wool on bodice pretend to be pockets.

Left: By Ruth Lang of Ridgefield Park, N. J.: Patriotic red, white, and blue taffeta evening gown; stripes of white and silver stars crisscross the snug fitting bodice; blue naval cape lined in red.

New Halo Shampoo Instantly Removes Dulling Film!

HERE'S an offer to prove that Halo Shampoo can give you beautiful hair, bright and sparkling with natural highlights!

One shampoo with Halo can be a thrilling revelation! Because now in Halo Shampoo, science has discovered a way to make rich, creamy shampoo lather, without the use of soap. It's soap that forms cloudy film on hair to make it look dull and dead, unmanageable and stringy.

Your first shampoo with Halo demonstrates our claims. How radiant and full of lustre Halo leaves your hair—alive with dancing highlights! How silky-soft and manageable, eliminating any need for lemon or vinegar rinse! How clean and fragrant your scalp, when Halo safely removes loose, flaky dandruff!

Halo is an ideal shampoo for dry, oily or normal hair, even in hardest water. So buy Halo Shampoo and try it today, without fail. It has been tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau.

For a generous bottle of Halo, send this paragraph with your name, address and 10c to Halo, Dept. N-915, Jersey City, N. J. This offer expires November 20, 1940.

ZOO STUDY.

PREPARE YOUR BOY for life's hard knocks. Help his body build a strong frame. Give him SCOTT'S EMULSION. Many doctors claim nothing takes the place of cod liver oil in helping children build strong bones and good teeth . . . And now there is a BETTER WAY TO GIVE COD LIVER OIL—SCOTT'S EMULSION!

1—Scott's Emulsion has all the values of cod liver oil and is four times more easily digested.

2—Easily Digested—The exclusive method of emulsifying the oil permits digestion to start in the stomach, whereas digestion of plain cod liver oil does not begin until the oil passes to intestines.

3—Tonic-Food Supplement—Beneficial to grown-ups as well as children, especially helpful to those recuperating from illness.

4—Easy to take and retain by children and adults. Scott's Emulsion has a pleasant taste. Supplies normal daily requirements of important Vitamins A and D.

The BIG car that stands alone in ECONOMY

• For 1941, a Magnificent New Mercury 8 rides the highways. It is a big car—even for its big-car field—with new length and width and height. There's a new liveliness in its gait, a new zip to the power of its unusually efficient engine (the only V-8 in the Mercury's price field!).

Never — until the introduction of the big Mercury 8 — has there been a car that combined all the luxuries of size, power and brilliant performance with the gratifying advantage of economy. And what a welcome this combination has received! In just two years, more than 150,000 motorists have changed to the Mercury, and made it one of the country's most popular cars! "Up to 20 miles per gallon of gas!" "Makes driving fun again," say enthusiastic letters.

Test the Mercury's new ideas yourself. Any Mercury, Lincoln or Ford dealer will put a Mercury 8 at your disposal on short notice.

THINGS YOU'LL LIKE ABOUT THE MERCURY

NEW BEAUTY. Long, low streamlining. Bright new colors. New long wheelbase.

BIG, POWERFUL ENGINE. Only V-8 in its field. Brilliant acceleration and performance. Amazing economy.

LUXURIOUS INTERIORS. Harmonizing color schemes. Wide seats, with resilient cushion pads of soft foam rubber.

EASE OF CONTROL. Finger-Tip Gearshift. Velvet-action clutch and easy hydraulic brakes. Newly-designed, perfected ride-stabilizer.

NEW RIDING COMFORT. Long, flexible, easy-action springs and improved shock absorbers that produce a superlative "boulevard ride." Center-poise balance. The car rides like a dream.

It's easy! Just add 25 words or less to following sentence:

"I vote for New 'Anti-Sneeze' Rinso because....

We Want More Women everywhere to try the amazing New "Anti-Sneeze" Rinso. That's why these sensational prizes are offered—to induce you to see how comfortable and pleasant washday can be—now!

Think of It! 551 prizes! $4,000.00 in cash and 33 fine quality washers given away FREE every week for five weeks. Just look at the list of prizes on the right. And it's so simple to enter this exciting contest. It will take only a few minutes of your time! Just finish this sentence, "I vote for New 'Anti-Sneeze' Rinso because . . ." in 25 additional words or less.

Remember—dolled-up, fancy letters or drawings are not wanted. What we want is your simple, honest opinion of the New "Anti-Sneeze" Rinso. If old-type package soaps have ever given you "washday hay-fever"—you may want to write about the new "anti-sneeze" feature of Rinso. By a special process, the New Rinso has been made 98% free of the "soap-dust" that causes sneezing. Or you may want to "vote" for Rinso's richer suds . . . its "no-scrub" washdays . . . its whiter washes . . . its safety to colors . . . its wonderful economy.

There are Five Separate Weekly Contests! $36,550.00 worth of awards—in cash and prizes. A $1,500.00 first prize every week . . . liberal $500.00 and $100.00 prizes . . . AND a glorious $5,000.00 grand prize at the end of the voting. You have an opportunity of winning $6,500.00 or more! Read the simple rules below. Send in your entry today. Remember, the more entries you send in—the more chances you have of winning.

Prizes for Dealers. In each of the five contests, there are dealer prizes, too, for grocers who help their customers in the contest. Think of it . . . for every woman who wins a cash prize, the grocer from whom she bought Rinso may win one, too. Five $200.00 prizes, five $100.00 prizes, twenty-five prizes of $25.00 each, two hundred sixty-five $5.00 prizes and two hundred and fifty prizes of $2.00 each. The grocer whose customer wins the grand prize may get $300.00 extra (a tidy total of $500.00). 551 prizes to grocers in all!

Rinso FOR TUB. WASHER DISHPAN

NEW "ANTI-SNEEZE" RINSO now at your grocer's in same familiar package

TIPS ON HOW TO WIN

First make up your mind what you like best about the New "Anti-Sneeze" Rinso. Then complete the sentence. For example you may like the New Rinso because it's so free of soap-dust. You might write: "I vote for New 'Anti-Sneeze' Rinso because it doesn't make me sneeze, when I shake it into the dishpan, as so many other soaps do."

Or you might write: "I vote for New 'Anti-Sneeze' Rinso because a little of it goes so far. You're right in saying it's like getting free soap every fifth washday; and whiter washes I've never seen."

These are just simple examples. We're sure you can write much better ones. So start now. You may win!

SIMPLE, EASY RULES!

1. Complete in 25 additional words or less this sentence "I vote for New 'Anti-Sneeze' Rinso because..............."

2. Send in as many entries as you wish. Attach to each entry the top of a large Rinso package (or facsimile). Mail to Rinso, Box 91, New York, N. Y. Be sure to use sufficient postage. Give your Grocer's name and address.

3. There will be 5 separate weekly contests, with similar prizes each week, plus a grand prize of $5,000.00 at the end of the last contest.

Contest 1—Open now . . . . . Closes Oct. 26
Contest 2—Opens Oct. 27 . . . Closes Nov. 2
Contest 3—Opens Nov. 3 . . . Closes Nov. 9
Contest 4—Opens Nov. 10 . . . Closes Nov. 16
Contest 5—Opens Nov. 17 . . . Closes Nov. 23

Entries received prior to Oct. 27th will be judged in the first weekly contest. Entries received too late for the first contest will be entered in the second contest, etc. Entries in the 5th and last contest must be postmarked not later than Nov. 23rd and received by midnight Nov. 30th.

4. In each contest the prizes will be awarded for entries considered best, from the standpoint of sincerity, originality of thought and clearness, by an independent organization of experienced contest judges.

5. Decision of judges will be final. In case of ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded. All entries and ideas contained therein become property of Lever Brothers Company. No entries will be returned.

6. Anyone may compete except employees of Lever Brothers Company, their advertising agencies and their families. These contests apply to Continental United States, Hawaii and Puerto Rico, and are subject to Federal, State and Local regulations.

7. Major prize winners will be announced over the "Big Sister" radio program shortly after the close of each contest. All winners will be notified by mail. A complete list of winners will be sent on request to any contestant enclosing stamped, addressed envelope.

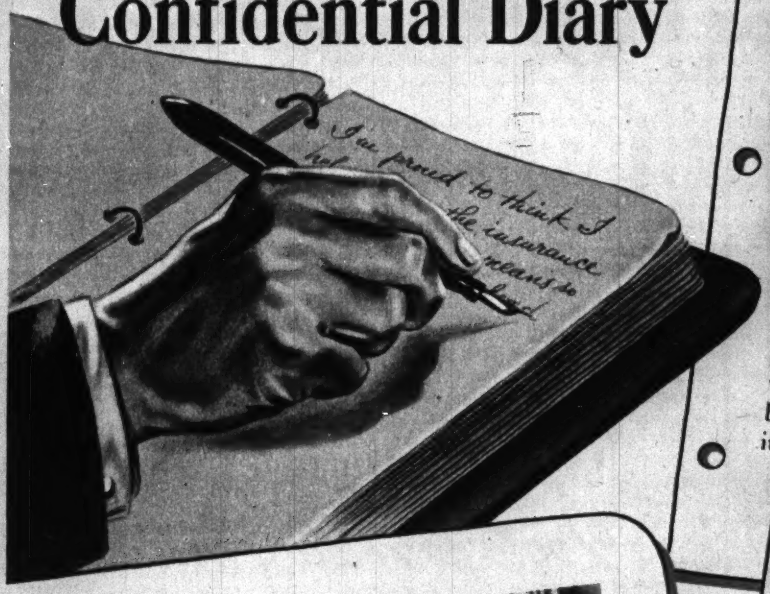
3 Pages from a Prudential Agent's Confidential Diary



July 11, 1906—JOHN AND ANN HENRY WERE MARRIED TODAY...and a finer couple you never saw! John called me in the other day to talk about life insurance protection for his lovely young bride. He was worried because he thought he couldn't afford it, but I was glad to be able to show him how little it takes to own a Prudential policy.

Nov. 5, 1910—THERE'S A BRAND-NEW BABY IN THE HENRY HOME NOW. Naturally John's mighty well pleased, but he knows his son is an added responsibility, too. And so he asked me to help him bring his life insurance program up to date. Together we worked out a new plan that gives Ann the extra protection she needs until their little son is grown up and independent.

Sept. 1, 1940—TODAY I SAW AGAIN HOW MUCH LIFE INSURANCE CAN DO. Because this morning I gave Ann Henry the first check from John's life insurance. Every month there'll be another substantial check for her—a constant reminder of John's love and devotion. I'm proud to think I helped John plan the insurance that now means so much to the wife he loved.

ELLIOTT ROOSEVELT reports for duty as a captain in the air corps ground service.

"Washday almost made a wreck of me!"

—writes Mrs. H. F. Brown, 4051 North Mozart Street, Chicago. Read why Mrs. Brown has been an enthusiastic user of Chicago's modern laundry service for four years . . .

Do YOU change your washing and rinsing water 12 times? The cleaner the water, the cleaner your clothes! That's why Chicago Laundries do not use the same water over and over again. Actually, they completely change water from 10 to 12 times for a single batch of clothes!

High temperatures maintained by the Laundry during washing mean that clothes are pasteurized. And the Laundry can use milder soaps than you do at home because they have scientific methods for softening water to the zero point.

How long has it been since you've sent your clothes to a modern laundry? Wonderful improvements have been made in service during the last few years. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been invested in new equipment. You can select any type of service from damp wash or fluff dry to completely finished work. There is a service to fit your budget and special requirements exactly.

*Enjoy a 10-minute washday—just the time needed to gather up and list your clothes!

"Take my advice—make this test . . . See if your Laundry isn't best!"

"As a bride, I had made up my mind to economize by doing our laundry," Mrs. Brown reports. "I thought it would be fun. What a rude awakening I got. I was a complete wreck after every washday. And worst of all, no matter how hard I worked, my husband's shirts didn't look right. He hated to wear them. I thought I was going to be a failure . . .

"Lucky day it was for me when I sent our first bundle of clothes to the laundry. Everything came back beautifully clean and fresh—so much better than I had been doing them. This wonderful service has been especially welcome since the baby came. Believe me, it's worth the few extra cents a week it costs. Now I can really enjoy my home and my family."

Camera News Review

London by dusk (above) and London by dawn, under attack of German air raiders, as snapped by color camera of Guy Murchie, Chicago Tribune war correspondent.

Attack on London!

GUY MURCHIE, Chicago Tribune war correspondent, who was injured in a German air raid at Dover on Sept. 11, took the two colored photographs reproduced here.

They show London under attack by enemy bombers. The top picture was taken at dusk on Sept. 7. The bottom picture was taken about 6 o'clock the next morning. Both were snapped from the same spot, the observation platform atop the Telegraph building, the seven-story structure in Fleet street that houses the Tribune London office. Both pictures show the dome of St. Paul's cathedral on the left.

In the top picture the red glow of the fire of the burning city is clearly discernible at the base of the towering column of smoke. The red from the fire is less distinct in the lower picture, owing to the fact that day had dawned. The fire was started by German bombs about 4:30 p. m. on Sept. 7 and continued into the next day.

In a letter mailed to The Tribune from London on Sept. 10, the day before he was injured at Dover, Murchie wrote as follows:

"I guess there are few if any other color pictures in existence of such a scene. The tripod shook from bomb explosions at the time. The negatives were developed during a shortage of water and while bombs were falling around. The picture taken at dusk is necessarily somewhat underexposed in the foreground, but the red glow of the fire at the base of the smoke should show fairly well at this stage and seems to be exposed enough. I couldn't give longer exposure without blurring the form of the fast-rising smoke column.

New Dealers Do All Right for Themselves

Pay Checks Are Generous, and Few Stray from Federal Fold

By WILLIAM SHINNICK

THERE are two related and outstanding facts about the wool-dyed New Dealers who have been President Roosevelt's principal advisers and co-workers from 1933 to 1940.

One is that very few of them have gotten out of touch with the government pay rolls.

The other is that, almost without exception, they have done well for themselves in a worldly way. Their jobs are limned in the aura of gentility and importance and the pay checks are generous. They are living the abundant life that was promised to the ten million unemployed when the President began piling up the annual deficits.

Rexford Guy Tugwell is out. But he isn't down.

Tugwell, in the early Brain Trust days, was set into the department of agriculture as an expert on rural economics. There he found ways to spend a great deal of money in rural resettlement projects. In 1937 he quit to become an executive in the molasses business. Now he has a nice $15,000 job as chairman of New York's planning commission—an appointment made by Mayor Fiorello La Guardia

Raymond Moley is also missing from the councils. He was the original brain truster who wrote the President's speeches. So far is Moley out that he is making speeches opposing the second reëlection of Mr. Roosevelt. Out of his Washington experiences he has written a book, "After Seven Years," that portrays the President as a supreme egotist and his privy councillors as a tightly knit little group working with determination to remake the American economy on revolutionary lines. The book is selling well. Moley also writes magazine articles.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, who cracked down on American industry as head man of the illegal NRA, has been out for some years. Before going he accused some of his assistants, including Donald Richberg, of disloyalty to him. The general, almost alone among the New Dealers in having some business experience before he started to remake the country on a more totalitarian model, is now a prosperous columnist and a bitter critic of the administration.

Richberg was general counsel for the NRA and personally argued its validity before the Supreme court, which unanimously pronounced it unconstitutional. After that he quit. He is practicing law in Washington and has a large clientele among corporations against which he formerly fought—among them oil companies whose properties were seized by the Cardenas régime in Mexico.

All the other topnotch New Dealers went into 1940 as office holders. Frank Murphy, Felix Frankfurter, William O. Douglas, and Hugo L. Black are in the Supreme court. Henry A. Wallace is the nominee for Vice President. Harold L. Ickes still is secretary of the interior and Henry Morgenthau Jr. is secretary of the treasury. Adolph A. Berle is undersecretary of state. Jerome Frank is chairman and Leon Henderson a member of the Securities Exchange commission. Robert H. Jackson is attorney general.

There has been no apparent diminution in the confidence of the President in three others who have been even closer to him, if Washington commentators are correct in their estimates, than any of these. They are Harry Hopkins, Thomas G. Corcoran, and Benjamin V. Cohen—all extreme left wingers.

Hopkins, who bossed the spending of the WPA billions and was the Roosevelt manager in the prenomination campaign, only resigned his latest post as secretary of commerce in September on a plea of ill health. He is said still to be a welcome visitor to the White House and possibly the closest personal friend of the President.

Corcoran and Cohen, who have been the Presidential speech writers since Moley went into eclipse, have lost no ground in Washington. Corcoran, generally regarded as the No. 1 New Dealer and the cohesive force that keeps them working together, resigned his $10,000 job as special counsel for the Reconstruction Finance corporation shortly after Hopkins retired. He explained that he was doing so that he might aid in the Roosevelt multiple term campaign without being hampered by the Hatch act, which prohibits political activity by office holders. Cohen is a special assistant attorney general dealing mainly with utility holding company matters.

Normally it may be expected that Mr. Roosevelt, if elected this fall, will keep these ardent New Dealers in places as important as they now hold.

What sort of men are they, aside from being prosperous, ambitious and busy men? What are their basic policies and ideas? There is no evidence they have changed in the years since 1933.

In one respect the backgrounds of the New Dealers were all strikingly similar: their knowledge of economics was academic; they didn't gain it by training in the successful management of private business. They are also, in general, committed to the theory that the way to make the American people happy is to keep spending more—far more—than the government's income.

President Roosevelt himself was the son of a comfortably wealthy New York landed gentleman. He attended Harvard and the Columbia university law school and later practiced law in a small way. In 1928 he was associated with the Consolidated Automatic Merchandising corporation (Camco) as a director. This was a holding company formed to take over the interests of five concerns making and distributing automatic vending machines. The prospectus for Camco stock promised a return of 3,000 per cent and the elimination of much clerk hire for customers. The company lost money and Mr. Roosevelt retired from the directorate when he became governor of New York.

Since that he has never been very friendly to the world of business. Many of his speeches referred to industrialists as "economic royalists," "financial Bourbons," "princes of privilege," "forces of intrenched greed," and other similar phrases. He has never retracted any of them.

Since he became President business has been kind to him. John T. Flynn, a magazine writer who describes himself as a sincere liberal, has written a book, "Country Squire in the White House," in which he estimates that Mr. Roosevelt and his immediate family have had a total income of $2,500,000 since 1932!

Henry A. Wallace, as candidate for Vice President, now rates as the No. 2 New Dealer. He inherited a successful farm publication, Wallace's Farmer, which he edited for a time. This business was sold at a sheriff's sale in 1935 to satisfy a $2,225,000 mortgage.

Wallace had other business interests, including the Hi-Bred Seed Corn company. This concern produced hybrid corns that increased the number of bushels to the acre. The acreage limitation program of the department of agriculture, which Wallace headed until recently, made farmers want more corn per acre, and Hi-Bred's earnings rose. Recent reports indicated that Wallace had only a small interest in the firm and his wife a considerable one.

(International photo.)
Thomas G. Corcoran and his bride, who was his secretary, Peggy Dowd.

The public has not forgotten that Wallace's program required the slaughtering of millions of little pigs at a time when millions of human beings in America were hungry, nor that present policies of the Roosevelt administration deprived farmers of foreign markets. And, just to keep the record clear, Roosevelt and Wallace have spent about six billion dollars of taxpayers' money on those policies which they defend.

Secretary Morgenthau is the son of a wealthy capitalist who established a $500,000 trust fund for him. Before taking over his present position on Jan. 1, 1934, he was farming his 1,000 acre estate in New York, near the Roosevelt holdings at Hyde Park. He had had probably less financial experience than any previous secretary of the treasury.

One of the most interesting and costly money reforms attempted by Mr. Roosevelt took place about the time Morgenthau was installed in office. George F. Warren, a professor of rural economics at Columbia and the inventor of an electrically operated chicken coop to make hens lay more, sold the President the idea that all he had to do to raise the general price level was to increase the price of gold. It was magnificently simple.

In January, 1934, the President cut the dollar to 59 per cent of its previous gold value. This radical and hasty jump by Mr. Roosevelt to an untried theory caused some able treasury aids to get out; they knew the absurdity of the theory. Prices didn't react and hope for the system was abandoned a few months later. But gold was valued at $35 an ounce and the government kept on buying at that rate. Result, a virtual United States monopoly of the metal, and all of it buried beyond use at Fort Knox, Ky.

The core of the New Deal was Felix Frankfurter, a professor of law at Harvard university. He had never been in the practice of law, but had experience as an assistant United States attorney and as a war department official. He followed Mr. Roosevelt, whom he had advised as governor of New York, to Washington. He became an employing agency for the government.

He recommended some of the "bright young men" who had been in his classes for important appointive jobs. It has been estimated that he placed as many as 150—a governmental legion that has even more power than its numbers would indicate. They have furnished the bulk of the "liberal" ideas that have been pursued thru a continuing depression by the administration.

The agile Corcoran, who first charmed the President by playing the accordion for him, was a Frankfurter product. His chief is now Mr. Justice Frankfurter, and Corcoran stands on his own, probably as the next most imposing figure, to the President, in the capital.

Corcoran is only 40. After being graduated at Harvard in 1925 he became secretary to Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes. He then went to a Wall street firm and engaged in speculations said to have netted him stocks worth $250,000. Cohen also is reputed to have made a sizable fortune once in automobile stocks, but to have lost most of it in the crash.

Corcoran is a great deal more than a ghost writer. He was, and may still be, the President's chief lobbyist for "must" legislation. He is an advocate of government ownership of utilities. He and Hopkins urged and managed, quite unsuccessfully, the purge of Democrats who were called disloyal to the administration in 1938. All but one of the purgees, legislators who kept their independence, were renominated by their constituencies.

In view of his potentially greater influence in a third term, Corcoran should have close attention from the voters. An incident may cast light on his character and ideas.

Representative Ralph O. Brewster (Rep., Me.) once charged in the house that Corcoran told him that unless he voted for the "death sentence" bill for utility companies he (Corcoran) would find it necessary to stop construction on the Passamaquoddy dam in Brewster's district.

Secretary Ickes, whose unrestrained vituperation in radio speeches has made him known as the "hatchet man" of the administration, was once a lawyer in Chicago. He inherited a considerable fortune from his first wife. He was a dabbler in politics since the Bull Moose days, but never had a job of importance until the President astonished everybody by giving him the one he holds now.

Ickes, it may be said, gets along well with Corcoran and with Attorney General Jackson. Altho he has two imposing homes, one in Winnetka and one near Washington, he inveighs bitterly about "America's 60 ruling families." Jackson, who won his reputation as a trust buster, is so strong with the New Dealers that he was talked of as a successor to the President until the head man announced he wanted to keep his chair.

It has not been so long since Assistant Secretary of State Berle advocated, before the temporary national economy committee, a federal capital financing scheme that would go far beyond anything yet attempted in America along that line. Bluntly, Berle told the committee the present private financing systems do not work.

"The government will have to enter into direct financing of activities now supposed to be private," he said; "and a continuance of that direct financing must mean inevitably that the government ultimately will control and own those activities. Over a period of years the government gradually will come to own most of the productive plants of the United States."

Berle, remember, is one of the inner New Dealer group, whose ideas jell in the same mould and have a habit of being transformed, in time, by the President's "musts," into actual living conditions. Less and less of private enterprise; more and more of governmental ownership; that is the program.

Jerome Frank and Leon Henderson, a lawyer and a professor who found their public careers launched in the early days of AAA and WPA, to which they were respectively advisers, are now in really important posts. Frank is chairman and Henderson a member of the Securities Exchange commission, where they exercise great power over corporation financing.

Last May it was disclosed that Frank had outlined a plan under which every citizen in wartime would be forced to make loans on a percentage of total income. He said that he made the suggestion only in "academic discussion." A similar plan was once rejected by the British government on the ground that it would kill the voluntary lending spirit of the people.

• • •

In August Henderson and some New Deal associates made public a survey of several thousand Massachusetts insurance policyholders, finding that the insurance companies had overloaded many of them—i. e., these folk were carrying too much insurance. This was used as the basis for a New Deal demand that insurance be closely regulated by the government (a contradiction to the Democratic national platform, which recommends state insurance regulation).

In September the arbitrary methods of the SEC were sharply criticized by Federal Judge Vincent L. Leibell in New York. The commission, he said, was unreasonable and placed "shackles on the business judgment" of trustees of the Associated Gas and Electric corporation.

Of all the big New Dealers, only the old brain trusters, Moley and Johnson, have turned to the right. They think, and have said publicly, that the reelection of Roosevelt would be a tragedy for America. They see the New Deal now from the outside.

Gems of American Eloquence

● American eloquence has played an important part in the history of our country. From a long list of famous speeches The Tribune is selecting gems of American eloquence which are being presented in this, the Graphic Section, every Sunday. The content of these speeches is important both historically and politically. Persons learning to speak in public will find in them helpful lessons. Speakers and writers can learn a great deal from studying their style. This is the seventy-second of the series.

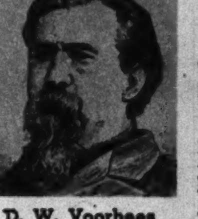
DANIEL WOLSEY VOORHEES, lawyer and statesman, was one of the able orators of his time. He was born in Butler county, Ohio, Sept. 26, 1827, and when he still was a small child he was taken by his parents to Indiana, where he grew up on a farm in Fountain county. In 1849 he was graduated from Indiana Asbury, now DePauw university, and he studied law in Crawfordsville, Ind. Removing to Terre Haute of that state in 1857, he served as United States district attorney for Indiana from 1858 to 1861. At the request of Gov. Ashbel P. Willard of Indiana he went to Charlestown, Va., to defend John E. Cook, brother-in-law of the governor and an associate of John Brown in the Harper's Ferry raid. His remarkable speech to the jury on this occasion on Nov. 8, 1859, was published thruout the country and translated into several foreign languages. He acquired thereby a national reputation as a lawyer and orator. In allusion to his stature, he sometimes was called "the Tall Sycamore of the Wabash." Serving first in the national house of representatives, in 1877 he was sent to the United States senate, where he served continuously until 1891. He died in Washington, D. C., April 10, 1897. Excerpts from his speech in defense of Cook follow:



D. W. Voorhees

"Poor, deluded boy! Wayward, misled child! An evil star presided over thy natal hour and smote it with gloom. The hour in which thy mother bore thee and blessed thee as her blue-eyed babe upon her knee is to her now one of bitterness as she stands near the bank of the chill river of death and looks back on a name hitherto as unspotted and as pure as the unstained snow. May God stand by and sustain her and preserve the mothers of Virginia from the waves of sorrow that now roll over her!

"In an evil hour—and may it be forever accursed!—John E. Cook met John Brown on the prostituted plains of Kansas. On that field of fanaticism three years ago this fair and gentle youth was thrown into contact with the pirate and robber of civil warfare.

"To others whose sympathies he enlisted I will leave the task of transmitting John Brown as a martyr and hero to posterity. In my eyes he stands the chief of criminals, the thief of property stolen—horses and slaves—from the citizens of Missouri, a falsifier here in this court, as I shall yet show, and a murderer not only of your citizens but of the young men who have already lost their lives in his bloody foray on your border. This is not pleasant to say, but it is the truth, and as such ought to be said and shall be said. You have seen John Brown, the leader.

"Now look on John Cook, the follower. He is in evidence before you. Never did I plead for a face that I was more willing to show. If evil is there I have not seen it. If murder is there I am to learn to mark the lines of the murderer anew. If the assassin is in that young face, then commend me to the look of an assassin. No, gentlemen, it is a face for a mother to love and a sister to idolize, and in which the natural goodness of his heart pleads trumpet-tongued against the deep damnation that estranged him from home and its principles. . . .

"Gentlemen, you have this case. I surrender into your hands the issues of life and death. As long as you live a more important case than this you will never be called to try. Consider it, therefore, well in all its bearings. I have tried to show you those facts which go to palliate the conduct of the prisoner. Shall I go home and say that in justice you remembered not mercy to him? Leave the door of clemency open; do not shut it by wholesale conviction. Remember that life is an awful and a sacred thing; remember that death is terrible—terrible at any time and in any form. . . .

"God spare this boy, and those who love him . . ."

Cook, like John Brown and five others, was put to death for the crime of the Harper's Ferry raid, yet Voorhees' address to the jury was a stirring plea for the young man's life—a plea that under almost any other circumstances would have melted the hearts of the jurors and saved the defendant from death. Voorhees, as the foregoing lines reveal, was possessed of great eloquence, an impetuous and emotional orator.

Reprints of the first 50 "Gems of Eloquence" may be obtained at Tribune Public Service Offices, Tribune Tower or 1 South Dearborn Street, Chicago. Price, 25 cents for each portfolio of 25 (30 cents by mail).

Miss Fitzgerald, too, has been on the brothers' pay roll before and is back after having become the mother of one Michael Lindsay-Hogg, a fine looking fellow of some five months.

Mitchell is rather glad of the chance to be sober on the screen for a change. In "Trial and Error" he'll be a gray-haired professor with a bad heart who takes the rap for a murder because he knows he won't live long anyway. Then he finds out his heart is in dandy shape, so he has to find the real murderer to get out of a jam.

Before this comparatively dignified portrayal appears, however, movie customers—who remember him as Gerald O'Hara and as the alcoholic doctor in "Stagecoach"—will catch him as two more stews. He's a sodden playwright in Ben Hecht's "Angels Over Broadway," and a roistering, fighting sailor man in Walter Wanger's Eugene O'Neill drama, "The Long Voyage Home."

Mitchell is known as a director's actor because of a sure technique born of a love of acting and an inherited and acquired knowledge of writing. His father's uncle was Dion Boucicault and his father was a Dublin newspaper man. Tommy, not knowing whether to become a writer or an actor, became both. When he was 17 he wrote a vaudeville sketch and acted in it. Next he became a reporter on the Newark News, later switched to the Newark Star. He tinkered with drama writing, then fell to acting again with Ben Greet's Shakespeare company and made his Broadway debut in "The Tempest."

There followed two more years of Shakespeare with Charles Coburn. He really got going when he wrote, staged, and played in "Little Accident" and "Cloudy with Showers." He was much in demand as a play doctor and found time to be featured or starred in "Kiki," "Clear All Wires" (a new film version which Clark Gable is now making), "The Wisdom Tooth," and "Riddle Me This."

GERALDINE FITZGERALD (Hurrell photo.)

Hollywood got Mitchell 10 years ago when Universal tagged him to do the script of his own "Little Accident," and Hollywood has been getting him off and on ever since—mostly as an actor in recent years. He was in "The Hurricane" for Samuel Goldwyn, and despite the hit he made might well have joined the ranks of the forgotten if John Ford hadn't cast him as Doc Boone in "Stagecoach." This job came after 18 months of idleness, won him a 1939 Academy Oscar, and made him one of the busiest character players in Hollywood. Which is O.K. by Thomas, who has a weakness for costly Rembrandts and Picassos.

Offstage he is convivial, witty, enthusiastic, but not quite the tosspot screen fans might think him. Onstage he is almost painfully quiet and usually takes a nap between setups. He is 45, has a grown daughter.

• • •

Offstage Geraldine Fitzgerald, an auburn-haired, green-eyed Dubliner who was born the year the old war was declared, is the wife of the Hon. Edward Lindsay-Hogg, comparatively wealthy Irish horseman who is president of the Irish Red Cross. Lindsay-Hogg, a quiet chap who speaks with a drawl and will run a mile to avoid a cameraman unless it's for a Red Cross publicity picture, accompanies his wife and son to Hollywood and never uses the "honorable."

They live in a rented furnished house in Beverly Hills. Rented and furnished, first, because they own one place in Ireland, and, second, because Miss Fitzgerald's contract says she doesn't have to be in Hollywood more than six months at a time. She can use the other six months in a Broadway play, if she can find the play or the play finds her, and if it runs that long. She hopes something will turn up by next March.

It was springtime, 1938, that Geraldine first turned up on Broadway—in Orson Welles' production of Shaw's "Heartbreak House." Her friendship for Welles has remained steadfast since then except for an occasional lapse when Orson tries a practical joke. The last Welles gag was on Nov. 24, 1939, which was Miss Fitzgerald's birthday. As is the custom of actors' agents, her agent sent her a large and costly bouquet. Welles brought her some home-grown flowers that a gardener had thrown away the day before and switched his and the agent's cards. Miss Fitzgerald's neighbor and close friend is the ex-Mrs. Orson Welles, now Mrs. Charles Lederer.

Geraldine's father is a Dublin lawyer, and her aunt is Sheilah Richards, noted Abbey theater actress. Miss Fitzgerald never thought about acting during her girlhood, and, feeling that she was about to become an artist, entered the Dublin Art school when she was 15. When she finished the course she asked the director where she should go now—confidently expecting that he'd recommend Paris or Rome. But he said, "Go out and get married"—and that is how she became an actress.

The same sort of thing happened to another artist of sorts and reporter of sorts, John Barrymore. John's journalistic career ended abruptly when the late Arthur Brisbane called him in and asked gently but pointedly:

"I understand there are some actors in your family. Did you ever try acting?"

Miss Fitzgerald might have asked her aunt to help her at the Abbey theater, but she didn't. She went to the Gate theater, got occasional bits, graduated to romantic leads and character parts. British film studios noticed her, engaged her for "The Turn of the Tide" and "Mill on the Floss."

In 1938 she accepted Welles' bid to appear in New York in "Heartbreak House"—and when she appeared the movie offers began pouring in. It was the Warner offer, with its six months off each year, which she took. Her Hollywood debut was in "Dark Victory."

Geraldine confesses being very superstitious, and thinks all women are. From Ireland she brought one superstition about seeing a magpie. If you see a magpie it's unlucky unless you recite a long rigmarole. Two's all right. Well, there are so many blackbirds in Beverly Hills that Miss Fitzgerald finally had to quit saying her piece to save her voice and keep from going dotty. Until recently she had the firm belief that if she ever went up in a plane she'd be killed—on her first flight. Not long ago Olivia De Havilland, a flying enthusiast, caught Geraldine off guard and made her promise to take a hop the next day in a rented ship.

Next day Miss Fitzgerald tremblingly and sadly bade her husband and son good-by and went with Miss De Havilland to an airport. There she confessed to a ship operator that she'd always had a premonition about being killed.

"The fellow turned pale," she relates, "and said, 'You're not going in one of my planes,' and walked away. But it wasn't his plane that Livvy had rented, so I had to go up anyway. Just for five minutes. It was awful, but of course nothing happened, and now I can fly all I want to. You see, my premonition was only about the first flight."

Son Michael is being attended by one Mary Gillin, who brought up Miss Fitzgerald in the war years. She used to take the small Geraldine for walks on St. Steven's green in Dublin, where, on a day they stayed home, the Irish and the British had a battle. Later in the war the Fitzgerald family moved to London, where Zeppelin raids and antiaircraft fire made vivid impressions on the still very small Geraldine. She is frightened now of thunder, but not lightning; thunder sounds like guns.

Miss Fitzgerald, a willowy lass, sadly and perhaps foolishly insists that she has a tendency to get fat, so she must diet. The way she diets is to have things she doesn't like, so she won't eat so much. She likes highballs and beer, but can't have 'em—at least during the movie half of her year. She plays the piano, sings Irish folk songs, still paints as a hobby, and collects antique ship models, most of which are in Dublin. One of her prizes is a model of one of the first steamships, with cotton smoke emerging from its stack. She likes it because most people never think of collecting anything but sailing vessels.

She doesn't care for horseback, lap dogs, or oysters, and she wants to learn how to skate. When she came to Hollywood she got talked about because she hired a woman chauffeur. But it wasn't to be odd. She was hit by a car once years ago, has been afraid of automobiles since, doesn't drive—and thinks women are more careful than men. She can be permitted this last mildly insane quirk—but for this reporter's money the fastest, dizziest, most erratic, and most ruthless of all motorists is a California female in her late teens or even in the early twenties.

THOMAS MITCHELL

VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: I wish to praise Nadia Hutchins, who recently remembered Douglas Montgomery as the one who did the splendid acting in "Waterloo Bridge." Ever since I saw "The Cat and the Canary" I have enjoyed him. Was his name in that picture Charlie Wilder? Please print a picture of him and a little about him. Sincerely, BETTY HOLDER.

DOUGLAS MONTGOMERY

Editor's note: Douglas Montgomery played the rôle of Charlie Wilder in "The Cat and the Canary." His real name is Robert Douglas Montgomery, and he was born in Los Angeles, Oct. 29, 1908. He's 5 feet 11½ inches tall and weighs 176 pounds. Appeared on the stage before entering motion pictures. Glad to oblige with a picture of Mr. Montgomery.

Dear Miss Tinée: Will you kindly tell me who played the leading rôles in "Return of the Scarlet Pimpernel"? Wasn't it an English cast? Thank you for your trouble. Sincerely yours,

JANE FEEHERY.

Editor's note: The leading players in the above-mentioned film were Barry Barnes, Sophie Stewart, Margaretta Scott, and Francis Lister. The film was produced in England and had an English cast.

Dear Miss Tinée: Robert Taylor has recently expressed a very deep desire to know why screen stars fail. He want to know because he feels he is slipping. My answer that I wrote to him follows:

"Dear Mr. Taylor: Following are some of my thoughts about this perplexing problem. One reason certain stars slip is because they don't know how to get along with reporters. They lack a comradely sense. They haven't sense enough to acknowledge it when they don't know certain answers.

"I hope you clearly understand that it isn't the best or the handsomest fellows who are the favorites with the girls, but those who devote themselves chiefly to winning their favor. The actors who want to get to the top of the motion picture industry are the men who are always studying people—what interests them, what makes them hiss, what makes them laugh, what makes them cry.

"Don't complain about the fickleness of the public. On the whole a degree of fickleness on the part of the public is a good thing—a good thing for the old established purveyor and for the aggressive newcomer. It keeps both alert, on their toes, and giving of their best

"Hard work and struggle, suffering and failure, are part of the game. Without them there would be no progress, no achievement, no significance to living."

If the readers of this letter want to tell me if they think I'm right or wrong they should write me at 3118 North Cicero avenue, Chicago.

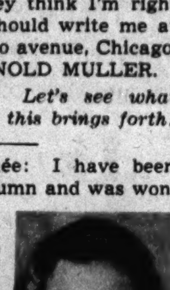
LEON ARNOLD MULLER.

Editor's note: Let's see what kind of response this brings forth!

Dear Mae Tinée: I have been reading your column and was wondering if you would print a little picture of Gloria Jean and give me a little information about her. I saw "The Under-Pup" and "If I Had My Way" and think they were wonderful.

Thank you very much.

BETTY KALMAN.



GLORIA JEAN

Editor's note: Here's a picture of Gloria Jean and also a bit about her. Her real name is Gloria Jean Schoonover. She was born in Buffalo, N. Y., April 14, 1928. She's 4 feet 11 inches tall, weighs 85 pounds, and has blue eyes and brown hair.

Dear Miss Tinée: Would you please give me the cast of characters in the movie "Saturday's Children"? LARRAINE S.

Editor's note. The cast of "Saturday's Children" is as follows:

Rims Rosson	John Garfield
Bobby Halevy	Anne Shirley
Mr. Halevy	Claude Rains
Willie Sands	Roscoe Karns
Florrie Sands	Lee Patrick
Gertrude Mills	Dennie Moore
Herbie Smith	George Tobias
Mrs. Halevy	Elizabeth Risdon
Mr. Norman	Berton Churchill

Dear Miss Tinée: Will you please tell me the name of the book on which the motion picture "Strange Cargo" was based? Thanks to Ian Hunter for a wonderful performance in the rôle of Cambreau in the same picture. It is a long time since I have seen a picture that thrilled me as much as "Strange Cargo." All of my friends are of the same opinion as I. May I add my sincerest best wishes for you and your excellent column! Sincerely,

LOLITA BONNEVIER.

Editor's note: "Not Too Narrow, Not Too Deep," by Richard Sale, is the title of the book on which the film "Strange Cargo" was based. Thanks so much for your good wishes.

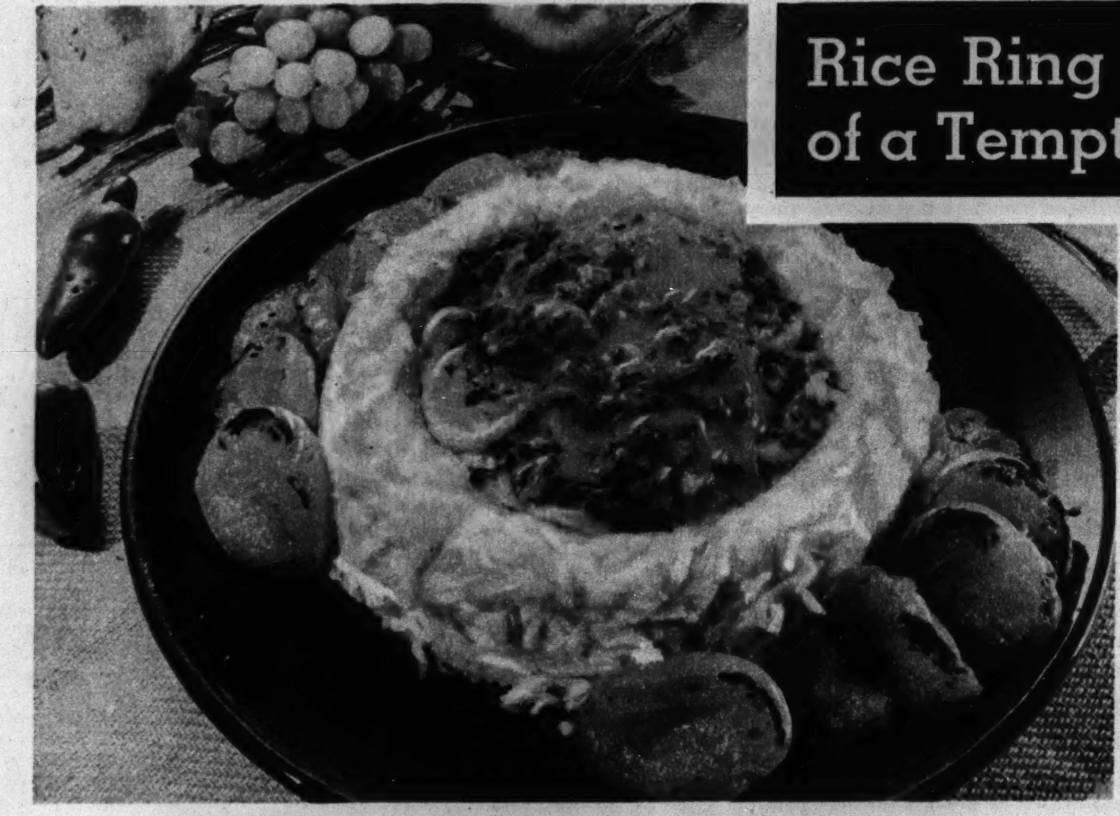
Rice Ring Is Nucleus of a Tempting Dinner



Our dinner's main dish is rice ring with creamed dried beef and eggs.

A Vegetable Salad Is Included

By MARY MEADE

TRY TO IMAGINE hot rolls and coffee in the menu represented by these three pictures and you'll have a portrait of a tempting looking and tempting tasting dinner.

The pièce de résistance is a rice ring filled with creamed dried beef and egg, surrounded by grilled apricots. The salad is a crisp raw vegetable composition, accompanied by a small bowl of mayonnaise. The dessert is a pineapple and orange frappé with crisp cookies to go with it.

To make the rice ring, wash 1½ cups of raw rice and drop it slowly into 2½ quarts of boiling water with 4 teaspoons of salt. Cook gently without stirring for 15 to 25 minutes, or until a grain of rice feels completely soft when pressed between forefinger and thumb. Drain rice by emptying it into a sieve. Rinse with hot water, cover with a cloth, and place over hot water so that the rice grains separate. Pack into a well buttered ring mold and keep hot until creamed mixture is ready for filling. Then turn out onto a hot chop plate, add filling, and garnish.

CREAMED DRIED BEEF AND EGGS
(Serves five)

4 ounces dried beef
1 tablespoon butter
1 can concentrated mushroom soup
½ cup milk
2 hard-cooked eggs, sliced

Pour a cupful of boiling water over the dried beef in a strainer to remove excess salt. Drain well and sauté in butter, stirring constantly. Add soup and milk, mix well, and heat. Add sliced eggs just before serving.

Use canned peaches or apricots for the garnish. Drain them, brush with butter, and sprinkle lightly with brown sugar. Broil until they are hot and golden brown.

The salad pictorially explains itself. It consists of sliced tomatoes, sliced cucumbers and onions, carrot curls, and radish roses, arranged on a foundation of crisp lettuce.

Score the cucumber, before slicing it, by running the prongs of a fork lengthwise of the vegetable. Crisp the slices in icewater. Prepare carrot curls by shaving lengthwise slices of carrot on a vegetable slicer and chilling them into rolls by immersing them in icewater. Icewater also causes the radish "petals" to open.

A small bowl of mayonnaise may be placed among the vegetables to make serving such a salad convenient.

PINEAPPLE FRAPPE
(Serves six)

¾ cup sugar
1 cup water
1 cup orange juice
2 cups pineapple juice
2 tablespoons lime juice

Boil sugar and water for five minutes. Add fruit juices, cool, strain, and freeze to a mush. Serve in sherbet glasses garnished with mint or maraschino cherry.

Such a crisp raw salad will bring a gleam to a gourmet's eye. The dressing is mayonnaise.

Pineapple frappe contains also lime and orange juices. A frappe is served frozen to a mushy consistency.

"Sure-Mix" CRISCO wins 4 to 1 for making FLAKIER PIES!

So easy to get tender, delicate-tasting pie crust, too . . . Try Crisco—it's different!

If your pie crust hasn't been as flaky as you'd like—take heart and try again. But this time use New "Sure-Mix" Crisco.

Crisco pies win by 4 to 1

These housewives were using other well-known shortenings when independent investigators rang their doorbells and asked them to test Crisco in their own recipes.

Here's how their Crisco pies turned out—marvelously! Yes, in reporting their choice, housewives voted 4 to 1 for Crisco over all other shortenings combined. Women said 4 to 1: "Crisco pastry is flakier"—and their families said, "Crisco pie crust tastes better!"

By the same 4-to-1 vote Crisco was preferred for making lighter cakes and crisp, better-tasting fried foods.

"Sure-Mix" Crisco is different!

A patented discovery makes New Crisco different from any other home shortening we know of. And no shortening we know of comes to you purer, fresher, creamier than all-vegetable Crisco. Buy Crisco today—get simply grand "good eats"!

HONEY PUMPKIN PIE
¼ cup granulated sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon cloves
1½ cups canned pumpkin
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup evaporated milk
½ cup water
¼ cup strained honey

Blend sugar, salt, spices. Combine with pumpkin. Stir in eggs. Add milk, water and honey. Beat thoroughly. Line pie pan with Crisco pastry. Pour in mixture. Bake in moderately hot oven (375° F.) an hour or until filling sets. Remove from oven; dribble 1 tablespoon honey over top.

CRISCO PIE CRUST
1¼ cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup Crisco
2 to 3 tablespoons water

Sift flour with salt. Cut in Crisco till mixture resembles coarse cornmeal. Stir in water until all the dry mixture is collected into a ball. Roll out ⅛" thick. Lay pastry loosely in pie pan—then gently press to the sides to prevent air pockets forming.

Look Like Yourself!

Individuality the Smart Policy

By ELEANOR NANGLE

IF WE American women are to hold our laurels as the best looking women in the world we had better throw away the curious idea that the greatest beauty achievement is to look like somebody else!

Among college age girls the rubber stamp is particularly evident. Whether she is slim or stout, short or tall, blonde or brunette, the teen age girl is too faithful to the pattern about clothes and grooming. Invariably her hair is arranged in a long bob, with one coil high on her forehead; her eyebrow line is the exact duplicate of the eyebrow line of every other girl; she wears saddle shoes because they're the thing to wear, and sweaters and skirts because they, too, are part of what has become the uniform.

There is montony about it all, but that's hardly its most serious aspect. What is disturbing is this stifling during the formative years of any impulse to be distinctive. If that holds over into maturity—as it surely will—feminine good looks will be drearily standardized.

(Photos posed by Peggy Diggens.)
Isn't it refreshing to see a face that's decidedly different? This is good "typing."

Styling oneself for distinction often involves nothing more than an original hair style and makeup.

Hairdress more than anything else can make a girl or a woman look different. In an age when it's the popular thing to wear hair down to the shoulders, try wearing yours up. Maybe you've a piquant tho not necessarily a pretty face. Instead of wearing your hair as every one else does, arrange it to emphasize the piquancy of your features. Give it an old-fashioned twist, with a little pompadour in front, a low, shining knot in back. Forsake the "cocker spaniel" style, with blobs of hair hanging over the ears, for side hair drawn upward to reveal your small ears.

It's the fashion now to look healthy; a fine fashion, too. But if it suits your individual style to look frail, don't be afraid to try it!

MOMMY LETS ME HELP MYSELF
REMEMBER— SPRY GIVES WONDERFUL CAKES AN' PASTRY TOO
SAYS AUNT JENNY

"My folks clamor for double batches of Spry doughnuts"

says Mrs. M. HARDMAN of Salt Lake City, Utah

"EVEN my baby girl has learned to open the doughnut jar and help herself," says this mother of three. "And she can have them just like the others. Spry doughnuts are so digestible.

"I've always loved to cook but I enjoy it more than ever now," Mrs. Hardman continues. "I've never had such wonderful results as I'm getting now with Spry and your grand Spry recipes."

Do you want extra delicious results? Cook the Spry way, too. Start today with these crispy Spry doughnuts. What a hit they'll make! And you'll find Spry cakes are lighter cakes, Spry pastry so tender and flaky. Spry's purer, stays fresh longer, creams so easily. Only Spry gives all these three extra advantages!

SPICY SUGAR DOUGHNUTS

4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
⅓ teaspoon nutmeg
⅓ teaspoon mace
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
1¼ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
2 tablespoons Spry
¾ cup sugar
4 egg yolks, well beaten or
2 eggs and 1 egg yolk
1 cup thick sour milk

Sift flour, spices, salt, soda and cream of tartar together 3 times.

Cream Spry and sugar until well blended. (Takes no time with triple-creamed Spry.) Add egg yolks and mix well. Add sour milk and mix thoroughly. Add sifted dry ingredients and mix until smooth. With as little handling as possible, roll dough on floured board to ⅜-inch thickness. Let dough stand 20 minutes.

Cut with 3-inch doughnut cutter. Fry in deep hot Spry (375° F.) until brown, turning when first crack appears. Drain on absorbent paper. Before serving, shake doughnuts in a bag with confectioners' sugar. Serve with generous portions of American cheese. Makes 2 dozen. See if you ever tasted such light, tender, digestible doughnuts as you get this Spry way! Use purer Spry for all your frying—baking, too!

If sweet milk is used instead of sour milk, omit soda and cream of tartar, and use 4 teaspoons baking powder.

IPANA CHOSEN FOR DENTISTS' PERSONAL USE 2 TO 1 OVER ANY OTHER DENTIFRICE!

Be guided by this overwhelming preference of those who know most about the proper care of teeth and gums... start using Ipana and massage today.

YES!—by more than 2 to 1—these dentists have shown their preference for Ipana... the tooth paste specially designed not only to clean teeth thoroughly but, with massage, to aid gums.

Here are the findings of the 1940 National Survey conducted among thousands of dentists.

Twice as many dentists personally use Ipana as any other dental preparation—paste, powder or liquid! In fact, more than the next three dentifrices combined!

Start using Ipana yourself! Every time you brush your teeth, massage a little extra Ipana onto your gums. That invigorating "tang"—exclusive with Ipana and massage—means that gum circulation is being increased . . . helping gums to become firmer, healthier.

So, for healthier gums, brighter teeth, and a more attractive smile . . . begin now the helpful habit of Ipana and massage! Buy a tube today.

SEE YOUR DENTIST at least twice a year for a professional cleaning. When you next visit him, ask his opinion of the importance of Ipana and massage.

The Old Badger Game in Action

THIS IS THE THIRD OF A SERIES OF CASE HISTORIES OF FAMOUS SWINDLES AND CONFIDENCE GAMES THAT STILL FIND MANY VICTIMS

By LLOYD WENDT

MR. B. HAD not looked twice at a woman in 25 years. A single austere glance dispersed the few widows he knew and left him free to save up his riches. Even when he employed teachers, as president of the Carrington school trustees, his inspections were so cursory as to be positively foreboding.

But the young woman who bounced to the bar stool beside him in the North Clark street tavern was completely unlike any female Mr. B. had ever seen before.

"Hi, pops!" she said with just a trace of thickness. "You look like you lost your best friend."

Mr. B. smiled glumly and sipped his beer. He did not feel too comfortable. At once he was visiting Chicago, sitting in a saloon, and ogling a young woman for the first time in a quarter century. He looked around cautiously to reassure himself that no one was present who knew him. That, of course, was unlikely. Carrington was 200 miles away.

The girl watched him coolly. Mr. B. looked sidewise at her. He had never before in his life seen such a concentration of feminine adornment. He disapproved everything about her, but he hoped she would not go away.

"Havin' fun, pops?" the girl asked, leering a little.

"You ought to be home, young lady," Mr. B. said crisply. He felt a flutter of applause from the region of his conscience.

"Hoh, pops!" the girl laughed. "Me home? I'm not even getting started. Hey, Joe, a whisky sour for pops and me."

Mr. B. intended to protest such effrontery. But he didn't. Somehow it made him feel pleasingly young. He accepted the drink and the checks, took several quick gulps. The girl smiled and sipped.

"I haven't been to Chicago for a long time," Mr. B. began with the desperate determination of a man writing his deathbed memoirs. "I can't remember when I've had liquor . . ."

The girl listened, ordered more drinks, dispersed a bibulous masher with a few carefully selected words, and smiled warmly when Mr. B. modestly recounted his successes in business.

Occasionally she leaned close to him, and the delightful aura of perfume about her made him clutch for the course of his monolog. He got it again and pushed on heavily, fearing that if he stopped she might go away.

Mr. B. told her about his business, how he had been elected president of the board of education at home, how it was when his wife died, what he liked to read, and what a hellion he was when he was young.

They had several drinks as the conversation proceeded, and Mr. B. was slowly discovering, with a good deal of surprise and delight, that he had become a hellion all over again. By no exercise of his imagination could he regard himself as 72.

Finally Mr. B. and the girl went to a west side hotel. After a time the door of their room burst open and a big, burly man charged in.

"O, my God!" cried the girl. "It's my brother-in-law. What shall we do?" She covered her head and was apparently sobbing.

"You libertine!" shouted the brother-in-law, turning fiercely on Mr. B. "Taking advantage of an innocent girl! And a girl under age at that. I'll kill you!"

Mr. B. pleaded with the man to be quiet. Then a man in a police uniform came into the room.

"What's going on here?" he demanded.

The brother-in-law angrily explained that the old man had taken a minor girl to his room. He turned to the young woman.

"Did he mistreat you?" he cried.

"Yes, he did," she answered.

The policeman got out a notebook and began writing.

The frightened Mr. B. gave his name and address, and the policeman said they were going to the station.

"Just a minute," said the brother-in-law. He turned to Mr. B. "You got any money?" he demanded.

"Three hundred dollars," said Mr. B.

"Can you get any more? I've got to have ten thousand."

"I can get $5,000 tomorrow."

"We can fix this thing up," said the brother-in-law. "You give me the $300 and bring $5,000 tomorrow and I won't press the complaint. But first you've got to sign this confession of statutory rape. I don't want any double cross."

Mr. B. signed. The next day he cashed some securities and paid the brother-in-law $5,000. Then he went home, determined to stay there henceforth.

Nearly a year later Mr. B. was visited in his home town by the brother-in-law. The man exhibited some circulars. They bore reproductions of B.'s signed confession and offered a reward for his apprehension.

"My sister-in-law had a baby," the man said. "I've got 5,000 of these circulars, and I'll distribute them all over this county if you don't pay."

Mr. B. promised to get $4,000 and bring it to Chicago the next day. He arranged to meet the brother-in-law in Lincoln park.

Then Mr. B. went to the Chicago police and told them the whole story. That evening they seized Hyman Bernstein, an ex-convict, in the park. They could find no trace of the fake policeman or the girl.

"That little tramp took her $3,000 and lammed," Bernstein explained.

This ancient badger game is not reserved for elderly men from the country towns, however, nor are its operations limited to Chicago. In countless cities prominent men have been fleeced by similar schemes. Front men of some gangs accost respectable men in hotel and theater lavatories, accuse them of indecent proposals, and shout for the police. A fake policeman comes running, and the victim, despite his innocence, will often pay. Several Chicago business men have paid blackmail to swindlers who used the fake photograph technique of compromising their victims. These men, tho innocent, paid because they feared the embarrassment resulting from the prosecution of such a case.

One of the most famous of English swindles, "the case of Mr. A.," involved the badger game technique. Mr. A. was later discovered to be one of the richest and most powerful young men in the world, Col. H. H. Maharaja Sir Hari Singh, now the maharaja of Jammu and Kashmir, rich Indian states.

Sir Hari was visiting London and Paris in 1920, inspecting western wonders and distributing the largess provided by the faithful pundits who inhabit the valley below Mount Nanga Parbat. In the course of his inspections Sir Hari came across the gorgeous Mrs. Maude Robinson.

The Indian potentate transported Mrs. Robinson to a Paris hotel. There one night they were visited by four evil looking men. Sir Hari gave them two checks totaling $1,500,000 to avoid being named in a sensational divorce suit.

Sir Hari then discovered that Mrs. Robinson was one of the gang and there was no prospect of any divorce. He had been swindled rather than blackmailed. He managed to stop payment on one of the checks. The swindlers cashed the other for $750,000.

A few years later Charles E. Robinson, a distinguished looking Englishman, handsomely turned out in Bond street clothes, walking stick, monocle, and swank cigaret holder, was arrested in Tenafly, N. J. Federal agents said he was the man who engineered "the case of Mr. A." They wanted him for taking $30,000 from Frederick G. Tuttle of Cincinnati in the race track "pay off" scheme. Despite his two big coups and his prosperous appearance, Robinson had no money. That appears to be characteristic of swindlers.

Maharaja of Kashmir, or "Mr. A."

One of the most grandiose but least successful of swindles in recent years was that attempted by William Buckner Jr., confidant of United States government officials and playfellow of the Hollywood motion picture stars.

Bill, handsome, debonair, an accomplished drinker and party boy, probably did not intend to swindle any one but the Philippine government when he started out, but in the end a good many of his eminent friends were left holding the bag.

When Bill was working in a New York brokerage house somebody made him chairman of a protective committee for defaulted Philippine railway bonds. The job was a sinecure, but Bill decided to work at it. He cooked up a scheme for purchasing the bonds at 13 and having the American and Philippine governments rig them to 65.

Bill needed money, and he collected it from the bondholders and his friends. He went to Washington and staged elaborate cocktail parties and champagne dinners for congressmen and government officials. He imported New York showgirls, and even a few society matrons, for their entertainment. One of his Washington parties cost $1,500 for the hotel bill alone, but Bill thought the money well spent.

Bill made encouraging progress. He gave more parties in New York, inviting the government officials to that relaxing locale. He collected expense money for trips to England and the Philippines and Hollywood.

In England Bill engaged a syndicate to handle the bonds when the final arrangements were ready. In Manila he enlisted the valuable services of Felipe Buencamino, a leader in the Philippine legislature.

But Bill, who had watched congressmen play with such detached practicality, found Hollywood too much for him. He met such stars as Frank Morgan, Herbert Marshall, Miriam Hopkins, Phyllis Brooks, Cary Grant, and Loretta Young. Money was easy to get, and Bill became careless. In a short time he went Hollywood. Bill's assistant, C. Wesley Turner, New York broker, wrote letters to friends complaining that Buckner "devotes all his time to sun bathing, cocktail parties, automobile riding, and the company of Loretta Young."

Finally the bubble burst. Manuel Quezon, president of the Philippine commonwealth, unexpectedly announced that the railway bonds never would be redeemed at par.

At the fraud trial in New York no one denied that Buckner might have started his scheme in good faith so far as the bondholders were concerned. Every one agreed that his parties were excellent. "It was just thrilling to see how those government officials operated off the screen," Miss Brooks, the film actress, recounted. "The parties were delightful," chorused Noel Carter and Carol Maurice, showgirls. "It was all lots of fun," testified Doris (Peewee) Donaldson, also of the theater. Only Mrs. John E. Schurman, New York society woman, dissented. "The congressmen bored me," she explained.

Avid New Yorkers flocked to Buckner's trial to hear about wine, women, and congressmen and to pick up details of his love life in Hollywood. It was reported that Hollywood notables would rush to Buckner's aid, but none appeared. Several witnesses described how they advanced from $6,000 to $10,000 to the young broker. The total of his receipts was not divulged. Buckner was sentenced to two years in a federal prison. William P. Gillespie, a co-defendant, and Buencamino got 18 months each. Turner was found not guilty.

His reported romance with Loretta Young proved unfounded. Handsome, likable young Buckner married Adelaide Moffett, society singer, just before he went to prison.

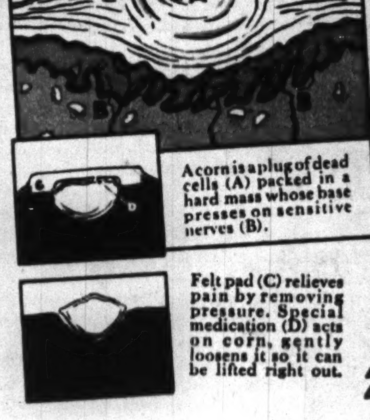
LEARN THE TRUTH ABOUT CORNS



A corn is a plug of dead cells (A) packed in a hard mass whose base presses on sensitive nerves (B).

Felt pad (C) relieves pain by removing pressure. Special medication (D) acts on corn, gently loosens it so it can be lifted right out.

What causes them—How to get rid of them

Corns are caused by pressure and friction—often become large, ugly, painful. But now it's easy to remove them the tested Blue-Jay way!

The Blue-Jay pad relieves pain quickly, by removing pressure. Then, special Blue-Jay medication acts on the corn so that in a few days it can be lifted out. And simply by avoiding the pressure and friction that caused your corns you can prevent their return. Get Blue-Jay today. Only 25¢ for a package of 6.

Lady Luck—Opera's Greatest Prima Donna

Some of the steel cables and tapes required to lift the opera's stage paraphernalia. The open flooring is 145 feet above the stage.

By EDWARD BARRY

● The opening of the Chicago Opera company's 1940 season Nov. 2 prompts an account of some of the difficulties of opera production.

THE FAVOR of Lady Luck is important at every opera performance. She and she alone can guarantee that no important singer shall fall ill a few hours before a performance is scheduled to start. She and she alone, even when every department has worked as painstakingly as is humanly possible, can assure a smooth, uneventful performance. Here are some of the things which can happen—and have happened!—when she averts her face. These are the things which turn opera directors' hair white before their time.

The curtain may be raised or lowered at the wrong time, thru one of those inexplicable mental blowups to which stage managers, like other mortals, are occasionally subject. Once at a performance of "Tannhäuser" the curtain was raised minutes too soon—when the overture had barely got started, in fact—and the poor dancers who make up the court of Venus were compelled to wriggle about the stage to improvised choreography in order to fill up the dreadful gap.

Or some unauthorized person may wander innocently out upon the stage, eluding all the vigilance of those in the wings who are supposed to be guarding against such contingencies. A scrubwoman on her way out of the house once blundered onto the stage during the last act of "Carmen." Don José was just closing in for the kill, but he lost the attention of the audience as irretrievably as if an earthquake had swallowed the house. Another time a confused night watchman, lantern in hand, crossed the darkened stage near the end of the first act of "Madame Butterfly."

Once in "Lohengrin" the swan moved off prematurely, leaving the knight without any form of transportation. "When does the next swan leave?" he is reported to have asked in a voice loud enough to be heard by those near him on the stage. During a certain performance of "The Love of the Three Kings" Archibaldo's beard came off at a solemn moment when his face was averted from the audience. Watchers were surprised, when he turned around, to find him looking a full 30 years younger.

Once in the second act of "Madame Butterfly" a doll was being used in lieu of a real child, and when the baritone was bidding the tot good-by a whole arm came off in his grasp. Another time the tenor singing Leopold (in "La Juive") ran like a frightened fawn and leaped thru a window into the wings when Eleazar found him with his daughter Rachel. He had forgotten that the score calls for the singing of a trio with Eleazar and Rachel. He had to climb back thru the window and make believe that this was simply a new idea in the staging of the opera.

Those unaccountable blowups of singers! What opera managements would not give to be able to get at the cause and cure! Once a woman singing the part of Lucia di Lammermoor's companion calmly sang Inez's music from "Il Trovatore" instead.

The most preposterous things happen. They say that in a certain performance a tenor singing a prolonged high tone unluckily managed to hit a vibration rate which shattered an electric bulb above him and brought it down in splinters to the stage.

Sometimes a perverted sense of humor on the part of the singers themselves may cause the fate of the whole performance to hang momentarily in the balance. A droll fellow called upon to shake hands with one of his co-workers on the stage may leave an egg or an oyster in the other's grasp. Or singers' feuds may be continued on the stage. They tell of a memorable performance of "Carmen" wherein the willful cigaret girl, keeping in character to the bitter end, decided to irritate her Don José, a man against whom she felt she had a grievance, by refusing to let him murder her at the proper time. Accordingly she dashed lithely about the stage instead of staying put where she could be conveniently killed. When the dagger finally found its mark very late—the tenor had gone thru enough mental agony to atone for all of his sins.

Thus opera directors must hope for luck in their dealings with insentient machinery and unpredictable human beings. Yet they have never learned to fear either machinery or human beings quite as badly as they do animals. Once a horse, a donkey, a flock of geese, or any other of the lower vertebrates is introduced on the stage, absolutely anything can happen. Perhaps the best of all the operatic animal stories is the one about the horse and the tenor in "Russlan and Ludmilla." As the tenor finished his first phrase the horse gave a tremendous neigh. Ditto on the second. What was worse, the two sounds turned out to be markedly similar in character. The curtain had to be rung down.

In view of all this, is it not reasonable to believe that every successful performance of opera is in the nature of a miracle?

Dreams—The Children of Sleep

By DR. IRVING S. CUTTER

OFT IN THE still of the night our sleeping minds, freed from Freudian inhibitions and polite conventionalities, will give birth to a brood of curious visions. Active, incoherent, yet absurd, they are but portions of ourselves. They sport at random and soothe or frighten us with false alarms. In kaleidoscopic pantomime they reflect mirrorlike glimpses of our mental insides.

The word "dream" springs from the root dreug, a cousin of the German trugen, which means to deceive. Hence dreams are hallucinations, unreal images of very real mental activity. They are as necessary to the brain as are the movements of the heart or of the chest wall in breathing. They let loose our restless subconscious activities. They constitute the fortuitous dancing of the spirit, the fantastical wanderings of the soul.

Everybody dreams. Many psychologists believe that we dream all night long. Failure to recall dreams is no argument against their occurrence. It is well known that when the psychic activity during sleep is translated into action we talk and walk. Rarely will we retain the slightest recollection of such an episode.

Every one has some dreams which he thinks he remembers clearly, and he tells all about them the next day, but what he thinks he remembers is probably edited rather carefully. It it doubtful if dream thinking is ever accurately and fully remembered.

The type of dream thinking is riotously confused. It passes suddenly and rapidly from elephants to valentines and from the little red schoolhouse to Buckingham palace without causing surprise. Time and space are abolished. The grave gives up its dead, and we do things we never saw done.

Furthermore, there is an absence of the moral sense. The most proper people are guilty of the most improper things. With unblushing effrontery they indulge in vice and crime. Passions which never sully consciousness, sentiments which never enter their alert daytime minds, appear in sleep and are acted upon without benefit of conscience.

The rapidity with which the dream takes place is also remarkable. We seem to live a weary lifetime in a minute. The sprinkling of a few drops of water on the face may result in a panorama of thought reviewing the events of a generation prior to a struggle against drowning. The whole process takes place in the second or two required to waken the sleeper.

Dreams are doubtless varied widely. We never catch one in the course of formation. There is always a gap between sleeping consciousness and waking, the change being effected by a slight shock. Perception of the completed incident is the first effort on arising, but it is usually an attempt to recall a landscape glimpsed as in a flash of lightning. Tho we may catch but a fragment of our latest vision as we leave the house of sleep, it may be that many earlier adventures of the same night will be quite beyond the reach of memory. Curiously, we may become vaguely conscious of them later in the day.

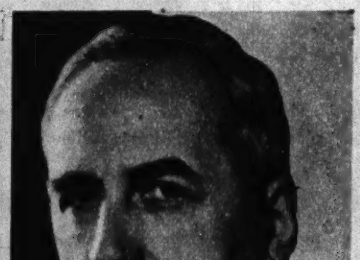
Fantastic and marvelous as our visions may be, they are nearly always made up of very simple elements: (1) the vast reservoir of memories and (2) the actual physical sensations experienced at the moment—by a sleeping subconscious mentality. Recognition of these two groups is at least as old as Aristotle. They have been called central and peripheral, psychic and sensorial, imaginative and perceptive, representative and presentative.

All dreaming is a process of reasoning. That the reasoning is usually bad is due partly to the absence of memory elements that would be present during consciousness, and partly to the absence of sensory elements that would check false reasoning. There is a process of dissociation by which ordinary channels of logical thinking are temporarily blocked.

Many psychologists believe that we dream all night long.

All the senses may furnish the medium thru which stimuli may reach us while we are asleep, tho touch and hearing are doubtless the main channels. Because of our closed eyes, sight can exert only a dim and uncertain influence. Heat, cold, and pressure sensations, however, play an important part. Taste dreams occur sometimes under the influence of a disturbance of the mucous membrane within the mouth or perhaps a slight indigestion. Organic irritation may be translated into dreams—thus sweating and panting horses climbing a hill may be associated with heart disease.

No matter from what source stimuli arise, they filter thru the obscured channels of perception and are largely transformed into emotion, which after all is the fundamental source of our dreams. One of our physical senses is stirred up. If we were awake we would react to the fact by moving—getting out of the way. But we are asleep; hence the sensory excitation is transmitted to the brain as a wave of emotion. Dreams of difficulties—the inability to escape—exist with or are caused by some degree of actual movement.



DR. IRVING S. CUTTER

Factual causes of dreams are common. There is no greater excitement during sleep than that which arises from a disturbed or distended stomach. This is reflected by the nerves which travel also to the heart and the lungs, and all are involved. The sleeping consciousness misinterprets the excitement as having an emotional cause and throws us into a state of agitation, of agony and terror—the typical nightmare.

The stomach exerts a powerful influence. Its easily and constantly varying state of repletion, its central position in the body and the likelihood that it may press on other organs combine to give it extensive influence over the emotional state during sleep. But any pronounced or massive feeling may likewise call for an explanation by drowning consciousness. Toothache, headache, and cramped positions may call up visions of crime, moral retribution, and eternal punishment.

Dreams of flying and of falling were among the earliest to attract attention. Such episodes may be simply a misinterpretation of actual internal sensations. A disturbance of the internal ear—equilibrium—always accompanies falling, and modifications of the respiratory process produced by sleep tend to facilitate the flying interpretation. That the respiratory element is an important factor is indicated by the fact that many persons subject to such dreams are conscious on awaking of a disturbance of breathing, or, as some will relate, "my heart was racing."

Another element in nocturnal aviation is the state of the skin. Numbness due to pressure on certain parts of the body may be responsible for the disagreeable sense of falling.

In dreams things of the physical order become symbols of things spiritual. There is a real relationship between our spiritual feelings and ideas, to particular body movements and facial expressions. Bitter tastes and bitter thoughts tend to produce the same expression. Thus we have a physiological, almost an anatomical, basis for symbolism. That of today has mostly been inherited by us from an antiquity so primitive that we usually fail to interpret it.

Oneirocriticism (the interpretation of dreams) has slowly degenerated to folklore and superstition, but once it had something of the combined dignities of religion and science. The absurdities have frightened away the scientific investigator. When faced by the question of definite and constant meanings, skepticism is still called for, but there is no doubt that our dreams are full of symbolism.

The tendency of memories to fall into groups or systems is well known. When we are awake these systems are coördinated and balanced. In sleep, however, they are not held together firmly. They drift apart or jostle one another in new and random fashions. This is the process of dissociation which is so marked in all psychic phenomena—hallucinations, hysteria, multiple personality—even insanity.

Some memory groups disappear from consciousness or become latent, and others—latent or even lost to waking consciousness—float into the focus of sleeping consciousness. In other words, we remember in sleep what we have forgotten when awake. The two processes—the sinking and the rising of memory groups—are related to one another. We remember what we have forgotten because we forget what we have remembered. This is due to the loss of the tension—strain—which is present in waking life.

This psychic process by which unconscious memories become realities is of considerable interest and importance because it lends itself to the development of delusions. This is a kind of dream which has occurred in all ages and has at times been put down to divine interposition or to telepathy. Sleep involves relaxation—both physical and psychic. In consequence the voluntary thought field becomes narrower—the involuntary field broader. Our minds then fall into a new order, often fantastic but sometimes natural and rational. Then it is that certain vivid dreams are not recognized as dreams at all but are mistaken for reality. Such visions are often very baffling and disturbing to superstitious people.

Dreams, and especially nightmares, have played an important part in the evolution of mythological ideas, with which poetry and religion are intimately connected. The pictures men have formed of heaven and hell have the character of dreams. Furthermore, the atmosphere into which genius leads us, and indeed all art, is the atmosphere of a dream world.

Projectiles with Soft Noses

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

THE GERMAN ARMY, according to a recent news dispatch from London, is equipping its armor piercing projectiles with copper noses in order to make them more effective and to reduce their chances of being deflected when striking a target at an angle.

Their machine gun bullets and particularly their antitank gun shells are fitted with copper alloy noses that make the projectiles more streamlined than any of those previously used by the Germans. This copper alloy nose actually is a false front. There is a hollow space back of it and between it and the relatively blunt nose of the projectile proper, which is made of very hard steel.

When the antitank shell thus provided with a copper nose strikes the armor of a tank, for example, the copper crumples and sticks, preventing the shell from glancing off. As the inner unit, or shell proper, drives thru the steel of the armor the soft copper nose peels off. This all comes about thru the fact that the fast moving shell creates terrific heat instantaneously on impact, which actually welds the nose of the projectile to the target. Even at a pronounced angle, this sticking of the copper nose to the armor prevents ricocheting.

The core of the German copper nosed shell is said to carry a fuse which allows a small fraction of a second for penetration after contact.

It is reported that some of the German antitank shells on explosion scatter an incendiary compound that sets fire to the interiors of the tanks.

While the use of copper alloy for the purpose of aiding in armor penetration is believed to be new, the principle of the soft nose as applied to projectiles to prevent deflection has been in use for years. Even long before the World war the United States employed this principle in connection with its sea coast defense shells. Instead of a copper alloy nose, however, the American shells were equipped with noses of soft steel, which flattened out against armor and prevented deflection. The soft steel noses were used on all American sea coast defense armor piercing shells of six inch caliber or greater.

At the time of the World war a number of our six inch coast defense guns were taken from their stationary mounts and set upon wheeled carriages to make them mobile. Changes of elevation of these newly remounted weapons made it necessary to prepare for them entirely new sets of firing tables, since experiments showed that their shells were erratic in flight. The copper rotary bands around the shells, it was discovered, were the principal cause of error. When these bands were machined down there was improvement in the performance of the shells. Eventually the bases of the shells themselves were trimmed away to give the projectiles the so-called boat tail shape. To complete the alterations false noses were added to the shells, not changing materially their centers of gravity, but making the projectiles much longer and considerably increasing their range.

The false noses were of very light and soft metal, and served merely to streamline the shells and thus reduce their wind resistance. Because of excellent results obtained, the false noses were added to the shells of all the regular sea coast defense guns, covering the soft steel caps used for preventing deflection and aiding in penetration. A final result was that all projectiles were redesigned. All now are of streamlined character..

The United States armor piercing machine gun bullet is made to operate upon the same principle as the armor piercing explosive shell, altho the bullet is solid and does not explode. The .50 caliber armor piercing bullet, for example, is made with an outer jacket and nose of cupro nickel, which is relatively soft and acts just as does a copper alloy shell nose when striking armor. Inside the cupro nickel jacket is a layer of lead, and inside this is a hard steel core which drives thru the armor plate on impact.

All armor piercing projectiles of the explosive type normally contain a delay element to permit the shells to penetrate the armor before exploding. The commonest type of delayed action apparatus is a base fuse employing a pellet of slow-burning powder. When the shell strikes the target the force of the impact hurls the firing pin forward. It hits the powder pellet and sets it afire. For a fraction of a second the pellet burns before the spark gets to the detonator which sets off the explosive within the shell. The delay is brief indeed, yet it allows time for the fast moving projectile to penetrate the armor of the target. The size of the powder pellet determines the length of the delay.

So far as is known publicly, the United States army is not using a copper alloy nose to prevent shell deflection, altho, as has been pointed out here, it has employed for years a principle identical with that recently adopted by the Germans.

Mostly About Dogs

By BOB BECKER

These beagle puppies were photographed when they were just five weeks old. They are owned by George F. Henneberry of Chicago. The beagle hound is used widely for rabbit hunting.

Moran of Ouborough is the name of this beautiful Irish wolfhound, which has been recording some notable wins in recent dog shows. It's one of he few Irish wolfhounds ever to win the coveted best in show honor. Moran is owned by Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Morse Jr. of Lake Forest, Ill.

The Beagle—A Happy Hunter

ALTHO it may be difficult for a dog fancier living in a large city to believe it, the lovable, good looking beagle hound is today one of the most popular sporting dogs in the United States.

Rarely seen in large cities, the beagle is a sporting hound used in hunting rabbits and belongs to the country and the small town which is close to the rabbit population.

So far American dog fanciers haven't taken up the beagle as a companion dog. This always has been something of a puzzler, because the beagle truly is a desirable breed with an affectionate disposition.

The number of beagle clubs now functioning in various states is assurance that this favorite is going ahead instead of backward. These clubs are stressing the breeding for brains, nose, and good looks, and many field trials each fall give the breeders splendid opportunities to test their best dogs.

If a dog owner has any doubt that the beagle enjoys hunting cottontails he has only to listen to the music of the gay hound when he's on a hot trail. Easily the best singer of all the hounds (altho we've heard a couple of coon hounds that knew how to hit the high and low notes), the beagle fills the air with such joyous music that you know he believes a rabbit hunt to be the most thrilling sport in the world.

Our greatest fun with these hounds was in Wisconsin in a section of the country which had both pheasants and rabbits. In order to see how a couple of yodeling beagles would put up both feathered and furred game, we sat down just outside of a long point of woods while the hounds came thru this timber singing joyously as they put up the cottontails. First a scared pheasant cock flew past us at top speed. He wanted none of that fast-running dog which was scaring him to death. In a moment another startled pheasant burst from the timber. Then the beagle music got closer and out came a couple of rabbits exerting all their strength and energy to escape the canine hurricanes on their heels. These few minutes would have been enough to convince any sportsman that the happy little beagles can furnish no end of fun during the autumn hunting days.

There isn't much doubt but that the beagle is one of the oldest breeds in history. Authorities are pretty well agreed that both this breed and the bloodhound are extremely close to the original breed of hounds. The standard today calls for a sturdy, compact hound not exceeding 15 inches in height at the shoulder. In fact, the general appearance of the beagle is that of a miniature foxhound, solid and big for his inches. Any true hound color is suitable. We always are impressed by the eyes of a sound beagle. They are large, soft, and truly hound-like. The expression is gentle, as befits the affectionate, gentle disposition of the breed.

It's this disposition of the beagle that represents a real "extra" to the owner. In the first place, the sportsman owner has a small, handy sized dog that is not expensive to keep. It has a close, hard coat of medium length, which many dog fanciers consider a decided asset. Moreover, it's not necessary to make a long trip across country to find rabbits for a beagle—undoubtedly another asset. But with all these advantages the beagle owner can boast of still another—the beagle is so friendly and likes human company so much that he makes a thoroly likable companion in the home.

This Scottish terrier, Kinclaven Scandal, already has started on her show career, altho she's only 11 months old. Kinclaven is owned by Mrs. Marie Stone of Milwaukee. (Tribune photos.)

KNOW YOUR CAMERA

By ANDREW B. HECHT, Ph. D.

(Managing Editor, Popular Photography Magazine.)

Flames Provide Artistic Subjects for Photos

IF YOU HAVE ever stared into the flames in a fireplace, if the warmth of candlelight or of an old-fashioned lantern fascinates you, it's time to think about how to photograph these impressions. Many striking pictures are sufficient proof that they can be photographed.

True, the majority of pictures by amateurs are taken either in full daylight or in bright artificial illumination. Yet there are certain pictorial effects that you can get only if you photograph flames, whether their source is burning wood, candles, matches, or a lantern.

Most flames give only a weak light. By leaving much of their surroundings in darkness they create an atmosphere of mystery. But while this atmosphere is fascinating, it is not as easy to capture in pictures as many another subject. The reason is that a certain minimum of light is required to make a photograph and that the light of flames is not always sufficient for the purpose.

Because flame pictures often "don't come out," most amateurs avoid taking them. Yet the pictures are not spoiled by the lack of sufficient illumination but by insufficient exposure.

If you expose long enough the light of a match or a candle can give you as bright a picture as a good-sized floodlight would. Weak light reaching your film for a long period of time has the same effect on it as a short exposure in brilliant light.

If you want to take pictures by the light of flames you must figure on giving long exposures—anywhere from 1/25 second to several minutes. This, of course, excludes the possibility of taking any real action shots, as exposures of such length could not stop action. But there are many other types of pictures you can take, including posed action—for instance, a person posed to throw a log in the fire or lighting a cigaret.

The length of exposure required in any particular instance depends on the intensity of the light source, on the speed of the film used, and on the speed of your lens. In most cases the light will be too weak to be measured, so that you will have to guess at the exposure. But experience will soon teach you how to guess correctly.

Naturally you should use the fastest available film. It should be a panchromatic film, because it is sensitive to red and most flames emit light of a strong red color. It is easier to take flame pictures with a fast lens, but many a good picture of this kind can be made with the most primitive box camera. A lot depends on the subject. Some people can hold still for several seconds if they are seated comfortably or if they can lean on some sort of support. You can photograph them even with a box camera, while other subjects call for shorter exposures which can be risked in poor light only with fast lenses.

It is best to focus the picture in full light wherever this is possible. After focusing, turn off the auxiliary light and study the effect of the flames on your subject. It may be necessary to move either the light source, such as the candle or lantern, into a more favorable position, or to move the subject. In the latter case you will have to focus again before you shoot.

The main charm of flame pictures comes from including the source of light in the picture. Chances are that the flames will be overexposed if you want to get even a limited amount of detail in your subject. But in most instances this only adds to the effect of the picture. The flames will appear as white or merely white spots in the picture, creating a strong center of interest and giving the impression of actually radiating light on the subject.

Sometimes it is advisable to cheat a little and to strengthen the flames. If you snap a campfire scene you can have somebody throw a small package of flash powder in the flames. You can also fire a flash bulb near the campfire if you take good care to place a shield between the bulb and the camera. The flames in a fireplace can be made brighter if you throw paper on them just before you shoot.

Once you have developed a taste for this type of photography, you will have no trouble finding a large variety of subjects.

Halloween is a good occasion to try pictures by candlelight. But if you want to see the effect of open flames, don't "cheat" by replacing the candle with a flash bulb or photoflood.

NEW EQUIPMENT

For names of manufacturers who produce these items send stamped, self-addressed envelope to "Know Your Camera," Equipment Review Department, care Graphic Section, The Chicago Tribune. Be sure to mention serial number of item.

149 Making photographic greeting cards, especially Christmas cards, will be easy with a new outfit containing six negative masks with different greetings. You strip your own negative over a clear opening 2x3 in. in size and print on any contact paper.

150 A new exposure guide consisting of measuring cord with attached instruction cards makes photography with flood lamps easy. It tells you where to put your lamps and how to expose from various distances. The price is 5 cents.

151 If you want to try making color prints by the carbro method you can get a kit containing all necessary materials for four 8x10 carbro prints and also a set of bromide prints with which you can undertake your first experiments.

152 A coupled range finder can be installed in most 16-mm. amateur movie cameras by the owner, as installation requires no drilling or filing. It will help you make movies that are sharply in focus.

Badger Game at Work

be obtained from court proceedings instituted by various bondholders' protective groups. The swindlers select as their victims the owners of securities or bonds which have declined in value.

The swindler gang then obtains ownership of stocks of whisky in government bonded warehouses. The government bonds the whisky so that the tax on it will not have to be paid until it is marketed, but the swindlers give their victims the impression that the government bond somehow guarantees the quality of the liquor.

Every one knows that whisky gains in value as it ages, but the swindlers fail to reveal that their supplies are of the very cheapest grade and kept in inferior barrels. They offer whisky certificates to the suckers at a rate of $1 to $2 a gallon. It is worth about 30 cents a gallon, or less.

The swindlers represent that the value of the whisky will triple or quadruple when it is ready for sale. Should this happen it would still be worth less than the victims paid for it, and in addition they must pay storage and insurance charges for three or four years.

Many victims find their certificates completely worthless at the end of the three or four year period. The best swindlers, however, do not stop with the first catch. They return in a year, tell the victim they have something better than the whisky certificates, and offer him a paper profit if he will exchange the certificates for something else—say, vending machines. The victim is usually grateful for the advice and the apparent profit. He makes the switch, adds some cash, and gets into the vending machine business. The swindler who accomplishes such a switch is known to the trade as a "reloader."

The victim buys the vending machines and leases them back to the company for 25 to 30 per cent of the gross proceeds.

The company, however, never operates the machines, which have been sold at exorbitant prices. Some of the machines have never even been manufactured. The company, when it has exhausted its sucker list, simply closes down.

That is not the end, however. A lawyer swindler visits the victim, consoles him on his losses, and then confides that he has private information that Joe Z. Bloke, president of the vending machine company, made $500,000 on the swindle and hid it in a St. Louis safe deposit box. The lawyer proposes to impound the money and recover it to reimburse a few selected clients who will join in the action. The clients, of course, must put up money in advance to cover the legal fees.

While the victim is being fleeced for the third time, a fourth worker gets busy. This individual represents himself as being in position to sell vending machines to an eastern syndicate. For a slight fee he will arrange the sale of the victim's machines, which, he declares, are stored in an Indiana city. These advance fee operators are known in the swindling industry as "front money" men. When the victim finally discovers that the machines he leased never existed in the first place, the swindlers are working other areas.

Most persons are very cautious about purchasing gold bricks, but the number who will invest in a gold mine or an oil well without investigation is quite considerable.

In April of this year Elmer E. Pope, his wife, Dorothy, and five other persons were indicted in Chicago for selling a million dollars' worth of stock in a Sonora, Mexico, gold mine that did not produce enough to pay its operating expenses. The West Coast Minerals Company, Ltd., then at 10 North Clark street, was closed up after it had taken $85,000 from 430 aged Chicagoans.

There are numerous tests which will detect "salted" gold claims. Microscopic examination of the samples might have shown little, flattened pellets, indicating the gold was poured molten into the sands of the claim. The microscope might also have revealed tiny scratches on the gold particles, proving they had been whittled from a watch case or a ring. Similarly, chemical tests might have shown the presence of alloys, indicating that the gold had been commercially processed before the swindlers used it to salt the claim. And, if all other tests failed to detect fraud, the ribbon of light waves in a spectroscope might have disclosed that the gold was of a type indigenous to Alaska, the Urals, the Black hills, or California, but not native to the Texas area.

Gold mine salters are clever folk, and their work is so realistic that only the microscope, the spectroscope, or the chemical bath will reveal it. Some salters place grains of gold in a stick of dynamite and blast it into the sands of the claim. Others place gold dust in a shotgun shell and fire it at close range into solid quartz. The effect is very real.

Swindlers attempting to sell a placer mine will salt the claim while the victim is panning it. This is done simply by placing gold grains into a cigaret and flicking the ashes into the stream. The gold, being heavy, promptly sinks, and the happy prospector pans the gleaming particles himself. If, however, there is insufficient time to thus prepare a claim, the swindler can still salt the samples after they have been placed in the canvas sample bags. He loads a hypodermic needle with gold dust, jabs it thru the canvas, and shoots in a load sufficient to cause wild excitement in an assay office inexperienced in the ways of swindlers or inadequately equipped.

The back-door swindlers who prey upon housewives, the charity ticket racketeers, and the ghouls who follow the death notices will be discussed in a subsequent article.

Other Worsted-tex Suits

$35 and $45

This is a picture of the

WORSTED-TEX BRITISH LOUNGE* MODEL

which definitely improves your appearance, makes you look taller, fuller chested and slimmer at the hips

This may sound like an exaggerated claim, but there is nothing mysterious about this new modern type of suit and there is nothing extreme about it. It is a gentleman's suit of clothes.

It is simply a matter of streamline designing. The shoulders are a trifle wider, there is extra fullness across the chest, the collar sets lower showing more shirt collar, the coat is longer, the buttons lowered, the waistline further down, the sleeves and trousers are tapered and the lapels more graceful.

In every city and town in the United States well-dressed men are wearing this new modern Worsted-tex Suit. Try one on in the Worsted-tex Store in your city. You'll be amazed at the change in your appearance.

HA! HA! WELL, REALLY I HAVEN'T MUCH TO PACK---AND I'LL NOT GO VERY FAR AWAY-I PROMISE I'LL SEE YOU REAL OFTEN-I WILL, BILLY BOY-
BUT YOU MUSTN'T GO AWAY! WHY MUST YOU GO AWAY?
THIS ISN'T MY HOME, BILLY---I'M---I'M JUST COMPANY HERE--AND COMPANY MUSTN'T STAY TOO LONG, YOU KNOW-I'VE ACCEPTED FAR TOO MUCH NOW--DON'T YOU SEE HOW IT IS?
10-20-40
HEY! WHAT IN TH' TAR BARREL IS EATIN' YOU? WHOA!
BOO! HOO! HOO!
SHE'S GOIN' AWAY! SHE MUSTN'T GO AWAY! SHE MUSTN'T!

SMILIN' JACK
MISS FAHRENHEIT, DID ME HEAR-UM YOU TELL-UM MISS JOY THAT YOU USE TO WORK-UM FOR THE EYE?
YES, BUT I FELL FOR DOWNWIND AND QUIT--- THEN LAST NIGHT I HAD A DATE WITH DOWNWIND AND HE DIDN'T SHOW UP, SO I STARTED INVESTIGATING AND--- DIT DA DA DIT DA DA DA DIT DA DIT DIT DIT DA DIT DA DIT
--I JUST LEARNED THROUGH A FORMER ASSOCIATE THAT THE EYE HAS TIED DOWNWIND ABOARD A HULK THAT IS TO BE USED AS A TARGET!
OH--SO THAT WHY MISS JOY JUMPED IN PLANE AND WENT TO TRY TO STOP BOMBERS!?
JOY TRIES TO STOP THE BOMBING BUT SHE IS TOO LATE --- SEEING THE OLD HULK SINKING, JOY REALIZES HER ONLY CHANCE TO RESCUE DOWNWIND IS TO PANCAKE HER LAND PLANE INTO THE WATER
JOY WRAPS HER DRESS AROUND HER HEAD TO KEEP FROM BEING KNOCKED OUT AND---
TH' DOOR MAY JAM AND TRAP ME-- I'LL WEDGE IT OPEN WITH MY SHOE!!
JOY STALLS HER PLANE IN, BUT THE WHEELS TRIP IT OVER--
GLUG--THANK GOODNESS, I'M STILL ALIVE--NOW TO CLIMB ABOARD TH' SINKING HULK AN' TRY TO FIND DOWNWIND--
THERE HE IS------ DOWNWIND!! OH--- HE'S INJURED-- HE'S UNCONSCIOUS!
DOWNWIND! LISTEN TO ME-- KEEP TRYING TO WALK-- PUFF-- JUST A LITTLE FARTHER ---WE'RE ALMOST ON DECK!
--BUT AT THIS INSTANT THE HULK GOES UNDER--

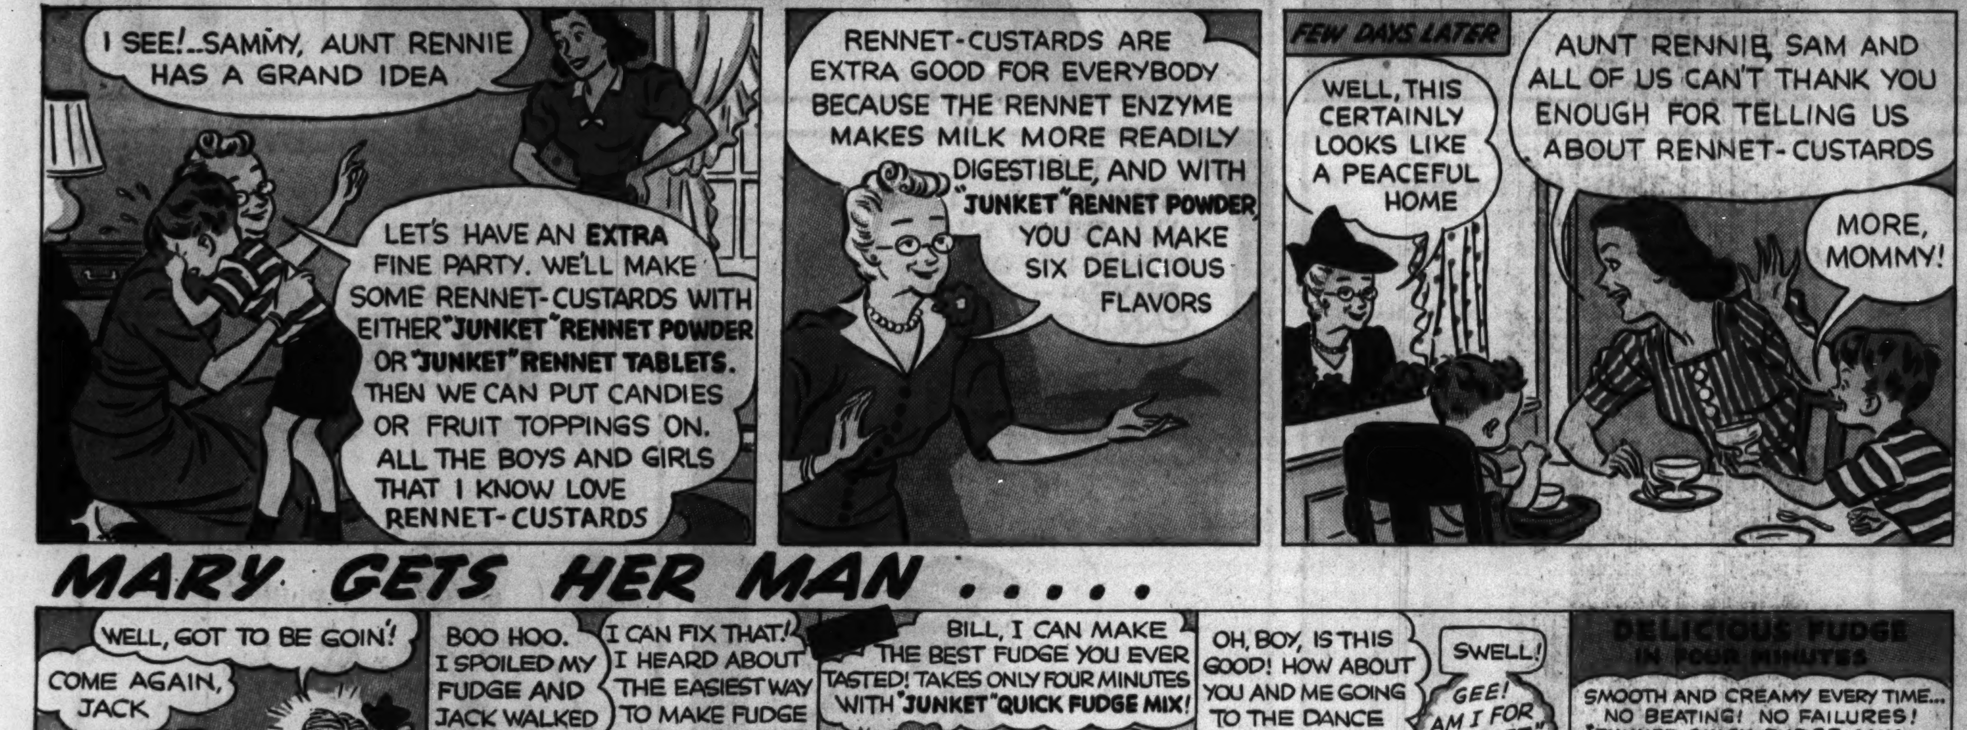
AUNT RENNIE STOPS A MILK BATTLE
I'M ASHAMED OF YOU, SAMMY!
I DON'T CARE IF IT IS A BIRTHDAY PARTY!
I'M GOING TO GIVE YOU A GOOD SOUND SPANKING!
JANE! MAY I SEE YOU FOR A MINUTE?
BUT AUNT RENNIE, I HAVE TO MAKE HIM TAKE HIS MILK
I KNOW, BUT FORCING HIM TO DRINK IT AGAINST HIS WILL IS BAD FOR HIS HEALTH AND YOUR DISPOSITION. LET ME TELL YOU HOW...



I SEE!..SAMMY, AUNT RENNIE HAS A GRAND IDEA
LET'S HAVE AN EXTRA FINE PARTY. WE'LL MAKE SOME RENNET-CUSTARDS WITH EITHER "JUNKET" RENNET POWDER OR "JUNKET" RENNET TABLETS. THEN WE CAN PUT CANDIES OR FRUIT TOPPINGS ON. ALL THE BOYS AND GIRLS THAT I KNOW LOVE RENNET-CUSTARDS
RENNET-CUSTARDS ARE EXTRA GOOD FOR EVERYBODY BECAUSE THE RENNET ENZYME MAKES MILK MORE READILY DIGESTIBLE, AND WITH "JUNKET" RENNET POWDER, YOU CAN MAKE SIX DELICIOUS FLAVORS
FEW DAYS LATER
WELL, THIS CERTAINLY LOOKS LIKE A PEACEFUL HOME
AUNT RENNIE, SAM AND ALL OF US CAN'T THANK YOU ENOUGH FOR TELLING US ABOUT RENNET-CUSTARDS MORE, MOMMY!

Give your child MILK as a dessert in delicious rennet-custards

A different flavor, a different color every day! Easy to make. No eggs, no cooking. The rennet enzyme makes rennet-custards easier to digest than plain milk!

Make rennet-custards with either:

"JUNKET" RENNET POWDER—6 flavors. Ask your grocer!
"JUNKET" RENNET TABLETS—Not sweetened. Add sugar, flavor to taste. Ask your grocer or druggist. Note: 12 "Junket" Rennet Tablets in each package now instead of 10! No increase in cost! 20% more value!

WE'VE GOT TO GO UP AND TAKE THE CONSEQUENCES. BE READY FOR ANYTHING!
DICK! WHAT'S GOING ON HERE— LOOK!
GOOD HEAVENS, PAT!
IT'S THE POLICE! THEY HEARD OUR SIGNAL!
BUT BLACK PEARL IS AFTER THEM WITH THE FLAME THROWER!
BACK THIS THING UP! WE'VE GOT TO GET OUT OF HERE!
BUMP
SCATTER TO SAVE YOUR LIVES!
THE AMMUNITION FOR THESE TANK GUNS IS IN THAT SHED. I'LL GET IT WHILE THEIR ATTENTION IS ON THE COPS!
BLACK PEARL, OUR JIG IS UP. WE'VE GOT TO MAKE A GETAWAY!
HA! HA! HA! SO!
TO OUR UNDERGROUND HANGAR. WE'LL HAVE TO USE THE PLANE!
SORRY, WHISKERS, YOU CAN'T GO. GET BACK TO YOUR COUNTRY THE BEST WAY YOU CAN!
I'M AFRAID YOU CAN'T GO, EITHER.
THIS IS MAKEUP I'VE BEEN WEARING. I DON'T NEED IT NOW!
WHAT? WHO IS HE?

TINY TIM by Stanley Link
WHAT A FIX TIM IS IN! HE'S GOT TWO DATES WITH SALLY TONIGHT AT SEVEN O'CLOCK— ONE AS DICKEY HOOPER AND THE OTHER AS TIM, HIMSELF—
GOSH! WHAT'LL I DO? THIS IS A PROBLEM—
IF I GO AS DICKEY HOOPER, SHE'LL THINK THAT I, TIM, STOOD HER UP——AND IF I GO WITHOUT THIS WIG, SHE'LL THINK DICKEY HOOPER DIDN'T SHOW UP—
—MEANWHILE— LET US LOOK IN ON SALLY—
OH, DEAR— WHAT HAVE I DONE! HOW STUPID OF ME— MAKING A DATE WITH TWO BOYS FOR THE SAME EVENING—
I'LL HAVE TO CALL UP ONE OF THEM— AND CANCEL THE DATE— WHO SHALL IT BE?
I'VE GOT AN IDEA!
YES, SALLY— THIS IS DICKEY SPEAKING— WHAT'S THAT? YOU WANT ME TO CALL FOR YOU AN HOUR EARLIER— AT SIX—
THERE— THAT'LL DO IT— I'LL SEND HIM HOME BEFORE SEVEN— THEN I CAN KEEP MY DATE WITH TIM—
WELL— THAT LET'S ME OUT— I'LL HAVE TO GO AS DICKEY HOOPER— HE'S THE ONE SHE CARES ABOUT—PLUNK!

DUNNO, DON, UNLESS-WELL, WHY DON'T YOU SEE YOUR DENTIST ABOUT YOUR BREATH?
DON SEES HIS DENTIST
TO COMBAT BAD BREATH, I RECOMMEND COLGATE DENTAL CREAM. ITS ACTIVE PENETRATING FOAM GETS INTO THE HIDDEN CREVICES BETWEEN YOUR TEETH... HELPS REMOVE DECAYING FOOD PARTICLES AND STOP THE STAGNANT SALIVA ODORS THAT CAUSE MUCH BAD BREATH
AND COLGATE'S NOT ONLY COMBATS BAD BREATH, IT MAKES TEETH SPARKLE, TOO. FOR COLGATE'S CLEANS THOROUGHLY, YET GENTLY—RESTORES THE NATURAL LUSTER TO YOUR TEETH, THE BRILLIANCE TO YOUR SMILE!
LATER—THANKS TO COLGATE DENTAL CREAM
DON, THIS HAS BEEN THE MOST HEAVENLY EVENING OF MY LIFE!
GETTING ENGAGED TO YOU MAKES IT THE BIGGEST NIGHT IN MY LIFE, DARLING!
MAKE SURE THAT YOUR BREATH IS OKAY! PLAY SAFE! USE COLGATE'S TWICE A DAY!
COLGATE RIBBON DENTAL CREAM
20¢ LARGE SIZE
35¢ GIANT SIZE
OVER TWICE AS MUCH
NOW—NO BAD BREATH BEHIND HIS SPARKLING SMILE!

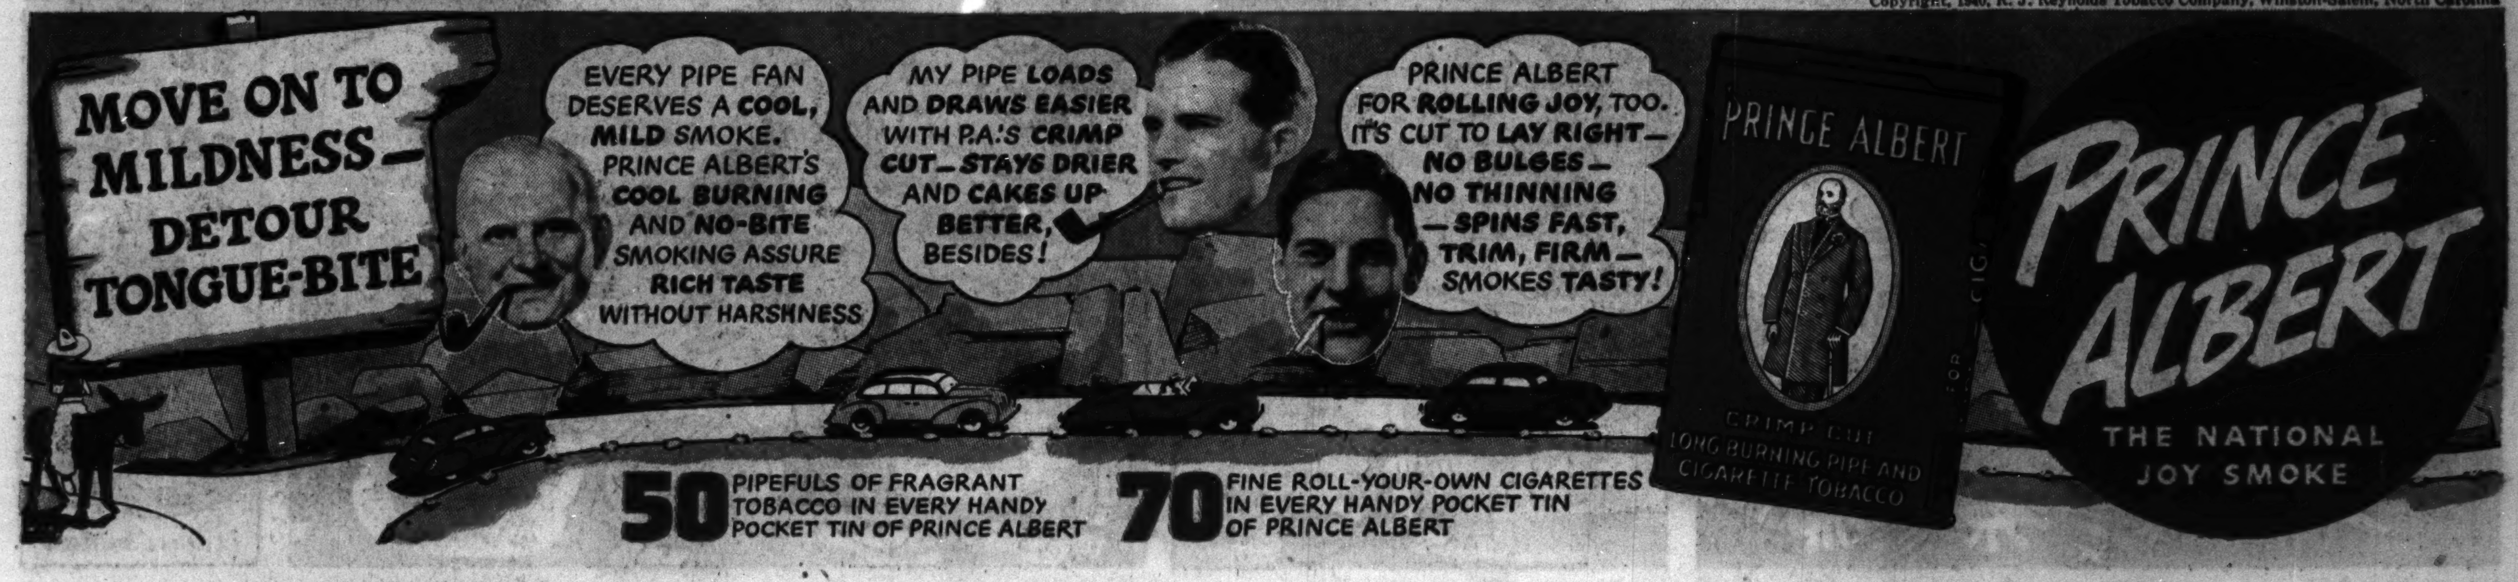
OL' JUDGE ROBBINS
AT GRAND CANYON, ARIZONA
I'M SO EXCITED, I CAN HARDLY WAIT
YOU'RE ABOUT TO SEE WHAT MANY CALL THE WORLD'S GREATEST NATURAL WONDER, DISCOVERED JUST 4 CENTURIES AGO THIS YEAR!
GUESS WE'D BETTER LOAD UP A PIPE OF P.A. 'FORE WE START
GRAND CANYON FROM THE SOUTH RIM
GOODNESS, IT'S BREATHTAKING! THERE MUST BE EVERY COLOR IN THE RAINBOW
YOUR MOTHER AND I SPENT SEVERAL DAYS HERE ONCE, CHUBBINS. SHE LOVED TO WATCH THE COLORS AND SHADINGS CHANGE IN THE SHIFTING SUNLIGHT
GOLLY! THIS VIEW IS EVEN MORE MAGNIFICENT
THE RIVER DOWN THERE PICKS UP ABOUT A MILLION TONS OF SAND AND SILT DAILY. THE CANYON IS 217 MILES LONG. THAT EMPTY P.A. TIN WILL HAVE TO FALL A WHOLE MILE TO HIT BOTTOM
HOPE YOU BROUGHT A SPARE TIN OF PRINCE ALBERT. I'M A LITTLE SHORT
DON'T WORRY, ROB, I'D NEVER CHANCE RUNNING OUT OF THAT TOBACCO. NOT I!
THIS IS GRAND CANYON'S OLD INDIAN WATCH-TOWER. NATIVES BUILT STRUCTURES LIKE THIS LONG BEFORE HISTORY BEGAN
OH, DAD, I'M GETTING CHILLY. CAN WE WARM UP SOMEWHERE?
I KNOW JUST THE PLACE AT THE END OF THIS ROAD
NOTHING QUITE LIKE A WARM, COZY FIRE AND A PIPE OF COOL-BURNING PRINCE ALBERT, EH, DANIEL?
THAT'S COMFORT FOR THE SPIRIT, AND EVEN MORE COMFORT FOR THE TONGUE. P.A. IS THE SMOKER'S DREAM COME TRUE!
IN RECENT LABORATORY "SMOKING BOWL" TESTS, PRINCE ALBERT BURNED 86 DEGREES COOLER THAN THE AVERAGE OF THE 30 OTHER OF THE LARGEST-SELLING BRANDS TESTED... COOLEST OF ALL!
THAT CRIMP CUT HAS A LOT TO DO WITH HOW COOL PRINCE ALBERT BURNS, DON'T YOU THINK?
AND A LOT OF OTHER THINGS, TOO—GOOD PACKING, EVEN DRAWING, AND BETTER CAKING—BUT DON'T FORGET THAT EXCLUSIVE P.A. NO-BITE PROCESS!

Copyright, 1940, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, North Carolina



MOVE ON TO MILDNESS—DETOUR TONGUE-BITE
EVERY PIPE FAN DESERVES A COOL, MILD SMOKE. PRINCE ALBERT'S COOL BURNING AND NO-BITE SMOKING ASSURE RICH TASTE WITHOUT HARSHNESS
MY PIPE LOADS AND DRAWS EASIER WITH P.A.'S CRIMP CUT—STAYS DRIER AND CAKES UP BETTER, BESIDES!
PRINCE ALBERT FOR ROLLING JOY, TOO. IT'S CUT TO LAY RIGHT—NO BULGES—NO THINNING—SPINS FAST, TRIM, FIRM—SMOKES TASTY!
PRINCE ALBERT
CRIMP CUT LONG BURNING PIPE AND CIGARETTE TOBACCO

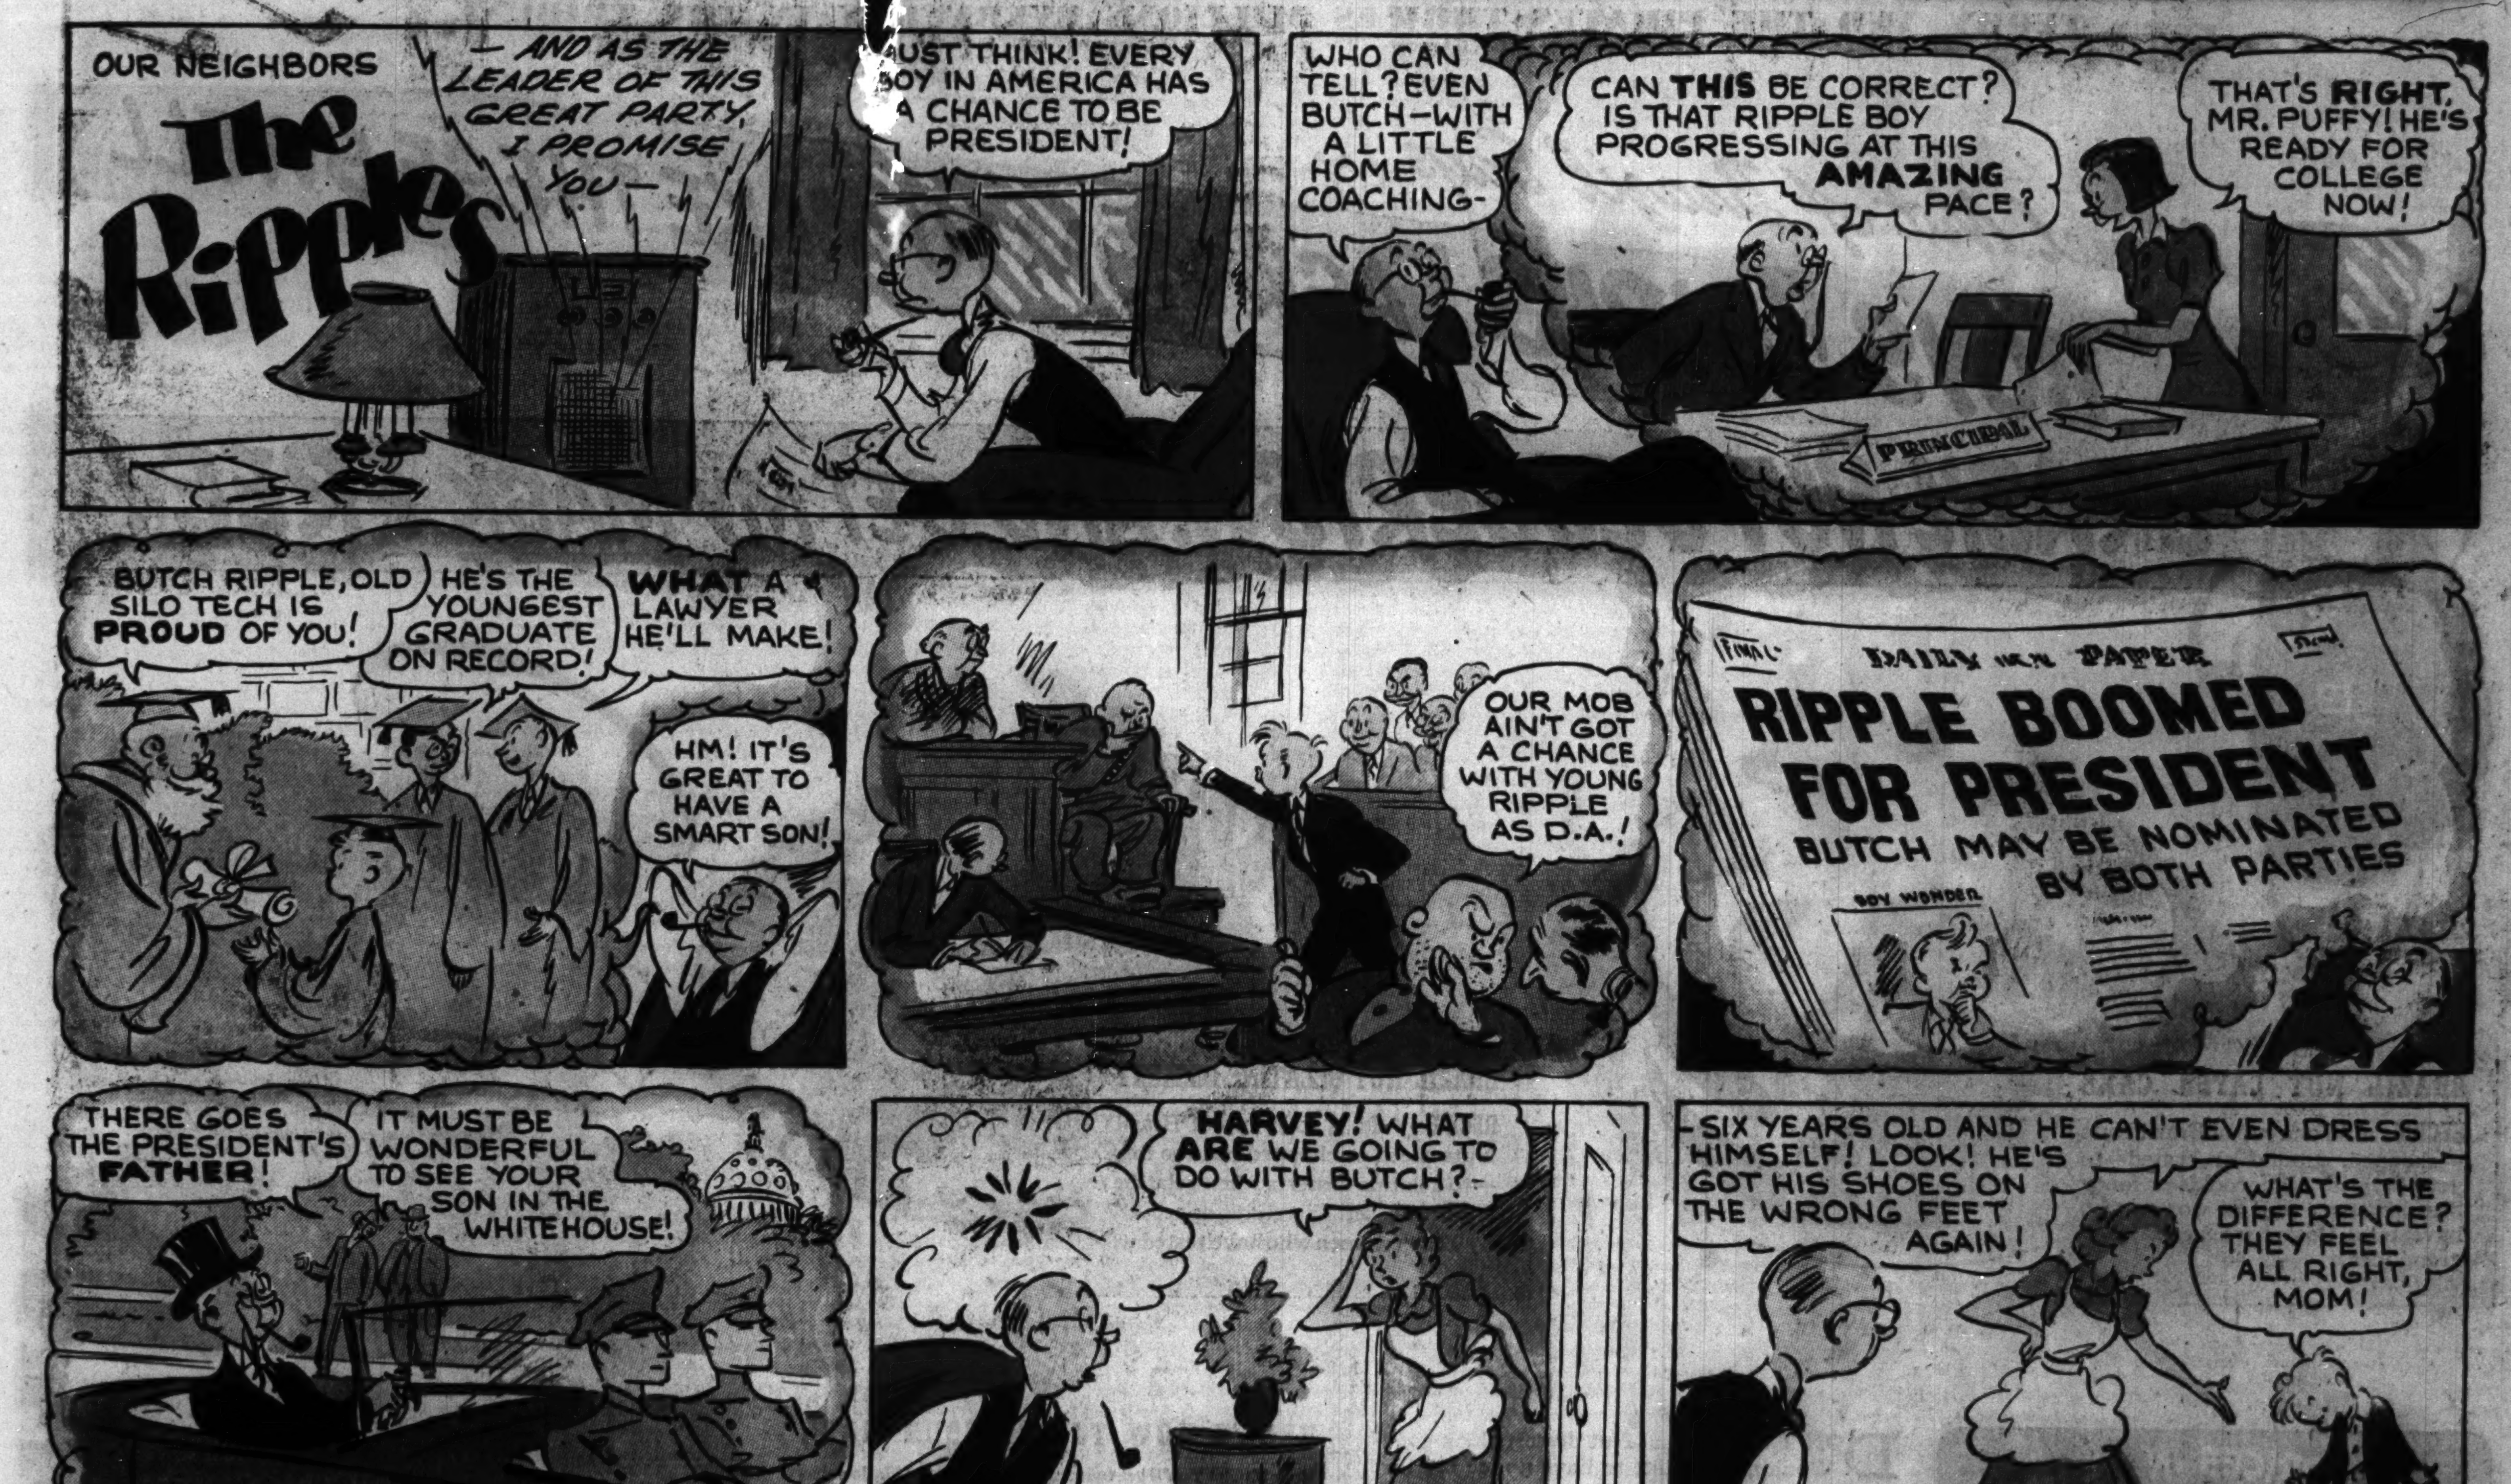
THE GUMPS
OH BOY! THIS IS FUN!
IT'S NOT EXACTLY AS ELEGANT AS THE RITZBILT, BUT IT WILL SHELTER US!
COME AND GET IT!!
A REAL FEAST TODAY, FRIENDS— TO CELEBRATE THE COMPLETION OF OUR HUT!
MARVELOUS! BAKED BEANS, CORNED BEEF AND CANNED TOMATOES— YUM!!
I'M SO FULL, I DON'T THINK I COULD CONTRIVE TO EAT A PIECE OF CHOCOLATE CAKE —IF I HAD IT!
NESTOR, I HAVE MADE AN INVENTORY OF OUR FOOD SUPPLY—IT WILL LAST ABOUT A MONTH—UNLESS WE ARE ABLE TO ADD TO IT—
I NOTICED A LOT OF FISH IN THE LAGOON ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE ISLAND
WONDERFUL! IF WE COULD ONLY DEVISE SOME MEANS OF CATCHING THEM—
THIS PIECE OF BENT WIRE WOULD MAKE A SWELL FISH-HOOK!
YES, MY BOY— BUT WE ARE FRESH OUT OF STRING WITH WHICH TO MAKE A LINE—
WAIT! I'VE GOT AN IDEA!
GOSH— I HOPE THIS WORKS!
SEE! THE YARN FROM THIS WOOLEN SOCK WILL DO PERFECTLY!
SPLENDID, CHESTER!
C'MON, JIMMY!! WE'LL DIG SOME SAND CRABS FOR BAIT, AND BRING IN A NICE MESS OF FISH FOR SUPPER!!
HOORAY!
SEVERAL HOURS LATER—
THERE'S NO USE TRYING TO CATCH ANY MORE NOW, JIMMY—THIS IS ENOUGH FOR SUPPER!
GOLLY, WON'T FATHER BE HAPPY WHEN HE SEES THIS SWELL STRING!
LISTEN! DID YOU HEAR A NOISE IN THERE, JIM?
Y-YES! FATHER— DR. THOR! IS THAT EITHER OF YOU?
THE NOISE IS GETTING A LITTLE LOUDER— SOUNDS LIKE PEOPLE WALKING THROUGH THAT CAVE—TOWARDS US!!
I THOUGHT WE WERE THE ONLY PEOPLE ON THIS ISLAND— GEE! THEY MUST BE ENEMIES OR ELSE THEY'D HAVE ANSWERED OUR YELL!
QUICK! GET YOUR FATHER AND DR. THOR—I'LL HOLD 'EM OFF AS LONG AS I CAN!!



OUR NEIGHBORS
The Ripples
—AND AS THE LEADER OF THIS GREAT PARTY, I PROMISE YOU—
JUST THINK! EVERY BOY IN AMERICA HAS A CHANCE TO BE PRESIDENT!
WHO CAN TELL? EVEN BUTCH—WITH A LITTLE HOME COACHING-
CAN THIS BE CORRECT? IS THAT RIPPLE BOY PROGRESSING AT THIS AMAZING PACE?
THAT'S RIGHT, MR. PUFFY! HE'S READY FOR COLLEGE NOW!
PRINCIPAL
BUTCH RIPPLE, OLD SILO TECH IS PROUD OF YOU!
HE'S THE YOUNGEST GRADUATE ON RECORD!
WHAT A LAWYER HE'LL MAKE!
HM! IT'S GREAT TO HAVE A SMART SON!
OUR MOB AIN'T GOT A CHANCE WITH YOUNG RIPPLE AS D.A.!
FINAL
DAILY PAPER
RIPPLE BOOMED FOR PRESIDENT
BUTCH MAY BE NOMINATED BY BOTH PARTIES
BOY WONDER
THERE GOES THE PRESIDENT'S FATHER!
IT MUST BE WONDERFUL TO SEE YOUR SON IN THE WHITEHOUSE!
HARVEY! WHAT ARE WE GOING TO DO WITH BUTCH?-
-SIX YEARS OLD AND HE CAN'T EVEN DRESS HIMSELF! LOOK! HE'S GOT HIS SHOES ON THE WRONG FEET AGAIN!
WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE? THEY FEEL ALL RIGHT, MOM!

OH, MASTER, WE ARE AS FAR FROM FREE AS WHEN YOU WERE IN PRISON!
DO NOT DESPAIR, HU SHEE! THIS ODD PERSON CALLED CHOPSTICK JOE SAVED US FROM THE INVADER, EVEN THOUGH WE ARE NOW GUARDED AS PRISONERS!
BUT DUDE SAYS THIS JOE IS A BADDIE! HE PRACTICALLY FORCED US TO COME TO THIS COUNTRY HOUSE OF HIS!
OUR OMINOUS FRIEND HAS NOT YET REVEALED HIS HAND! IT WAS WISE OF THE BALD ONE TO INTRODUCE YOU AS HIS SISTER—AND HU SHEE AND ME AS YOUR MAIDS!
... BUT IF HE LEARNS YOU ARE THE DRAGON LADY HE WILL SELL YOU OUT TO THE INVADER IN NO TIME!
BUT, MEANWHILE AS THE ENGAGING DUDE'S SISTER, YOU MAY DISPLAY AFFECTION WITHOUT CONCERN FOR APPEARANCES — NOW THAT YOU HAVE FORGOTTEN THE LAMENTED RYAN!
I HOPE I'M PLENTY STRONG ON THE DAY I STOP ACTING CIVILIZED TOWARD YOU!
WHAT'S CURLIN' YOUR EYEBROWS, FLY-BOY? DIDN'T I LEND YOU AN AIRPLANE, RESCUE YOU LIKE THE MARINES, THEN BRING YOU TO MY COUNTRY HOUSE?
YEAH, BUT NOW YOU WANT TO BE PAID BACK FOR THE SHIP I CRACKED UP!... AND I'M BUSTED!
I TOLD YOU I'D TAKE YOUR SISTER'S MAIDS AS FAIR EXCHANGE! A SPORTY GENT LIKE CHOPSTICK JOE NEEDS NEW WIVES NOW AND THEN... GIVES A GUY TONE!... LISTEN TO THIS INTRODUCTION!...
BUT THEY'RE NOT SLAVES — I CAN'T JUST HAND 'EM OVER TO YOU!
...NO, BUT I CAN TAKE 'EM, FLY-BOY! YOU'RE NOT GOIN' ANY PLACE!.... LISTEN TO THAT CAT WARP TH' PAINT OFFA THAT OL' DOGHOUSE!
WHAT A WRASSLE! THIS IS THE KIND OF PICKLEMENT OL' PATRICK KNEW HOW TO HANDLE! MAYBE I OUGHTA GET TOUGH... THESE MUSCLE-MUGS UNDERSTAND THAT...
...LET'S DON'T KID AROUND, CHOPSTICK! I KNOW YOU CUT IN ON THAT BATTLE OF OURS BECAUSE YOU THOUGHT ONLY A BIGWIG COULD MAKE THAT MANY FISHERMEN STORM THAT HOUSE!
YOU'RE RIGHT, FLY-BOY!.... THOUGHT I MIGHT SAVE A NICE FAT MERCHANT— WHO'D PAY PLENTY!
INSTEAD, YOU FOUND US! AND YOU SAY WE'RE NOT GOING ANY PLACE! WHAT'S THE PITCH? WHAT GOOD CAN MY SISTER AND I DO YOU?
OKAY, SAILOR...YOU ASKED FOR IT!... YOU MUST THINK OL' CHOPS DOESN'T READ THE PAPERS...
... WHEN I LAMPED YOU, I COUNTED THE MOVIE FINISH A DEAD LOSS... BUT WHEN YOU TROTTED OUT THE PLATINUM JOB I KNEW I HAD PAY DIRT!

STEP ASIDE, SISTER! IF THIS IS PROFESSOR BUNSON BURNER'S HOUSE I GOT ORDERS TO REPLACE SOME TILE IN THE KITCHEN FLOOR!
YOU CAN'T FIX IT NOW! THE PROFESSOR HAS COMPANY, AND I HAFTA GET DINNER FOR THEM!
OKAY, CUTIE - DON'T GET EXCITED! I'LL LEAVE MY STUFF HERE AND COME BACK LATER!
DINNER WILL BE READY JUST AS SOON AS I BEAT UP A BATCH OF BISCUITS, PROFESSOR!
THAT'LL BE FINE, GERTIE! I'LL HAVE TIME TO EXPLAIN THE PURPOSE OF THIS GATHERING TO MY FELLOW SCIENTISTS!
GENTLEMEN - AFTER DINNER I'M GOING TO OPERATE MY EVOLUTION MACHINE FOR THE FIRST TIME! YOU WILL SEE ME CHANGE AN APE INTO A HUMAN, AND A HUMAN INTO AN APE!
I HAVE AN APE, AND MY HIRED GIRL DOESN'T KNOW IT, BUT SHE IS TO BE THE HUMAN EXPERIMENT --OH! OH! - HERE SHE COMES WITH THE DINNER!
OUCH! WHAT ROCK QUARRY DID YOU GET THESE BISCUITS FROM?
YOU'LL BUY ME A NEW SET OF UPPERS FOR THIS, BURNER!
CRACK! SNAP! POP! CRACK! POP! KLINK!
GOSH! I CAN'T UNDERSTAND IT--MY BISCUITS NEVER TURNED OUT THIS WAY BEFORE!
IS IT ALL RIGHT IF I PUT IN THE NEW TILE NOW?
CLANK!
HEY! WHERE'S THAT SACK OF CEMENT I LEFT HERE?
CEMENT? DON'T TELL ME THAT WASN'T A SACK OF FLOUR!
MAYBE THIS WILL TEACH YOU TO LEAVE A SACK OF CEMENT AROUND WHEN I'M MAKING BISCUITS!
BONG!

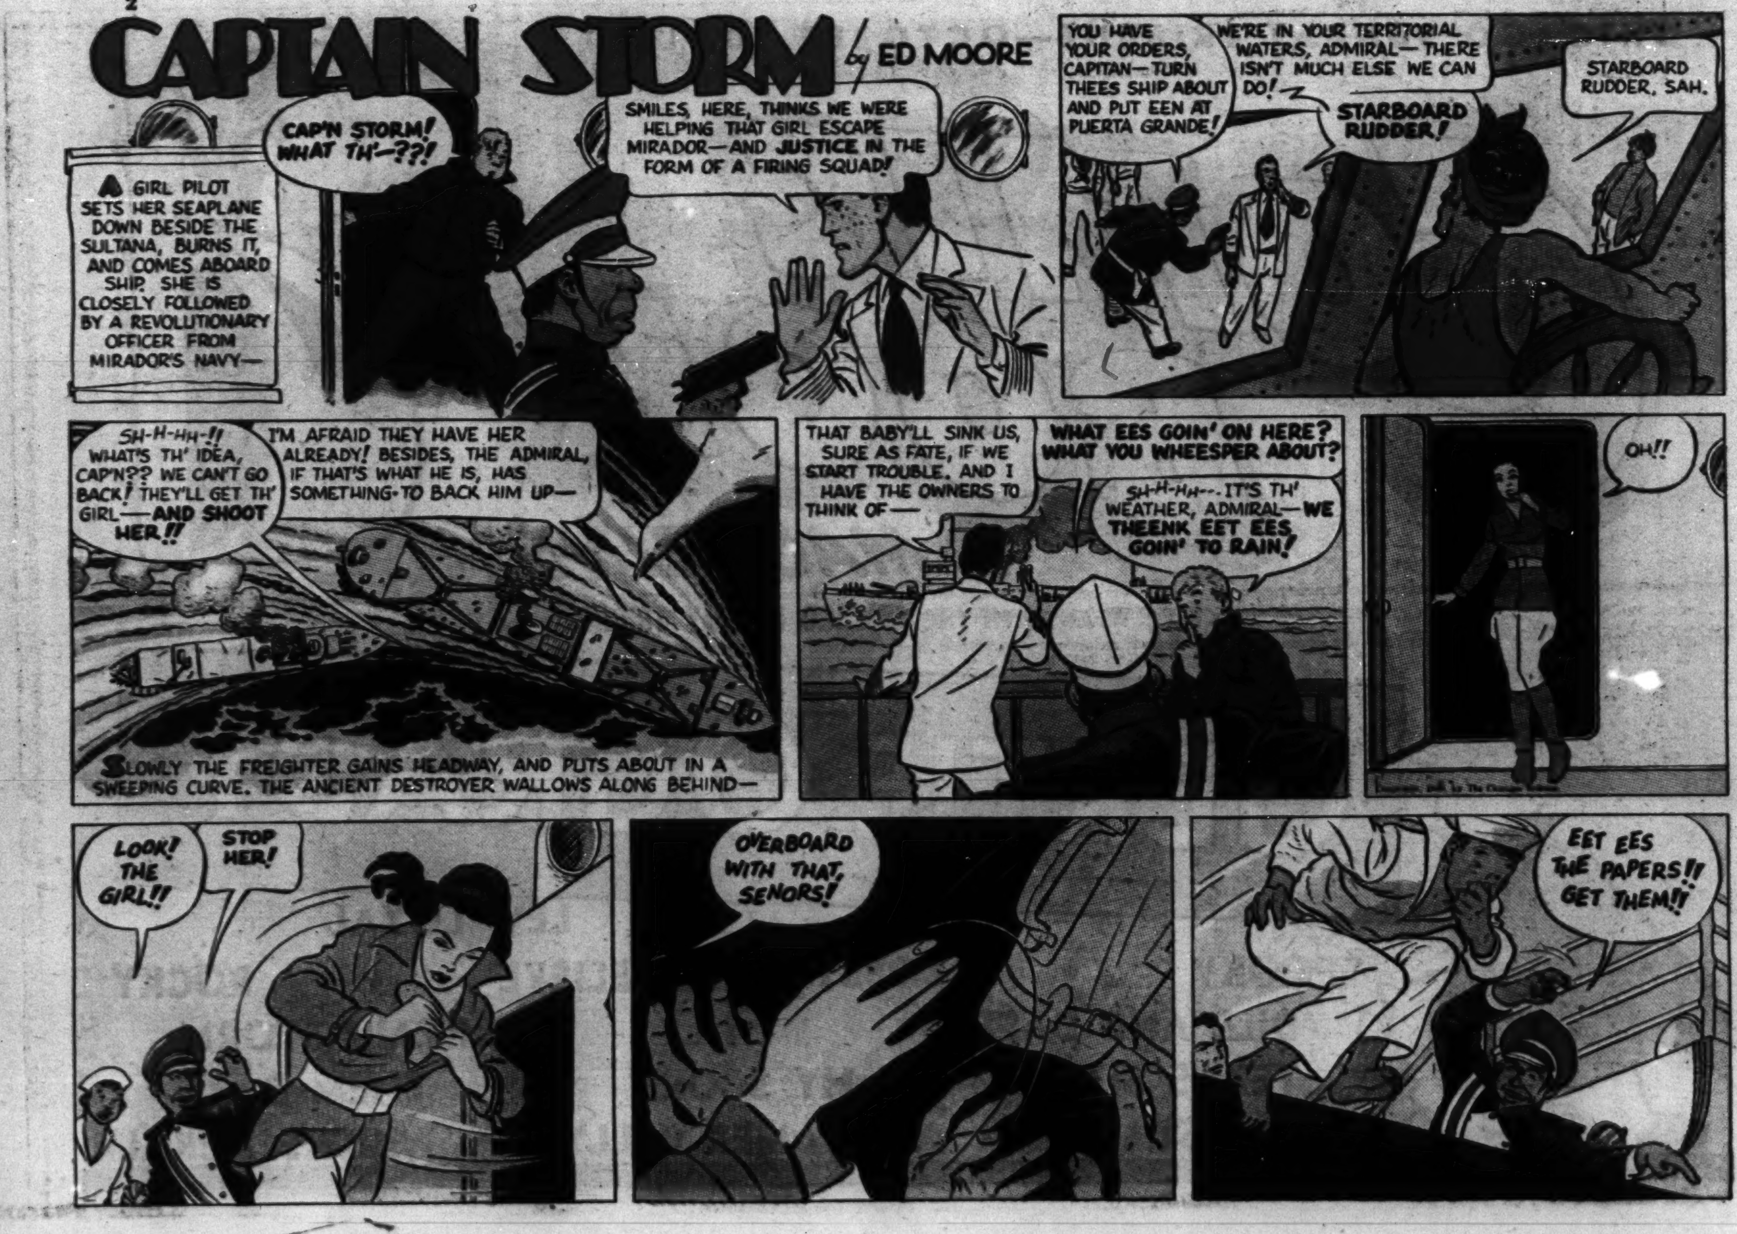
SECRET AGENT HY SCORE
...ABOARD THE S.S. ZANABAR — BUNNY HAS JUST FAINTED....
"YOU SAID SHE WAS POISONED, DOCTOR, HOW DID YOU KNOW THAT WITHOUT A DIRECT EXAMINATION?"
"PROFESSIONAL INTUITION.... I NOW FIND THE POISON TO BE, er— ACETIC ACID!"
"FORTUNATELY, I WAS PEERING FROM MY STATEROOM WHEN I SAW HER REEL. —SHE'LL BE ALL RIGHT WHEN THE ANTIDOTE TAKES EFFECT—"
STRANGE THAT HE SHOULD HAVE HAD THE CORRECT ANTIDOTE HANDY!
...SHE WAS POISONED BUT NOT FROM ACETIC ACID — THAT'S A HARMLESS INGREDIENT OF VINEGAR! THE DOCTOR LIED FIGURING I WOULDN'T KNOW THE DIFFERENCE! —I'LL WALK AROUND UNTIL BUNNY COMES TO...
...COULD THE DOCTOR HAVE POISONED BUNNY? IF SO, WHY THE ANTIDOTE? — MAYBE I WAS THE INTENDED TARGET. BUT WHY DOES HE WANT ME OUT OF THE WAY?
...IT COULD BE BECAUSE OF MY KNOWLEDGE OF THE ILLEGAL OPIUM ABOARD. THAT'S IT— THERE'S A HOOK-UP BETWEEN THE DOCTOR AND CAPTAIN TORK!
...THIS IS WHERE BUNNY AND I WERE WALKING WHEN SHE SAID SOMETHING STRUCK HER...NOTHING HERE BUT A FEW DROPS OF WATER.... WONDER WHAT'S IN THAT CABIN...
HM-M-ICE-FISHED FROM A PITCHER OF ICE WATER —I'VE HEARD OF ICE BEING DIPPED IN POISON THEN BLOWN THRU A TUBE— —THE ICE MELTS AND THERE'S NO EVIDENCE! THAT WOULD ACCOUNT FOR THE WATER ON DECK—
"ALL RIGHT, COPPER, YOU KNOW ENOUGH— I COULD ALMOST READ YOUR TRAIN OF THOUGHT —STEP BACKWARDS— MOVE!"
...HY STEPS BACK—AS ORDERED— AND FALLS THRU A TRAP DOOR.
....HIGH ABOVE HIM, HE HEARS THE TOP SLAM DOWN AS THO IT WERE THE TRUMPET OF FATE PROCLAIMING HIS DOOM....
"WELL, DOCTOR, IT LOOKS LIKE A SQUALL—THE GLASS IS FALLING FAST. ALL HANDS HAVE BEEN ORDERED TO STAND BY!"
"WHERE'S YOUR COMMANDING OFFICER, CAPTAIN TORK?"
NEXT WEEK TRAPPED IN A STORM.



CAPTAIN STORM by ED MOORE

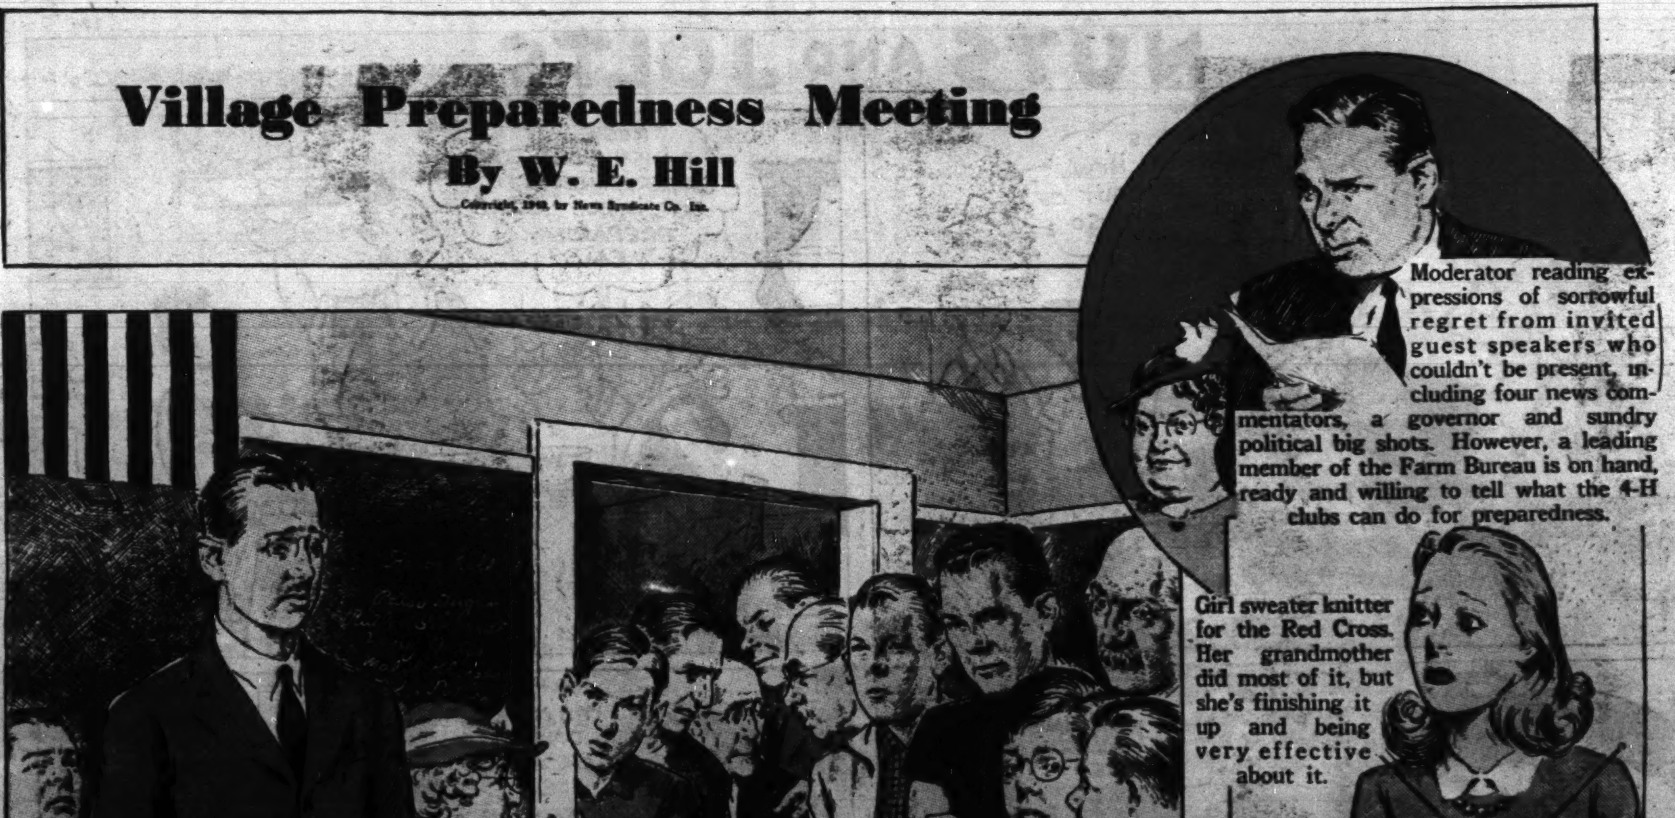
Village Preparedness Meeting

By W. E. Hill

Copyright, 1940, by News Syndicate Co. Inc.

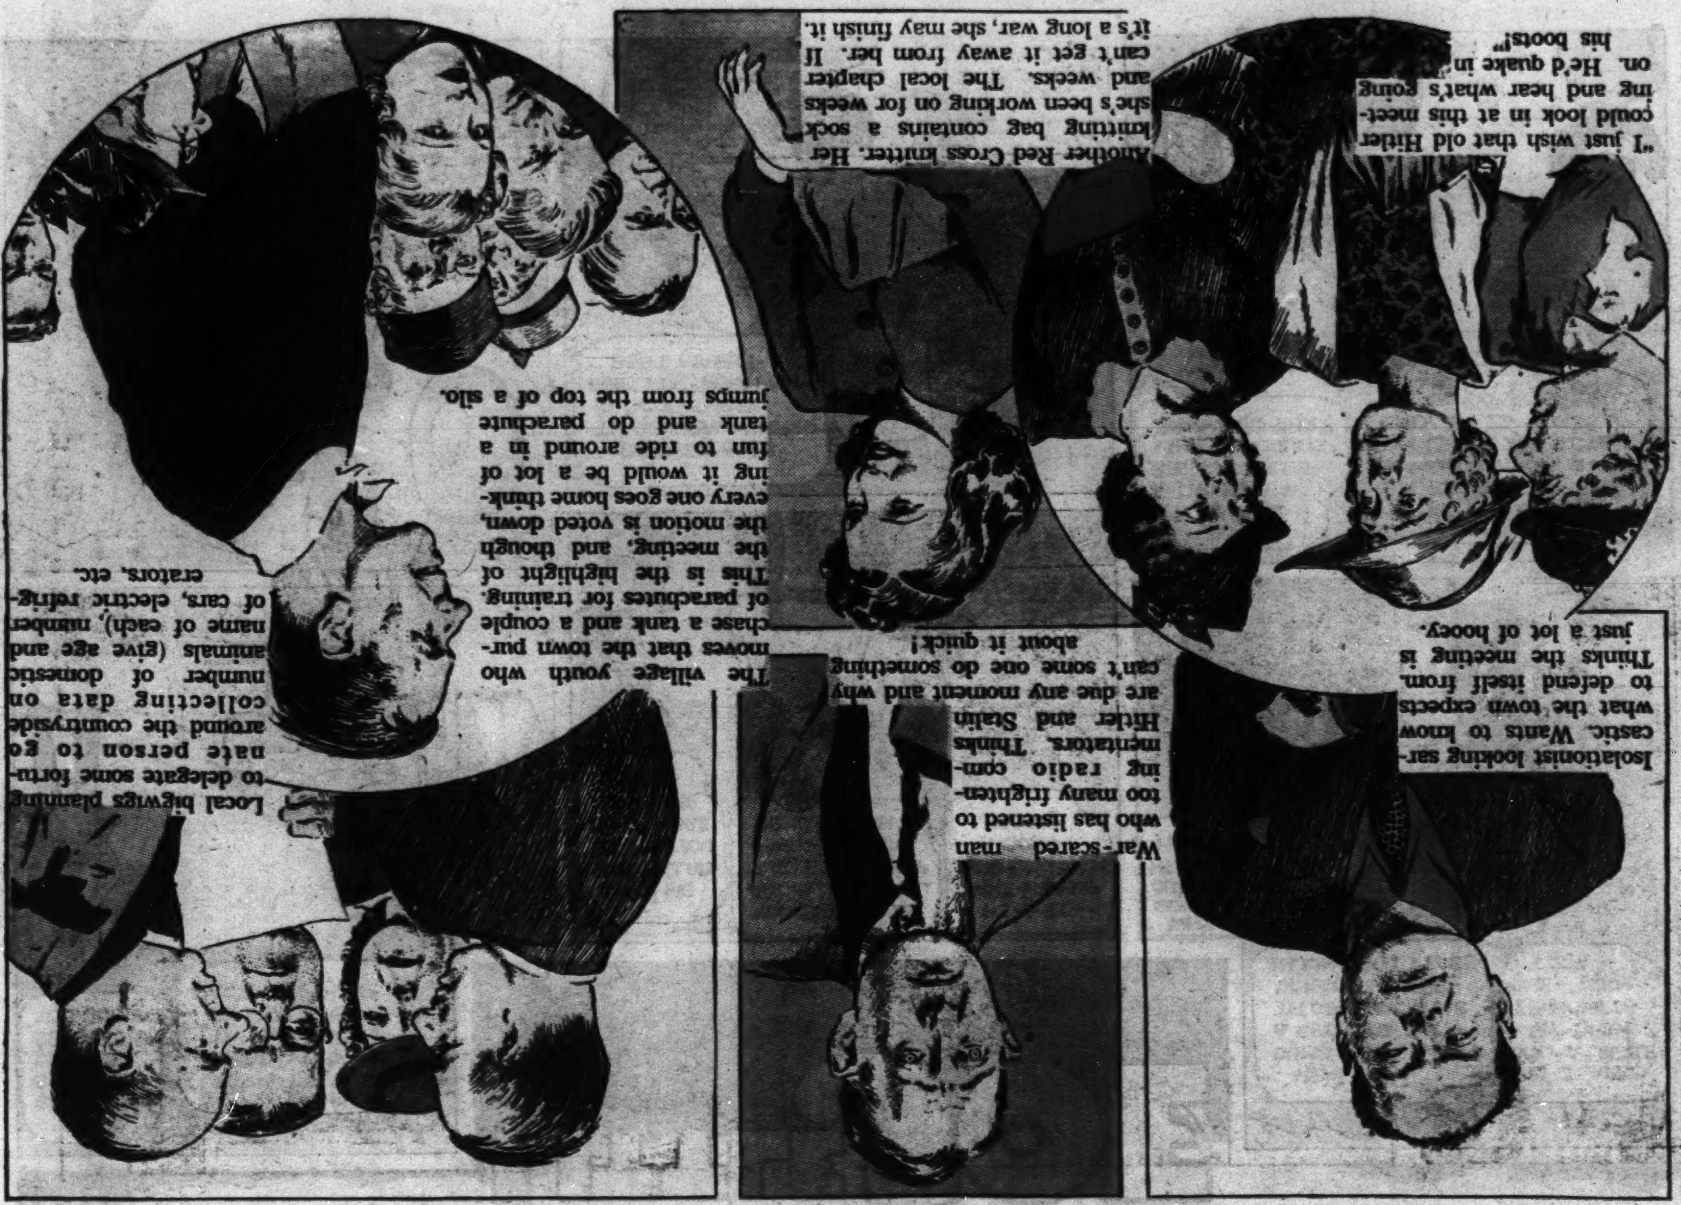


Moderator reading expressions of sorrowful regret from invited guest speakers who couldn't be present, including four news commentators, a governor and sundry political big shots. However, a leading member of the Farm Bureau is on hand, ready and willing to tell what the 4-H clubs can do for preparedness.

Girl sweater knitter for the Red Cross. Her grandmother did most of it, but she's finishing it up and being very effective about it.

The meeting to discuss potential war defense in the local school, showing a guest speaker from a neighboring town (looking fierce, as befits the occasion) telling what his locality has done to combat subversive influences.

Quarrelsome man. Wants to get at the bottom of why the meeting was called on a night when so many people couldn't be present and suspects fifth colu work.



Isolationist looking sarcastic. Wants to know what the town expects to defend itself from. Thinks the meeting is just a lot of hooey.

War-scared man who has listened to too many frightening radio commentators. Thinks Hitler and Stalin are due any moment and why can't some one do something about it quick!

Local bigwigs planning to delegate some fortunate person to go around the countryside collecting data on number of domestic animals (give age and name of each), number of cars, electric refrigerators, etc.

The village youth who moves that the town purchase a tank and a couple of parachutes for training. This is the highlight of the meeting, and though the motion is voted down, every one goes home thinking it would be a lot of fun to ride around in a tank and do parachute jumps from the top of a silo.

"I just wish that old Hitler could look in at this meeting and hear what's going on. He'd quake in his boots!"

Another Red Cross knitter. Her knitting bag contains a sock she's been working on for weeks and weeks. The local chapter can't get it away from her. If it's a long war, she may finish it.
